A force of Kwangtung troops adhering to the Kuo Min Tang Canton forces attempted to make a landing from the river last night under cover of darkness. The Yunnanese discovered the surprise attack and repulsed the Kwangtung troops.

The Yunnanese declare, however, their willingness to give over the government offices to the Kwangtung forces. But the fight continues unabated.

Yunnanese Kill Agitator; Get a Strike

Yunnanese troops killed an "agitator" at the Canton electric power plant. In reply the workers have all gone on strike against the Yunnanese control of the city. Thousands of refugees are leaving for Hong Kong.

Airplanes of the Kuo Min Tang armies are flying over Canton, dropping leaflets threatening to drop bombs unless the Yunnanese evacuate the city. American marines have been landed on Honan Island to guard the Canton Christian college.

Food supplies are running short for the civilian population.

Yunnanese recruits sent from Hong Kong by British imperialist interests were captured by the Kuo Min Tang.

Pick 21 Mediators.

SHANGHAI, June 11.—The secretary of the chamber of commerce announced today that a committee of twenty-one had been appointed to assist in mediating between the municipal council and the official body of the strikers, known as the general union of education, labor and commerce.

The chamber was most anxious, he said, for an early settlement, as Chinese business was hard hit. The chamber is receiving many thousands of dollars from Peking, Tientsin, the South Sea islands and Mexico to assist in feeding the striking workers.

Food Costs Go Up.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—From April 15 to May 15, the prices of food increased in fifteen out of twenty cities, the department of labor announced. In all twenty cities the food prices have gone up since last year.

Cooler Weather Has An Inning.

WASHINGTON, June 11.— Cooler weather from the northwest has now overspread the region of the Great Lakes, the Ohio valley and the middle and north Atlantic states, according to reports to the United States weather bureau today.

PITTSBURGH STEEL BARONS OPEN OFFENSIVE ON REBEL WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PITTSBURGH, June 11—An instant response, as only workers determinded fight can respond, was made to the appeal of the Labor Defense and Free Speech Council of Western Pa. on behalf of those rebels whom the "open shop" forces of the steel city are trying to make their first victims when the opening gun in their campaign to exterminate all working class organisation is fired Monday, June 15. The trial of the ten Communists, who were so closely identified with the struggles of the coal miners of 1922, who built and actively supported the "Miners Relief Committee," have been set for that date.

These trials will be but an advance notice of the general attacks to smash the unions which are to follow.

For two years these cases have been hanging fire the real prosecutors, the coal barons and the steel kings, knowing that they had nothing to base their attacks on except their thirst for vengeance against the militant opposition offered by the Communists to their "open shop" campaign. On April 27, 1922, nine of the defendants were arrested as the employers feared that the May Day following may bring a demonstration of working class solidarity in the great struggles waged at that time. The employers always fear such demonstrations but particularly then with several hundred thousand coal miners on strike to obtain human living conditions. The tenth defendant, Thomas Meyerscough, was arrested just a few days later.

Think Time Opportunte.

However, not until now has the organized capitalist combination found the time opportune to launch the general drive against the working class. Now they feel their forces well prepared and think the workers weakened. Moreover they are confident that in the meantime their servile tools, the labor fakers, have done everything within their power to disrupt the ranks of the organized workers, revoked charters and expelled the militant fighters. These are the facts which the workers of the Pittsburgh coal and steel district are beginning to realize, hence such splendid response.

Delegates to the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union nodded their approval when McNamara of the machinists' union announced that the trial of the first defendant, Fred H. Merrick, had been set for June 15 and that all affiliated unions would be called upon to support the defense and meet the attack made not only against the ten Communists but against the working class as a whole. Local unions have discussed the cases recognizing their implications and dangers to organized labor and money has been voted as a concrete token of support. Active trade union members have rallied with determination to see the fight thru. They have not remained satisfied with sympathetic declarations but have put their shoulder to the wheel to bring hard cash for the support of the defense and thus in the most effective way meet the "open shop" attacks.

A Splendid Example.

One coal miner, when hearing of the cases being definitely listed on the calendar, immediately quit a job which he knew could have kept him busy for a few days more. But he had no time to lose; he went out with contribution lists and after two days turned in $66.00. He is still active. There are many more like him who have learned a lession of the past struggles and understand the significance of an attack against the most militant force in the labor movement. But still many more active workers can be used in this defense work.

The Pittsburgh trials are portent of what is to come next. The spirit shown by the workers in rallying to the defense are encouraging and proves that they are on the alert ready to solidify their ranks and meet whatever attacks may be planned.

MOORS PUSH THE FRENCH ACROSS OUERGHA RIVER

Colored Troops Under Spain in Revolt

FEZ, French Morocco, June 11—The Riffians continue to push back the lines of the invading French army. The natives have captured the posts of Bouecour, and Achrkane, north of El BiBbane. The Moroccans have pushed across the Ouergha river east of Kelsa Des Sless, the official French war communique admits, adding "another Moorish offensive was started in the direction of Ouezzan, in which very important enemy contingents were engaged."

Premire Painleve is now conferring with the heads of the French army at Rabat, after his hasty flight by airplane from Paris.

The attacks of Abd-el-Krim, whose native army is attempting to drive the French from their native soil in North Africa, is now being waged Many of the members of the Frenc along a sixty mile front.

Many of the members of the French foreign legion, who are bearing the brunt of the attack are German fascists who enlisted after the Ruhr separatist movement failed.

Attempt to Save Young Mexican from the Gallows

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 11.—Joined by George Springer and Erving Wasson, of Peoria, attorneys for Jose Ortiz, young Mexican sentenced to be hanged in Peoria Friday, for the murder of his recalcitrant sweetheart, Eniliana Martinez, M. Lupian, Mexican consul in Chicago prepared today to ask Governor Small for a reprieve until motion for a new trial could be acted upon by the next session of the supreme court.

Immediately following the court's denial of a petition for a writ of error and supersedas the consul was understood to have planned to ask the governor for commutation to life sentence.

But, Like Oil Trust They Will, Increase and Multiply Greatly

WASHINGTON, June 11.—Indictments have been returned at Chicago under the Sherman anti-trust law against the American Tannery products company and other tannery companies, the department of justice announced this afternoon.

The companies are charged with conspiracy in restraint of trade and with the creation of a monopoly in cattle, cattle hair and other products.

THREE-DAY BATTLE FOR CANTON STILL RAGES AS KUOMINTANG GETS READY FOR FINAL VICTORY BLOW

CANTON, China, June 11.— For three days now the battle has waxed and waned without decisive result between the Yannanese mercenaries and the Canton Kuo Min Tang army across the river.

United States marines landed yesterday on Honan Island which is held by the Kuo Min Tang forces, ostensibly to protect the Christian college and foreign residents. Americans feel safer on Honan Island than in Canton, as General Lei Fuk-lam, commanding the island, is a patron of the Christian college. Last year he gave a hospital to the college and secured the prompt release of tweaty students kidnapped by mercenary troops several months ago.

Americans Leave Canton.

For this reason Americans are fleeing from Canton to Honan Island to seek refuge. The Canton-American hospital was struck by shell fire during the fighting yesterday. And the Yunnanese fired on a launch returning to Canton from Honan Island, riddling it with machine gun bullets and forcing its return to Honan.

Kuo Min Tang troops are converging upon Canton from two directions but all attempts so far at ousting the Yunnanese have been desultory failures. Gunboats on Monday night tried to land troops on the Canton side of the Pearl (Chukiang) river, but were repulsed. But Kuo Min Tang forces are advancing from the east and Chu Pei-teh with more reinforcements is coming from the north.

Want War Segregated.

The Chinese chamber of commerce accompanied by a delegation of American business men, called upon the army leaders yesterday and asked that they take the war at least ten miles out of town. The call was apparently unsuccessful.

The report that a Cantonese gunboat commander has succumbed to a bribe of $100,000 from the French and British backed Yunnanese is denied. It appears that he got the $100,000 all right, but he turned it over to the Kuo Min Tang army and left the Yunnanese-French-British to hold the sack.

ZANKOV WHITE TERROR PUBLICLY MURDERS ANOTHER COMMUNIST

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 11.—The Communist Pertchemliev was hanged at sunrise this morning by the Zankov white terror government. Pertchemliev was the fourth worker to be publicly executed for resisting the assaults of the Zankov brigands on the workers and peasants of Bulgaria. He was charged with "complicity in the bombing of the Sveti Kral cathedral."

Three other workers were hanged on May 27, inclding the Communist, Marko Friedmann.

Green Boosts for Flag That Never Protected Interests of Workers

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, joins the jingo hosts that are trying to make a howling success of Flag Day, June 14, from the standpoint of 100 per cent Americanism. Which means, that those who refuse to pull their hats off, and join lustily in the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, will have them knocked off in the best fascist style, if some super-chauvinist happens to be near.

William Green comes from the coal miners' union. He was secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America when he was lifted to his present position. The American flag has played a conspicuous part in the history not only of the American coal miners, but of the metal miners as well.

Green did not set forth any of these bitter experiences of the workers in his cringing Flag Day declaration. Instead he poured gobs of praise on the flag. He declared its stands for "freedom and democracy," "inspires patriotism" and is an "incentive to Americanization."

In fact, Flag Day arrives in time to witness the administering of another and fatal kick to the fraudulent "liberties" that unsuccessfully try to raise their heads and lay claim to life in the words of the federal constitution. But Green will justify the supreme court decision in the Gitlow case because it was returned against Communists.

But the flag! It was raised by women and children over their tent homes in the Colorado coal strike. But it was no protection. Militiamen, taking their orders from Rockefeller's Colorado Fuel and Iron Co., also carrying "The Flag," turned a murderous fire on the mine strikers and their families, burned the tents, killing and suffocating many in what has become known as the Ludlow massacre. The flag does not "inspire patriotism" in the Southern Colorado coal fields. The workers here know what it stands for.

Great parades were features of the North Michigan copper strike in 1913. Children marched with their fathers and mothers. "Big Anna," who led many of these processions, carried a flag. But it was trampled under foot and torn to shreds under the hoofs of giant horses mounted by state cossacks in military uniform sent to break the strike.

William Green, the "labor lieutenant" of capitalism, says that, "Those who have marched behind our flag to maintain the liberty of our nation have been encouraged to greater efforts by its presence."

Truth may be read into those words. To be sure, strikers in Colorado, in Michigan, over the iron range in Minnesota, thruout the textile and shoe districts of New England, have marched behind the flag, mistakenly believing that it gave them some protection against the capitalist taskmaster. But they have quickly learned their mistake., They have been "encouraged to greater efforts," in spite of the flag, against all that it stands, to build their own organizations and fight for their own liberation.

Flag Day is the day of the bankers, the industrialists, the great landlords and profiteers of every description. They can well afford to spend some of their loot on bunting to decorate their homes and places of business, their offices and factories. It protects their profit system. When the mine owners sought to break the 1922 coal strike with bayonets, the flag was raised over every tipple thruout the coal fields, the symbol of "open shop" rule.

When William Green, or any other official of labor, espouses the cause of Flag Day, or any other capitalist holiday, he merely carries out those class-collaboration policies that bind and gag labor, leaving it prostrate and helpless at the feet of its master. Workers will celebrate Flag Day by renouncing and fighting such leadership.

June 29—July 4 Anti-Imperialist Week

United States government has not scrupled to lend official support to native dictators and oppressors of the Latin-American people, such as Leguia in Peru, Orellana in Guatemala and the bloody Juan Vicente Gomez in Venezuela. Wherever "peaceful penetration" fails to achieve the desired end, American troops and warships are called into play.

Such incidents are not accidental. They are American foreign policy in action in Latin-America.

The American capitalist order is the driving force back of American imperialism.

Latin-America has immense deposits of oil, that great new fuel and war stuff of rival imperialism; so it must be brought under the domination of the American oil trust.

Latin-America is rich in raw materials of all sorts, from the wheat and meat of Argentinia to the copper, silver and gold, of Mexico; so it must be bound to the chariot of the American industrial magnates and the bankers who dominate them in the search for exclusive sources of raw material.

Latin-America is a fertile field for the investment of billions of surplus American dollars; so its lands must be seized and its sons to toil long hours for miserable wages under American taskmasters.

A huge American empire, with its base in Latin-America but with ramifications extending thruout the world, is being carved out of the suffering and toil of subject peoples. Latin-Americans, Filipinos, Chinese, etc., are looked upon as so much grist for the profit mill of Wall Street.

The lords of Wall Street dominate not only in Latin-America, not only in the Philippines, but in the United States itself, where the working class is exploited as a subject people for the sake of capitalism. Latin-American and Filipino workers are played off against American workers. Competition from "foreign cheap labor" is used as an excuse to force down the standard of living of the American workers.

American imperialism is the black beast of the western hemisphere. It is the greatest menace confronting us today.

President Coolidge's "mobilization day," or "defense day," means a renewed dedication to the purposes of American imperialism.

It is time for militant resistance!

In the past, the various peoples have struggled bravely against the encroachements of Wall Street, but they have done so in isolated fashion, and consequently without any permanent success. The All-American Anti-Imperialist League has come into existence to unify this fight, to bring together all forces in a concerted and ceaseless struggle against American imperialism.

The All-American Anti-Imperialist League now issues a call to all peoples groaning under the heel of American imperialism:

Against President Coolidge's "mobilization day," we set up "Anti-Imperialist Week."

Let this be our answer:

WE PROCLAIM THE WEEK OF JUNE 29 TO JULY 4 AS "ANTI-IMPERIALIST WEEK" THRUOUT AMERICA!

Mass meetings must be held everywhere, newspapers must publish special anti-imperialist editions, handbills must be circulated—and on July 4 demonstrations of protest must be held before every American legation and consulate.

The week ending July 4 is "Anti-Imperialist Week!" Let the word go forth. Let us make "Anti-Imperialist Week" an unmistakable and ringing answer to the challenge of the American imperialists! Let it be the beginning of a great movement which will not cease until the curse of American imperialism has been swept from the world for all time!

ALL-AMERICAN ANTI-IMPERIALIST LEAGUE,
Manuel Gomez, Secretary.

HOLD MEMORIAL FOR MATTEOTTI; FASCISTS RAGE

Italian Parliament Is Guarded by Troops

ROME, Italy, June 11.— Secret meetings were held in the cities thruout Italy to commemorate the first anniversary of the death of Sig. Matteotti, socialist deputy who was brutally slain on June 10, 1924 by fascists who took their orders from Mussolini. Bands of fascist rowdies parade the streets with clubs, wrecking opposition homes and newspapers, and burning their contents.

The opposition deputies had announced their determination to hold memorial services in the parliament building, but for the first time in the history of Italy the building was closed. Troops filled the chamber of deputies, and strong guards of fascist militia were thrown around the building.

All newspapers which mentioned Matteotti's death were surpressed, except the fascist papers. The Cremona Nuova, sheet owned by Robert Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, declared that the high court of justice would soon publish its decision "completely absolving our brave Senator Gen. De Bono." The court is a fascist court. Farinacci openly urged the fascists to banish Donati, editor of an opposition newspaper, from Italy.

When Matteotti's widow attempted to place a wreath of flowers along the Tiber, into which Matteotti's body was hurled, a fascist mob drove her away.

BARBER'S UNION DEFEATS FAKERS' EXPULSION MOVE

Giganti and Others Stay in Union

The last round in the fight of the reactionary officials to expel the leading progressives from the Barbers' Union of Chicago has ended in their defeat, so far as the membership in Chicago is concerned.

In spite of the fact the union meeting had been packed with antagonistic elements, the progressives, after explaining the issues, were able to secure the vote which completely exonerated them from the charge of "conspiring to overthrow the union."

It must be mentioned, however, that neither Giganti nor Albright, two of the progressives charged, were permitted to speak in their defense, because the question on the motion had been called.

This is a jolt to the barber officials and it seems that they are gradually coming to their senses, with the exception of F. A. Ackerman, and Joe Lauder who oppose the progressives very bitterly. It was Ackerman who, after signing the charges against the progressives, made the motion to "fine $100 each and expel."

Joe Lauder, whose mentality is much lower, announced after the humiliating defeat inflicted by the rank and file that he was going to appeal the matter to the International Union. This announcement was greeted by a roar of laughter from the members present.

The last meeting of the Barbers' Union, according to the opinion of the progressives, proves that the only opposition to progress comes from the misinformed members, but these when once told the truth, come over to the progressive camp to stay and fight for their rights.

BILL AGAINST KLAN KILLED BY ILLINOIS HOUSE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 11—In a battle marked with the bitterest factional outbreaks of the entire session, the house today killed the so-called "ku klux klan bill," introduced by Representative William E. King, a Negro from Chicago. The vote was 63 to 58, with four voting "present."

While not naming the klan specifically, the bill provided for publication of membership rosters of all secret organizations and was considered the "anti-klan" legislation of the session.

Gov. Small, who controls the house, has favored the klan in the past, and it was his disapproval which killed the bill, it is thot.

King gave the legislators the assurance that he would rather be a "failure as a politician and a success as a man," than vice versa and listen to friends who had advised him to withdraw. He did not share apprehension felt by other members and said the bill was similar in detail with one now in operation in New York state.

Drag Scabs from Nova Scotia Collieries

TORONTO, Ont., Canada, June 11—The miners' union officials of District 26 of the U. M. W. of A., have been forced by the militant strikers to institute real mass picketing, after a three months effort to enact their class collaboration policy.

All maintenance work in District 26 is now at a standstill. At Waterford the men invaded the power plant en masse, carried out the scabby, white-collared officials and placed them in their car.

Premier Armstrong and Attorney-General O'Hearn have suddenly become "active" and threaten "mounted police" intervention.

"Middle Class" Sobs.

Executive members McLeod, McKay and Nearing are touring the miners' local advocating 100 per cent picketing.

After three months of slow starvation the miners' executive have made their final confession of failure of class collaboration by reversing their policy in favor of mass picketing and a one hundred per cent strike.

This is what the progressive coal miners have been calling for these last three months. This is what they called for at the very outset of the strike. We claimed that the miners had nothing but treachery to expect from the Armstrongs, the Murdocks and the middle class "relief" crew.

"Public opinion" did a little sobbing over the miners' hovels while the sensation was new. When the middle class saw that this was an industrial class struggle and that it would be dangerous to go too far in "sympathy" for the workers, "public opinion" shut up like a clam. It is more interested in the horse races. The miners can be bloodily smashed but "public opinion" won't let out a peep protest.

Position Reversed.

Then in response to the growing demand of the men for action, and under pressure of the left-wingers on the board, McLeod and McKay finally emitted a feeble notice sanctioning picketing.

This "sanction" is the weakest statement we have ever seen! It urged the men to treat Besco's property reverently and it took the whole guts out of the picketing.

At the convention a couple of weeks ago to discuss future policy, McLeod still argued against mass-picketing. He claimed there was a 100 per cent strike even if scab officials were doing the maintenance work.

And now McLeod's whole position is reversed—after three months. McLeod admits that it was not a 100 per cent strike while Besco kept its officials doing scab work.

The situation three months ago was the same as today.

Three months have been wasted. Besco has been allowed to get more arrogant, to lay "open-shop" plans.

Militancy has been justified. The workers have nothing but their chains to lose. On with the struggle for bread and against the 10 per cent reduction. Out with the white-collar scabs! Everything to win!

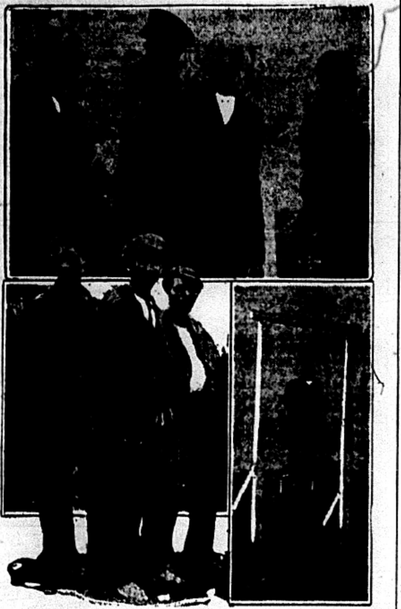
BULGARIAN WORKERS MURDERED BY FASCIST ZANKOV GOVERNMENT



THIS picture just received shows the ghastly drama of cathedral bombing in capital of Bulgaria, in one of its phases. Here we see three men with their hands tied behind their backs awaiting execution while a bishop of the orthodox Catholic church is seeing pumping his spritual liquid fire into them. The three condemned men in upper picture are: Koev, Zadgorski and Friedman. The three scaffolds on which they were executed was erected in an open field and a multitude was invited by the Zankov government to watch the murder. In the lower left picture are the three gypsies who were forced to pull the chairs from beneath the condemned men. Below right is one of the doomed men ready for death. The horrible brutality of the Bulgarian arch-fiends now running the government has shocked the workers of the world. The capitalists have nothing but words of praise for the murderers.

CHILDREN UNDER TEN YEARS OF AGE WORKING TEN HOURS A DAY IN HERDS OF FARMING SLAVES

NEW YORK, June 11—Children of ten working ten hours a day are the farm laborers of South New Jersey truck farms, the startling report of Russell J. Eldridge, Jersey state director of employment, to state labor commissioner, Andrew F. McBride, shows. The situation is complicated by the fact that the majority of the child workers are sent in by Philadelphia agencies and cannot be controlled directly by Jersey laws.

"Rest periods are unknown, except at the discretion of parents," Eldridge says. "I observe none in effect." He found "no child working possessed an age or schooling certificate." Children under 10 form 10 per cent of the total number of child workers on the truck farms and cranberry bogs. The total number working could only be determined by a weekly survey of the entire farming district, particularly below Trenton, from May 15 to Oct. 15.

"In many cases the houses provided were inferior to even tenement standards, with regard to ventilation, fire safeguarding, water, toilet and cooking facilities, sanitation and hygiene," Eldridge reports. Most of the local schools had not tried to reach the working children and some show a disinclination to accommodate out-of-town children. The padrone system of labor is still used.

Inspection and rigid application of the Jersey child welfare act at Camden, where most of the Philadelphia immigration comes in, is urged by the investigator. Watch on Jersey employment agents is also suggested.

CHINESE STUDENTS IN AMERICA VOICE ANGER AT IMPERIALISM'S ACTS, HOPING FOR ITS REFORM

By ESTHER LOWELL

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 11.—(F.P.)—"The time has passed when China can be treated as an outlying colony of any one nation or group of nations," Wellington Y. W. Liu, president Chinese Students Alliance in America, writes to secretary of state Kellog in reference to the Shanghai situation.

Liu states that "the question which originally as a purely industrial disagreement between Japanese employers and Chinese workers has now assumed a political aspect and the powers are fast rusing forces to Chinese ports, ostensibly to protect foreign residents and premises."

Thinks Imperialist Nations "Magnanimous."

"A change of heart is called for in those foreign agents in China who may be misrepresenting the magnanimity and fairplay of their home governments," he continues. "We believe the situation is not so grave as to call for foreign armed intervention. The issue was originally industrial and economic, and not political. If labor strikes in England, France and the United States can be settled thru legal means and by industrial arbitration, logic compels us to believe that the Sino-Japanese cotton mill dispute can be equally well adjusted without unnecessary shedding of blood.

"But, unfortunately, reckless firing on the part of irresponsible foreign agents in Shanghai has precipitated a crisis which leads to the movement of numerous foreign cruisers and destroyers by foreign powers, thinking that their own interests are in jeopardy."

Sees End of Democracy.

The letter, approved by a mass meeting of Chinese students in New York, declares that the Shanghai trouble is "not an anti-foreign uprising." It says, "If a peaceful and sympathetic demonstration by a group of unarmed and defenceless young students to protest against the ill-treatment meted out by a mixed court to an ill-organized group of laborers on strike could be called 'Red' or 'anti-foreign,' we shudder to see the beginning of the end of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly which are the glory of all democratic traditions of the world."

Asks No More Marines.

The letter concludes: "We would feel proud if our traditional friend on this side of the Pacific stands firm on the ground that China's sovereignity shall be respected at all costs, that no more marines shall be landed and those additional units of naval forces shall be withdrawn so soon as is compatible with the safety of American residents in China."

Angry at Mixed Court.

The Chinese Students Alliance is divided into three groups in America: Eastern, mid-west and western, according to C. Y. Cheng of the Chinese consulate-general office in New York. The alliance includes over 2,000 members.

The feeling has run high about the Shanghai affair, Cheng explains, because the students were merely on sympathetic strike demonstrating against the injustice to strikers convicted in the mixed court (not Chinese court). When the foreign police fired into the ranks of the students, sometimes when the students were not even in the foreign quarter, students in other parts of China and in America became aroused to protest.

NOW 244,385 MORE UNEMPLOYED IN GREAT BRITAIN THAN IN 1924

LONDON, Eng., June 11.—The number of unemployed workers increased during the week ending June 6, by 60,778, the government officially announced. This is the biggest increase in unemployment in many months, and the government expressed "anxiety and disappoinment."

There are now 1,247,300 unemployed workers officially recorded, with many thousands more not tabulated, an increase in the official tabulation of 244,385 over last year.

LOW WAGES AND LONG HOURS FOR MOVIE EXTRAS

Work Under Lock and Key for 23 Hours

By L. P. RINDAL.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 11—Hollywood is seventh heaven for brass-check press-agented movie stars with beauty prizes and other "affairs" to their "credit," but exploitation —below the starvation point—for plain extras.

Work Stretch of 23 Hours.

About 175 men and 75 women went to work for the Globe Picture corporation at 7 o'clock in the morning, May 15, and they were locked up on the job until 6 a. m. the next day, or 23 hours' labor without sleep or rest.

At 3 o'clock in the morning, May 16, the men demanded pay for 3 days if they wanted them to stay any longer. This was promised by the director but, later, refused by the company.

The fair sex, some of whom received a higher rate than the male element for the same kind of work, were paid for two days and a half (3 hours short). The men, however, were offered only two days pay (7 hours short.)

For a whole week, these 250 extras, men and women, stormed the offices of deputy labor commisisoner, Block and Baker. Finally, the men were paid off with a check for two days and a half, or the same as the women.

Once more: Blessed be equality! But best of all—solidarity!

The women made a kick for being forced to work over 8 hours—under lock and key—and their cases are sent to the state labor commisisoner in San Francisco.

Work But No Eats.

For 23 hours work—day and night—and one week loss of time in order to collect the men received the "huge" sum of $6.70. After the room rent is paid (to a greedy landlord) out of a wage like that, there is nothing left to live on—except sunshine and hot air; and, when it rains—like it does during this Shriners' week—we are entirely out of luck. "It hasn't rained for 40 years, but it rained like 'hell' today," sing the nobles; so the breakfast, from now on, must be made out of something else besides climate.

Even the sour oranges, produced in this locality, are hanging too high—not only for movie extras, but more so for every member of the the army of over 65,000 unemployed workers, from the ranks of which the different picture studios hire their over-worked (if worked at all) and under-paid slaves.

RIFFIAN TALKING COLD TURKEY TO PROUD GENERAL OF BOURGEOIS SPAIN

THE Spanish general who is sitting in the chair, as the president of the Chicago Federation of Labor would say is "in a most unhappy position." The person with the garb resembling a bath robe is a Riffian chief, and whatever he is saying to the Spanish general, the latter is taking it all in. The two Moroccan soldiers and the Spanish soldier standing by, appear to be having a good time. This picture was taken when Spain decided that discretion was the better part of valor and proposed to let somebody else tackle the hardy Riffians. France is now wrestling with the job.

NEGRO ALUMNI ELECT ANTI-DURKEE HEAD, PROTEST DISMISSAL OF TWO STUDENTS FOR STRIKE ACTIVITIES

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 11.—Meeting in annual session in Andrew Rankin Memorial chapel, the General Alumni association of Howard university elected as its head, on an anti-administration platform, George Fraser Miller, of Brooklyn, N. Y., to succeed W. Justin Carter, of Harrisburg, Pa.

Mrs. Agnes Davis Durrah, of Plainfield, N. J., delivered the annual address on the "duty of the alumni." She urged the association to "stand solidly behind President Durkee and the university trustees," but to no avail." The work of the past year was reported by the retiring president.

Two Strikers Expelled

Already inflamed by the news that two students—James Reed and Harry Bright—had been asked yesterday to withdraw from the university at the end of this week for participation in the recent student strike, the assembly of 400 alumni from various parts of the country were electrified from a speech by Neval H. Thomas placing in nomination Mr. Miller as "against autocracy, the wasting of university funds and Dr. Durkee's presidency of the Curry School of Expression of Boston, which bars Negroes."

Oppose Administration

Obstructionist tactics, led by William H. Houston, to block a vote on the nomination continued for several hours without avail. At an early hour in the morning the nomination of Dr. Miller was put and carried by a heavy majority. It was understood a program in opposition to the administration at Howard University will be put in operation at once.

Novel of College Life Barred from Mails as "Indecent"

JACKSONVILLE, Ill., June 10.—"The College Exodus," by Russel M. Arundel, a novel of college life, centering around the "upper intellectuals" and the problems of a student's career, has been barred from the mails, according to a statement received by the author today from J. J. Kiely, postmaster at New York.

Kiely said the book, which publishers planned to market this fall, violated section 470 of the postal regulations because chapters 17 and 20, discussing sex philosophy and describing wild revelry among students of the art and literary departments, were "suggestive."

Arundel is a former student of the universtiy of Illinois and much of his material was said to have been obtained there.

"If postal authorities believe my book will incite moral degeneracy rather than drive it out of the colleges, I shall gladly withdraw it from the publishers," Arundel said.

"I had hoped to place before the public the exact environment in college that leads to destruction of a sense of moral justive and develops characters that menace the welfare of upright and ambitious students."

'PAY DEBTS OR WE BREAK YOU,' CAL TO FRANCE

Threaten to Withhold Morgan Credits

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., 11.—Speaking on behalf of the Coolidge administration, as the mouthpiece of the J. P. Morgan bankers, Senator Simeon Fess, in an address here warned France that she would be economically ruined, and indicated that Morgan would withheld further credits from France unless negotiations are begun immediately for the settlement of France's war debt to America.

Fess included in his address a declaration that "we are hopeful that under the leadership of President Coolidge we may have another conference to do for armies what was done by the Washington conference for the navies."

In other words, the bankers controlling Coolidge are, thru financial pressure, forcing France to complete her dependence on Great Britain and the United States by smashing at a new "arms parley" the air and land forces of France, just as the naval forces were smashed at the last conference.

France is fast headed toward a position of subordination to the United States financial powers as complete as the subjection of Germany under the Dawes plan.

NEW YORK HAT WORKERS VOTE FOR A STRIKE

Demand Wage Raise of 15 Per Cent

NEW YORK, June 11—Local 8 of the United Hatters of North America at a well attended mass meeting in Bethoven Hall decided by a vote of 443 to 73 in favor of calling an immediate strike in order to compel the bosses to grant their demand for a wage incerase of 15 per cent.

The demand of a wage increase was among others sent to the bosses some time ago. To date the bosses have not signified their willingness to even consider the matter of an increase in wages despite the fact that the bosses have been piling up huge profits, and the man cannot get along on the old wages.

In order to mislead the men from their main demand and fool them with promises the bosses proposed to grant the minor demands and promised to use better hat bodies instead of the inferior ones now in use in order to make it easier for the men to work.

The workers are, with good reason, mistrustful of this offer, because this is not the first time they have heard this promise from the bosses. It has become almost a yearly yarn used by the greedy pack of exploiters to fool the workers with.

All the men are determined to stick to their just demand of a 15 per cent increase. The date for the walkout has been already set in case of the continued refusal of the bosses to meet that demand. The men are expected to down tools and effect a 100 per cent walkout.

RED WEEK—June 15 to 21.

Young Workers to Hold Hike in New York on Sunday

NEW YORK, June 11.—All members of the Young Workers League, as well as their friends and sympathisers will meet at 129th St. and 3rd Ave. at 8 a. m. sharp this Sunday June 14 from where they will go to Silver Lake on a hike.

MEMBERSHIP MEET IN YOUNGSTOWN SUNDAY, JUNE 21

'Hands Off China!' Mass Meeting at Nite

YOUNGSTOWN, June 11.—A general membership meeting of all Workers Party branches in the Youngstown steel sub-district will be held Sunday, June 21, at the Hungarian Hall, 333½ West Federal St., top floor, starting at 10 a. m. sharp. Steel workers from the Pittsburg district and the Youngstown sub-district will meet with Comrade William F. Dunne of the central executive committee and comrades Swabeck and Wagenknecht. Notices have been mailed out to every branch and the sub-district secretary has ordered a general mobilization of all party members in the steel sub-district to be on hand promptly at the hour set. Party members in Waren, Niles, Girard, Youngstown and East Youngstown, Ohio and in New Castle, Bessmer and Farrell, Pa., take note. Important party work in steel industry is to be taken up and the D. O. directs a full attendance.

Mass Meeting at Nite

In the evening on this same date at the Ukrainian Hall, 525½ West Rayen Ave., at 8 p. m. prompt a mass protest meeting against imperialist intervention in China will be held with comrade Dunne as the principal speaker. This will be a "Hands Off China" mass meeting and in accordance with recent instructions by the C. E. C. to protest against the slaughter of Chinese workers, peasants and students. All party press readers are urged to advertise the mass meeting and bring along their worker sympathisers to the meeting.

Party members in Columbiana county are invited to attend the general membership meeting in the morning so that they may be familiar with this phase of our party work.

By order of C. E. C., D. O's

'TWO-IN-ONE' CONTEST FOR WORKER CORRESPONDENTS IS ANNOUNCED

Read Rules Carefully—Then Get Busy!

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE

on for a two week period—make it possible for workers who have never written a news story in their lives, those who are just beginning to write and those who have had considerable experience, to compete on an equal footing.

These rules have been carefully worked out and they make it easy for everyone except the judges—Comrades Loeb, Engdahl and the writer. They will have to consider the material as it is submitted, not after it is edited and published.

A few words now to the workers who will take part in this contest. You will note that Rule 6 states: "Stories are not limited in length but those of 500 words and less will receive preference." Keep this in mind. It is quite plain that stories of 500 and less have much more chance of being read carefully than longer contributions. One of the main purposes of these competions will have been overlooked if the contestants do not take advantage of them to learn to write clearly—and briefly. Remember the complaint of Lenin after reading the long and wandering articles by sincere but very wordy revolutionary journalists:

"Why" he said, "is it not possible to write in 10 or 20 lines instead of 200 or 400 of things with which the workers are familiar?"

The $5 worth of literature that is to be awarded to the worker correspondent who turns in the best story can be selected from any of the publications handled by the DAILY WORKER.

The name of the winner, the title of his story and the reasons for awarding the prize to him will be published every two weeks. The necessary criticism that will accompany the announcements of the stories submitted will be of the greatest value to all the competitors and aid them to do better work in the next contest.

Send in your stories.

Rules of Worker Correspondent's Contest

Every two weeks the DAILY WORKER will give a prize of $5.00 worth of literature to the worker who sends in the best Worker Correspondent story during that period. This prize may be selected from any books or pamphlets in the catalogue of the Daily Worker Publishing company or may be applied to DAILY WORKER or Workers Monthly subscriptions.

1. The first contest will commence June 15 and end June 27. New contests will be closed every second Saturday thereafter.

2. The contest is open to everyone with the exception of paid employees of the DAILY WORKER and of the Workers Party and its sections.

3. Manuscripts received up until June 27 will be entered in the first contest. Stories received subsequently will be considered during the next contest.

4. The stories must deal with actual events effecting workers.

5. Manuscripts must be written legibly on one side of paper, with one-half inch between lines if in handwriting. Type written copy is preferred but not essential.

6. Stories are not limited as to length but those of 500 words or less will receive preference.

7. Only news stories, that is those dealing with what has happened or what is about to happen will be considered.

8. Subject matter is limited only to that of a working class nature, but stories dealing with evenets and struggles of workers in places of employment and in and by labor unions will be given preference.

9. While literary merit in the stories is of course desirable, it will not be considered in determination of the best story. Those who have had little school education or no experience in writing will thus have an equal chance with experienced writers. The story which best meets the following requirements will be declared the winner:

(a) Is the story of interest to the working class, either locally or nationally or both?

(b) Has the writer done a good job in gathering the essential facts?

(c) Will the printing of the story secure benefit to the working class?

(d) Has he shown ability to estimate and emphasize the most important facts?

(e) Will the printing of the story increase the effectiveness of the DAILY WORKER or the Workers Party or the left wing in general?

10. All stories submitted for the contests must be addressed: "Worker Correspondents Editor, the DAILY WORKER.

11. The name and address of the writer must be sent with each story. If the writers do not want their names printed in the DAILY WORKER they should write at the beginning of their story: "Do not use my name."

in the shop or locality concerned, develops the best DAILY WORKER disribution. Worker Correspondents can enter the distribution contest and vice versa.

It is of course understood that the reason for encouraging the writing of worker correspondence is not merely to give the militants an opportunity to express themselves and the experience so that they may write coherently. The reason for the creation of a worker correspondence system is so that the DAILY WORKER may not only become the organ of the militant working class in its ultimate goal but also that the DAILY WORKER may become the organ of all of the working class in its broadest political and industrial struggles and in the everyday struggles in the shops and the unions as well.

For this it is necessary for the DAILY WORKER to be distributed particularly in the shops and unions about which Workers Correspondence stories are written.

Worker Correspondence avails little unless it is directly connected up with distribution. But Worker Correspondence in the DAILY WORKER which is followed up conscientiously and energetically with the sale of the DAILY WORKER will yield results for the Communists press and the Communist movement which are beyond measurement.

In some places, and to a small degree, this connection has been made. In order to make the distribution of the DAILY WORKER an integral part of the system of which writing correspondence is the other part, the DAILY WORKER announces the contest between Worker Correspondence distributors which is to be held at the same time as the other contests mentioned above. The conditions are simple. Individuals or groups may compete.

Workers in small cities or those who work in places where there are few employees will have just as good a chance in this contest as workers in the biggest cities and shops. Those who do the best work under the conditions which they must face will be declared the winner.

Rules of Workers Correspondent's Distribution Contest

At the same time as the Worker Correspondent's contest is held another contest will be conducted to develop the distribution of the DAILY WORKER in the cities and shops about which the Worker Correspondent's are writing. Prizes of $5 worth of literature will be given the winners.

1. The first contest will end on July 4 and a new contest will thereupon be started immediately to end two weeks later. These contests will be continued every two weeks during the summer at least.

2. The contest is open to everyone with the exception of paid employees of the Workers Party and its sections and professional writer.

3. The prize will be awarded to the individual or group of individual which accomplishes the best results toward increasing the circulation of the DAILY WORKER on the basis of a Worker Correspondent story appearing in the DAILY WORKER.

4. The results secured will be measured in the light of the special circumstances; that is what advantages are taken of the opportunities for securing new readers for the DAILY WORKER by reason of the Worker Correspondent stories. For instance: If a story is printed in the DAILY WORKER concerning a shop which has 1000 employees and on the basis of this story 100 copies of the DAILY WORKER are sold and 5 new subscriptions secured while in another shop which employed 100 workers 50 copies of the paper were sold and 3 new subs secured, it would be considered that the comrades in the smaller shop were more successful than those in the larger shop.

5. It is not necessary for the contestant in this contest to write the Worker Correspondence himself.

He may proceed on the basis of a story written by someone else in his shop or union or he may work in cooperation with a Worker Correspondent.

6. Entry into the contest must be made at the time an article of Worker Correspondence is sent into the DAILY WORKER. This is to be done by sending along with the story an order for copies of the issue in which the story is to appear which are to be paid for in advance at the rate of 2 cents a copy for the week day issues and 3½ cents a copy for Saturday issues.

7. Within one week after the appearance of the Worker Correspondence story in the DAILY WORKER, the entrant must write his report on his experiences and the results of his distribution.

FIVE THOUSAND WORKERS WANTED ON JULY FOURTH

Men, Women and Even Children Welcome

This year, July 4 will be officially taken over by the jingoes and war mongers. The Coolidge administration has set the seal of official approval on the deal. Not that July 4, has not always been used to bolster up the prestige of American capitalism. It has, but the ruling class is becoming bolder and bolder.

In a few places July 4 will be observed, not as the bourgeoisie observe it now or in the past. It will be observed as a day of which the class conscious workers take advantage, to secure needed recreation and make a little money to carry on the work of spreading enlightenment among the masses. Beyers Grove, Chicago will be one of those places.

Big Crowd Wanted

The affair will be a Workers' Party picnic. There are approximately 1,500 members of the party living in this city and it does not take an expert at figures to show that if each one of our members brings another worker to the picnic we will have 3,000 people at Beyers Grove, on July 4. And that makes quite a crowd, tho there is no reason why we should not have 5,000.

Cannon To Speak

One of the attractions at the picnic will be a speech by James P. Cannon, member of the central executive committee of the Workers (Communist) Party. Comrade Cannon attended the last session of the Enlarged Executive of the Communist International in Moscow and is able to tell a story in a way that is pleasing to the ear and instructive.

The usual features common to picnics will be in evidence. Games will be indulged in and those who like to trip the light fantastic can do so aided by snappy music and supported in the terpsichorean effort by attractive partners.

All other party units are advised that rival picnics will be verboten on that day. There will be a united front at Beyers Grove. In order to get there take a California Avenue car to the end of the line. The damages at the gates are fifty cents. Inside what you spend will be at your own discretion. The less discretion you use the better.

New Crisis in Norway.

OLSO, Norway, June 11—The Norwegian cabinet was defeated in parliament on the trivial matter of free postage for state officials, and the government faces a serious crisis.

It is thot that the "agrarian party," will form a coalition cabinet with the support of the conservatives, to drive the Communists out of parliament.

TAKE NOTICE!

The Workers' House has arranged picnics for the following dates:

June 28 and August 9, at William Rimek Grove, Lyons, Ill.

All friendly organizations are requested not to arrange other affairs on those dates.

COMMUNSTS MOURN M. EGAVIAN

PHILADELPHIA, Pa. — The American industrial system has claimed another victim to its merciless grind for profits when two workers at the plant of the American Motor Body Corporation were instantly killed by an exposed electric wire.

M. Egavian member of the Armenian branch Workers Party and his foreman J. Srabian a close sympathiser of the Communist movement were the two victims of the companies greed for profits which neglected to safeguard the machinery used for the production of automobile bodies.

Comrade Egavian was using a portable grinding machine and in this process came in contact with the badly insulated 220 volt wire which caused his instant death, his friend and foreman J. Srabian came to his assistance and was likewise killed instantly.

The story given to the local press by the company was an example of shifting the blame for the companies gross neglegence to the alleged inexperience of the workers and stated that Comrade Egavian had worked in the plant but a few days when as a matter of fact he has been employed for over six weeks.

Comrade Egavian has been a charter member of the Workers Party and one of the leading figures in the Armenian branch. Comrade Egavian set an example of what a disciplined Communist can do. In all the party activities he stood in the forefront among the Philadelphia members. His recent election as a DAILY WORKER Agent brought immediate and satisfactory results with the result that the Armenian branch leads in the Daily Worker subscription campaign.

In the demonstrations of the Armenian comrades against the Armenian social-democrats Comrade Egavian took an active and leading part with the result that the Armenian workers in Philadelphia are looking to the Armenian Communists for guidance and leadership.

The Armenian branch has lost one of its most active and influential workers, a comrade upon whom they could always rely to carry out the most difficult and unpleasant tasks and who never yet has failed to comply with the instructions and discipline of the party.

The entire membership of the Armenian branch will lay down tools on Wednesday, June 10 and participate in Comrade Egavian funeral as a last demonstration of their Communist solidarity to a comrade who has fallen a victim to the pittiless struggle for existence, a victim of the greedy and merciless capitalist system that he has so ably and fearlessly fought side by side with them for over four years.

DEMONSTRATE SUNDAY AT CHICAGO PICNIC IN 'HANDS OFF CHINA!' DRIVE

The first "Hands Off China!" demonstration will be held in Chicago this Sunday, June 14, at the picnic of the Russian, Polish and Ukrainian branches of the Workers Party.

The world imperialists are just now trying to crush the revolt of the Shanghai workers and students.

The murder of Chinese strikers by the foreign troops and white-guards spread the revolt all over China!

"It's the Bolsheviks!" cries the prostituted press the world over.

No, not yet—do we reply.—But Bolshevism is surely coming there. The Chinese workers and peasants had enough of capitalist imperialism and they are looking for a way to escape it. The only way out of it is Bolshevism. The Chinese people are already beginning to see in the Bolsheviks their only friends.

The demonstration against the murder of the innocent workers and students in Shanghai is called by the Bolsheviks of Chicago.

Come and make it a mass demonstration! Let the Chinese workers and peasants see that they have friends here, in Chicago, who demand justice and "Hands off China!"

Make this demand heard all over the country. Don't forget, Sunday, June 14, at Marvell Inn Grove, at the end of Milwaukee Ave.

Morgan Agent in Berlin.

BERLIN, June 11.—Nicholas Longworth, United States congressional leader, who has been in Berlin several days, held a long conference today with Foreign Minister Stresemann on a subject which was not made public. ful achievement of the company and in praising the founder and the management.

During the evening, Mr. Broustein, Jr., said for the benefit of the business men present: "All you know of the company is the salesmen that call on you; you do not know of the men who are back of the company here in the plant." So the various foremen of the plant were introduced to those present who arose but said nothing.

The actual workers who have been at the machines and have been doing the other work of the plant were entirely forgotten. No mention was made of them during the entire evening. The impression left was that the Brousteins and the foremen were the only necessary forces to make the plant a success.

The plant has not been running full capacity for some time. And the company wanted to make a big show of how the business was booming. It would not do to have idle machines in sight. So in order that the proper impression might be left on the entire gathering who were taken thru the plant it was necessary to employ a number of dummies in addition to the regular working force. It was stated that 30 of these dummies would be required to fill the vacancies at the idle machines. We do not know how many dummies were obtained but we do know of a number of persons who worked there for a few hours in the evening to make the grand showing and who obtained $1.00 for their services.

After 9 p. m. the employes were called in to join the concert. Some of them went in, others were so disgusted they went home. These workers were told that cold beer would be served and really felt that cold drink would not be amiss after sweating at the machines during the hot evening. But they stood around for a long time watching the upper class partake before there was any chance for them, and then some of them failed to get a handout.

In fact those who did manage to get a bottle had waited so long that the beer was warm before it got to them.

In order to provide a spicy atmosphere for the evening a hula-hula dancer appeared who performed everything known in the hula science, even to vulgarity.

The United States Bedding company is one of the notorious open shop concerns who openly state that they will not employ members of organized labor. Any worker is immediately discharged who mentions unionism.

Carpenters Fight Yellow Dog Contract

are given until June 25, to sign the pledge, failing to do which they will forfeit their membership, according to Hutcheson.

Two local unions have voted unanimously to refuse to sign the pledge, while a vigorous minority in the other two locals are refusing to sign it.

Hutcheson tried to expel one member in violation of the constitution and his stupid actions in trying to make good that expulsion has brot him to a position where he must expel a thousand members or back down very considerably. It is our guess that he will back down.

Will Take It to Membership.

It is the intention of the two local unions whose expulsion now seems certain, to maintain themselves as expelled locals of the brotherhood and carry the case to the rank and file of the brotherhood thruout the jurisdiction.

There can be little doubt that when the carpenters of America become fully acquainted with the czarism practiced by Hutcheson and his flunkeys in Detroit, the rank and filers in Detroit will be reinstated and Hutcheson's wrecking crew will stand exposed as the most contemptible and unscrupulous gang of self-seeking parasites that ever fastened themselves on a trusting membership.

The record of their actions in Detroit will stand as the foulest page of the history of a gang of petty, incapable and tyrannical grafters maintaining their privileged positions by the rankest fraud and betrayal.

The answer of the carpenters of Detroit to Hutcheson's "yellow dog pledge" is contained in a leaflet issued by the Carpenters' Progressive Committee, which was widely circulated in Detroit. It is reproduced herewith:

Carpenters of Detroit, Don't Sign Hutcheson's Yellow Dog Pledge.

"Out of the struggles of the workers to organise themselves in the various industries, notably the lumber workers and mine workers of the west, and the machinists of the east, has come a weapon of the bosses known as the "Yellow Dog Pledge." During times of agitation for organization of unions the master class in these industries compelled those working or applying for work to sign a pledge not to "affiliate with, or give support, assistance or comfort to" any trade union "or similar or kindred organization." Naturally the weak-kneed and servile were the first to sign these pledges which thus came to be known as "yellow dog pledges" as indicating the color of those who signed them.

"Hutcheson's yellow dog pledge is identical in form to hundreds issued by the bosses against rank and file workers and goes to prove that Hutcheson gets his ideas, methods and tactics from the class enemies of the workers. Hutcheson not only apes the master class in his mode of living but thinks their thoughts and supports their fight against the militant workers struggling to educate themselves and improve their condition. The pledge is as follows:

> "I, the undersigned, do hereby promise and agree that I will observe and comply with all the laws, rules and regulations of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, and that I will in no way affiliate with or give support, assistance or comfort to the Trade Union Educational League, or any similar or kindred organizations.
> "In subscribing to the above I do so of my own free will and accord, and agree that should I violate said agreement, or pledge, it is undrestood that my membership in the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America be forfeited without complain by me."
> ....
> Witness ....

"Hutcheson fears the awakening and enlightenment of those from whose toil he lives in master class style and splendor and he seeks by this pledge to retstrain them from association with their fellow workers in an endeavor to understand the problems arising out of their poverty and uncertainty of employment and life. The pledge asserts that one signs of his "own free will and accord," when as a matter of fact the most extreme coercion within the power of Hutcheson and his bullying crew is resorted to. The pledge is typical of the whole attitude of Hutcheson which is a mixture of lies and arrogance, fraud and subterfuge.

"This cowardly attempt of Hutcheson to make us sign away our rights and privileges guaranteed by our constitution shall be as barren of results as his former coercive measures. His expulsion policy met with defeat because we rallied almost to a man in defense of our constitutional rights to a fair trial. The bodyguard of uniformed police with which the underlings Botterill and Sharrock surrounded themselves in holy fear of the wrath of an aroused membership while they carried out the dirty work of their master Hutcheson merely served to steel the rank and file to resist infringements upon their rights. His despicable resort to a capitalist court for an injunction came to naught because the manhood of our membership stood as a unit against the yellow few who for Judas silver or promise of jobs supported the dirty work of the Indianapolis autocrat.

"It is within the power of any individual member to successfully fight this latest piece of stupid arrogance. However, it is important that as many as possible be enlisted in this struggle for justice so as to broaden the fight and make the burden light on each individual. No one possessed of manhood desires another to bear his burden and this is a common cause vitally concerning all workers.

"Wendell Phillips, America's foremost liberator, speaking on behalf of the emancipation movement which led to the civil war and the emancipation of the Negro from chattel slavery said of those too timid to engage in the struggle:

"They are cowards who fear to be in the right with two or three."

"Already there are hundreds and thousands in this fight for manhood rights against official tyranny. No great amount of courage is required to refuse to sign this yellow dog pledge. We hope the percentage of cowards among the carpenters of Detroit is very small.

"It stands to the lasting credit of the carpenters of Detroit that the infamous and unconstitutional expulsion policy of Hutcheson has been smashed and his shameful resort to capitalist courts for injunctions defeated.

"It is now within our province to once for all settle the question whether or not union men are to be compelled by their overlords in official positions to sign away their rights to do their own thinking. No greater service can be rendered to the labor movement. It can easily be accomplished if we tally up to the measure of men.

"Members of the brotherhood, remember your manhood!

"Don't be yellow dogs!

British Company Gets Soviet Gold Mine Concession

MOSCOW (By Mail)—The Soviet government has ratified the concession contract signed by the supreme concessions committee with the British company, the Aryan corporation, Ltd., providing for the concession lease for a period of 36 years of a gold mining area in the Okhotosk district, of Kamtchatka province.

According to the terms of the contract, the government has the right to purchase all the gold produced inasmuch as the concessionaries forbear the right they have to export that gold abroad.

Apart from the rent pay, the concessionaires are to turn over five per cent of the output to the government, the latter also becoming full owner of the enterprise on the expiration of the concession term without any special compensation.

standing, Leach, 50,866; Elwell, 43,084; with only 10 precincts yet to be heard from. Conservative labor men supported Leach in the election.

In the last city council there were 14 labor representatives to 12 reactionaries; in the new council there will be 8 labor men to 18 conservatives.

During the past four years much progress had been made in unionizing city employes. Working conditions had been greatly improved and wages had been increased. As a result of the complete victory for the "open shop" forces it is the concensus of opinion here that a drive will be instituted immediately after July 1, when the new council assumes office, to break up the city and county employes' union and reduce the wages of city employes. This opinion is born out by the fact that the reactionary members of the council have bitterly opposed all wage increases that have come before the council.

Defeat Result of Sell-out.

The defeat suffered by the labor forces in this election is due to the betrayals that have taken place within the labor movement. As long as the movement in Minneapolis was waging its fight both political and economic on the basis of the class struggle steady progress was being made. In every election since 1913 gains always resulted.

Two years ago the first break took place when labor was deliberately betrayed into supporting Leach the republican for mayor. The rank and file insisted on a labor candidate in opposition to the views of the leaders. Lindsten failed to satisfy this demand, two days after the filing of candidates closed, he went into court and had his name withdrawn on the grounds "that his wife did not want him to run" but the actual reason was that he had been "gotten too" by the labor leaders led by Robley D. Cramer.

Last fall these same leaders further destroyed the idea of independent political action by lining up with the petty-bourgeois, La Follette thus laying the way for the complete slide to the right that took place here yesterday.

A. F. L. Affidavits Aid Reactionaries.

The A. F. of L. executive council also played their part in the demoralizing process. Sensing the growing radicalism of the Minnesota movement, they sent Paul J. Smith to Minneapolis with instructions to line the movement up for the class collaboration policies of the leaders or destroy it. He succeeded in creating enough confusion so that the sincere workers will have to expand much energy in order to overcome it as the election shows.

Ex-Socialists Worst Enemies.

The worst enemies of the working class, are none other than our former "socialist" leaders, Van Lear and Harthill. Van Lear thru the Minneapolis Daily Star, which he stole from the workers and farmers, carried on a continuous attack against the labor members of the council. His propaganda was particularly effective because the workers have not yet learned that the Star is no longer their paper. They looked upon these daily attacks as the official statements of the labor political movement. Harthill distributed thousands of copies of his red-baiting sheet, "Minnesota" in all the labor wards. In addition he actively campaigned for the capitalist candidates. His paper is plainly subsidized by the bosses of Minneapolis as thousands of copies are being sent to workers' homes every week without them having subscribed. The workers have not yet learned the character of these former leaders, but with the city now in the hands of reaction they will have two years in which to learn the lessons of socialist treachery.

Communists for Unity.

During the campaign the Workers (Communist) Party carried on a consistant campaign in an effort to overcome the confusion that had developed as a result of these betrayals.

The party now has the task before it of showing the workers the cause for this defeat and of the necessity of uniting their forces in a labor party that will wage future campaigns on the basis of the class struggle.

AS WE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty

the war was supposed to knock out forever is very much alive; much more so than Woodrow Wilson's fourteen points. Things look a little rosier for capitalism on the whole than they did a few years ago, but there are big black clouds on the horizon.

ONE of those clouds is in China, the other in Morocco. Those who are inclined to get pessimistic when they see reaction restored in Germany and in fact, see it in the saddle in every capitalist country, should never forget that the red flag of proletarian rule flies over one-sixth of the earth's surface and it would not surprise us to see it fly over another big stretch in the near future. If you look at the map of China, you will see that Mongolia is quite a hefty piece of real estate and so is South China. The Soviet idea is quite popular in both areas.

IT is also well to take a look back and note the position labor occupied a few generations ago. The capitalists have real reason to fear the workers today. They know that their power is not to last forever. They know that the labor fakers will not always be able to keep the masses in check; that the workers will lose faith in those fake leaders, when they are betrayed once too often. And more than all they fear the Communist movement which knows what it wants and how to get it. Clouds also appear on the proletarian horizon, but they are destined to disappear.

PRESIDENT GREEN of the American Federation of Labor and Warren S. Stone are in complete accord in their analysis of the labor movement. They claim that in this country it has passed thru two stages of development and is now passing thru a third. First, was the pioneering and fighting stage. Next came the "consolidating stage." Now, says Green, we are "cashing in" on the sacrifices and heroic struggles of the founders. True, very true in the narrow sense. Green and his gang are "cashing in," but what of the millions of unorganized workers and even of the organized?

China on the March

From Canton to Pekin the Chinese nation has risen against imperialism.

That we are learning, thru the unsatisfactory medium of capitalist press correspondents, of a great historical event—a drive for complete freedom from foreign capitalist dominations on the part of the largest single nation in the word—cannot be doubted.

The Pekin government demands the disarming of all troops of the imperialist powers and the withdrawal of their gunboats, the students and workers of Shanghai, in a meeting where 50,000 assembled, adopt a resolution for a general and nation-wide strike if the murderers of their comrades are not punished, the Chinese seamen strike and tie up all foreign shipping.

The Chinese people, 443,000,000 strong, are on the march. Behind them stand the 160,000,000 workers and peasants of Soviet Russia.

Since the Russian revolution in 1917 there has been no event of such supreme importance to the hundreds of millions of enslaved colonial peoples and to the world's working class. We can, however, without any exaggeration, say that the beginning of the end of imperialism in the Far East is in sight.

The immediate question is:

Can the imperialist powers reconcile their bitter antagonisms and present a united military front to the Chinese liberation movement?

Is it to be peace in the Pacific or war?

The Riffian Advance

The Riffians are attacking the French expeditionary forces in Morocco along a sixty mile front as Pemier Painleve arrives on a tour of inspection. The French have been forced out of a number of their strongholds and are evidently retiring in many sectors.

The remarks of Painleve, quoted in dispatches, shed much light on the attitude of French imperialism. He said:

> The day that the Riffians renounce their proclaimed intention of taking Fez and accept an honest peace with normal economic relations . . . . . . France will be ready to make these enemies our collaborators.

This is quite clear to us and the sturdy fight the Riffians are putting up shows that they too are clear on the matter. It means that if the Riffians will surrender their country to the French exploiters "normal economic relations," that is, the unhampered robbery of them, will continue. They will be "allowed" to submit to any kind of servitude the French imperialists desire to enforce. This is what is meant by accepting the Riffians as "collaborators."

The Riffians have had plenty of experience with the concrete application of this policy, first by Spain and then by France. They are fed up with it and while probably having no knowledge of "the role of colonial peoples in final stage of capitalism" from the theoretical standpoint, they are damned good shots and have very definite ideas as to who the enemy is.

These hard riding, close shooting, Koran reading dark-skinned tribesmen are giving French imperialism the fight of its life and we are for them.

New Light on Centralia

The recent affidavit signed in behalf of the I. W. W. by two residents of Centralia, detailing the part played by Judge Wilson, who tried the defendants in the famous case, in the conspiracy of businessmen and the lumber barons preceding the raid on the I. W. W. hall, would, under ordinary circumstances, entitle the convicted men now in Walla Walla penitentiary to a new trial. But in the present state of affairs, with the lumber interests in control, only mass pressure can get results.

The affidavit states plainly that Judge Wilson openly invited violence against "radicals" and that "he expressed enmity for the I. W. W."

This was the man who administered "impartial" justice in the Montesano case to the workers who defended themselves and their hall from an armistice day mob led by chamber of commerce henchmen.

It is almost six years since the Centralia defendants were arrested. They have been in jail all of this time. In labor circles there has never been any doubt of their innocence; a labor jury selected by the Seattle labor movement attended the trial and branded it as a frame-up. The cases of these workers, legally under the jurisdiction of the state of Washington, is actually a case of national importance. The late President Harding evidently thought so because he made a special journey to Centralia and laid a wreath on the graves of the lumber trust tools whom his masters sent to their deaths.

Surely there is some way by which national interest can be aroused in and focused on this crime of Washington capitalism and these working class fighters released.

The signing of this affidavit indicates a revival of the effort on behalf of the Centralia defendants and the DAILY WORKER can be depended upon to give the campaign all the publicity possible.

Brookwood college is to have a class in discussion on the topic "The Labor Movement as a Career for Students."

This gives a valuable slant on the contribution of this institution, run by as choice a collection of mush-and-mill liberals as was ever collected on one spot, to labor thought. If there is one thing the labor-movement does NOT need it is young men who are looking for careers.

The Enslavement of China

By Wm. F. Dunne

ARTICLE V.

THE war of 1914 was brought to Asia and made a world war for two reasons:

1. Great Britain was determined to crush Germany—wipe her out as a great power. This could not be done without taking from Germany her colonial possessions.

2. Japan, quite aside from her interests as an ally of Great Britain, wanted to remove Germany—her most active, efficient and therefore, most dangerous commercial competitor. Germany's semi-military alliance with China gave Japan an additional incentive.

The conflict over fixing the blame for the beginning of hostilities in China has raged all over the world. Some authorities denounce Great Britain, others Japan. The truth is that it was a joint enterprise of two thieves who had to get rid of a poacher on their field of enterprise before they could settle the major question of which one should be supreme.

IN view of the hostility of the British dominions towards the Anglo-Japanese alliance, the arrangement has always been a dangerous one for Great Britain. Only the emergency of the great war made it possible for the purposes of the alliance to be fulfilled without an inter-empire crisis.

Let us look at a few documents.

On August 24, at the time Japan came into the conflict a correspondent urged in the London Times that British commercial interests should "take advantage of every opportunity which may present itself for diverting German commerce to our advantage." (Quoted by Gilbert Reid in "China, Captive of Free." Page 45.)

BARON KATO, Japanese minister for foreign affairs, speaking in the Diet on September 4, said:

> Early in August the British government asked the Imperial government for assistance under the terms of the Anglo-Japanese alliance. The Japanese government therefore resolved to comply with the British request, and if necessary to open hostilities against Germany.

TWO weeks before Baron Kato had made the statement quoted above, the London Times had said:

> It should be said at once that the Japanese intervention has not taken place without full consultation with Great Britain.

Five weeks later (September 25) the Times stated further:

> We appealed to our ally in the terms of the treaty, and she has answered that appeal with the loyalty we have learned to expect of her. Japan had no desire to enter the war. She has done so, the emperor and his ministers tell us, BECAUSE SHE COULD NOT BREAK HER PROMISES. (Emphasis ours.)

BUT according to a diplomat, author of "The Fall of Tsingtao" under the pen name of Jefferson Jones, who was in Tokio at the time and in possession of the facts, Japan on August 2, told the British government that she was willing "to put in force the Anglo-Japanese alliance."

Five days later, August 7, the British ambassador in Tokio "handed to the foreign office at Tokio a request that Japan join in the European war."

So far the record shows that the opportunity to proceed against Germany in China was welcomed by both Great Britain and Japan. One was ready to ask aid; the other was waiting anxiously for the request, waiting anxiously that she asked to be asked.

BUT there are other references whose evidence is still stronger in support of the contention that the declaration of war on Germany by Japan and the seizure of German leased territory by military measures which violated every known rule of international law, was a joint conspiracy on the part of Great Britain and China, directed at both Germany and China.

K. K. Kawakami, himself a Japanese and defender of Japanese foreign policy, writing in the Atlantic Monthly for November, 1914, said

> What caused Downing Street to invite Japanese co-operation is not clearly known to the outside world. But the Japanese press is in all probability, right, when it says that Japan and England were obliged to act promptly in order to frustrate the German scheme to transfer Kiaocho to the Chinese government before Germany was compelled to surrender it at the point of the sword. Had Germany succeeded in carrying out this scheme she would still have enjoyed, in virtue of Article Five of the Kiaochow convention of 1898, the privilege of securing in some future time "a more suitable territory" in China. This was exactly the condition which the allies did not want to see established in China. If, on the other hand, Germany was forced to abandon Kiaochow by the arbitrament of the sword, China would no longer be under obligation to "cede to Germany a more suitable place."

LEST some of our readers get the mistaken impression from the last sentence quoted that Japan took Kiaochow so that China would be relieved of the necessity of ceding to Germany "a more suitable territory," in other words, that Great Britain and Japan went to war on Germany in China for China's good, let us see what Japan actually did.

To attack Tsingtao the Japanese landed troops at Lungkow—not a British or German but a Chinese port and marched them 150 miles across Shantung peninsula—Chinese territory.

> Bodies of Japanese troops made detours, occupying cities and towns of the province wide of the direct line of march. Wherever they went, the Japanese assumed control of the country, means of communication, posts and telegraphs; and subjected the Chinese population to many hardships, indignities and deprivations, which were observed and reported by American and British missionaries in that region. (Thomas F. Millard, "Our Eastern Question," Page 107.)

Japan then, made war on China as well as on Germany; made war on a neutral power just as Germany did in the case of Belgium and in co-operation with the troops of the same government that made the violation of Belgian neutrality a pretext for war on Germany.

WRITING in the New Republic, March 3, 1920, John Dewey says:

> Japanese troops overran the province before they made any serious attempt to capture Tsingtao. It is only a slight exaggeration to say that they took the "Chinese" Tsinan before they took the German Tsingtao.

But why did Japan overrun Shangtung province and seize Tsinan? Because Tsinan was the terminus of the Tsinan-Tsingtao railway.

We quote Millard again:

> Japan's seizure of the entire Tsinan-Tsingtao Railway was not a necessary military measure, as was pretended but was a POLITICAL move. The seeming acquiescence of Great Britain with this move give it added importance. These considerations make this question very significant to China; and also significant to all foreign investments existing in China now, and those which may hope to get a legitimate foothold in China hereafter. (Emphasis in the original.)

GREAT BRITAIN had the single purpose of disposing of Germany permanently as a rival in China and of wiping out the German empire. Japan cared nothing about crushing Germany in Europe nor did she feel an enmity towards Germany as a nation. We have referred before to the whole affair as a "cold blooded" plan conceived so far as Japan was concerned, without animosity towards anyone but China.

This is borne out by the manner in which the attack on the German fortifications at Tsingtao was conducted:

> From an Oriental standpoint the siege of Tsingtao will always standout as remarkably free from hatred. During the operations, Japanese officers sent many messages into the Tsingtao garrison, wishing their German friends and former tutors luck and safety during the siege. They placed courtesy foremost, instead of indulging in recrimination such as usually goes on between the German and British officers and troops. General Kamio and his officers did not desire to humiliate the defeated German officers. The messages that were interchanged during the siege and afterwards were couched in the most courteous language. (Jefferson Jones, "Fall of Tsingtao," Page 87.)

AS late as December 1, 1921, the seizure of Shangtung was defended by K. K. Kawakami. Written at the time of the Washington conference and published later as part of "Japan's Pacific Policy," the article entitled "The Shangtung Dispute," says:

> To establish her claim to Kiaochow, China should not only have declared war, but should have taken it from Germany by force of arms. But as China was neither capable nor willing to drive Germany from Kiaochow, Japan had to undertake that task. Had China been actively engaged on the side of the allies, there might have been some force in the plea that she preferred to resume the Garment rights for herself. But China never did this. Japan and Great Britain attacked and took the German colony. China's hope for direct restitution of Kiaochow was totally destroyed when on May 20, 1920, the Berlin government notified Peking that by virtue of the Versailles treaty, Germany had renounced in favor of Japan all rights and interests. China was plainly told by Germany that she must negotiate with Japan if she wanted to recover those rights.

JAPAN had taken Germany's former leasehold by force and in violation of the elementary rights of the Chinese nation. Yet she was not satisfied and she would not be satisfied until the richest sections of Chinese territory were subjugated as Korea had been.

She proceeded to consolidate her new holdings and the manner in which she did it, without any hindrance from the champions of democracy in the western world is another interesting chapter—interesting to American workers because of the part played by the Wilson government as well as that played by the rising Chinese liberation movement of students, workers and peasants with which Japan came into conflict—a force with which she had not reckoned.

The next article will deal with these events.

WEST VIRGINIA TAILOR STRIKE IS EXCEPTIONAL

American Women Fight Bravely for Rights

NEW YORK, June 11.—(FP)—A bitter fight of members of Journeymen Tailors' Union Local 350 against the National Woolen Mills of Parkersburg, West Virginia, is being brought to the attention of unionists all over the country.

Emmanuel Jacobs, general organizer of the tailors in New York, says that the company organized about 15 years ago and asked the union to organize its plant. For 15 years the business grew until the concern was worth $1,000,000 and had retail stores in many cities.

An All American Strike

Suddenly on January 24, 1925 the firm locked out the union and declared that those who wished to return would have to come back to an open-shop. The remarkable thing about the lockout, which is now a strike, is that the majority of the workers are native Americans, 75 per cent of them women, Jacobs asserts, and they have remained out over 18 weeks without a single break in their ranks.

Strike benefits of $6 to $7 cannot support them but their solidarity is exemplary, Jacobs says. Even a severe injunction against picketing and all strike activities has not scared the workers.

College Training and Union Label

The president of the company committed suicide recently, during the strike and possibly because of it, according to the strikers. Strikers also say that the president's son returned from college with 100 per cent plus Americanism and open shop ideas which he immediately attempted to put into effect in the union shop.

The company is now sending out letters to its stores that it will have the label of the United Garment Workers on its clothes soon, Jacobs states. Work is being sent out from Parkersburg to independent shops. In Baltimore the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union refused to accept work from the National Woolen Mills because of the tailors' strike.

The Journeymen Tailors, Local No. 1, is conducting a vigorous organization campaign in New York. About 75 per cent of the tailors are Italians, so three Italian organizers are kept busy in addition to Jacobs.

MARTIAL LAW IN OKLAHOMA CITY AS UNION MINERS BATTLE SCABS AND IMPORTED COMPANY GUNMEN

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HENRYETTA, Okla., June 11.—The bitter and continuous warfare which for weeks has been going on between the rank and file members of the, United Mine Workers who have been trying to organize the non-union mines, flared into open battle last night. As a result the town is under martial law with state troops patrolling the streets with fixed bayonets.

The union miners virtually took possession of the town after company gunmen had attempted to prevent non-union miners being solicited by union men to line up against the bosses. Andrew Meltus, a scab, is known to be perhaps fatally injured and many others are hurt.

The troops of occupation are those of Company E of Okmulgee, called out after midnight when the town was in the hands of battling miners.

CHICAGO LABOR DEFENSE FORCES TO MEET FRIDAY

The Chicago conference for Labor Defense and Relief will meet Friday, June 12, (today) at Greek Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., 8 p. m. sharp.

Arrangements will be made for a monster mass meeting to wind up the national conference of all Labor Defense organizations on June 28th. Temple Hall has been secured and Bishop William Montgomery Brown, Alexander Howatt and Scott Nearing, as well as William Z. Foster and C. E. Ruthenberg will be the speakers.

In addition there is the matter of getting full returns on the new defense coupons just sent to all branches.

All delegates are expected to bring in the names, addresses and former military unit of all ex-service men in or friendly to our movement for the fortherance of the Crouch-Trumbull agitation. Settlements of all outstanding accounts are also urged.

Art Shields Will Address New York Worker Correspondents

NEW YORK.—Art Shields of the Federated Press will speak this Saturday evenings June 6th at the meeting of New York Workers Correspondents at 108 East 14th street on the subject: "The Federated Press and How to Report Labor News." Admission is free. The class begins at seven o'clock.

NORWAY HOPES FOR U. S. AID IN ARCTIC SEARCH

OSLO, Norway, June 11. — Norwegian friends of Captain Roald Amundsen still were hopeful today that the United States will aid in the search in the polar region for the missing Amundsen-Ellsworth North Pole flyers.

There is a possibility a sea expedition may go north prepared to remain all winter in the Arctic and be equipped with sledges to search for Amundsen. It would be desirable that hydroplanes be included for reconnoitering.

This was brought out today in comment by the Norwegian newspaper Tidens, which discussed the refusal of Secretary of the Navy Wilbur to allow air craft to join the several relief expeditions.

Living Newspaper Composed by New York Young Workers

NEW YORK, June 11.—The Young Workers League of District New York has arranged a living newspaper for Friday June 12th at 105 Eldridge St., to begin at 8 p. m. sharp.

This is the first time in the country that any unit of the League has arranged such a rich educational program of Leninism. Below is a list of the articles that will be read.

Lenin and Imperialism, the National and Peasant Questions by Jack Stachel; Lenin and the Party by Will Herberg; Lenin and the Comintern by S. Don; Lenin and the Trade Unions by J. Rubin; Lenin the the Russian Revolution by H. Fox; Lenin and the Youth by Herbert Zam. — Editor Herbert Zam.

All workers are invited to attend this reading of the living newspaper and to acquaint themselves with the teachings of the greatest leader of the World Revolution, with Leninism.

10,000 JERSEY PAINTERS FIGHT AGAINST POISON

Spraying Machines and Bad Scaffolds to Go

By ARTHUR SHIELDS,
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 11—Ten thousand union painters of New Jersey have launched a campaign against poisonous materials, the menace of the spraying machine and bad scaffoldings.

The first health agreement is likely to be signed by District Council No. 19, comprising the painters in Bergen and Passaic counties and will be similar to agreements drafted by the health bureau and in force between the painters' union and the master painters' associations in New York City and Rochester.

Fight Against Spraying Machine.

The spraying machine must go, say the New Jersey painters. Abolition, not regulation, is the union's program on the advice of scientific experts of the health bureau who have shown that regulation of this mechanism does not in practice safeguard the painters. The spray machine, now coming into wider use, is used by employers to save labor on large-surface jobs. The paint is literally sprayed and the air is filled with flying particles of paint materials for many feet around the machine. In the case of lead paints it has been found that the air in the vicinity of the spraying machine contains 27 to 83 times as much lead as would poison a man.

An important phase of the present campaign is the education of the union members in health and safety measures. Leaflets explain dangerous materials and symptoms of poisoning and union members receive forms for reporting accidents and suspicious work materials, as well as medical forms to be given to physicians to assist in proving an occupational disease. Workers are assisted in taking the practical steps needed to get what is coming to them under the compensation law and are specifically instructed that the New Jersey Occupational Disease law that went into effect July, 1924, allows certain compensation for lead, wood alcohol and benzol poisoning.

Monthly conferences are held between the workers' health bureau and the health committee of the New Jersey Painters' State conference. The New Jersey health campaign represents a union of industrial health experts and organized workers and promises substantial gains in health and safety for painters.

BURNED BODIES OF 17 MINERS BROUGHT FROM WRECKED WORKINGS

STURGIS, Ky.—Seventeen bodies of miners killed in the explosion which wrecked the shaft of the Kentucky Coal company's mine No. 9 were found at the four hundred foot level, more than a mile and a quarter back of the mouth of the shaft, and brought to the surface. The bodies were terribly burned.

An explosion in the same mine killed 62 men eight years ago.

TELLS OF SHANGHAI CONSULAR BODY'S AUTOCRATIC BEHAVIOR BEFORE PRESENT STRIKE BEGAN

By SINBAD

SHANGHAI, China—(By Mail)—The consular body of Shanghai has again felt the necessity for the sending of an urgent telegram to the diplomatic body of Peking informing it that "lives and porperty of foreigners" in Shanghai have again been endangered. The cause of this action according to the local newspapers is as follows:

A foreign launch was proceeding up the river Sunday night which was incidentally very dark. One of the Chinese gunboats challenged it, thinkit to be an opium runner. The boat ignored the command and attempted to proceed on its way. The crew of the gunboat convinced of its suspicions opened fiire immediately with the result that the launch was well-riddled with bullets and one of the party on board, a Britisher, was wounded.

This was the incident which occasioned the alarm on the part of the local consular body.

There are several aspects of the case which it would be in order to mention here. In the first place it is obvious even to the novice on the question of military or naval law that the British launch was in the wrong. Since the Whangpoo river is, at least nominally, Chinese territory, the Chinese gunboat had full jurisdiction over this area; hence, the launch should have arrested its course and declared its identity. Failing in this important measure the boat was, naturally, fired on with the resulting injury to one of the passengers.

Another interesting fact is that there are no less than 18 battleships, British, American, Japanese, Italian and French strewed up and down the river the presence of which makes any apprehension for the "safety of foreign lives and property" absurd.

[illegible]h Troops With Machine G[illegible]s to Break Strike of N[illegible] Scotia Coal Miners

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, June 12.—The miners of Nova Scotia, District 26 of the United Mine Workers, starved into desperation by the "Beast of Besco"—British Empire Steel Corporation—are in open mass revolt, and in the coal town of New Waterford last night 2,000 or more miners took possession of the town, took over the company stores and put out of commission the power house which was furnishing the "white collar" scabs power to work in the mines.

Machine Guns and Steel Helmets.

As a result, 500 troops with machine guns and steel helmets are patrolling the town today, but the power house machinery is out of commission. The same situation prevails thruout the surrounding coal camps.

The trouble began when the Besco officials and company gunmen tried to start up operations at the New Waterford power station which generates power for the various mines of the corporation. The strikers stopped operations.

The chief of police had both legs broken and his head battered, but is still alive.

Gunmen Started Trouble.

The miners after beginning picketing, were fired upon by the gunmen from the plant. This angered the miners, whose ranks were fanned to fury by seeing one of their brothers, William Davis, fall dead and others pouring blood from wounds.

Charging en masse upon the plant they overpowered the gunmen and took possession. The score of gunmen were captured.

After raiding the plant the miners opened the company stores, whose efforts to starve them into accepting a wage cut by locking them out and cutting off store credit had engendered an anger that smoldered sullenly under their ragged jackets.

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

NO doubt the socialists will criticise the supreme court decision in the Gitlow case, limiting "free speech" to an expression of opinion sanctioned by the capitalist class of the United States. And without doubt they will also blame the Communists for being responsible for the decision. The socialists will argue that the supreme court was provoked by the Communists, and tho it should have maintained its dignity and paid no attention to them, nevertheless the extenuating circumstances are considerable.

IN fact, the Milwaukee Leader goes farther than that. The Leader is a socialist paper, that expresses the Milwaukee Victor Berger brand of socialism. It says: "Of course, a state has a right to protect itself against insurrection. It need not even encourage preachers of long-distance insurrection by giving them the free use of halls in which to blow off." This is one step ahead of the supreme court decision. Berger's hack, John M. Work, who wrote the editorial suggests that the government refuse the use of public halls to Communists.

BLAMING the Communists for the repressive measures adopted by the capitalist governments to protect the parasite system against a proletarian revolution is a favorite defense of the socialists. They know they are on trial before the working class. As Daniel De Leon, tried to justify his dual union folly by blaming its failure on anarcho-sydicalists, the yellow socialists attribute criminal syndicalism laws to the militancy of the Communists. Of course, they don't put it in that way.

BUT the working class in all generations have been granted only such liberties as they have been able to force the master class to grant them. Labor unions are illegal today in several small European nations. Poland is one of those. Labor unions were illegal in Russia before the Communist revolution took place. Unions were illegal in the United States at one time and the Knights of Labor for many years could not meet except in secret. How was the right to public assembly on the part of the workers secured? By meek obedience? No, but by fighting for the right.

AT the present time, there is a ship docked in the Chicago river, called the "Success." It is a ship once used by the bloody government of England to imprison felons in. Down in the foul cells of that death ship, men and women were held for years for the most trifling violations of law. Among those imprisoned were workers who demanded a paltry increase in wages. For this "crime" they were sentenced to many years imprisonment in the evil smelling belly of the "Success."

IN England today, there is a monument raised to the memory of those men; the men who helped blaze the way for trade unionism. And it has been so in all ages. Those who have

Dying Girl Charged Stephenson with Rape

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., June 12.—Another legal milestone in the approaching murder trial of D. C. Stephenson, Earl Klinck and Earl Gregory, alleged slayers of Madge Oberholtzer, 28, was passed here today.

Arguments likely to continue thruout the day were started before Judg Fred Hines in Hamilton circuit court on a petition of defense attorneys to compel the state to turn over to them an alleged dying statement of Miss Oberholtzer.

This statement accused the klansman of attacking the girl and keeping her in his hotel room overnight by force. She drank poison and Stephenson refused her medical assistance, she said.

SCIENTISTS IN BERLIN LAUGH AT SCOPES CASE

Evolution Vital to Teaching of Truth

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, June 12.—"The issue in the trial of John Scopes in Tennessee is that of freedom of lecturing rather than any question of science."

These were the views today of two scientists of the university of Berlin whose interest, has been turned on the approaching "evolution" trial at Dayton, Tenn.

"It is regrettable that professor Scopes should be prosecuted for teaching evolution," said Professor Franz Keibel, director of the Anatomical and Biological Institute of the University of Berlin.

"Do you adhere to the theory of Darwinism?" he was asked.

"Yes and no," was the answer. "I am an opponent of the so-called orthodox Darwinism attributing the development of men and animals chiefly to a struggle for life resulting in the survival of the fittest, but I am an adherent of evolution in general, which claims that men and animals are descendents of certain beings of differnet structure. Darwin's theory is only part of the general theory of evolution which is much older than Darwin."

Professor Keibel said that controversy between evolutionists and anti-evolutionists was practically nonexistent in Germany.

A more pronounced stand was taken by Professor O. L. Ubersch, director of the Pathological Institute at the University of Berlin.

"It seems incomprehensive to me—and surely to any other German scientists—that a teacher should be prosecuted for teaching evolution." he said.

"Quite apart from its being an intolerable infringement on the freedom of lecturing in the freest country in the world, Darwin's as well as Haeckel's theories of evolution belong to manking and cannot be killed by silence.

"The law shouldn't interfere with teaching historic facts. Moreover, Darwin as well as his followers has long been surpassed by modern evolutionists."

Georgia Labor Opposed to Gag.

AUGUSTA, Georgia, June 12.—The Georgia Federation of Labor, passed a motion here placing the federation on record as being opposed to the enactment of any law for the state of Georgia which would prohibit the teaching of evolution in the public schools of the state.

The services will have to be held elsewhere. Sure thing you can't tell what'll happen under capitalism.

LADIES GARMENT HEADS SUSPEND LOCAL OFFICERS

Held May Day Meeting with Communists

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 12.—Executive officers, joint board delegates and managers of locals 2, 9 and 22, known as the left wing locals, were suspended by the joint board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union on charges preferred by Feinberg for general executive board.

The principal charge is that the three locals held May Day meetings with Communist speakers. The international officers are trying to curry favor with Governor Smith and his commission by making war on the left wing in the union, and by carrying out employers' demands in the shops.

Workers from the shop of Lipstein company appeared last night at the meeting of the joint board protesting against the reorganization carried out there by Pearlstein, which had resulted in twenty-one workers being discharged.

Conservative Speaks Up.

Even a conservative delegate from the shop declared that he was "opposed to the left wing all the time but it is general knowledge that the workers discharged were the best workers in the shops and that they were discharged because they held political opinions different from those of Pearlstein."

The joint board advised that the treasuries of the three locals be attached. This would involve placing $250,000 under court order. Left wing dressmakers are demanding the enforcement of the agreement by individual strikes against manufacturers violating same. Left wing is demanding the withdrawal of union representation from the governor's commission and preparation for general strike. There is strong mass support for these demands.

Imitates Dawes.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 12—In imitation of the speech of Charles G. Dawes, to the U. S. senate, Count Hamilton, speaker of the Swedish rikstag, made a harrangue to that body, scolding the representatives, for "wasting time/passing foolish reform laws."

Bain Gets Congenial Job.

WASHINGTON—H. Foster Bain, director of the U. S. bureau of mines, has resigned, and will become executive secretary of the Institute of Mining and Metallurgical Engineers, in New York, as a result of the transfer of the bureau from the interor department to Herbert Hoovers department of commerce.

Bain was conspicuous in the Teapot Dome investigation as an ally and apologist for Albert Fall, for whose protection he concealed the fact that the illegal lease had been signed.

Chinese Boycott Against British and Japanese Is Reply to Foreign Threats

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 12.—From north to south along the Chinese coast and ever farther into the interior spread the flames of revolt against foreign imperialism. From Peking, today, comes the news that the imperialist powers, to whom the Chinese government yesterday sent a sharp note demanding evacuation of foreign armed forces from Shanghai, have replied insolently, ignoring the demand that foreign troops should evacuate Chinese soil before discussion of peace proposals, and threatening that "the Chinese government incurs a heavy responsibility in any situation which concerns the maintenance of order in Shanghai, Peking and, generally speaking, thruout China."

In the face of this arrogance and threat, the students and strikers of Shanghai which gathered by the tens of thousands yesterday, not only decided to start definitely a boycott against everything British and Japanese, but—reiterating their demands, notified the Peking government that they would move to eject the commissioner of foreign affairs of the Chinese government from office if he did not secure a compliance with their demands in 24 hours.

These demands, couched in the form of an ultimatum to expire by Sunday at the latest, includes the rescinding of martial law, withdrawal of foreign marines, a joint British and Japanese apology, indemnification for killed and wounded, the turning over of the foreigner mixed court to Chinese jurisdiction, Chinese representation on the municipal council (taxation without representation is tyranny) and the employment of Chinese instead of British police commissioners.

Meanwhile, the marine strike has spread until thirty-three British and Japanese ships are tied up in river and coastal trade.

The first batch of so-called "rioters" tried, sixteen in all, were released "with severe censure and placed on parole." This

NO SUCCESSFUL BLOCKADE UPON SOVIET FINANCE

Sokolnikov Laughs at Conspiracy

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, June 12.—Soviet Russia views with equanimity and disbelief reports that there exists an organized conspiracy on the part of other nations to cut off Soviet credits and raw materials.

Fin. Minister Sokolnikoff, who has his finger on the Soviet's economic pulse, laughed at the reports.

"There are no signs of any successful organized effort to cut off our credits," he declared. "Such reports, published in European newspapers, were merely newspaper threats.

"In the first place, such a blockade would not be successful without the United States participating, and America will not participate. We are too good a customer. Our recent purchase of cotton in the United States, to the extent of $55,000,000, exceeds any similar expenditure ever made by the czarist government for this commodity.

"Similarly, our purchases of American agricultural machinery and automobiles are too large to be ignored."

Improving as Russo-American economic conditions are, however, M. Sokolnikoff said he wished they are better.

BELGIAN BONDS SNAPPY STUFF FOR AMERICA

Congo Slave Labor to Pay Yankee Profits

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 12.—The $50,000,000 Belgian loan, offered to the public today, was snapped up in record time. The issue was oversubscribed almost immediately after the books were opened.

The issue was offered to the public by J. P. Morgan and company and the Guaranty Trust company. It was the thirty year sinking fund seven per cent gold bond issue.

At the subscription price of 98 the new bonds yield about 7.15 per cent to maturity. The Belgian government will use half the proceeds of the new loan for "public improvements" in the Congo and the balance will be turned over to the Banque Nationale de Belgique for the protection of the Belgian franc in the exchange markets.

Moros Fight Back.

MANILA, P. I., June 12.—The Moro peasants in the southern province of Lano, who are being chased by Gen. Leonard Wood's constabulary, have taken the steel from the telegraphed poles to convert it into home made shot guns. The telegraph wires have been cut.

The Moro peasants are fighting the rule of the "Christian Filipinos," a puppet administration set over them by the American dictator.

Moose Chief to Be Arbitrator.

WASHINGTON, June 12—Secretary of Labor Davis, head of the Loyal Order of the Moose, will confer here next Tuesday with warring forces in the plastering and bricklaying business in an effort to end the strike that has tied up construction work in New York, Chicago and other cities, it was announced at the department of labor this afternoon.

CARPENTERS TO VOTE TODAY FOR DISTRICT HEADS

Frank Stahl Expected to Defeat Jensen

The members of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America, in Chicago will vote today for officers to the district council, term to begin on July 3 and lasting one year.

The present incumbent in this office of president is Harry Jensen. He is opposed by Frank Stahl, candidate on the program of the progressive caucus.

Jensen has lost the confidence of the rank and file for many reasons, but his sponsoring of a scab agreement last year on the eve of the election, is perhaps the chief reason why the membership want to get rid of him. Jensen placed this scab Landis award agreement before the membership and represented it to be a closed shop agreement. Jensen is in open alliance with the contractors; in fact, he is a boss's man in every respect.

The progressive caucus organized their forces and put forward a program that calls for more solidarity among the workers, a labor party and other important matters that affect the interests of the masses. [illegible] program [illegible] in the DAILY WORKER.

FARMER LEADER SAYS RADICALS ARE PIONEERS

Are Responsible for Human Progress

DUBUQUE, Iowa, June 12—Speaking before the Iowa State Federation of Labor convention, Milo Reno, president of the Iowa Farmers' Union, declared that had the farmers been organized they could have been the dominating class and demanded a place around the table with organized labor and industry.

He said that the rights the American people now enjoy are the fruit of work done by radicals. The interests of the exploited farmers and their struggle against the financiers and the railroad magnates and middlemen are driving them into co-operation with the workers.

OSLO, Norway, June 12.—Negotiations between Norway and Russia for a Commercial trade treaty were deadlocked today.

JACQUES SADOUL AGAIN CHARGED WITH "HIGH TREASON" FOR HIS ALLEGIANCE TO SOVIET UNION

PARIS, France, June 12.—Jacques Sadoul has been charged wiht high treason during his stay in the Soviet Union, where he was sent by the French govrenment as a member of the French military committee.

Sadoul has been tried twice before for his friendship with the workers and peasants government. During his stay in Russia he was tried by a court martial and sentenced to death in 1919, on a charge of "deserting to the Soviets."

Sadoul returned to France last December and demanded another trial. He was again tried by a court martial at Orleans and found not guilty.

Sadoul will now be tried in a civil court. When sent to Russia he was an officer in the French army.

3,000 NEW YORK NEEDLE WORKERS LOST THEIR JOBS IN MONTH OF MAY

NEW YORK, June 12.—In New York needle trades over 3,000 workers were thrown out of work during May, the state industrial commissioner reports. General decrease in factory employment was 1 per cent for the month. About 300 workers in iron and steel mills lost jobs during May, but building trades workers got more work. Seasonal gains in dairy products, canning and beverages are noticeable and more work in tinfoil factories. Biscuit factories let out workers and candy manufacturers cut their lists greatly, as their season is over until fall.

I. W. W.'S THIRD TRIAL BEFORE INFAMOUS JUDGE IS ASTOUNDING FARCE; RAILROADED TO PRISON

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SACRAMENTO, Cal., June 12.—No "mixed court" in China run by foreign imperialists, of which we have heard so much news in recent days, could be more brutally outrageous in its savage oppression of an oppressed race than has been the court of the infamous Judge Busick of this city in the trial of Tom Connors, I. W. W., whose third trial has just ended with his conviction.

Connors' trial—the last one, as he had three and the state supreme court sent the case back on the ground of Busick's behaviour in the previous ones—began on May 27, and proceeded with scarcely the forms of law, altho Busick managed to evade some of the errors which voided the first trials.

Tried For Doing Defense Work

Bear in mind, firstly, that Connors was being tried on a charge of "influencing a juror" because, as a means of conducting defense for other workers, he had—as all defense workers do—circulated printed matter explaining the issues of the case to great lists of people. Among the recipients of such circular matter, it appears was a venireman. Connors had never seen him, never talked with him.

But the crowning point of the present judicial farce, and one which should burn its lesson into the minds of every worker, especially every I. W. W., that the present government is a capitalist dictatorship and that its "democracy" is a fraud—was the conduct of Judge Busick on the bench.

Busick In Dual Role

Judge Busick, without any suggestion or invitation from counsel, announced that he would be sworn as a witness for the prosecution. All objections and motions were overruled. Judge Busick—without leaving the bench—was sworn as a witness. He testified, overruled objections to his own testimony, and supplied the missing link that the prosecuting attorney lacked. Then he went on with the case.

This came at a time when the district attorney and his assistant were hopelessly floundering in an attempt to show that a certain witness had delivered to the court and envelope received by this witness. Incidentally, the envelope was shown to have been mailed after Connors was arrested and during his confinement in the Sacramento county jail.

Patriotism—As Usual

When the arguments closed—and those of the prosecutor did not deal with the issues of the case but was solely a flag-waving patriotic tirade usual to prosecutors—the defense counsel moved for an instructed verdict in favor of Connors, on the ground that Arnold, the complaining witness, had failed to identify a copy of the leaflet upon which the whole charge of the prosecution was based. Busick promptly denied the motion.

The reversal of Connors previous conviction on the same charge was based mainly on the grounds that Busick had instructed the jury to find him guilty of a crime not charged in the indictment. Busick avoided this partly this time. When reading off the few passages containing mater that the jury might take as favorable to Connors, Busick spoke in a dead monotone, but when he came to the parts which told the jury to "find the defendant guilty," he read slowly and impressively. The words—Find the defendant guilty"—were repeated many times and uttered with unction and gusto.

Was the Judge Prejudiced?

The jury returned the verdict of guilty in three hours, Busick immediately sentenced Connors to the maximum limit of the law. Notice of appeal and a motion for the court to set bail pending appeal was denied—all in one breath—and Connors rushed off to San Quentin penitentiary. At the opening of the trial the defense moved for a change of venue, presenting three affidavits of Busick's prejudice. Busick denied the motion.

Eight Killed by British Marines.

HANKOW, China, June 12—Eight Chinese were killed today when British marines opened fire on a crowd of strikes surrounding the municipal building, demanding the removal of all armed foreign troops from Chinese soil.

Rioting started Thursday evening when the shore workers on the Butterfield and Swir wharf struck. White guard strikebreakers were mobilised and attempted to continue working. Later the workers made a mass attack, killing six Chinese scabs, wounding many.

Marines landed from British gunboats set up machine guns and opened fire. The rioters first visited the Japanese concession and smashed up a number of shops.

Chinese Troops Enroute to Shanghai.

NANKING, China, June 12—The Chinese government is sending 2,000 picked Fengtien troops to Shanghai. They entrained at five o'clock last night. It is understood that they are to preserve order along the line between the foreign settlement and the Chinese section of the city of Shanghai.

But as the foreign troops have been trespassing over the foreign line into Chinese territory, and the most of the murders of students took place in Chinese territory, the Chinese troops may collide with foreign armed forces at once.

German Communists Fight Acceptance of Security Pact

BERLIN, June 12—The Communist deputies were shut off from the business session of the reichstag committee on foreign affairs when the security pact and league of nations membership were discussed.

Destpite the boasts of the nationalists who are now ruling Germany it is probable that Berlin will accept the pact with reservations. The Communists alone are making a fight against the acceptance of the pact. They show that it is an alliance against Soviet Russia hatched by Great Britain.

COVINGTON HALL, I. W. W. WRITER, ENDORSES LABOR DEFENSE UNITY; URGES THAT I. W. W. PARTICIPATE

The DAILY WORKER is in receipt of the following letter concerning the national conference called by the Labor Defense Council of all organizations and individuals interested in co-ordinating the work of defense and relief of all workers imprisoned for their connection and activities in the labor movement, regardless of their political or non-political views. The conference will be held June 28, at Ashland Auditorium, Chicago.

MENA, Ark., June 8, 1925.

Editors, The DAILY WORKER,
1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

Dear Comrades: I have just read in the DAILY WORKER of the sixth instant, of the call issued by Secretary George Maurer of the Labor Defense Council for a conference, as I understand it, of all organizations engaged in defense work for labor and class war prisoners, with the end in view of uniting them in one body, to the end that they may work more efficiently and effectively.

To my way of thinking, this should have been done long ago and I sincerely trust that all the organizations, and especially the general defense committee of the I. W. W. will have representatives present at the meeting of June 28, instructed to affiliate with the proposed United Defense Council.

A recent experience, where I and another man were working on the same case unknown ot each other, only serves to confirm me in the belief that the work of the different defense organizations should be coordinated as soon as it is possible to do so.

As you know, I have never made any pretense of being a Communist and so can have little influence there, but I may still have some with the I. W. W. members and, if I have, it is my desire to appeal to them to boost the move for a United Defense Council, for it is badly needed right now.

Fraternally yours,
(Signed) COVINGTON AMI HALL.

Barbers Strike for organization

NEW YORK—(FP)—About 400 barbers, most of them Italians, are striking in the Borough Hall, Brooklyn, to get union conditions in all shops. Over 500 barbers gained their demands at the outset of the strike from the district Master Barbers' Association. The strikers are members of the former Independent Journeymen Barbers' Union which recently went into the American Federation of Labor.

BUILDING TRADE COUNCIL FIGHTS THE 'OPEN SHOP'

Scabherding "Citizens' Committee" Attacked

The building trades council of Chicago met last night to duscuss the fight inaugurated by the Chicago building trades unions against the open shop. A statement issued by Patrick Sullivan, president of the building trades council shows that while the council officials have no intention of formally declaring a general strike against the infamous Landis award agreement, which is synonymous with the "open shop," the statement means that strikes will be called on all new jobs let from the date of the statement on which non-union men are employed with union workers.

If this threat is carried out, a war on the "open shop" will be waged by the building trades union.

Sullivan charges that the building contractors have violated their Landis award agreements not to form an alliance with the "Citizens Committee to enforce the Landis Award." Of course, this committee has been from the first an agency of the contractors to feed non-union workers to them under protection of the Landis award.

The building trades council takes the position that this alliance is in violation of the Landis award, and will be fought in the future by strikes. The statement of the council declares, "If outside influences continue to prevail in the building industry, or if contracts are let for construction work in Cook county to unfair contractors, the affiliated trades will exercise the right reserved to them and will quit work on every job where agreements are being violated."

Meanwhile Federal Judge Page, "arbiter" in the structural iron workers' dispute, is expected to give a decision. The iron workers' union charges that contractors violated the agreement by employing nonunion workers. Page is expected by many of the iron workers to rule against their union in an effort to stem the struggle of the workers against the open shop.

The "Citizens Committee" announced that it will continue to furnish nonunion workers to the contractors.

Three hundred Chicago plasteres are still off their jobs. They were called out by their international officers in a national jurisdictional dispute between the bricklayers' and plasterers' international unions.

CANTON BATTLE STILL RAGING WITHOUT END

But Reinforcements May Turn Tide

CANTON, China, June 12.—Foreign steamers were fired upon today as they moved within the fighting lines established by rival military leaders who continued battling for Canton, which is now held by the defending Yunnanese army... One Chinese steward on the steamer Salon was wounded severely today when he was struck while aboard the craft.

While the gunfire continued from both sides today after a night of continuous shooting, neither army gained ground. The defending forces were anxious to attack Honam, but the project could not be promoted owing to lack of vessels, all of which are held by enemy forces.

Steamers were proceding to Hongkong today crowded with refugees. The movement of exports and imports is practically halted as a result of the disturbance. Silk shipments, however, are moving under protection.

Observers today reported that additional forces would be necessary for a decisive battle. If the forces of Gen. Heu Chung-chi, who was reprot-ed nearing Canton, arrive in time and join with the forces of Chu Pei-tak in assisting the attack forces, the defenders may be driven out of Canton. Otherwise the Yunnanese will continue to hold the city.

"SECURITY" IN IN GERMAN PACT ONLY TO ALLIES

England Got "A Bad Bargain" Is Claim

BERLIN, Germany, June 12.— The German government has not been fooled by the reports issuing from the French and British governments that the proposed security pact proposal of the two governments assures "protection" to the German government. It is announced here that the pact provides protection for Germany's western frontiers only under "complicated legal stipulations which would mean no protection at all."

The Hindenburg government has attempted to revive the power of the crushed capitalist class of Germany, but facing an economic collapse at home rubbed raw by the French occupation and the disarmament note, the industrialists here have practically no hope of regaining their powerful position prior to 1914.

PARIS, France, June 12.— The French cabinet has unanimously approved the so-called "security" pact note to Germany.

Mild Alterations.

LONDON, England, June 12.—Alterations will probably be made in the proposals of a "security" pact with Germany, due to the opposition developed by the liberals against the tentative provisions of the proposed pact.

The opposition does not object to the stringent provisions against Germany, but merely charges that the Baldwin government "made a bad bargain," as Lloyd George's newspaper, the Daily Chronicle states, in allowing France to get more out of the proposed pact than does the English government.

Small Forces His Election Bills to Floor of House

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12.—Gov. Small completed a political "log-rolling" deal in the house, forcing the representatives in favor of the McCluggage "sanitary district" bill to support his bills requiring the rotation of Cook county candidates on election ballots, by threating to veto the McCluggage bill.

Speaker Scholes announced that he would ask for a roll call on Small's bills next Tuesday. The election bills which are being forced thru by Small subject circuit and superior court judges to election primaries, and all of them aid the Deneen-Small political alliance in Cook county.

The McCluggage bill, supported by the sanitary district politicians, gives the sanitary district increased bonding power for the erection of sewage disposal stations.

One of Morgan's Banks in Wall Street Declares 100 Per Cent Dividend

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Morgan banking interests float another loan for Belgium, this time for $50,000,000. It was accomplished without much trouble, and the international bankers in Wall Street pocket another neat and huge wad of profits.

Business is good in Wall Street, especially in the Morgan end of it. This was clearly seen in the 25 per cent quarterly dividend declared by the First National Bank, which makes a 100 per cent dividend for the year, something that only a few banks can boast of. None of the stock of this bank is being sold to workers. It is carefully held by a selected list of great millionaires, headed by George F. Baker, the "silent man of Wall Street," who is chairman of the bank's board of directors.

• • • •

But Baker shines not only as banker. He is director in a multitude of corporations. He is prominent in the railroad world; considered to be the directing influence in the so-called "Van Sweringen Merger," the latest consolidation of railroad properties on a large scale, that has been brought under the surveillance of the Interstate Commerce Commission because of the complaints of minority stockholders. One charge is that the Van Sweringen brothers are making too much money out of "the deal," which is purely a financial transaction. But the little stockholders will find that the big banks are not in business to consider their claims. There is much money for the banks in the merging of corporations already in existence, just as there is in floating loans for bankrupt foreign governments that must accept almost any terms thrust upon them. And profits must not be interfered with.

• • • •

The important fact is not that the banks make huge dividends, but that they control the financial nerves of the capitalist system, nationally and internationally, dictating where and when gold shall flow, what great industries shall be supported when in financial stress, what industries shall be boycotted.

It is in this way that the great financial interests wield their influence in promoting "open shop" drives against organized labor. The United States Steel Corporation was inspired by the great banks in 1919 to wage its "open shop" war against the steel workers. It was great finance that launched the ambitious campaign, following the defeat of the steel workers, to smash the coal miners' union and establish non-union conditions in the coal fields. It was the militant spirit of the coal miners that won, and not because they had "labor banks" of their own, or had bought stock extensively in the coal companies; because they had done neither of these things.

• • • •

But it was the railroad brotherhoods, that boast of their "labor banks" and that pride themselves on their railroad stock purchases, and whose officials are energetically urging the rank and file to "buy more," that scabbed on the shop workers' strike in 1922. Their holdings made them too timid to enter into a militant struggle against their exploiters.

• • • •

The so-called "millionaires' banks" constitute the golden heart of American capitalism. From this golden heart flows the precious stream of gold that tries to keep capitalism alive. It is by a process of transfusion, thru loans and credits, that American capitalism is trying vainly to get European capitalism out of its sickbed and into a period of convalescence.

"Labor banks" and small investments in big corporations constitute a mirage that may fool some badly informed workers, but that quickly fade upon thoro investigation, in spite of the false and misleading propaganda of the corrupt labor aristocracy.

• • • •

The working of the capitalist financial system can only prove to awakened labor that capitalism itself must be destroyed, and a new social structure created with all finance in control of the workers. No one has ever heard of the Union of Soviet Republics allowing foreign capital to have even the smallest share in its financial system.

U. S. GOVERNMENT REPORTS GERMAN LABOR CONDITIONS

Low Wages, High Taxes and Weak Unions

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—The labor department of the United States has given out its findings on a survey of the industrial conditions in Germany. In the section given to the standard of living of German workers the survey says:

Low Standard of Living.

"The general standard of living among workers after the war was very low. Food, fuel and clothes were very scarce at first, and when imports began after the blockade ceased the low level of real wages prevented much improvement.

"Rents in general have been low because the government rent restriction. The working class, however, did not actually profit by the low rents, as in fixing wages the employer took into account such low rents.

Robbed in Every Way.

"The working class paid more in taxes in proportion to their income than the wealthy class, contributing in 1923 and 1924 between 45 and 95 per cent of the income tax as taxes on their wages were levied before the workers received them, thereby depriving the workers of the advantage of the depreciation of the currency which other taxpayers had.

"While nominal wages increased rapidly, real wages were much lower than before the war. The wages of bricklayers, for example, which before the war had been 45 per cent higher than the minimum cost of subsistence, were lower than the minimum cost of existence in twenty-eight of the months from January, 1920, to December, 1924.

Low Wages and Weak Unions.

"Of course, lower wages in German industry ($1.50 to $2 a day) can be maintained by the employers for a considerable length of time only provided there is a large number of unemployed always waiting at the factory gates for work. The treasury of most unions is too weak to withstand any long continued strikes."

Jersey Builders Get Increase

NEW YORK—(FP)—Striking Essex county carpenters gained 20 cents a day, raising their rate to $11.20. Striking roofers who have been out since April 1 are to get 50 cents increase, $10 a day, beginning Aug. 1, their terms of settlement dictate. About 5,000 masons, plasterers, and bricklayers in Essex and Hudson counties, New Jersey, are to get $1 a day increase beginning July 1. The new rate is $13 a day and will be increased to $14 on July 1, 1926.

GREAT BRITAIN WILL NOT AID MOROCCAN WAR

Spanish-French Force to Attack Ajdir

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, June 12—Premier Painleve is in Fez conferring with his military chiefs on the further steps to be taken by the invading French army.

At the same time the Spanish government has announced that a combined Franco-Spanish offensive is about to be launched against the native Riffians, and the British government has declared that it has no intention of joining in a blockade against the Riffians.

The British government will remain aloof from the Moroccan invasion, it was announced.

The Spanish-French combined assault will be against Ajdir, off Alhucemas Bay, toward which a Spanish fleet of thirteen merchant ships is now being directed. The island fortress of Alhucemas will be attacked.

The Riffians are massing troops at Ajdir.

Painleve will face the chamber of deputies on Tuesday. The Communists are the only party in France opposing the Moroccan war.

The socialists after a meeting of their party leaders, announced that they had refused to accept Minister of Finance Calliaux' financial program. The socialists insist that a levy be placed on capital. It is that that they will do as they did in the Moroccan discussion, when they criticised the imperialistic campaign, and then, "in order to save the government," lined up with the imperialistic policies of Painleve.

MORMON SOLON GETS OUT SHEARS FOR TAX SHAVE

More Relief Promise for Big Fellows

WASHINGTON, June 12.—With the arrival here of Senator Reed Smooth of Utah, chairman of the senate finance committee, for conferences with Secretary of the Treasury Mellon and other officials, the administration's tax revision program, to be submitted to the next congress, has begun to take definite form.

Smoot probably will remain here for several weeks, not only to work on the tax problem, but to act with the American debt funding commission, of which he is a member, in forthcoming negotiations with Belgium and other nations which may undertake funding operations.

As to revenue legislation in congress this winter, Smoot agrees with President Coolidge and Secretary Mellon that the revenue act of 1924 is unsatisfactory in many respects and that a country-wide demand is developing for tax revision or "tax reform" as the president describes it.

This would include the elimination of the "discriminatory taxes" which are now said to demand too great a tribute from the larger incomes. Reduction of surtaxes will be proposed along with more liberal exemptions for small incomes, altho the last tax law provided for greater reductions in the latter class than those originally proposed in the "Mellon plan."

BORAH REPORTED PUSHING SOVIET RECOGNITION

Goes to New York on Hunt for Facts

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Senator Borah of Idaho, went to New York Tuesday to confer with authorities on the Russian situation.

Among others, he will discuss the question with Raymond Robbins, who was sent to Russia by Woodrow Wilson with instructions to make a thoro investigation of conditions under the Soviet regime and to make an unbiased report.

But when Robbins returned and made his report, he was subjected to a fire to adverse cirticism, as his conclusions were considered too friendly to the Soviets.

Because of his intense interest in the Soviet republic, Borah is anxious to get from Robbins his impressions concerning recent developments in Russia.

Borah is laying the foundation for another drive for recognition of Russia by this government. He is convinced that such a move would prove of incalculable trade advantage to the United States.

LITTLE RED LIBRARY CIRCULATED IN THE "GREAT DESERT" OF NEVADA; PLASTER GUGGENHEIM WITH "DAILY"

By ELLA REEVE BLOOR.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ELY, Nevada.—(By Mail.)—Out of Fallon yesterday, crossed the Great Desert and about 50 miles from nowhere the engine of the car I was in busted, and there I was in the desert—plenty of water, but no food. Fortunately a passing auto took me on to a ranch 35 miles further, where I had dinner.

That ranch, the gateway to a huge mountain, the summit over 7,500 feet high, which I afterward crossed, should be in the movies. The old cattle corrals, dobe houses, cowboys and Sashone Indians were there aplenty.

From there I caught a ride 75 miles to an old silver mining town, where I stayed all night. This morning I had a chance to talk to some men going to a road camp to work and gave them some of the Little Red Library books.

I'm trying to get a ride to Eureka, 80 miles, which I want to make tonight. And the copper mining town of Ely, 158 miles more, I expect to make Monday night. It's a strenuous life, but I feel fine. Most of the time the weather has been cold and stormy, but is fine today.

Am expecting good meetings at Ogden and Salt Lake City. It will seem strange to see towns and cities again. Here they only have mail three times a week. I've been away from all railroads since I left Reno. They have kerosene lamps here and many other primitive things.

Must now try to catch a ride. I haven't paid one cent for fares and don't intend to, even bus fares. They charge $1.50 a night for all the luxuries (?) of these camps. Am glad I'll pass thru Guggenheim's territory at Ely. I'll plaster it with DAILY WORKERS.

FILE BRIEF TO STOP DEPORTING OF J. C. SCHEDEL

Must Leave Starving Family Behind

The brief of I. E. Ferguson, attorney for John C. Schedel ordered deported by the Department of Labor, addressed to James J. Davis, secretary of labor, is a noteworthy document. In showing cause why Schedel should not be deported, Freguson challenges Davis to look upon deportation in a different light than was previously done by the department of labor under pressure of the hue and cry raised by the Department of Justice during the days of the "Palmer Red Raids."

Furgeson said that the deportations of 1920 were far better explained than he could ever hope to do in Louis F. Post's book, "The Deportation Delirium of 1920," and asked that a certain chapter of that book be considered part of the brief.

Post, by the way, was assistant secretary of labor during this delirium of 1920 and was forced to sign deportation warrants and orders with which he was in complete disagreement. While this wartime legislation still obtains, Ferguson points out that its strict enforcement at this late date is needless.

Schedel was originally deported to Germany in 1920. Schedel left a wife and three children in distressing circumstances. In 1922 he made an abortive attempt to return to his family and was quickly re-deported from Norfolk, W. Virginia. He returned for the second time and was arrested in Chicago in October 1924, charged with criminal violation of the immigration law.

Ferguson points out that the Department of Justice has dropped the criminal charge of illegal entry against Schedel and appeals to the Department of Labor to follow the precedent, taking into particular consideration the fact that Schedel has a large family in grave circumstances and is unable to take them to Germany with him for lack of funds.

Anna Louise Strong Asks Funds for John Reed Soviet School

MOSCOW, June 12.—Twenty thousand dollars for the Soviet Union's children's colonies is asked by Anna Louise Strong of American donors to give the enterprising children equipment and supervision equal to their energy and courage. Highly trained Americans speaking Russian will give their services and the Russian government gives land and buildings.

What is needed is tools and materials to make rural playground equipment for all along the Volga, outfitting for a domestic arts workshops, dairy farm equipment, model shoes repair shop, clockmaking outfit and money to put the John Reed colony, already operating for more than a year, on a more adequate basis and to start a children's colony normal school and model school near Moscow.

Contributions should be sent to Anna Louise Strong, Hotel Continental, Moscow, U. S. S. R., or her father, Sydney Strong, 508 Garfield Street, Seattle, Wash., who will acknowledge and forward the contributions.

Protest Tyranny of Military Rule of Virgin Isles

WASHINGTON, June 12.—(FP)—Captain Philip Williams, the navy governor of the Virgin Islands by arbitrary appointment, has dissolved the native advisory body, the St. Croix Council, in a fashion which the Civil Liberties Union has protested to President Coolidge as "high handed."

Williams, who had already antagonized native sentiment, revived an old Danish law in order to get rid of the council because that body had refused to accept at once the credentials of certain new appointees of his own.

This is the second dissolution which has been ordered by American naval governors during the eight years of "temporary" government of the islands by the navy; during more than a century of Danish rule the order was invoked only once.

Canal Loses Oil Business.

WASHINGTON—(FP)—A decrease of 40 per cent in the shipments of oil by tankers thru the Panama canal, in the 10 months ending April 30, 1925, as compared with the coresponding 10 months in the preceding year, is reported by the Panama Canal official bulletin. The western fields are no longer producing a big surplus for shipment to the eastern market, the bulletin said.

Aside from oil tankers, the canal business for the 10 months shows a gain in tonnage and a two per cent increase in the number of ships handled. Tolls amount to $18,035,441, a decrease of $2,500,000.

UNION HEAD DENOUNCES COOLIDGE DEAL WITH RAILROADS TO RAISE PROFITS; LABOR FOE IN CHARGE

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 12—(FP)—Henry Strickland, secretary of the Railway Mail Association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, denounces the greed of the railroad companies in the United States in demanding and securing continually higher rates for carrying the mails, while the service they render the public is steadily getting worse. His analysis of the danger in this condition, issued in Washington shows that Postmaster General New and his predecessor, Work, have carried on the ruinous policy established by Burleson in the Wilson administration.

The pledges of betterment contained in the Republican platform of 1920 were betrayed as soon as the republicans took control.

Foe of Unions

Joseph Stewart, attorney for the postoffice department, who directs the fight against the postal workers' unions thru democratic and republican administration alike, is the official who caused the change, in November, 1916, from the weight basis to the cubic space basis of payment to the railroads for carrying the mail.

At the time the railroads did not understand that they would make more out of the game by the new arrangement. They had drawn $61,244-667 for transporting the mails in the fiscal year ending June 30 1916. But for the year ending June 30, 1926, congress has appropriated $112,250,000 to be paid to the railroads for the same purpose—though the service this year involves only 1¼ per cent more car-miles of haulage than in 1916. The interstate commerce commission has steadily granted higher rates to the railroads for this job.

"Theoretically" says Strickland, "the department, through Stewart, is presumed to fight and to prevent such increases; but the railroads usually is capable of making a vigorous fight succeed, just the same. That Stewart is capable of making a vigorous fight when he desires to do so, was shown beyond a doubt in his resourceful and bitter opposition to the postal employes in their legislative campaign for living wages."

Service Goes Down.

While the cost of rail transportation of mail has gone up, in the past ten years, service has gone down. Between Nov. 1, 1916 and June 30, 1920, Burleson cut the distrbiution service of mails en route from 194,-757,683 car miles annually—prorated on a 60-foot car basis—to 144,769,658 car miles, or more than 25 per cent reduction.

The republican campaign textbook of 1920 declared that this policy of abandonment of service was destroying the efficiency of the postoffice department by curtailment of service", and insisted on "operation for service rather than for profit." Yet between June, 1920, and June, 1924, a further curtailment of 13,383,901 car miles has been enforced.

Officials of the department, seeking to show a "profit" in the service under the space-rate system, use fewer trains and send mail less often, thereby delaying delivery and slowing down communication and business throughout the country.

On through railroad lines, Strickland declares, the present mail service is bad enough, but on branch lines it is not much better than in stagecoach days. Frequently, 24 hours is required to carry a letter between postoffice that are only a few miles apart, by the cumbersome "closed pouch" method of cutting expenses.

Steel Orders Decrease

Unfilled tonnage figures of the United States Steel corporation at the end of May show a further decrease of nearly 400,000 tons.

ENGLAND THROWS SOP OF CABINET POST TO OPPRESSED DOMINIONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, June 11.—Great Britain will throw a useless sop to her dominions by allowing separate representation in cabinet meetings, it became known today.

Premier Baldwin announced in the house of commons that the government had decided to create a new cabinet position—secretary of state for dominion affairs. The duties formerly were vested in the secretary of state for the colonies.

Manganese Concession to Harriman Interests Granted by Soviets

MOSCOW, June 12.—The concession giving the A. W. Harriman financial interests of New York exclusive right to mine manganese in the Caucasus mountains was formally signed here today by representatives of the Russian government and John Elliott for the Harriman interests.

The Harriman interests this week put up a cash guarantee of a million dollars that improvements totaling millions of dollars would be made in the mines and that the concession would be carried out.

Socialists Proud of "Our" Democracy

The truth is, of course, that the decision applies only to the New York state . . . . . Even after this decision, therefore, America now has infinitely more freedom of speech and press than Russia.

Thus the Milwaukee Leader, organ of the socialist party, on the supreme court decision in the Gitlow case legalizing all the state criminal syndicalism laws under which hundreds of workers were tried and convicted and under which prosecutions are still in progress in Ohio, Pennsylvania, Michigan and California.

We quote two sentences and there is a lie in each sentence.

The decision affects every state in which there is a criminal syndicalism law and all the rest of the states for that matter, because there is nothing to prevent any of them adopting such legislation now that it has been declared constitutional.

That there is more freedom of the press in America is true only in the sense that the capitalist press has more freedom. In Russia the workers' and peasants' press enjoys the same privileges that the capitalist press does here. The Milwaukee Leader overlooks the important fact that Russia is a workers' and peasants' and not a caiptalist government—an oversight which we have come to expect from sheets run by yellow social-patriots who join in the praise sung by capitalists of their government.

When those who call themselves socialists sink so low that they refuse to see in the latest decision of the supreme court an admission by capitalism itself of its intention to suppress by force all attacks on its tyrannical powers, to admit that the constitutional privileges of free speech have been completely nullified, when they excuse the jailing of workingmen for the exprsesion of opinion, it is time to apply to them in the United States the same titles they have earned in Germany, Italy, Bulgaria, Esthonia, Poland and other countries where the class struggle is sharp and clear—to brand them by their own utterances as jailers and hangmen working for the blackest forces of American capitalism.

The Carpenters' Election

There are 26,000 organized carpenters in Chicago.

They are electing officers today and a union election in which so many workers take part is of great interest in the whole labor movement, in and out of Chicago.

Elections in building trades unions are proverbially barren of issues except the perennial differences between the ins and the outs. But this election is different.

The left wing is active in the Carpenters' Union. It has conducted a national election campaign opposing Hutcheson with a rank and file candidate on a militant platform. In Chicago the struggle in the union between the Landis award open shop machine element and the rank and file led by the left wing has been very bitter. Militant members have been expelled and reinstated by reason of the good fight made for them.

Jensen, the leading candidate of the Landis award crowd, is being opposed by Stahl, running on a clean cut fighting program. It is the duty of every sincere unionist to get out and support Stahl and the left wing.

The left wing carpenters tell us that Stahl has a good chance to beat Jensen and upset the contractors' control of carpenters' locals.

We hope he is elected, but even if he is not the left wing program will have been brought to thousands of carpenters, the issues discussed and a new principle laid down for the conduct of building trades union election—programs instead of personalities.

Salaries of Labor Officials

Salaries and expenses of officials are becoming a sore point with the rank and file of most unions. There seems to be no limit to the greed of the officialdom whose motto is "get it while the getting is good," but the rank and file have more integrity.

The convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, meeting in Detroit, showed this the other day by turning down a resolution raising the expense allowance of delegates from $14 to $16 per day. Undoubtedly most of the delegates, being human, would have liked to have the extra money—altho $14 per day is more than a liberal allowance—but it was felt that the officials would use the passage of this resolution as a precedent for demanding a raise in their swollen salaries.

This is a little thing, but evidently there are limits even to the patience of these workers whose wages are comparatively high. Struggles in unions centering around issues like this are not important in themselves, but they do give promise that at least part of the upper strata of the working class are getting away from the banker-businessman point of view that is the curse of the American labor movement.

Putting Pressure on Calles

—Wall Street is putting the pressure on Mexico and as if to make the connection between government an dimperialism plain, Secretary of State Kellogg has been selected to do the job.

American rights have been violated, says the secretary, because land belonging to Americans has been seized by the Mexican government. In spite of the servility of Calles and his hangers-on—labor fakers and yellow socialists—he has not been aggressive enough in his attack on the workers and peasants. American imperialism is a hard taskmaster and demands speedy results from its henchmen.

The statement by the secretary of state is notice served on Calles that he is supposed to work a little overtime without extra pay.

"The land to the peasants" is no more popular slogan in Wall Street than it was in the Kremlin before November 1917.

Imperialism needs a landless agrarian population.

Troops have been sent to Henrietta, Oklahoma, to combat half-starved miners who have refused to work for the 1917 scale. The company thugs have interfered with peaceful picketing and the troops are rushed in to aid them.

The miners have a concrete example of the way the government backs up the bosses in "democratic" America. It was Lewis, the reactionary president of the United Mine Workers of America, who said in 1919, "We cannot fight OUR governmen"

The Enslavement of China

By Wm. F. Dunne

ARTICLE VI.

ON January 18, two months after the Germans surrendered Tsingtao, Japan presented to Yuan Shih-Kai, president of China, that famous document known as the twenty-one points. This document in essence was nothing less than a notice served on China that Japan intended at any cost to make of her a colony as Japan had already done to Korea.

The Japanese ambassador, insisting on dealing directly with the president and ignoring the Chinese foreign office, also insisted that the whole affair be shrouded in complete secrecy under pain of immediate military action by Japan.

IN this enterprise Japan was on her own. She had fulfilled her treaty obligations to Great Britain and intended to cash in on the fruits of victory over Germany and her ally as well. Secrecy was necessary because Japan knew that the rest of the imperialist nations would never consent to her raid on China unless she was in a position to present them with an accomplished fact. She had no sooner presented the document to China than troop movements began and the principal strategic points occupied in the territory she intended to grab for all time.

PAUL S. REINISCH, American ambassador to China at the time, says in his book, "An American Diplomat in China," Page 127:

> The British looked upon the new adventure of Japan with a decided lack of enthusiasm. While welcoming the losses inflicted upon their enemy in war, they were evidently fearful of the results that might come in Shangtung.
> It was quite plain that the Russians, too, while allied with Japan, were quite aware of the dangers inherent in the Chinese situation. Taken with recent Japanese advances in Inner Mongolia, a situation was created in northern China which would be regarded as dangerous by the Russians . . . . In fine, the general temper and direction of the Japanese action was not relished by the allies of Japan.

WHAT were these demands, so far reaching in their import that Japan did not dare to make them public until she had ready the forces with which to jam them down the throats of her allies as well as China? They were divided, not like Gaul, into three parts, but into five and each group was so organized as to support and strengthen all the rest.

The first section legalized Japan's seizure of Germany's interests in Shangtung; the second extended the Japanese sphere of influence in Manchuria which Japan had obtained in the war with Russia and also increased the Japanese influence in Inner Eastern Mongolia; the third strengthened the Japanese control of the Hanyehping company, the largest Chinese industrial concern, and also granted Japanese concessions in the mining districts of central China in conflict with China's agreement with Great Britain; the fourth prohibited China from leasing any more islands or harbors to any third power.

THE fourth set of demands were the most audacious of all. They granted railway concessions in the Yangtze valley, which we have already seen was a British sphere of influence, and recognized Japan's premier position in the province of Fukien. But the climax of all this were certain stipulations as to the conduct of the internal affairs of China and the part to be played therein by Japanese "advisers"—stipulations which reduced the Chinese government to a purely colonial status.

Reinisch, in the book quoted above, refers to a conversation he had with one of the Chinese ministers at this time:

> He finally confided to me, almost with tears, that Japan had made categorical demands which, if conceded, would destroy the independence of this country and reduce her to a servile state. He then told me in general terms their nature, saying:
> "Control of natural resources, finances, army! What will be left to China! Our people are being punished for their peacefulness and sense of justice."

THE imperialist world was stunned by the audacity of Japan. No other word describes the effect of the cabled news from China—Japan entered simple denials—in the European capitals and in Washington. Says Reinisch:

> . . . . Nothing was published for two weeks either in America or in England. The Associated Press withheld the report because its truth was categorically denied by the Japanese ambassador at Washington. Its Peking representative was directed to send "facts, not rumors." On January 27, it was given out "on the highest authority" both at Tokio and Washington that information purporting to outline the basis of negotiations was "absolutely without foundation." Only gradually the truth dawned on the British and American press.

ENTER the United States of America. Official Washington had sensed at last the danger to American imperialism contained in this rapid and secret maneuver of Japan. It was too late for the jealous Yankees to do anything but protest unless they were prepared to go to war with Japan. So thru the medium of one William Jennings Bryan, then secretary of state, the following "identic note" was sent to China and Japan:

> In view the cirumstances of the negotiations which have taken place and which are now pending between the government of China and the government of Japan and of the agreements which have been reached as a result thereof, the government of the United States has the honor to notify the government of the Chinese Republic (and of Imperial Japan) that it cannot recognize any agreement or undertaking which has been entered into between the governments of China and Japan impairing the treaty rights of the United States and its citizens in China, the political or territorial integrity of the Republic of China, or the international policy relative to China, commonly known as the open door policy.

THIS note, sent by a secretary of state who calls himself a pacifist, marks the real beginning of that hostility between American and Japanese imperialism which today is one of the outstanding causes of friction in the politics of the Pacific.

American imperialism had decided to contest with Japan for supremacy in the Orient and this decision was made under the administration of a president elected as an anti-imperialist.

We will trace in another article the further development of the rivalry between America and Japan and the methods taken by Japan to consolidate the gains made by means of the twenty-one points at the time her allies were busy elsewhere.

CAL'S ELECTRIC STEED RELATES POLITICAL TALE

How President Plans to Rope Farmers

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Calvin Coolidge arrived from the borderland of the great open spaces considerably rejuvenated by daily exercises in front of pieces of beefsteak according to reports. Besides using up large streams of gastric juice the president also had his political thinking cap on while in Minnesota and this is what he found according to an interview secured by your correspondent with Cal's electric hobby horse who is not by any means the dumbest member of the president cabinet.

Would Do It For Anybody

Coolidge came to the conclusion that the Norwegians who clapped their hands when he appeared to speak, were under the influence of the great gods, Thor and Odin and would clap for anybody who showed up. He learned that the farmers were not nearly so happy over their prosperity as some of the fellow who made millions in the Chicago wheat pit a few months ago.

When the farmers have a good crop the gamblers give them little for their grain and when they have a bad crop the middlemen give them less. That's the way the farmers are hit by the twin evils; prosperity and adversity. Just like a pugilist at the medicine ball. The ball gets slammed whichever way it turns.

Wants The Farmer' Vote

Coolidge wants the farmer's vote very badly, but if he is to buy that vote who's going to pay for it? The railroads cannot be asked to lower rates. That would mean the disowning of Coolidge by his foster parents in Wall Street. The middlemen cannot stand the taffy. Neither can the banks. The profits of those industrial groups must not be touched. Coolidge is in office to look ofter them. Well, what about the workers?

Bright idea thinks Cal. according to his electric nag which did not care to be quoted, but why should a Communist reporter stand on his honor with a capitalist flunkey? Coolidge came to the conclusion that the wages of the industrial workers' must be deflated. How can this be done without getting the workers on his neck is the problem that Cal must solve. He can't get the aid of the labor fakers in this dilemma. Wage cutting is a fighting issue and labor faker don't want to lose their own heads in order to save Cal's. Watch Coolidge trying to land the argarian vote!

New Agreement Brings No Raise in Wages for Rolling Mill Workers

By WALLACE METCALFE

YOUNSTOWN, Ohio, June 12.—Wages of the puddlers and rolling mill workers under the A. A. of I. S. & T. W. contracts will be figured on the same basis as this year in the new contract term starting July 1st as the result of an agreement having been reached at the annual conference between union representatives and the Western Bar Iron Manufacturers' Association at Atlantic City.

The base scale of boiling iron will remain $7.00 on the one cent card. The workers asked for a substantial increase in the base.

Workers at the A. M. Byers co plant in Girard, O., the largest puddling works in the country are affected by the agreement.

AS WE SEE IT

stood in the forefront of the battle have met not only the enemy's withering fire but the criticism of the cowardly hypocrites who pretend to stand for progress yet, dare not risk the consequences.

THE decision of the United States supreme court means that capitalism even in America is not so sure of its footing. It fears the advance guard of the workers; the Communist movement. It knows that the ideas, the Communists' propaganda among the workers are dangerous to the ruling class. Therefore, it seeks to suppress them. It will fail. The czars of Russia failed. No ruling class in the history of the human race has been able to keep back the tide of progress. The ruling class of this country will be no exception.

THIS does not mean that radicals welcome the decision of the United States supreme court. That the court could issue such a drastic decision striking at the roots of one of the most cherished constitutional guarantees, indicates the immaturity of the labor movement in America. It is a safe prediction that the bureaucracy of the American Federation of Labor, not only will not condemn the decision, but will welcome it. The fakerdom of the labor movement is part and parcel of the capitalist system and is just as interested in throwing safeguards around that system as are the money barons fo Wall Street.

THE decisino will not be received by the Communists, tho with rejoising they will take it as additional proof that even their own laws will be violated by the ruling class when they believe their rule is threatened. A state "has a right to protect itself against insurrection" declares the socialist Victor Berger. He concedes that right to the capitalist class of the United States but not to the workers and peasants of Russia. This fact the Communists do not deny. It bears out their theory that no matter what democratic pretensions a capitalist state puts forth, when its life is threatened it will show the mailed fist and will use any means in its power to prolong its existence. In times of crisis all governments let democracy go by the board.

THE workers might as well realize that there is no smooth road into the co-operative commonwealth. The declaration of independence states that a people are entitled to overthrow a government subversive of their rights by revolution. The declaration of independence, long a dead letter in practice is now a dead letter also in theory. The highest tribunal in the land has officially consigned it to Limbo. Thus passes away another and perhaps the most formidable figleaf that covered the nakedness of American democracy. The myth of "free speech" under capitalism has received a death blow.

Food Swindlers To Prison

Sentences of five years in the penitentiary and $10,000 fines, imposed on Harry G. Tank, Edward Grieb and Edward M. Berry, of Milwaukee, Wisc., by Federal Judge Ferdinand A. Geiger, of Milwauke, were upheld by the U. S. court of appeals in Chicago today. Twenty others found guilty on the same charge of obtaining money under false pretenses ahd given lesser sentences are affected by the action of the appeal court.

The original convictions and sentences were in connection with the sale of stock when the Central West Co. took over the Union Food Stores Co., and put some $2,000,000 shares on the market, selling much of it in the northwest.

The Workers Party in Action

FOSTER SPEAKS AT MILWAUKEE PICNIC SUNDAY

Comrade Overgaard to Lead Pie Eating Race

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 12.—William Z. Foster, national chairman of the Workers Party, who has recently returned from an extensive tour thru Russia, England and Germany will speak in Milwaukee on Sunday, June 14, at Tippecanoe Park, located at the end of Vliet St. car line. It is expected that a record crowd will turn out to hear Comrade Foster as the subject of his talk will be Russia and Germany in 1925. Comrade Foster will also speak on the recent development for the world trade union unity and its growth and development in the British trade unions.

Plenty of Good Time for Everyone

The committee is busy organizing an exceptionally good program to accomodate a large crowd. Music for dancing will be provided by Holley's Syncopaters whose enticing tunes will draw young and old to the dance floor. Freiheit Singing Society, which achieved great popularity among the workers in Milwaukee will render several selections. There will be plenty of games and nice cool refreshments with comrade Babich as the chief bar tender. Comrade Kovach, as the general manager, promises to keep things humming. Mrs. Kovach will have good things to eat and Comrade Gibson as the chairman of the meeting will see to it that there will be an interesting program and that Comrade Foster does not speak over three hours. There will be plenty of contests, the most interesting which will be lead by Comrade Overgaard. The Juniors, the Young Workers League and the party is turning out full force.

Missing Shepherd Witness Returns to Germ Murder Trial

Robert White, missing witness in the Shepherd murder trial, walked into the criminal court building accompanied by his wife and two children.

"I'm here to fight this thing thru to a finish." was White's comment. "There's a whole lot more to this affair than any one dreams."

White disappeared about four weeks ago and the police of half the country had been searching for him.

"Billy" McClintock died of typhoid fever after eating oysters a short time before the state-wide ban was declared on them to check the growing epidemic.

And young McClintock was delirious when Miss Isabelle Pope, his fiance, went to see him with the license for their marriage.

William D. Shepherd, charged with the murder of the young millionaire, scored these two points in his defense today in cross-examination of the state's own witnesses.

Soaking the Mexicans.

WASHINGTON, June 12. — The United States has demanded from the Mexican government the payment of claims of American citizens whose property has been seized illegally under the Mexican agrarian laws, secretary of state Kellog announced today after a lengthy conference with James R. Sheffield, American ambassador to Mexico.

Attention! All Chicago Comrades.

ALL street meetings except the one on the corner of North Ave. and Orchard St. are called off for tonight. The arrest of five comrades under an ordinance declared unconstitutional thirty years ago makes it necessary for the local party to mobilize for a free-speech fight.

All speakers and all comrades are instructed to appear on the corner of North Ave. and Orchard St. before eight o'clock this evening for this meeting. All comrades with money or property deeds are to bring them to the meeting for bail.

CITY EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE.

Jolly Good Time at Library Opening in Bronx, New York

NEW YORK.—The Bronx library committee is planning to give everybody a jolly good time. Watch for the announcements. Last Saturday in June—June 27th—dancing, entertainment, games and refreshments; plenty of good spirit and good fellowship, and everything free of charge. Keep the date in mind, June 27th at Bronx Workers Party headquarters, 1347 Boston Road; your face is your badge of admission. If you look friendly we will ask you in; if you look like a dick, we will ask you to stay out.

Incidentally don't forget that we want books and money; if you have any to spare bring them around to our Bronx headquarters and leave them either with the committee or the house manager. Donations and contributions thankfully received. If you know of anybody who has any books or money to spare let us have their names and addresses and we will have a committee visit them.—Library committee, Bronx.

HOUSE RETAINS OPEN SHOP FOR ROADBUILDERS

Millions Given for Officials' Salaries

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 12—With all the heavy issues out of the way, the house today settled down to the monotonous business of grinding out the "mine run" legislation left on the calendar of the 54th general assembly.

The omnibus appropriation bill, totalling $22,000,000, was reported to the senate today following its passage in the house. It provided an expenditure of $18,000,000 for the Great Lakes waterway project and $350,000 for construction of a "sea wall" to protect Beardstown from floods.

Representative Leroy Green's bill requiring contractors on hard roads to pay the scale of wages prevailing in the community in which work was under way was tabled on motion of the Rockfrod member. Representative Lee O'Neill Browne dubbed the measure "Bolshevistic and anarchistic."

The house passed the Laporte bill, raising the salaries of the chief and assistant clerks of election commissions in down state municipahties.

The house today adopted resolution for final adjournment Thursday, June 18. At the same time announcement was made that all members would remain Friday in an effort to hear bills now on third reading. It was understood that bills not out of committee in time for consideration Friday would be permitted to die.

CHECK YOUR BABY AT N. Y. PICNIC AND JOIN THE FUN

Athletic Carnical Will Give You Many Thrills

NEW YORK, June 12.—The second annual athletic carnival and picnic of the Workers Party, Local New York, will be held on Sunday, June 21, at Pleasant Bay Park in the Bronx and it promises to be one of the most successful affairs that the local has ever held.

The park will accommodate unlimited numbers. The beautiful green groves overlooking the Long Island Sound should be tempting even to mothers and their children. Besides refreshments and dancing, there will be various athletic events, novelty races such as fat man's race, three-legged race, races for, children, for women and men. Prizes will be given to winners. There will be a watermellon eating contest, a newspaper popularity contest and numerous other amusements. An important feature will be a baseball team between the Y. W. L. and W. P. Since last year both sides developed a crop of "Babe Ruths" and promise not to spend time looking for the ball in the grass, but to show some action. Our "Flying Finns" will be there with their interesting athletic stunts. Al Foreman will be there to make bracelets out of car tracks.

A section of the park will be roped off to be known as the "infantorium" where papas and mammas may check their babies. This department will be in charge of Comrade Harry Winitsky.

The committee at the gate has been instructed to let no one in without a ticket no matter how important he may look. Therefore, get your tickets in advance at the party headquarters, 108 E. 14th street, Freiheit office, in the office of this newspaper and from Workers Party members. The admission is only 35 cents. There will be free buses to take you to the park from the station. Take Bronx Park subway or "L" to 177th St., then take Unionport car to the end of the ine. Gates open at 10 a. m.

The Soviet Union and Great Britain - By George Chicherin

Extract from the Report on the Foreign Political Situation to the Third Congress of the Soviet Union.

We print below that portion of Comrade Chicherin's Foreign Political Report dealing with the relations of the Soviet Union to England.—Editor's Note.

The Combinations of the Great Powers.

EVERYWHERE, no matter where we look, in the last resort we encounter the chief combinations of world politics, that is, the world politics of the great powers which are stretching out their feelers in all directions, which are active in Poland, in our western neighboring states and in the whole of the Near and Far East. And here in these main combinations of world politics we can distinguish two categories, two important, one could say, antagonistic tendencies. The one category consists in the formation of a united front against us.

The combinations of the other kind consist in the efforts, arising out of the antagonism of the great powers and which seek to draw us into one or the other combinations of the capitalist states. For example, in France in the press and in the statements of statesmen in the period of Herriot government—of course not of Herriot himself—the following combination was contemplated: France against England, that is, France and Russia along with Poland and Japan against England, which latter on her part is allied with Germany. That was one of the recent combinations, while at the same time other combinations existed, for example, Germany along with us, etc.

In the complicated political situation in which we have to conduct our policy of peace, our policy of creating peaceable relations upon the basis of the right of determination of the peoples, we stand between these two categories of international combinations: united front against us, or attempts by means of this or that combination to make use of us and draw us over to one or the other side.

ONE must say, however, that in recent times the first of these categories has prevailed. In the recent political situation, in connection with the strengthening of reaction in the most important countries of the world, the setting up of a united front against us is the main theme. If in the Geneva press, which is in close touch with the league of nations, the league of nations is represented as a possible basis of a united front against us, it is only the continuation of that policy of combinations which during the last six months has filled the press of all the ruling great powers.

The chief role is still being played by England. England however, is closely connected with America. In cases where it is a question of the immediate interests of the United States, the latter comes forward with decisive declarations and speaks in a tone of command, as the deciding factor.

The Dawes plan, the results of which consist in the immediate domination of American capital over European conditions, is of so much interest to the American government that it threatens the European states with the withdrawal of its support in the event of the Dawes plan being threatened by the disunity of the European states. As after the world war the world's gold supplies have accumulated in the valuts of the American banks, that means that as America is the present chief creditor and also the only possible chief creditor of the whole world in the future, it is quite clear that this threat of financial pressure can play a decisive role in international relations. If, however, American diplomacy, in some main questions which interest American capital, acts quite independently and in a decisive manner, in other cases of international daily life, where the minor questions of all countries are interwoven with one another and constitute the object of discussions, it is England and English diplomacy which plays the most active and influential role.

Next Week: Story by Liam O'Flaherty

NEXT Saturday's magazine suplement of the DAILY WORKER will contain a short story from the gifted pen of Liam O'Flaherty, a young proletarism writer who has already won an international reputation thru his books and short stories.

FOUR of his books have been published within two years: The Neighbor's Wife; The Black Soul; The Informer and a collection of short stories. One of England's leading critics declared that he is one of the best five short story writers in the English language. One of those short stories, dealing with the civil war in Ireland, in which he fought on the side of the Republicans, is listed in the collection of the best short stories produced in Great Britain during 1923.

LIAM O'FLAHERTY led a colorful life, tho now only twenty-six years old. He left a little fishing village in the Arran Islands on the west coast of Ireland at an early age for college, where he was trained by the Jesuits for the propaganda mission. He is anything but grateful to his tutors as his writings show. After the official ending of the war, in which he participated with the Irish Guards, he went to South America and afterwards traveled thru the Near East landing in Smyrna when the Turks decided to kick out the Greeks. He jumped ship in Alexandria, Egypt, later on taking a "tramp" for Canada. While there he worked as a lumber jack, belonging to the I. W. W.

HE finally crossed the border into the United States, worked as telegraph messenger boy, dish washer in a restaurant, and helper in a powder factory. He jumped to South America again and after several months returned to Ireland where he participated in the war against the Free State in the Communist detachment of the Republican army.

WHEN the civil war ended he took to writing and after living precariously on "fish and chips" he made good and is now eating regular food. The magazine section of the DAILY WORKER is able to promise its readers artciles and short stories from Liam O'Flaherty's pen from time to time.

England.

THE English foreign minister has officially declared that he was not, is not and will not be the initiator and originator of any plans of a united front against us. Nevertheless we find many indications in the world press and in the English press, that English influence is playing a role in creating that atmosphere of general hostility against us in which we have to work.

We have already mentioned that a deputation of conservatives approached the English government with the demand that relations be broken off with us,. The conservative press states that the English foreign minister declared that England could not alone venture on a breach with the Soviet Union. If these words are rightly reported, this would suggest that England as a member of a united front, would be capable of severing relations with us. This means that influential conservative circles, which belong to that party which is in power, consider it important to support the idea of the united front against us.

Thus, whether this only represents a tendency within the conservative party, or whether we have to reckon with the possibility of government actions in this direction, we must at any rate reckon with the existence of an exceedingly strong tendency to the creation of a united front against us. And we must say, that it is one thing to make reassuring declarations regarding the general principle of a boycott, or the creation of a united front against us, while practical politics is another thing. We should like to express the wish that the real political actions of the English government were in harmony with these declarations of the English minister.

MEANWHILE the official attitude of the English government towards us during the last few months has been vacillating. It has altered. At the commencement of the year, in that period when in a whole number of questions, as Morocco, Tuunis, etc., England did not succeed in arriving at an understanding with the continental states, the official position of the English government was as follows: the Soviet government may propose negotiations, we are prepared to negotiate: the Soviet government may make proposals, we will examine these proposals.

We declared at that time: we are ready at any moment and with the greatest pleasure to commence and conduct these negotiations, we only want to know in which respect the treaty signed by MacDonald is acceptable for the new English government. They said to us: "Submit a proposal": We, however, said: "There is the treaty, show us wherein it is acceptable and then we will know what proposals are possible." This however, was not done.

The Question of Propaganda.

THE present standpoint of the English foreign minister is somewhat different. He says, that the establishment of friendly relations with the Soviet Union is impossible so long as it does not cease its propaganda. That is another question. That is the literal repetition of the words of Lord Curzon when we met in Lausanne.

When I asked him what possibilities he saw of improving our relations, he replied that no better relations were possible, so long as we did not cease our prapaganda. I then asked him:

"What is propaganda? We have a government which has an official apparatus and employes at its disposal. The government and its whole apparatus pledges not to carry on any propaganda. The government, however, cannot accept responsibility for what any private citizen may say. If a private citizen infringes the laws or the treaties, then he will be made responsible. We cannot however compel the Communist Party to cease to be a Communist Party. We cannot compel the members of the Communist Party to refrain from acting as Communists."

And Curzon replied to me:

If it means that it is here a question, not of a 100 per cent, but of a 50 per cent propaganda being conducted then the government of his majesty cannot negotiate in this respect.

The same idea is to be seen in the declaration of Chamberlain: "Cease conducting propaganda!"

WHAT is propaganda? We stand before the main question of our foreign political relations. Our government is prepared to accept, and accepts all the obligations bound up with international relations. If the English government proves that we are misusing our diplomatic connections, then we are prepared to agree to everything demanded of us in this respect.

If, however, we are told that all propaganda must cease in the Soviet Unions, this is tantamount to demanding that the Communist Party shall cease to be a Communist Party. Here it is a question of whether we shall continue to exist or not. It concerns the main question of our relations with the capitalist world by which we are surrounded.

If Chamberlain says to us: "All propaganda must cease, the Communist Party shall cease to be a Communist Party," then we must answer: "Faites le, citoyen Chamberlain." "Do it, Citizen Chamberlain!"

YOU have already attempted it, but you did not succeed. What do you really want? War? You do not want war. You cannot want war. A fresh intervention? You have already tried that. What then do you want? You must understand that between England and ourselves, between the capitalist states and our state, a modus vivendi must be created. But in order to create a modus vivendi, the English government must adopt its former standpoint, that is to say, regulate the relations from government to government. The English government must abandon its present standpoint which consists in demanding that the Communist Party shall cease to be a Communist Party. Everything that is possible with regard to the government's policy, with regard to agreements, obligations of the government as regards the official apparatus, our government is prepared to undertake and will undertake.

On this basis concrete demands can be discussed and definite agreements arrived at. We may mention that when, in 1921, we concluded a temporary treaty with England, which today is the only valid treaty between us and England, we proposeed to England that it should not limit her-

The Trial of the Communist Party of Roumania

By M. RADU (Bucharest).

ON the 28th of April there commenced before the military court of Bucharest, the monster trial of the Communist Party of Roumania. The atmosphere, in which this great political trial is taking place is characterized by the increased intensity of the domestic and foreign political situation and the economic crisis, by an unrestrained persecution of the labor movement, of the subject nationalities and of the peasantry of the country.

Tho events in Bulgaria have frightened the Roumanian boyars and the financial oligarchy. The organs of the government and also of the bourgeois opposition are raising a great outcry against the "approaching danger of a Bolshevik putsch," and are calling upon the government to learn a lesson from Zankov. The state of siege prevailing in Bessarabia and in the southern and western border districts has been rendered still more severe by fresh measures on the part of the military and the secret police. The Danube flotilla and numerous air squadrons have been mobilized, considerable bodies of troops have been concentrated in Dobrudsha and in Bessarabia, and the few remnants which still existed of the right of combination and to hold meetings have been abolished.

DURING the last few months the pressure upon the nationalities has been redoubled; the schools and the cultural associations of the peoples living in Siebenburgen, Bessarabia, and in Bucovina have been closed, and in the best cases replaced by Roumanian institutions, while the teaching staffs have been driven out. The educational act which has been just passed by parliament, deprives the national minorities of all possibility of being taught their mother tongue. The subject nationalities have not the slightest chance of exercising any political rights. The discontent among the nationalities is, therefore, constantly increasing.

Owing to the corruption prevailing in the distribution of the land in old Roumania and the revision of the rights to the soil already acquired in Bessarabia, as well as the systematic requisitioning of corn, in spite of the prevailing bread shortage, the indignation of the peasantry against the tyranny of the boyars is assuming more and more visible forms. In numerous localities peasant revolts have broken out which could only be quelled with the aid of considerable reinforcements of gendarmes and military detachments.

A general economic crisis completes this picture of the arbitrary regime of Bratianu. Agricultural production shows a constant decline, which reveals itself in a serious shortage in the bread supply for the whole population, and in the introduction of breadless days. All attempts on the part of the government to create a favorable foreign trade balance have been rendered illusory by a general crisis of production. The government has also failed to obtain foreign credits for the restoration of industrial undertakings. Under such circumstances, whole branches of industry are at a complete standstill. Unemployment already embraces 55 per cent of the working class, that is 155,000 workers. A 40 per cent decline in the standard of living and constant attempts on the part of the employers to abolish the eight-hour day and to introduce piece work further characterise the situation of the working class.

THE government, on its part, is hastening to aid the capitalist exploiters by a number of anti-labor laws. For the past eighteen months the government has been conducting an uninterrupted campaign of persecution against all organizations of the working class.

Of all the political parties of Roumania the Communist Party has been the only one to raise its voice on behalf of the right to self-determination of the subject nationalities, up to complete separation from the ruling state, and to point out to the suppressed masses of Bessarabia, Siebenburgen and Bucovina the only possible way to emancipation, which consists in the abolition of the present regime and in the setting up of a workers' and peasants' government of Roumania and the establishment of a Federation of Soviet Republics of the Balkans. The Bratianu government replied to this attitude of the C. P. of Roumania with an indescribable campaign of terror, with mass arrests and the proclamation of martial law thruout the greater part of the country. With the establishment of martial law, the C. P. of Roumania was rendered illegal.

DURING the height of the terror, the Communist Party was confronted with the task of adapting its organizations to the altered conditions without losing contact with the broad masses of the workers, but especially with the suppressed nationalities and the landless peasants. The C. P. of Roumania considered it its duty, more than ever before, to tear the mask from the face of the government of boyar despotism and on every occasion when the nationality question came to the front, to give unreserved expression to its standpoint. This was the case in December last year, on the occasion of the congress of the Hungarian minority party which took place in Brasov, when the Communist Party exposed to the broad working masses of the Hungarian minority, that shameless political bargaining which the Hungarian big landowners and big industrials were carrying on in the name of the Hungarian population of Roumania, for the mess of pottage of shameless concessions at the cost of the working mases.

The government of terror reacted to this campaign of enlightenment of the C. P. of Roumania with fresh persecutions and mass arrests, the like of which had never been seen since the suppression of the great general strike in 1920. The closing of trade union branches, the confiscation of the organs of the unitarian trade unions, imprisonment and cruel ill-treatment of close on 1,500 workers—these were "the measures for maintaining law and order."

THE inquisitional "methods of examination," which even put medieval torturings in the shade, the "disciplining" of the imprisoned by confining them for weeks in concrete cells, about the size of a cupboard with a small hole for ventilation, compelled the arrested comrades to enter upon a hunger-strike as a protest against their unlawful arrest and barbarous ill-treatment. After a 30 to 40 days' hunger-strike, which almost resulted in the death of the imprisoned comrades, the authorities, under the pressure of the hunger-strike and the general indignation of the public, were compelled to free the prisoners one by one, with the exception of 30 comrades who are still kept under arrest.

It was under such conditions that the Roumanian government hastened to stage a monster trial of the C. P. of Roumania, and in so doing made special use of the recent political events in the Balkans. The essence of the "accusation" which is brought against the Communist Party of Roumania is based upon the latter's attitude regarding the Bessarabian question. In view of the approaching conference of the little entente in Bucharest, where the basis of an "anti-Bolshevic bloc" under the patronage of English imperialism is to be created, the Bratianu government is endeavoring hand in hand with Zankov, by shameful sentences to make it appear as if it were necessary to suppress every movement for freedom in its own country and to justify such suppression in the neighboring countries. This is the purpose of the monster trial which is to put a legal stamp upon the unconstitutional outlawing of the C. P. of Roumania and the other proletarian organizations. At the commencement of the trial the building of the military court of the Bucharest army corps was surrounded by strong military forces, and in the court itself troops were stationed with machine guns and fixed bayonets.

IN the trial there are 70 accused, 57 of whom are before the court. More than 400 people were proposed as witnesses, among them the Prime Minister Bratianu, the late ministers, Tranku-Jassi and Argetojanu and other familiar names in the political life of Roumania. Further, Henri Barbusse, Monmousseau, Smeral, Serrati, Ekaterina Arbore-Ralli, Clara Zetkin, Cachin, Sadoul, Blasco Ibanez and others. The accused demanded that foreign lawyers be allowed to come and defend them, and also that they be allowed to speak their own language at the trial. The court, after long discussion, granted the last request.

Comrade Dr. Egon Schonhof, a lawyer who had come from Vienna, was refused the right to act as defender on the ground that he is not a Roumanian citizen and not a member of the bar of Bucharest. He was afterwards given permission to defend, but was arrested on the very next day, held under arrest for six days and shamefully treated, and finally expelled and conducted to the frontier.

IT was characteristic of the court that on the conclusion of the first day of proceedings it declared that all accused who were still at liberty should be arrested; whereupon all the accused entered on a hunger-strike. The defense raised the objection that scarcely 10 per cent of all the witnesses who had been summoned had appeared, and therefore demanded the adjournment of the proceedings on account of insufficient evidence. The court overrode the objection; nevertheless on the second day of the proceedings it had to acquit six of the accused comrades as nothing could be proved against them. The trial is still going on and will, in all probability, in view of the imposing mass of "evidence" brought forward by the prosecution, still last some weeks. It will serve as a model for other Balkan States.

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

To the DAILY WORKER: Reading the Sunday Times, I came across a letter written to an American Red Cross nurse, from a friend of hers in Soviet Russia. The letter is headed: "Cry of Anguish from Soviet Russia." The Red Cross nurse relates the life and the letter of her friend in a very pitiful fashion. She met her friend in Poland in one o fthe hospitals during the previous war, working as a Red Cross nurse.

She was then a young and happy girl coming from a bourgeois family. The revolution broke out. The Reds took over power. And the brutal red Bolsheviks slaughtered her family, arrested her, and made her toil and now she is broken down in health, unable to maintain life, and is asking for aid.

Then she closes her letter by saying that when she heard in Madison Square Garden, the innocent little voices of our free American children chanting a praise for Soviet Russia, her heart filled with sorrow and she shed bitter tears. And she quotes, if the innocent little children would only know the truth of the cruel and brutal Soviet regime, the thousands of innocent little children slaughtered and the suffering and oppression of the Russian people under the rule of the Soviets, then and only then could we save the free American children from the red plague.

To my understanding a letter of this kind will not weaken the faith of the thousands of American workers towards the only free Soviet republic. Russia is the only country in the world that cares for the proletarian children, physically and morally, and in every way in trying to work out the best system possible as how to bring up the Russian youth.

You know well enough, kind hearted nurse, that your cry for the poor innocent Russian children being slaughtered is in vain.

If you are so good and kind hearted why not better cry for the free American children, toiling in the cotton fields, mills and mines, the canning industries of the north. The hundreds of little children dying of disease due to the lack of care. Cry for the free American youth that were slaughtered in the previous war for democracy. And then kind hearted nurse, if you have enough tears left, cry for the international suffering and struggling toiling masses all over the world. Why not cry for the Chinese orphaned children, their fathers being killed when they dared to ask for a better livelihood, for the oppressed and struggling Bulgarian peasants and workers. And for the thousands of workers that were slaughtered in the time of the French revolution, to save the noble and capitalistic god of yours. Free Russia is the Statue of Liberty, her torch shines bright, and high for the workers all over the world to follow in her footsteps.—Comrade Gertrude Pincus.

To the DAILY WORKER: I have been receiving the five copies of the DAILY WORKER for the last week past and have been scattering them among the working men, but have not sold any or been able to get any subs as yet, but I think I will soon. Its looks scares some working men. It is like throwing a large piece of bread down among a small lot or a lot of little chickens, it scares them until the older ones picks in smaller chunks.

But after they once get started to read the truth they then take right ahold and are anxious for more and more.

Yet there is a great number of people who say, "Well, I think our government is getting about as rotten as it can get to be, yet, before we change we want something better, before we tear down what we have and will ask what the Communists are offering to take its place."

They ask what kind of a financial system do they offer and what protection against the big banking interests.

First, I have suggested that we put our money on a paper basis at $500 per capita, then compel all banks to call in all excepting paper and pay them in full legal tender greenback as gold. Then when every cent of this fake money is in, then our government pay off all her banks at the price the banks paid the government for the bonds and stop all interest. Make a penalty, any person or persons to offer to discount our money would mean forfeiture of claims against the government. The next thing would be to establish a central bank in every state in the union and branch banks in every community and loan money, like the postal system, at cost of clerk hire. This makes it unlawful for any person or persons to loan money in competition with the government. Make it so any person starting to farm or other business could borrow up to $5,000, but should be safely guarded by a board of directors residing in the county where loan is to be made.

All directors to be elected by vote of people of each banking district and it be a law where an enterprise requiring over $5,000 must be operated by the government in the interest of the whole people and let it be law that a man must be one who occupies land and cultivates the soil before he can get a loan. He must do the labor himself and should he hire any part of the work by other person or persons he is disqualified. He must do real labor himself and such other measures as would make it safe for the worker.—Theodore Pierce, Boise, Idaho.

MASTERS AND SLAVES (A Story of the Working Class)

By John Lassen

Synopsis of Preceding Chapters.

NICKLES and Joe Vavas, migratory workers, meet under a freight train while beating their way west. They get off at Colorado Springs. Joe Vavas is a barber by trade, and Nickles has no fixed trade. In Colorado Springs Vavas buys second-hand clothes for the two of them and they go to look for jobs. Vavas gets a job as a barber. Nickles manages to get work as a footman at Broadmoor, the mansion of the Broidins. His work is constant drudgery. Vavas is class conscious, and Nickles is not, but they are staunch friends nevertheless. An attachment springs up between Nickles and Marguerite, the maid at the Broadmoor mansion. One day Joe Vavas tells Nickles and Marguerite that a barbers' union has been formed to fight against the intolerable conditions. Joe Vavas has formed the union with the help of William who is an American by birth and not an immigrant like Joe. The younger elements in the union, led by Joe and William force a strike against the bosses. The strike is won by the barbers, but the union delegate from Denver sells out at the last moment, and the strikers are deprived of most of the fruits of their victory. As a result of the fight of the workers the ku klux klan of Colorado Springs holds an initiation ceremony. They swear to exterminate the Reds. Mr. Broidin takes part in the ceremony. He desires Marguerite the young servant, and makes love to her, which enrages Nickles. Gradually Nickles is becoming more and more receptive to the ideas of Joe Vavas who is a Communist. The Broidins are more and more tyrannical. A Christian Science service is held at the Broadmoor mansion. At the ceremony the poet who officiates delivers an oration full of the claptrap of the master class. All this spiritual bunk does not prevent the guests from devouring a great quantity of food after the services are over. This means more work for the servants who are overburdened as it is. Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER XIV.

IT was unbearably hot. The last day of August overwhelmed the poor, tired earth with fiery beams as if wanting to pour out its last remaining heat.

The Brodin family arranged an outing. They invited their most intimate acquanintances to this outing to spend the day by the cool, windy lake.

For Nickles, John, and Marguerite it meant that they would have to drag the tables with all that was on them for half a mile to the lake, and then to carry them back again.

The hosts as well as the guests put on bathing suits. They sat under great umbrellas. From time to time they would jump into the water and then lie down again in the shade.

John and Nickles dragged the tables in their regulation dress coats. The sweat soaked their clothing, their white collars became crumpled.

When they came back from waiting at table they looked as if they had taken a dip in the lake in their clothes. They almost melted in the heat of the sun.

And they had to repeat this painful performance three times. Nickles listened to the conversation of the ladies and gentlemen:

"It was really a nice day."

"For all we care, the sun can be as hot as it wants."

"I wasn't hot."

"It was a swell idea."

"The water is so fine and cool."

"And the shade is very inviting."

"We've fooled the sun all right."

"We ought to have this again."

Nickles thot different.

Mr. Broidin contemplated his wife and the rest of the females.

In their bathing suits they looked even more withered. Their shrivelled breasts and skinny legs were far from enticing.

When Marguerite came to help John and Nickles, Mr. Broidin pictured her in a bathing suit and (again in his imagination) he took delight in her hard, round breasts, the seductive form and well-shaped hips.

His blood seethed.

He thot that perhaps the cold water would cool off the heat. But he found it impossible to still his desire.

He shut his eyes. He dreamed that he was close to Marguerite. He became enraged:

"A servant girl!"

Suddenly that fact calmed him completely.

With a servant girl it's all right to do anything.

Again he felt the master.

He was conscious of the fact that he was Mr. Broidin. Owner of a big fortune. To whom everything is permitted. Especially with regard to a servant girl.

"I'll pay her. Yes sir . . . I'll even make her happy."

He had his camera brot.

He formulated a real plan of war.

He took a few pictures. Photographed the bathing women. And then he hid the camera behind a bush.

• • • •

WHEN Mr. and Mrs. Broidin were left alone they went to the work-room. There was such a room in the house. In fact, Mr. and Mrs. Broidin also worked. Yes, indeed, they worked. They clipped out of the "New York Herald" and the "Springs Paper" (from the "Society" columns) all notices relating to the Broidin family as well as the list of names of those participating in the affairs of their acquaintances. They followed up carefully all those who performed at these affairs, and they also clipped the speeches of the great English statesman-relative, altho they did not read them.

All this was extremely difficult and exhausting work. And that is why the holy of holies where this work was performed merited justly the name "work-room."

As we already know, the library served an entirely different purpose. We need only repeat that the chief thing was to keep the books from getting dusty. The delicate work of dusting was assigned to Nickles and Marguerite. But putting the books in order wos not their affair. Nor was that considered an important matter. It didn't bother Mr. or Mrs. Broidin that, for example, a study on Cellini was at one end of the library, and a book on North-Italian sculpture at the other end. A reference book on China porcelain on the top shelf, another on the same subject on the lowest shelf. There was a catalougue, it is true, but this was an inheritance from the grandfather.

As no one read the books the catalogue was altogether superfluous.

Mrs. and Mr. Broidin were in the work-room, as mentioned above.

The papers had been looked thru, and they sat opposite each other silent.

"It takes a long time to get dark"—Broidin said.

"Do you think so?"—asked the wife.

Silence again.

Mr. Broidin looked out again and again at the sky which was still light.

"It was a beautiful day"—said the wife.

"Yes"—the husband answered with a bored expression.

He waited.

The last hour of twilight seemed very long to him.

Silence.

The wife told him what the guests had said that day. Broidin thot that it was enuf to have heard that nonsense once.

He was bored to death.

He waits. Waits.

"Shall I put on the lights?"

"As you wish."

They sit for a while longer in the dark.

"It is still light outside"—Broidin observed.

He waits. Waits. Waits.

And this waiting is terrible.

His resltess hands grow stiff, his lips dry.

The wife puts on the light.

Broidin, with a start that was all prepared:

"Ah, the camera . . . I forgot it at the lake . . . "

"I'll ring for Marguerite."

She presses the button three times.

The girl comes in abashed.

"The camera . . . at the lake . . . "—Broidin says to the girl.

He knows well enuf that Marguerite would not find it.

After a short pause, the wife:

"I am tired . . . "

"Go to bed . . . I'm coming directly, I'm only going out for a little walk."

The wife goes to the bed-room, the husband to the lake.

• • • •

BROIDIN comes up to the girl.

All around is black.

Marguerite stares at him in horror:

"I can't find it."

"Maybe it's over there, among the bushes"—the man says.

The girl goes there. The man follows her. He makes believe that he is looking for the camera. He bends over the girl. Marguerite shrinks back.

How beautiful is a trembling body of a maiden.

The man reaches for Marguerite's breasts.

The young, firm breasts.

He throws his arms around her. The arms of steel.

Marguerite is in his power. A faint cry.

"Nickles!"

"Quiet!"—comes the man's command, harsh, short, decisive.

Marguerite defends herself.

"Nickles!"—but this time it is hardly audible.

"Shut up!"—the man orders her in muffled, angry tone.

He drags the girl along . . . To where there is little light . . .

"Hurry, hurry!"—he commands fiercely.

The man is strong . . . He is the master. Marguerite has no time for reaction . . . Broidin's terriffic strength weakens her, breaks her resistance . . .

Broidin is not gentle. He bites, strikes, pinches her, like a madman . . .

He is the master.

She is the servant.

Broidin presses Marguerite to himself.

The quivering body.

Takes it.

The body.

Entirely.

All is black.

He sees nothing, only feels the fragrant body fresh with dew.

• • • •

"Quick! Quick!"

Oh yes, the camera.

Marguerite arranges her dress, her hair.

Nickles?

She will tell him all about it.

He had thrown himself upon her . . . He only wanted her body. He hadn't spoken a word to her. Hadn't stroked her once. She won't tell about that.

• • • •

Oppressive heat. New moon.

The wife is already snoring.

The husband lies down beside her. A few minutes pass. And he is also asleep. Deep. Healthy. In blissful satiation.

• • • •

Marguerite does not sleep.

She tosses on the bed.

The night is deep black.

If Nickles knew it!

She didn't go to tell him.

Nickles is polishing the table service.

Today again the mountain won't disappear.

CHAPTER XV.

COLORADO SPRINGS was no longer that invincible citadel of the bosses which it had been only a few months before. The strike of the barbers let loose great discontent. The very fact alone of a strike exercised a great influence upon all the workers in Springs, for it proved that it depended entirely upon the will of the workers themselves whether they would tolerate in silence the dictatorship of the bosses.

The barbers were followed by the automobile workers, then the street construction workers, the masons, the carpenters, the transport workers. In most branches of industry they did not even need to strike. The time was favorable. A boom! Every day of idleness meant a considerable loss for the bosses.

The trade union movement became stronger.

It had come so unexpectedly that the small local industrial barons had no time for defense.

This was a rare case where the workers were the ones to make the surprise-attack.

But the end of the summer meant also a counter-offensive of the bosses.

Besides, the demands of the workers were unbelievably moderate. In almost no trade was there a demand for the eight-hour day. And the demand for wages was also low. It was lower than the wages paid in other cities.

And so the bosses were not in any too great a hurry to bestir themselves.

"The thing must be thoroly settled"—declared one building contractor who owned six houses on Pikes Peak avenue, one the most exclusive neighborhoods.

That wasn't such a bad slogan.

And the smaller business men waited.

They knew that the fire had not blazed in vain one summer night on Pikes Peak.

• • • •

THE great hope was: Ku klux klan.

For a whole month nothing was heard from it. Then suddenly the klansmen appeared unexpectedly at a burial.

They laid six roses on the grave. The mourners thot that the klansmen would disappear again, but the hood with the death's head began to speak:

"Here, at your grave we vow that we will not bow before the extortions of the organized working class. If the government does not feel inclined to put an end to this madness which prevents the deserving citizen from getting the full value out of prosperity, we'll get order ourselves."

Tense silence.

The hoods disappeared.

The next day the "Springs Paper" heralded to the citizens the news that the benevolent eyes of the ku klux klan were once more watching over them. And it also stressed this by means of a big cartoon.

The business men rubbed their hands with satisfaction.

The hotel-keeper refused his hall to the mason's union.

• • • •

THIS meant new hardships for the workers. A few hall-keepers broke their leases themselves, others were intimidated by secret threats.

One hall-keeper had his house burned. This aroused great indignation. A few people demanded that an investigation be started. The demand was complied with, but the investigation brot no results.

The fire did not intimidate the workers. The next meeting was even better attended.

Thereupon the ku klux klan called a big recruiting meeting in the City Hall. The organizations of Negroes, Catholics and Jews protested. The mayor was forced to withdraw the permission.

The peace of the town was completely shaken.

The small business men backed the ku klux klan as long as it was not directed against them, and supported it in everything that had to do with the workers. Still, even here the views were divided. There were many who got the surplus profit of the workers. These said: "The one who makes more spends more"—and they declared themselves for a raise of the workers' wages.

The disputes became more and more heated.

The "Springs Paper" demanded order.

Order!

Order at any price!

Even at the price of a fight!

CHAPTER XVI.

ALL the candles had to be set up. The glass cases in which the Japanese and Chinese gods with big bellies squatted were lighted by small electric lamps. The whole room floated in a strange light. The Broidin family was preparing for a great evening. It was autumn. Outside blew a cool wind. It brot from the forest the perfume of fading flowers.

The greatest care was spent on the famous autumn ball which marked the opening of the season. The new transparent evening gowns were displayed here. Nickles and John put on their festive dress coats. The chauffeur was again serving as a lackey. In the kitchen there were an exta cook and a helper.

The mansion blazed in full splendor.

The floor sparkled, the mirrors sparkled.

And in all the vases there were handsome flowers spreading their perfume.

The hostess: her arms, shoulders, breasts . . . everything, everything is exposed. She wears a dress of heavy silk. Behind her is a cloud of fragrance. Tuberoses.

The finest porcelain is on the table today.

And the heaviest sliver.

The women come.

In very low-cut gowns.

Flesh for the highest bidder.

Exotic perfumes float thru the rooms.

The women come.

With rouged lips, delicate red tint on the cheeks and sharply marked eye-brows.

The hostess is everywhere at once.

The guests must be entertained.

• • • •

The men contemplate the women's bodies. They stare. Colorful chaos. A riot of colors.

• • • •

The dinner.

Yellow color symphony.

Strong wines. French and Spanish wines.

Prohibition?

There is no such thing for the rich.

The glasses sparkle deep red.

The cook is a master in his trade.

The food looks appetizing. It tickles the palates.

• • • •

"Law and order must be established!"

General approval.

And the building contractor:

"We must dispose of the shameless, impossible demands of the workers."

General approval.

• • • •

Champagne is brot.

The exalted poet with the unworldly eyes helps to pull out the corks. He knows how to do that best of all.

He is praised for that by the hostess.

The champagne foams.

"That's the stuff!"

General approval.

• • • •

Now more than ever do they all see the world in a rosier light.

• • • •

Nickles' arm is almost all stiff from dragging the heavy platters.

More champagne is brot in.

• • • •

The building contractor calls for law and order louder and louder.

• • • •

The hostess rises from the table.

Small groups are formed.

In the big dance-hall there is a jazz-band playing. The ragged melodies break against the marble pillars. Bodies cling to each other.

• • • •

Broidin chatters with a young woman. He is once more overcome by a fever.

"How pretty you are"—he says.

His hand touches that of the woman.

He takes the woman's hand in his own.

"How white your skin is."

The diadem of diamonds sparkles.

"You can tell a woman's value by her hand"—Broidin declares.

Then he offers her his arm and leads her like a costly treasure thru the throngs of people.

• • • •

In the game-room the guests play Mah-Jong.

This complicated Chinese game is a pleasant stimulus for the nerves.

Cards.

The women are especially enthusiastic over the game. And not only the older ones. Even most of the young women are drawn more by the cards than by the dancing.

The dollar pieces fly thru the air.

Twenty-dollar notes.

The lowest stake.

Nickles and John bring cordials on great silver platters.

• • • •

"We must establish law and order"—speaks the building contractor.

He is surrounded by a small group.

"Lawless agitators are fomenting trouble among the masses"—says the poetical Christian Scientist with indignation.—"We Scientists could solve all problems"—he goes on.

General approval.

"We only need to fill people with Christian morality, and law and order is assured."

"Mankind is longing for order"—exclaims a university professor.—"It is a purely external force which is fighting against law and order. I am of the opinion that our generation is appointed to make safe for all times the road of human freedom."

A judge expresses himself in a like manner:

"Unfortunately the written law binds us too much. But I know a higher law, which can strengthen the pillars of present-day society."

The university professor with pride:

"My students, the spiritual youth, have the right spirit."

And a young mililonarie's son:

"I believe we will be the ones to uproot the red weeds!"

The young man said this with such youthful passion and enthusiasm that those who were around him applauded.

The holy poet with the dreamy eyes drew him to his breast:

"This is the way which leads to the kingdom of Christ."

They sat down at the small drink-tables.

They drank . . .

• • • •

The dancing became more and more abandoned.

The bets rose from twenty dollars to fifty dollars.

Mr. Broidin danced with the young woman.

"I feel quite young again"—he whispered.

Mrs. Broidin beamed with joy.

There was general intoxication.

• • • •

Iced tea.

Hot tea.

Iced cocoa!

Black coffee.

Ice-cold lemonade.

Orangeade.

Punch.

Everything in plenty.

• • • •

"These unscrupulous agitators want to change Christ's world"—said the unworldly poet.—"May they be cursed!"

General approval.

• • • •

The perfume of the flowers was so intoxicating.

The women smelled from perfume.

Morning dawned.

Nothing can last forever.

• • • •

Nickles could hardly move his arms any more.

Mr. Broidin still felt for a long time after going to bed the cloud of fragrance of the young woman, the soft stroking of her hand, and her diadem glittered before his closed eyes.

"A lady of the highest society . . . Tomorrow I'm going to meet her . . . "

For a moment he thot of Marguerite. The servant-girl. A paniful memory. He will dismiss her.

And he thot over how to do it in the simplest and quietest way.

Pittsburg Steel vs. Human Freedom

Organization of Progressive Miners' Committee,

THE contact made in this relief work between the Pittsburgh trade unionists and the progressive elements of the union miners, resulted in the fall of 1922 in the formation of the "Progressive Miners' Committee of District Five, U. M. W. of A.," to carry on an aggressive fight against the operators. Naturally the Pittsburgh "nuts became extremely dangerous to the big operators who still cherished the hopo of driving the U. M. W. of A. from the Pittsburgh district. This fear was greatly increased when the District Five committee became sponsor for the "International Progressive Committee of the U. M. W. of A." in the spring of 1923. Naturally the members of this committee fraternized much with their friends in the "Pittsburgh Miners' Relief Confenence," and this group came to be regarded by everyone as responsible for the virile spirit that developed in District Five.

"Red Raid" of April 27, 1923.

WHEN this miners' committee issued a call for a national conference of the progressive miners' consternation reigned in the camp of the "open shoppers" for they knew this group would fight and a fight was not what they were looking for. Immediately scores of detectives began shadowing and hounding the representatives of the Progressive Miners. The "reds" retaliated by bringing Alexander Howat into the district and having him tour the district. This brought the fight to a white heat and in a final desperate effort to prevent the June National Conference of Progressive Miners in Pittsburgh a raid was made on the building of the Labor Lyceum, and lists of progressive miners' names seized. The Workers Party office in that building was raided, everything in the office carted out and officers of the party placed under arrest along with members of the party in other parts of the city. The district organizer was held for indictment as a seditious person and bail fixed at $50,000. Other members of the Workers Party were held on equally ridiculous bonds. The defendant very naturally refused to give such bonds and after twelve days they were released on bonds varying from $15,000 down. Among those held were a delegate to the Pittsburgh Central Labor Union, three members of the machinists' union and two members of the office workers' union.

A few days later Thomas Myerscough, secretary of the International Progressive Miners' Committee was put in jail and charged with sedition and held on high cash bail. This made in all ten defendants who were indicted for the major crime of sedition under an act approved in 1921 which provides a maximum sentence of $10,000 fine and 20 years imprisonment. This act was so savage in its character that when before the legislative committee hearings were had on it, and the present governor, Gifford Pinchot, President James H. Maurer of the Pennsylvania Federation of Labor and scores of labor leaders appeared and protested against it.

Called for Trial After Two Years.

SO hard was it to find in the mass of literature seized, anything tangible on which to hang such a serious charge that the district attorney has done nothing since the original indictment. The raid was on April 27, 1923, and now after more than two years the defendants are called for trial. Probably in no other part of the United States could there be such an absurd manipulation of "justice." The severity of the class struggle here has made it necessary for the ruling class to develop political agents who are willing, on a moment's notice, to violate even the "American traditions" so brazenly as to make the whole thing ridiculous.

Coal Figures Again.

AGAIN coal figures in the economic cause of political reflexes. The tragic evolution of the soft coal industry has brought the big Pittsburgh coal operators into keen competition with non-union operators in Kentucky and southern West Virginia. Since the Lewis administration of the U. M. W. of A. is not raising its finger to organize this non-union territory while confusing the membership with strike in northern West Virginia, the "union" operators of the Pittsburgh District have an additional economic incentive to destroy the last vestige of the U. M. W. of A. in western Pennsylvania. Out of fifty-four union mines the Pittsburgh Coal company has closed down every single one and dismantled almost half of them. It is as plain as a man's hand that they intend to move against the union miners in a bitter struggle very soon. They remember the role of the Pittsburgh Miners' Relief in the last struggle and they propose to remove that group before the battle starts if possible. These old bald-headed cases are the only excuse but they will be used as far as possible to accomplish this. The Mellon powers are busy and all the influence of that gigantic group will be thrown against the defendants who have been a thorn in the side of these capitalists for the last fifteen or twenty years.

Competent attorneys have been secured and when the first trial starts on June 15, the only necessity to an adequate defense will be lack of funds. The need of a big strong, non-partisan defense organization is the primary requisite to successful organization of the workers in western Pennsylvania. The first step in that work is to support the present fight to the limit. Sacrifice all you can and insist on building up adequate and permanent defense machinery of the working class. Fortunately the Labor Defense Council has pledged it self to support these cases to the limit and money may be sent to that organization, 19 South Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

Red Radio and Film for Russia's Workers

By WM. F. KRUSE.

The newest methods of news transmission, the motion picture and the radio, are being extensively used to bring the happenings of the workers world before the eyes and ears of Russia's toiling millions. Six thousand workers' clubs and twelve thousand provincial reading rooms are being equipped with loud speakers, while constantly increasing thousands of clubs and schools have portable motion picture projectors.

These new methods dovetail perfectly with the great daily newspapers. For instance, the "Pravda" has a regular news reel under its own name which is shown all over the country, and which deals as far as possible with the same subjects that are treated in its columns. Free open air shows are given from a roof overlooking a big open space.

Furthermore, it has a full length feature film showing how news is sent to it from all over the world, by wireless, cable, telegraph, post and personal messenger, how it is then written, set up, proof-read, plated, printed, and distributed. The film is used to instruct the Worker Correspondents in every factory, trade union, co-operative, village soviet etc., how to write up their stories; it serves to dramatize the newspaper columns with the vital moving image of the actual events written about. Thus May Day riots in Paris are thrown on the screen, the news is wirelessed to Moscow, and soon the workers of Russia are reading about it. Less spectacular but equally important events in Soviet Russia, the improvement of production technique, the fraternizing of workers and peasants and soldiers at a joint picnic, the habits and customs of all the far-flung sixty-five nations that make up the U.S.S.R., as well as the methods by which this information reaches the newspaper offices are shown.

Much the same purpose and method underlies the tie-up of the radio with the press. Two editions are broadcasted daily, one at 12:25 p.m., to coincide with the workers' noon-hour, the other at 7:55 p. m., when they get home and prior to the start of most evening meetings. The noon edition includes only the principal happenings of the day and the workers gather around the loud speakers as they eat their lunch. The evening edition includes all the departments of the printed paper—news, editorials, special educational articles, party doings, short stories, and literary, musical, dramatic and motion picture reviews. Thus the world's news becomes accessible even to the last aged illiterate.

Special lectures are broadcasted, particular attention being given to agricultural instruction, suitable to the season, for the vast peasant audience. A children's newspaper is being planned by the Narkompros, (the department of education), and A. V. Lunacharsky, the people's commissar for education, has summoned the leading pedagogs in his department for suggestions and plans in this field.

Concerts are devoted more to classical and folk music than to jazz, but attention is nevertheless, focused on the new developments in music to encourage progressive thought on this field as on all others.

The actual charge of the radio transmission is entirely in the hands of the department of posts and telegraphs, and thus far about fifty broadcasting stations have been established.

This development of a great new discovery by a workers' government for the enjoyment and instruction of the working class is in clear contrast to the line taken by the same industry in America. Here the broadcasting is in private hands, generally that of the manufacturers of receiving apparatus who use the programs to stimulate the sale of their products. These programs are often paid for by other private interests who receive in exchange radio notice for the particular product and trade mark which they exploit. Thus, it will be announced, that "The next number will be 'How Can I Leave Thee,' by courtesy of the Sticktite Flypaper Company." Furthermore, the large sums needed to establish a broadcasting station gives the capitalists a monopoly of this form of news and propaganda transmission. Only reactionary politicians or bourgeois stalking horses can use it at election time, while bankers and ministers have it always at their service for the preaching of capitalist virtues. Fortunately most of this preaching is so deadly dull that nobody listens to it.

In Russia the air, like the land and the factories, belongs to the working class, and theirs is the full benefit thereof. The workers' state, excluding all enemy classes from control of these new media, develops them as rapidly and as fully as possible for the service and enjoyment of the working masses.

CULTURAL LIFE IN SOVIET UNION

New Literature for Children

AMONG the many problems faced by Soviet Russia after the revolution, one of the greatest and most important was that of a new education for the young, as well as the creation of a modern basis for the bringing up of children.

In line with the new educational principles it became the chief aim of the school system to inculcate a scientific view of life in the children, to facilitate the full development of the child's individuality and to help it to become an active and conscious member of the community.

It therefore became necessary to undertake a complete revision of all the existing literature for children, as well as to create a new literature along these lines. The Section for Juvenile Literature of the State Publishing House was created toward the end of 1923 for this purpose. First a number of representatives of higher pedagogical institutions was charged with this work (People's Commissariat for Education, Moscow Education Department, Institute for Juvenile Literature, etc.), as well as a number of writers, educators, and workers in juvenile libraries. New publications in the field of children's books, as well as manuscripts of such, received from the authors were submitted to them to be judged. Gatherings of reviewers were held, in which judgments and decisions were pronounced concerning the publication of new books.

THE next step toward the creation of a new juvenile literature was the reading aloud of these manuscripts to an audience of children of the age required in each specific case. Educators and librarians read the books in their respective schools, kindergartens, children's literary circles, and subsequently transmited to the education department the views of the children, as well as a report of the children's reactions to various passages in the manuscript as a whole. As the work went on, two commissions were created to encourage the production of a new juvenile literature: the first of these commissions is concerned with the books for children of pre-school age, while the second considers the needs of the older children. The commission includes the best writers for children, those who are trying to meet the demands of the present day, artists who have specialized in the illustration of children's books, teachers and librarians. Each of the commissions meets twice a week. At these sessions a manuscript is usually read which has already been submitted to the critics and to the young readers, and which is furthermore considered to be in some way typical. A general discussion of the manuscripts follows, which aids in the fixing of definite principles that have already been elaborated during the year in which the commissions have been at work, and have been used as guiding lines in the selection of new books to be published.

THE following subjects were considered during the past year by the commission for pre-school children's books:

1. The study of the work of the women in charge of kindergartens, touching upon various phases of the life, the work and the play of the children in the various establishments of this kind. It was found extremely desirable to continue and develop this work still further, in which connection three of the books of the American educational writer Lucy Sprague Mitchel were published, as well as a collection of notes made by the women teaching in the Tver kindergartens.

2. Books on Productive Industry.—It was considered necessary to initiate the children not only in the subject of those kinds of work which they are able to perform but also in the work of grown-ups, in which children are very often interested showing them the most characteristic features of each branch. Among publicaitons of this kind books on table crockery, transportation, newspapers and the locomotive, may be mentioned. Books on the postal system, rubber shoes, and on various trades, are in course of publication.

3. Biological Books.—In the case of books on animals, plants, the evolution of man, etc., it was considered imperative to deviate in no degree from the scientific facts. The material to be used in such books is to consist of phenomena and objects from the daily life of the children, in this way encouraging the children to engage in their own observations and studies. Young scholars, biologists, have been placed in charge of this task. A book is about to appear, with the approval of the commission on the metamorphoses of insects, and another on poultry.

4. Books on the Revolution.—Insofar as the children are growing up in the atmosphere of revolutionary celebrations and parades, and the looking daily at the portraits of revolutionary leaders, etc., the revolutionary reality is one of the earliest experiences of Russian children of the present day. Steps were taken to give the children books concerning revolutionary holidays, Lenin, the "Pioneer Movement" etc.

THERE is about to appear an album entitled "On Lenin—For Children" which will contain a large number of pictures dealing with the life of the workers and peasants under the czarist regime, with the life and struggles of Lenin, with the world-war period, as well as with the Russian revolution, all appropriately annotated in the text.

5. Hygienic Instruction and Physical Culture.—A number of books in this field are in course of preparation.

THE work of the commission has been further extended recently by inviting the participation of an organized circle of women in charge of Moscow kindergartens, for the purpose of consultation on a number of questions connected with juvenile literature. This circle has drawn up a program for the publication of works of juvenile literature which are to be in accord with the requirements of the present day.

A portion of this program has already been carried out. Books now being printed concerning the "Young Pioneers" and the Red Army are in every way suited to the uses of children of pre-school age.

Writers and artists who are desirous of specialising in the field of juvenile literature are eagerly participating in the work of the circle.

PASSING on to the literature for the older children, it is of course necessary to take into account the far more extensive circle of interests characteristic of this older group. The sessions of the commission have thus far approved the publication of books in the following fields:

1. Books on Production—As distinguished from textbooks and books of a popular scientific character, the description of the various trades and industries is here to be combined with a tale, a narration of some plot. A book on the origin and evolution of the book (from the earliest times) has been approved and published. A book (in verse) on the printing of modern books is being prepared. Another book in verse has been approved dealing with the tractor and its importance for Russian agriculture. Authors were recommended to treat subjects from all fields of the national economic life.

2. Books Dealing with the Past.—The commission has resolved that the historical literature prepared for the consumption of the older children must present to their minds in a popular way the labors and struggles of past generations without indulging in too many details. Special attention is to be given to Russian history and to the circumstances which brot about the revolution. A comparison between the present and the most recent past is to be made possible, and the children are to be encouraged to combat such remnants of the old system as are still in existence. A number of books of this kind have already appeared; others are in course of preparation.

3. The New Social Life.—This subject is being taken up along very broad lines and includes the new life of the children in city and country, the schools, the children's homes etc.

A number of publications have already been examined and some have already come from the press.

4. The Civil War.—Books dealing with this subject fully satisfy the natural appetite of the older children for stories of action and adventure. The commission has made it a principle, in this connection, that both brutality and sentimentality must be shunned in equal degree, while the goals and objects of the struggle must be emphasized. A number of such books are now going thru the presses, some of them dealing with the share of the children in these struggles, others dealing only with the actions of their elders.

5. The "Pioneer Movement."—The powerful movement of the "Young Pioneers" among the children, which is growing year by year, cannot fail to find its expression in juvenile literature. It has been shown in many instances that children show the greatest enthusiasm and affection for stories and poems dealing with life among the "Pioneers." Two or three books dealing with this subject have been published; further books are in course of publication.

6. Foreign Countries.—Children of school age are often more interested in that which is remote than in their immediate surroundings. But mere narrations of travel are not enough to satisfy this hunger. Stories, short novels taken from the daily life of other countries will soon be made available. The commission recently approved a very good book dealing with the lives of the African natives (about to appear). A number of books are being translated from foreign languages. It is also confidently hoped that foreign writers will submit their manuscripts, in so far as they may be available for the use of the Russian children of the present day.

7. Struggle Against Superstition.—Books of this type are intended primarily for the children of the villages and are to be published in a perfect artistic form. A number of books of this kind have already appeared.

IN the discussion of all these and other questions, certain general principles to be followed in the creation of a new juvenile literature have already taken shape, for example: (a) There is to be no mysticism; all the happenings of this world are from natural causes; (b) The collective consciousness must take precedence of the individual consciousness; (c) Dynamic and dramatic plots are of the greatest importance, but their use must not be carried too far; they must in some cases (particularly for the village children) be varied with epic narrations of a calmer type; (d) The style is to be simple, devoid of all adornments and obscurities.

About the middle of January, 1925, the commission for preparing books for the uses of children of school age undertook laboratory work on books for children of school age, similar to that undertaken by the pre-school commission. A circle of pedagogues is being formed who work over the books and manuscripts.

The Fountain of Youth

By WALT CARMON

NOT in sunny California nor the balmy breezes of palm fringed Florida, but in the pursuit of the aims of the working class can you find the fountain of youth.

Or so one would think who knew Ella Reeve "Mother" Bloor. For how else would you explain the fact that at sixty years of age, when the average person begs ease of life and rest for tired bones, this veteran agitator begins on a spectacular coast-to-coast tour for Communism and brings its message thru the DAILY WORKER.

Campaigning thru the country is a thing even experienced agitators flinch from. Yet Mother Bloor grimly determines to go from San Francisco to New York, speaking on schedule at every important city en route and at every place where opportunity allows, without the comfort and convenience of the railroads, walking, "hitch-hiking," using every mode of conveyance whatever gods there be to protect a Bolshevik will throw her way.

THE trip began on June 3, from Oakland, California. In an all day farewell party, young and old comrades of the bay district joined in wishing success to this veteran fighter and the next day she was on her way to Sacramento on the first step of her journey.

In the first fifty miles Mother Bloor braved the bounces of a springless truck for conveyance. From Sacramento the road lay east to Salt Lake City. Crossing the mountains, she "got a lift" in a machine driven by an old Russian revolutionist, lost to the cause in America, where life was not such a struggle to him—tho his heart still lay with the movement.

Meetings on the way, preaching Communism, talking about the DAILY WORKER, holding a tent meeting in the mountains, soap-boxing, riding, Mother Bloor arrived at a meeting arranged for her by old German comrades in Fallon, Nevada.

THE grit of this young old comrade, stirred the workers of Fallon, Nevada, and a new local is being formed—another link to the American Communist chain—while the DAILY WORKER became stronger with a number of new subscriptions. Old fighters in the class struggle, joined in the welcome extended to Mother Bloor, among them an aged mother who brought her five sons to the meeting to have them inspired to take part in the fighting ranks of the working class.

Last week, Mother Bloor arrived in Reno, Nevada—city of scandal and easy divorces. A meeting was arranged for her here, among other things. A visiting government conciliator, in the city to adjust some local trade union difficulties, together with the local authorities, threw difficulties in the way to discourage attendance at the meeting.

The president of the local labor council in person picketed the hall to prevent trade unionists from attending. Every method was used to discourage attendance. To an old guard fighter, these difficulties, and worse, "are all in the game." Mother Bloor reached all the workers she could, more subscriptions were secured for the DAILY WORKER, more seeds sown for future Communist growth.

FROM Reno, Mother Bloor spent part of this week crossing the desert. On June 13 and 14 she arrives at Rock Springs and Cheyenne, Wyoming. On the 16, 17 and 18 she will hold meetings in Denver, proceeding from there to Kansas City. Meetings will be held wherever possible on the way, eventually bringing her to Chicago, to hold open air meetings for a few weeks and then she will continue to "hike" thru the coal fields of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania, visiting also all the important large cities, landing eventually in New York to complete a trip of three thousand miles.

To attempt such a journey at sixty years of age should be an inspiration to the youth of our movement. In the glorious fight for the working class, surely, here is the fountain of youth.

CALL ALL-CHINA STRIKE TODAY

MORE TROOPS SENT TO CRUSH STRIKE OF NOVA SCOTIA COAL MINERS WHO FIGHT WAGE CUT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HALIFAX, N. S., June 14.—Striking miners at Cape Breton are digging in for a protracted warfare with the troops that have been dispatched to quell the strike, according to dispatches from the trouble zone.

More troops will be sent to Cape Breton, and a mounted corps is being held in Quebec province in readiness to proceed if ordered.

Tried to Cut Wages.

The strike which developed from a lockout by the British Empire Steel Corporation (Besco), and the shutting off of credit at the company stores in order to force the miners to accept a ten per cent wage cut, turned into open warfare last Wednesday night after the killing of a striker by company gunmen.

William Davis was the striker shot dead when the mounted gunmen opened fire against pickets of the United Mine Workers. Gilbert Watson, also a striker, was shot thru the stomach. His condition is serious. Driving off pickets, the company forces tried to start up the power house supplying various mines.

Mobilize For Battle.

The pickets retired to the baseball park where they were joined by hundreds of miners from nearby collieries. Meanwhile the police and gunmen in the station had fortified their position with barbed wire entanglements.

By noon 2,000 miners had gathered. They marched from the park to the

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THINGS are humming in China. The 400,000,000 exploited Chinese are beginning to make themselves heard and felt. Perhaps one of Woodrow Wilson's famous fourteen points made a stronger impression on them than was expected. That is, the right of nations to determine their own destiny. It's a good idea provided that those who have the wish also have the way. The Chinese are beginning to prove they have both.

ARTHUR BRISBANE drops a little paragraph of consolation to the [illegible] missionaries who are carrying the heavenly sword in the great Oriental republic. It seems that the Chinese masses have a special grudge against the missionaries, and now that their blood is up the missionaries are liable to get an interview with their Lord quicker than they expected or desired.

BRISBANE is not in the least frightened. He says: "However the missionaries will stand their ground and meet the consequences with courage. They know that the power which they represent can at any moment save them and overwhelm the enemy by the slightest miracle." But I doubt if the missionaries will feel so confident. They will probably sing the version of "Nearer My God to Thee," which has as a second line: "Worse Luck for Me," when they see the Chinese coming with everything else on their lips but prayers, and anything in their hands but bibles.

EVEN the capitalist press find it difficult to drum up an excuse for making war on China. But an excuse will be found. Warships of all capitalist powers are shelling Chinese cities. The Chinese, in self-defense, will undoubtedly retaliate. Some American missionary or gunman will lose his life and then the hysteria will be worked up. The movie houses will throw pictures of diabolical-looking Chinamen on the screen and the Nordics will see yellow. But China is a long way off and we remember that it was not so easy to induce the patriotic Nordics to fight "the beast of Berlin" until they were taken by the nape of the neck and stuck into uniforms.

IT will be mighty hard to convince the American workers and farmers that it is their duty to send their sons to China to defend the interests of Standard Oil and those of the British empire. Great Britain, which recently had a lot of fun forging "Zinoviev" letters, may now be able to realize that the red bear is just as dangerous an opponent as the one Kipling wrote about. And much more so. Britain is mainly responsible for

MANY LEADERS WELCOME LABOR DEFENSE MEET

United Front for Class War Prisoners

William F. Dunne, editor of the Chicago DAILY WORKER, said today regarding the conference for Labor Defense to be held in Chicago June 28, "As editor of a workers' newspaper, it is very frequently that I receive letters from political and industrial prisoners and their families.

These numerous letters make it plain to me that it constitutes a first duty of the labor movement to look after the comfort and well being of its hostages to the master class and their almost invariably destitute families. If the proposed conference for labor defense does nothing else but assure material and moral aid for these victims of the struggle, it will have accomplished a very necessary and commendable service to the workers' cause."

The proposed conference, the purpose of which is to unify all the forces in the labor movement for the defense of class-war prisoners and for material aid to confined workers and their families, regardless of opinion or affiliation, is meeting with approval from all quarters of the country. Alice Stone Blackwell of Boston and Ellen Hayes of Wellesley, Mass. have given their hearty endorsement to the conference.

Covington Ami Hall of Commonwealth College, Arkansas, who has distinguished himself in behalf of I. W. W. prisoners, writes, "To my way of thinking, this conference should have been called long ago. A recent experience, where another man and I were working on the same case unknown to each other, [illegible] serves to confirm me in the belief that the work of the different defense organizations should be coordinated as soon as it is possible to do so."

ARREST 17 IN PARTY FIGHT FOR SPEECH RIGHTS

Workers Aroused Over 'Small Biz' Complaints

The fourth round of the free speech fight being conducted by the Workers (Communist) Party of Chicago for the privilege of speaking on the corner of W. North Ave. and Orchard St., resulted in the arrest of seventeen comrades Saturday night.

While Thurber Lewis was talking the first cop hove into view and put him under arrest. Manuel Gomez jumped on the box and was summarily pulled down by the same officer who took both "prisoners" away to call the wagon.

All Schapp spoke until the wagon came, when one by one speakers arose to get pulled down in the following order: William F. Kruse, Max Schachtman, Nat Kaplan, Harrison George, Davis Bernard and Karl Kritchell.

After these were loaded into the wagon, there was still room for six girls who were singing "The International." These were Natalie Gomez, Gertrude Welsh, Catherine Polishuk, Elsa Bloch and Ida Eckels who were crowded into the wagon with the rest. As the wagon milled about to get turned around for the station, the crowd cheered and sang. The workers present showed their indignation by lusty boos as the wagon pulled out.

What's more, the crowd refused to go home. There was a shortage of bail money and no more speakers were put up. But the crowd stayed on. Shortly the wagon returned. After dispersing the crowd, the cops were tipped off by a stool pigeon that "Bill" Dunne had the bail money. He was nabbed. Thurber Lewis, who with Manny Gomez had lost the cop who first arrested them, was also pointed out and taken along, with two others who had the misfortune to be near him. Dunne had raised over a thousand dollars in the crowd for bail.

The seventeen were held until twelve o'clock and released on a thousand dollars bail to appear in Chicago Ave. Police Court this morning. Three other meetings on the same corner have witnessed arrests in the last few weeks. Saturday night's affair has arroused the workers in the neighborhood against the arrests. The street was blocked to four curbs by a great cheering crowd. It has developed that the North Side Business Men's association is instigating the arrests.

BRITISH LABOR PARTY SPLIT ON QUESTION OF IMPERIAL PREFERENCE

LONDON, June 14.—Signs of a division of the labor party forces that may lead to a split, is seen by the vote in the house of commons Friday evening on the question of imperial preference.

A labor amendment to the general bill proposing to postpone operations of the clause dealing with tobacco, wines and dried fruits, was voted down by 277 to 93, with 20 laborites voting with the conservatives.

Canton Is Taken by The Revolutionists

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEKING, China, June 14.—That the upheaval of the Chinese nation is not a passing wave of angry masses without hope of accomplishment, but is becoming a permanent historical event of the greatest world importance, is seen in the crystallization of national feeling thruout all China. On Monday a nation-wide general strike to last one day, with parades and memorial meetings for the dead will paralyze the nation. The continued bitter strikes and growing demonstrations spreading everywhere, the unity of commercial and military elements with the students and workers against imperialism—especially Great Britain—the new tone of mastery in sharp notes sent by the government to foreign powers, the moving of Chinese troops to areas of conflict and the victory of the Kuomingtang armies at Canton over the mercenaries who were bribed to rebel with British and French money—all proves that China has set foot on the path of revolution which may or may not stop with bourgeois national independence, but is certain to tear away the foundation of western imperialism.

Feng Threatens War on England

The new spirit of national revolution was well voiced by the most powerful army leader of China, General Feng Yu-hsiang, at Kalgan, where—addressing a great mass meeting—he openly threatened war on England unless apology and indemnity for the murder of the Shanghai strikers and students at Shanghai and Hankow were given by Britain. General Feng frankly warned that the present army of China is to be reckoned with as far superior in equipment, training and morale to the [illegible] and weak forces the imperialists scattered before them when they conquered China under the Ching dynasty.

General Feng directly commands approximately 120,000 troops, and the most powerful military influence in the Peking government which is in formal authority over the rest of the Chinese armies.

The Peking government yesterday handed another and stronger note to the British legation describing the Shanghai and Hankow shootings of Chinese by English troops as "inhuman," declaring that murder of eleven Chinese civilians and two Chinese policemen at Hankow was directly the work of British from the gunboat "Bee," stating that China will make demands for full redress when damage is detailed and demanding that the British legation immediately order all British consulates in China to prevent further attacks on Chinese by British troops and civilians.

Even Business Men Parade Streets

The members of the Peking chamber of commerce went onto the streets yesterday in a demonstration, about 1,400 of the commercial leaders of the capital city, parading on their way to the office of the minister for foreign affairs, where they urged the government to press relentlessly for satisfactory settlements of the Shanghai and Hankow murders.

This, in connection with the one-day

WALL ST. TURNS LASH ON CALLES RULE IN MEXICO

Kellogg Demands More Complete Submission

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MEXICO CITY, June 14—The note of Secretary of State Kellogg warning the Calles government that recognition will be withdrawn, "unless American property and lives are protected," is looked upon here as notice to Calles that he must be even more drastic in his attacks on the Communist Party of Mexico, and must stamp out all strikes and agrarian movements.

Calles seemed amazed, as he has "done everything possible for protection of foreign investments in Mexico," his government officials pointed out.

Sequel of Oil Strike.

The note is a sequel to the demand of the Standard Oil company that Calles send troops to break the strike of the Tampico oil workers, which Calles readily agreed to do. Doheny, on his recent visit to Mexico, conferred with Calles and demanded that more aggressive action be taken against the Communists.

The note, which issues definite orders to the Calles government, furnishes one more demonstration that Calles is the servant of the Standard Oil company, and that Mexico is a colony of the United States.

One of the demands of the Coolidge government is that the movement of the Mexican peasants, who are charged with appropriating the large estates of the Americans, be destroyed, and the land be returned to the American capitalists.

Seek Indemnity for U. S. Citizens.

The note demands that "the Mexican government restore property illegally taken, and indemnifty American citizens."

"A great deal of property has been

COMMUNISTS HAVE BOOTH AT DENVER LABOR CENTENNIAL

The Workers Party here will have a booth at the Labor Centennial which thousands of union men will visit during the week of June 14 to 21 at 5th and Broadway. Copies of the DAILY WORKER will be given away free and literature will be sold. In order to encourage others we ask you to visit our stand and patronize it. Get your tickets for the Labor Centennial at 1407 Arapahoe St. This ticket admits you to the circus.

On June 21 we shall have a picnic near Morrison at which Ella Reeves Bloor who is hiking across the country for the DAILY WORKER will be the main speaker. Tickets are only 10 cents, if you furnish your own transportation. If not we shall furnish such for 40c difference. If you wish transportation leave word at Book Store, 1407 Arapahoe St.—W. DIETRICH, Sec'y.

RED SOLDIERS TO ENTER COURT FOR FREEDOM

Crouch and Trumbull Assured of Support

The Labor Defense Council is in receipt of a leter from Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull, the two soldiers recently sentenced to military prison in Hawaii, for expressing radical views. They write that on May 27th they had a consultation with Geo. W. Wright, secretary of the Central Labor Council, who brought with him Mr. Fred Patterson, an attorney of Honolulu, who Wright secured to care for the cases.

Attorney Patterson is to start action in the federal courts immediately to make the two soldiers out of the jurisdiction of the military authorities on the ground they were illegally sentenced. If necessary, the letter states further, the cases will be carried to the United States Supreme Court.

Support Assured

The Communist soldiers write that several hundred dollars are needed at once to start the action. They enquired as to the possibility of raising money on the mainland for the defense. Geo. Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council sent the following cable immediately on receipt of the letter: "LETTER RECEIVED. HOPE ACTION CAN AND WILL BE STARTED IN FEDERAL COURT. WE CAN HELP IMMEDIATELY TO EXTENT OF FEW HUNDRED DOLLARS. No question as to ample financial aid from mainland sources."

The original sentence of the court martial gave Crouch forty years and Trumbull twenty-six years at hard labor, the main count against them being that they organized the "Hawaiian Communist League". It was charged that this was an illegal organization on the ground it was not chartered by the Governor General of the territory. The fact is there was at no time more than seven members in the so-called league and there was no pretense made of secretiveness. The courtmartial was a fraud from beginning to end. The court deliberated less than half an hour and

SUSPENDED I. L. G. LOCALS PLANNING MASS MEETINGS

Sigman Has Trouble in Borrowing Money

By EARL BROWDER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 14.—Mass meetings of Locals Nos. 2, 9, and 22 of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union are called for Tuesday night at Cooper Union, Manhattan Lyceum and Webster Hall. Three local executives have officially denounced the order for the suspension of the three locals from the Joint Board as illegal. The general office of the International is in constant consultation with William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor who appeared with them at Unity House celebration yesterday.

The International Bank refused a further loan to Sigman yesterday. He finally secured a loan of $25,000 from the Fancy Leather Goods Workers Union. The bank accounts of the locals ordered suspended have been attached, this being the first action of the general office following suspension.

HOOVER STARVES ALASKA INDIANS

WASHINGTON, June 14.—Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, has favored the Armour and other big canning interests in their monopoly of Alaska fishing, by closing 27 bays along the coast to the fishing whereby the Indians live. Only the trust fleet has equipment for deep water fishing. Traps set by the fleet now take the fish that come from these bays and rivers, while the Indinas go hungry. Small canneries on shore are closing down for lack of fish. Hoover is saying, in public speeches, that he has "saved the Alaska fishing industry."

It is reported that one of the trust traps, left unguarded last autumn, caught 150,000 fish, which died there—enough to operate the largest independent cannery served by the Indians for an entire season.

IMPERIALISM OF FRANCE BREAKS ON RIFF ROCKS

Painleve Returns to Face Chamber Tuesday

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, June 14.—The Riffian troops are organizing the territory they have wrested from the invading French troops around Sker, and are preparing for further advances.

Premier Painleve is now at Ouezzan and will return to Paris in time for the session of the chamber of deputies Tuesday. The Communist deputies will again demand that the French troops be withdrawn from North Africa, and that Abd-el-Krim be left in peace on his native soil.

Abd-el-Krim, in an interview with a correspondent of a London newspaper, declared that if Morocco were not rich in minerals the European powers would not be fighting to take it from the native Riffians. Commenting on the fact that the French had called him a "brigand," Krim said: "Supposing we Riffians were strong enough to come over to England because we wanted to get your rich coal mines? Supposing your army, led by your king, came out to fight us and we called your king a brigand, wouldn't you be annoyed?"

Spanish-French Attack Postponed.

The much talked of combined Spanish-French offensive against the Moroccans has not materialized, and it is pointed out that even if the Spaniards have consented, which has not been ascertained, the consent of Great Britain and Italy would also be needed before the French troops could enter the Spanish zone, as these two countries were signatories to the treaties which divided the African territory among the European imperialistic powers. Even the Spanish blockade of the coast has been postponed until June 30.

The French and Spanish are said to be still "negotiating," and the British foreign office has definitely announced that it will not take part in the French offensive against the Riffs.

The craft of French imperialism is splitting on the rock of the Riffians' defense. The French soldiers sent from France are not eager to kill or be slaughtered by a foe that is defending its native land and are paying heed to the Communists' advice for fraternization with the North Africans.

Blacks Fight Blacks.

The bulk of the troops fighting the Riffians are Senegalese and Arabs, and the French military authorities are finding it increasingly difficult to induce these black troops to work up enthusiasm to kill the Riffians, who like themselves, are colonial peoples who have been enslaved by the French imperialists. Many of the troops fighting the Riffians are Senegalese troops which were forced to hold the French lines against the Germans in the battle of Verdun during the world war.

Most of those in the French foreign legion, now opposing the Riffians are Germans, and they too realize that they are being sacrificed in order to win mines for the French capitalists.

The natives behind the French lines would join the Riffian side if they dared. Already the Beni Alanos, near Taounat, are being held back from joining the Riffians only by the French reign of terror.

Communists Oppose Campaign.

The Communist Deputy Doriot, who accuses Mashal Lyantey, the military dictator of Morocco, of having provoked the Riffian war, declares he has new documents showing the Poincare and Herriot governments are responsible for the antagonism of the Riffs. He charges that French soldiers are now being killed with rifles and ammunition sold by French munition makers to Riffians when they were fighting the Spaniards, which were shipped to the Riffians on the yacht Sylvia.

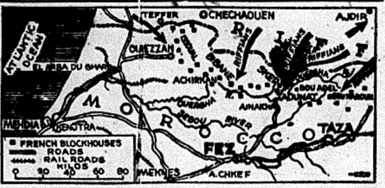
Children on Truck Farms of N. J. Among 3,000,000 Slaves

NEW YORK, June 14.— The children working on New Jersey truck farms, brought to public attention by the Jersey director of employment in his report to the state labor department, are simply a few of the 3,000,000 children under 14 who are not getting enough schooling.

In the U. S. department of agriculture report (published in April) it was shown that one-fourth of the laborers on New Jersey farms are child workers. Some started at 5 years to work during the summer. The average age of the child workers is 10.7 years. Fifty-six per cent of the children left school before they were 14 and had not gone beyond the sixth grade. There are 58 per cent backward and the percentage of backward increases with the ages of the children.

It is not only foreign born children that are child laborers and backward, but natives and those of mixed parentage. New Jersey is the fifth worst state in securing school attendance of 14 and 15 year-old children of mixed parentage, he says.

RIFFS FIGHTING IMPERIALISM



The map shows the battle front where the Moroccans are successfully resisting the invasion instigated by the French capitalists who are endeavoring to exploit Morocco's rich natural resources and her native labor.

The Riffians recently took the block houses around Sker. They have forced the French to give up many posts, and have pushed across the Ouergha River.

The dotted line shows the boundary between French and Spanish Morocco. The shaded area shows the region where the Riffians launched their latest attack, which brought Premier Painleve hurrying to the scene by airplane.

The city of Ajdir, in the upper right hand corner, is the Riffian stronghold which the French government is urging the Spaniards to attack. Painleve is also endeavoring to induce the Spaniards to attack Ouezzan, shown by the arrow at the left.

The French have thrown their front along the Ouergha River in their effort to protect the Fez-Taza railroad and the city of Fez, capital of Morocco.

Kuomingtang Army Holds Canton

CANTON, China, June 14.—The armies of the Kuomintang party are in full control of Canton again after a terrific battle beginning Friday in which the Yunnanese mercenaries were routed completely and sent fleeing in all directions.

Thousands of Kuomingtang troops, after the first landing on the Canton side of the river was made by their forces— while the city was attacked on the land side by Cantonese troops of the people's Kuomingtang armies under command of Generals Heu Chung-chi and Chu Pei-teh—are pouring across from Honan Island wearing red scarfs about their necks and bearing red streamers on their rifles.

Drive Out All Foes

These troops, largely recruited from the workers and peasants, are the mass support of the smaller but perfectly trained troops schooled in Sun Yat Sen's military academy at Whampoa. Today they are moping up the city of Canton, cleaning out the Yunnanese and evening scores with the British subsidized merchants' white guards known as "the tigers" who last year tried to seize the city from the Kuomingtang and altho defeated had covertly aided the present Yunnanese rebellion.

Hundreds of casualities which took place in the first firing were added to by the Cantonese masses, which thru unarmed and unable to do much while the Yunnanese were in control of the city, rose against them the instant the Kuomingtang armies entered the city and beat to death scores of fleeing Yunnanese and in company with the Cantonese troops began a house to house campaign to rout the traitors white guard "tigers" who had aided the Yunnanese mercenaries.

Many of these were given short shrift by the angry masses. Their bodies are left strewn along the streets as the victors pursue the fleeing mercenaries.

Situation Tense in Shanghai

SHANGHAI, China, June 14.—On the eve of the national general strike on Monday, which is to follow the expiration of the ultimatum given by the union of workers, students and shopkeepers upon the foreign commissioner to settle their demands by today, the city of Shanghai is again tense with the atmosphere of war.

Bayonetted troops patrol the principal streets, foreign marines guard the boundaries of the foreign settlement and the roads to the waterfront and power stations. Local shipping is totally tied up by strike.

American troops are camped near the navy Y. M. C. A. British white guards are quartered with their arms in the grounds of the holy trinity cathedral.

Strikes which had modified their strength by a return of some workers to the cotton mills, flamed up again when news arrived of the massacre of Chinese at Hankow. Thousands again struck.

Yesterday 2,000 Feng Tien troops commanded by Chang Tso-lin's son, General Chang Hsieh-Liang, took up positions on the borders of the foreign settlement and Chekiang troops are reported occupying the Shanghai arsenal.

Huge crowds cheered the arrival of Chinese troops, shouting:

"They've come drive out foreign robbers."

Several foreigners were roughly handled by the crowds, which were dispersed by armored cars commanded by Italian marines.

Fierce Riots at Kiukiang

Reports are that widespread demonstrations against foreigners are taking place at Kiukiang, an important railway center on the Yangtsze river in the province of Kiangsu.

THE Dawes plan is by no means a marked success in Germany. By the time the next presidential election comes around in the United States, it is possible Dawes will have nothing left to appeal to the voters more catching than his old underslung briar. German industry is on the rocks and the troubles of capitalism in Germany and elsewhere are not decreasing. The good spells of this robber system do not last very long. Like the last days of a consumptive, sudden hopes for recovery are followed by indications of certain death.

FINANCE Minister Caillaux of France made a significant speech a few days ago. He declared that Europe had become a colony of the United States and that America, Britain and Russia had abandoned Europe. This is hokum and as Caillaux is nobody's fool, it is more than likely that he knew he was talking hokum. What is important is Caillaux's solution for the continental European problem. He suggested a united front of all European nations outside of Russia and Britain. It's his old remedy, the one that nearly cost him his neck.

THIS is Caillaux's old scheme for a Franco-German alliance. Outside of France and Germany there are no other first class capitalist powers in Europe and Caillaux knows that he cannot figure on Russia in such a bloc. France and Germany are very groggy and might like to lean on one another, but the trouble is that Britain won't stand for it. Germany and France are much in the same position as two thirsty bums in a speak-easy run by a prohibition agent. The only European alliance that will work is an alliance between the working class of Europe against the capitalists. That may be nearer than most people expect.

WHILE Britain is trying to pull her chestnuts out of the Chinese furnace, and France is playing a losing game with the Riffs, American capitalism is itching for a more strenuous play with Mexico. Calles is doing as well as he can, suggests the public statement of "Nervous Nell" Kellogg, the secretary of state, but the workers and peasants are warned that Wall Street now owns the Mexican government and Calles must deliver the goods. Even Arthur Brisbane, that nauseating old pimp of the Coolidge administration, joins in the anvil chorus. For his good services he is given a ride on the Mayflower and perhaps the privilege of licking Cal's boots. Things could be much better for capitalicm—very much better.

taken," the Kellogg note charges, "Under or in violation of the agrarian laws for which no compensation has been made, and other properties practically ruined."

The note contains a hint to Calles that no government can endure in Mexico unless the orders of the Wall Street U. S. government are obeyed. "I have seen statements published in the press that another revolutionary movement may be impending in Mexico," says the note. I very much hope this is not true.—It is now the policy of this government to use its influence and support in behalf of stability and orderly constitutional procedure, but it should be made clear that this government will support the government of Mexico only so long as it protects American lives and American rights, and complies with its interntional engagements and obligations."

The Standard Oil company, shielded by the American government, has overturned governments in the past, and will do so again, if the movement of the workers for better working conditions is not crushed, it is implied.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 12.—The United States today served notice on Mexico that the alleged rights of American citizens in that country may not be violated while efforts are being made by Mexican officials to establish a stable government.

In a formal statement issued following a series of conferences here with James R. Sheffield, United States ambassador to Mexico. Secretary of State Kellogg said this government was desirous of helping to effect "stabilization" in Mexico, but that its support would be extended "only so long as it (Mexico) protects American lives and American rights and complies with its international engagements and obligations."

American relations with the Mexican government are friendly, Secretary Kellogg said, but conditions are not entirely satisfactory and the United States is looking to Mexico to restore such properties as have been seized since the agrarian laws were passed and to indemnify American citizens.

"A great deal of property of Americans have been taken under or in violation of the agrarian laws for which no compensation has been made," Kellogg said. "Other properties have been practically ruined and, in one instance taken by the Mexican government on account of unreasonable demands of labor. Mr. Sheffield will have the full support of this government and we will insist that adequate protection under the recognized rules of international law be afforded American citizens."

The Mexican agrarian laws are a part of the constitution adopted in 1917. They provide that all large estates in Mexico, which have been owned by wealthy Mexican and Spanish citizens and in a few cases by other foreigners, were to be taken over by the government and divided up among the peons, or laboring classes of Mexico.

Imperialism "Perishing, Decaying Capitalism", Pointed out by Lenin

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the diplomats of France and Spain are planning to meet in Madrid to discuss the problems of Abd-el-Krim, leader of the rebel Riffs in North Africa. Decadent Spanish imperialism has gone down to defeat before her African colonials. The French ambitions for empire in the "dark continent," even with the support of the "socialists" in the chamber of deputies back in Paris, have suffered what some label "impending disaster." The theory now is that where Spain and France have failed separately, they may succeed jointly. Carrying this idea a little further, Mussolini's diplomats might also be called in from Fascist Italy, with a few British thrown in for good measure. The imperialist front on the North African situation might then resemble the defensive lines of the foreign robbers in rising China.

But even the present rulers of the two nations most affected, France and Spain, have a difficult time overcoming their jealousies sufficiently to establish any form of cooperation. They are both jealous of their "place in the sun" in North Africa, even tho Abd-el-Krim may take it away from both of them while they continue their squabbles. These rivalries are reflected in the Chinese situation, in fact everywhere that the world bandits battle each other for new spheres of influence.

French imperialism wants to send its troops onto Spanish territory to fight Abd-el-Krim. Even the tottering rule of Primo de Rivera, at Madrid, refuses to join heartily in this offer. French troops, if they succeed against the Riffs, may forget to leave the territory claimed by Spain. The conveniently absent-minded diplomats at Paris, with the League of Nations ready to render a timely decision, may leave the French flag where the Spanish emblem desires to fly. That is Primo de Rivera's fear.

• • • •

In the meantime Abd-el-Krim is more active than ever. The French complain against his very successful "infiltration thru the French lines." It's the old story of their fear of "Communist propaganda." So-called "missionaries," not soldiers, ooze thru the French lines and rouse the natives in the rear, pretty much after the fashion in which the Russians broke up the offensives of Wrangel, Kolchak, Yudenitch and other imperialist tools in the wars of anti-Soviet intervention.

• • • •

Abd-el-Krim sees no reason why he shouldn't win just as easily as Mustapha Kemal Pasha, who drove the Greeks supported by the British off Turkish territory. To be sure Kemal Pasha is reported to have secured some aid from the French, another example of how a subject nation rises on the shoulders of the rivalries of imperialist groups.

• • • •

In addition, however, to these contradictions under capitalism; the antagonisms between the different imperialist nations and groups of nations, and the efforts of the so-called "civilized" nations to hold in bondage the small, weak nations and colonial peoples, there is the added struggle between capital and labor in the home countries, creating powerful Communist parties that lead labor's march toward its own liberation. One of the most significant phases of the North African crisis confronting European imperialism, is the brilliant attack on French capitalism led by the Communists in France, not only in the French chamber of deputies, at Paris, but on the streets, and in the factories and workshops thruout the nation.

• • • •

With fascist Spain hanging on the ropes after an unsuccessful struggle against these capitalist contradictions in the growing arena of struggles, imperialist France is still in the ring fighting desperately but no more successfully. Premier Painleve may take an airplane flight to the African front; the renegade "socialist" Briand may pull the wires at Geneva, capital city of the League of Nations, and a whole flock of Paris statesmen may descend on Madrid for consultations, but the franc keeps falling, and another government edges toward the abyss in Paris.

Lenin has called imperialism "perishing, decaying capitalism." Truly that part of European imperialism that clings to North Africa smells to the heavens, just as much as it does in China and everywhere else. The job of cleaning up and eradicating this putrid mess from off the earth belongs to the epoch of World Soviet Rule under the International Proletarian Dictatorship. That job falls no less on the shoulders of American workers and poor farmers than it does on the backs of labor over the rest of the globe.

WORLD TRADE UNION UNITY WILL BE THE KEYNOTE OF FOSTER'S SPEECH AT CLEVELAND PICNIC

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 14.—In connection with the picnic, entertainment and dance to be given by the Cleveland Trade Union Educational League at which Wm. Z. Foster will be the main speaker, the Cleveland League has issued the following statement:

World Trade Union Unity.

The American dollar has now become thruout the world a tremendous power in beating down the wages and oppressing the workers of all lands. In China and other foreign countries American troops take part in suppressing the movements of the workers for better wages and conditions.

The miserable lot thus forced upon labor in other countries is at the same time used by American employers to support their wage cutting, open shop speeding up, union smashing campaigns at home. American labor dare no longer remain apart, but must unite with labor of all countries in a joint fight against the internationally organized power of capital.

Wm. Z. Foster, well-known for his leadership of the 1919 steel strike and for his advocacy of Amalgamation of the craft unions and a labor party, and of a fighting policy toward the employers, has just returned from Soviet Russia, and will speak particularly on the progress toward an alliance between the British and Russian trade unions, including twelve million members.

This is an extremely timely subject, because at the next convention of the American Federation of Labor the fraternal delegate from the British Unions will be A. A. Purcell, chairman of the British trade union delegation to Soviet Russia, whose recently published report is one of the most complete and favorable descriptions yet issued on the Union of Workers' and Peasants' Republics.

Attend this meeting and show your support of world trade union unity.

The picnic will be held at Saxenheim Gardens, 7001 Dennison Ave., on Sunday, June 21, afternoon and evening.

The German and Slovak Choruses will sing and the committee in charge is arranging for many other features of entertainment, as well as the dance in the evening. There are plenty of tables under the trees for those who bring their lunch, and shelter in case case of rain. The committee is making arrangements for a big crowd and calls upon all members and sympathizers of the league to assist in the sale of tickets, which can be secured at 5927 Euclid Ave., Room 13.

'LOCO' PRESIDENT PASSES; BOSSES LOSE GOOD MAN

Warren S. Stone Was Business Leader

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 14.—In the death of Warren S. Stone, president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the capitalist class has lost one of its most capable labor lieutenants.

One of Stone's proudest boasts was that he never lead a strike. He never lost his temper with the bosses but did not consider it beneath his dignity to get nasty with the radicals.

Stone was the proud father of labor banking and the most prominent of the business labor leaders which the labor movement in this country has thrown up during recent years. One of his accomplishments was the coal mining venture known as Coal River Colleries, which he ran open shop and thus got into a controversy with the United Mine Workers of America.

Two Fakers Quarrel.

The verbal battle between Lewis of the mine workers and Stone gave the capitalist class much aid and comfort. Both labor fakers cared nothing for the interests of the miners, but Lewis was a Coolidge republican while Stone was a La Follette republican. Furthermore, Lewis was obliged to make a bluff at fighting the non-union operators while Stone had to show a profit to his union scab mine stockholders.

Stone was one of the strongest backers of the La Follette movement. It is a peculiar coincidence that the leader of that movement and its chief backer were both old men, standing on the brink of the grave. It symbolizes a class doomed to political extinction.

The class collaboration policies initiated by Stone will be carried out by his successors. Stone managed to retain a reputation for progressiveness until the end, among liberals and pseudo-radicals.

Red Soldiers Go Into Court in Their Fight for Freedom brought back practically life sentences on very flimsy evidence.

To Be Sent Here

Following world-wide agitation against the savage sentences, there has been a recommendation to the war department that the sentences be reduced to three and one year respectively, for Crouch and Trumbul. But the two soldiers hold that even these are exorbitant and much over the allowed sentence of three months imprisonment which the law provides as penalty for their so-called "offences".

It is announced in Honolulu that Crouch and Trumbull are to be sent back to the mainland on June 26th for confinement in an, as yet undetermined prison. This will not interfere with the court action to be undertaken.

"I Eat Too Much," Says Gary, Whose Slaves Get 44c an Hour

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 14.—"We business men eat too much and we eat too much food to please the palate," Elbert H. Gary, chairman of the board of directors of the United States Steel corporation, said here as he left for New York, following a two-weeks' diet. Gary was recovering from an attack of indigestion, caused by overeating.

Gary's steel trust employes, paid only 44 cents an hour, are in no danger from suffering from the same malady.

Zankov Murder Reign Continues.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 14—Six more persons have been sentenced to death by the military court of the Zankov white terror government, charged with taking part in the Sveti Kral bombing. So far 3,194 workers, some of them Communists, are in prison under charges of taking part in the "conspiracy." Court matrials have been set up thruout the country to deal out numerous death sentences.

Keep Pact Notes Secret

LONDON, England, June 14.—Criticism of Great Britain's colonies and dominions has caused Premier Baldwin to issue a statement advising that all proposals and official communication relating to the "security" pact between France, Great Britain and Germany, be given publication. So far they have been kept secret.

Brick Trust Bribes Competitors.

Brick interests paid John P. Hatch, of Maywood, ten thousand dollars not to engage in the brick industry for a period of 15 years, within a radius of 100 miles of the city hall, it was reevaled here. The money was paid by the Illinois Brick company, of which William Schlake is head.

Try to Raise N. Y. Fare.

NEW YORK, June 14—The politicians are spreading propaganda for an increase in the fare from five to seven or ten cents, during the mayoraly contest here.

DRAG OUT OLD LAW TO CONVICT YOUNG COMRADES

Offense Is Literature Distribution

NEW YORK, June 14—The two young comrades, Brandt and Freidman, who were arrested before May Day for distributing circulars of the Young Workers League addressed to students in the high schools have been found guilty. The court dragged out an old law, called the "dragnet provision." This law covers everything that other laws do not. It holds persons who act "contrary to the public peace, or seriously disturb the public peace," guilty of a heinous offense. It is a very flexible law, and allows the judge to act as he pleases in interpreting it.

This law was called to the attention of the court b a detective, who at the behest of his masters, wished to protect the high school students from learning what the situation of the working class is. The leaflet of the Y. W. L. pointed out to the students the shame of the system that speaks of democracy and the multidunious "opportunities" offered to the people of this country to rise to lofty positions, and called on the students to recognise their real position and to join with the workers in demonstrating on May Day.

Sentence on June 19.

For this "serious crime," the two young comrades have been found guilty. The penalty is 1 year, or an indeterminate sentence of 3 months to 3 years. Sentence will be passed on June 19.

This decision is in line with the upholding of the conviction of Comrade Gitlow and the affirmation of hte criminal anarchy law in this state and the probable suctainment of the criminal syndicalism laws in all the states of the country. It is apparent that the government is making all preparations to wage another attack on the entire working class of the country, and is concentrating its attention first on the Communists. This must be met with a united front on the part of all workers in this country. Reaction is setting in and only the united efforts of the workers can combat it. The time for such a united front has come, and all trade unions, workers' organizations, etc., must prepare to meet the new challenge.

The Labor Defense Council is fighting the cases and needs funds very badly. Contributions should be sent at once to the Labor Defense Council New York Section, 108 E. 14th St., New York City.

New Laws Won't Help Negroes.

To the DAILY WORKER:—I notice in today's paper James Weldon Johnson of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People says, "So long as the states fail to put an end to this disgrace to our country just so long will there be a public demand for a federal law to put the power of the federal government behind the suppression of lynching."

From my own observation I fail to notice that the federal government cares any more about the Negroes than the states. When I was in the army at Camp Jackson, S. C., there were some Negro soldiers in the prison camp. These men were charged with mutiny. These men were kept in prison about a year without trial.

Held in Prison Illegally.

One day I asked an officer whether these men could be held that way and whether it was not a violation of one of the articles of war which says, "If a man can not be tried in 45 days he must be released but can be brot to trial within a year."

The officer told me they could not but that their council "lilly white" had never asked to have them tried.

This statement can be verified by Capt. Fowler of Company C., 48th Infantry or most any of the men under his command between July 11, 1919, and July 11, 1920.—Amos E. Kirk.

The Problem of Getting the News

By L. Magyar

THE weakest side of the Communist press is undoubtedly its informatory side. We are not concerned with the question of whether our press keeps its working class readers well or badly informed in the journalistic sense. We are not concerned with the various journalistic methods of dishing up information.

But the fact remains that in point of actual information we are weak, extraordinarily weak. Our press is young, we have but few qualified collaborators at our disposal, our press is financially weak, depends solely upon the penny of the workers, refuses to share the wages of corruption which form the main source of income of the bourgeois and social democratic press.

But information, news,—in a capitalist state of society these are a commodity, they cost money, and money is scarce in our press undertakings.

IT is thus easily comprehensible that our press is badly off with regard to information, and that we cannot compete with the great guns of the bourgeois (and social democratic) press. We should be the victims of a delusion if we were to assume ourselves capable of competing.

It is not the case, and will not be the case for a long time to come. With the exception of the press of the Soviet Union, whose information service, if not exactly brilliant, is at least better organized than that of the press of our Western (to say nothing at all of our Eastern) parties, our news service is not only in a very sorry condition, but we have no Communist foreign news service whatever. And this is the pivot upon which the whole matter depends. It is here that we must apply the lever if we are to accomplish anything.

The position must be faced openly, and the fact recognized that we possess no Communist news service.

THE bourgeoisie is thoroly well aware of the value of information. The information service of the world is organized at the present time in such a manner that even the Communist press is dependent for information on bourgeois sources. There is simply no other source of information. It is true that the "Rosta" furnishes information referring to the Soviet Union, and overcomes incredible difficulties in the determined effort to fulfil its task. But for news from all other countries we are dependent on the bourgeois telegraphic agencies.

These bourgeois news agencies which represent as a general rule the most reactionary of capitalist groups, are under the control of the governments, or are frequently enuf more reactionary in tendency than even the governments. This is the case in England, where the Reuter agency is completely in the hands of the South African diamond fields and gold mines, and of the groups of capitalists possessing large interests in India. It is again the case in France, where the Havas agency works hand in hand with the right wing of the bloc national.

INFORMATION from abroad is thus furnished by news agencies under the control of either reactionary capitalist groups or of their governments. In both cases the news agencies are influenced and inspired by the governments in questions of foreign policies. There is no need to point out the effect this is bound to have on the nature of the information imparted. Facts are passed over in silence, misrepresented, exaggerated, in accordance with the requirements and interests of the governments and ruling groups concerned. Even in Marx's lifetime this was so much the case that he was able to write in a letter to Kugelmann that the capitalist press of today is capable of creating legends and myths within a few weeks or months. And the up-to-date legends of the capitalist press are as well adapted to supporting the interests of the up-to-date ruling class as the legends of the ancients and of the middle ages were adapted to maintaining the interests of the rulers of those days. Midges are represented as elephants, and elephants as midges, according to requirements.

The most dangerous part of it is that the news service of the world is so organised that the French, English, German, and other telegraphic agencies not only serve the ends of the French, English, German and other governments, but the interests of all the governments of the world. This fact is but little recognized, and it is worth while to throw some detailed light upon it. The most powerful news agencies of the world form a single concern, known under the name of the associated telegraphic agencies. The following agencies are members of this organization:

Reuter (England), Official News Office (Austria), Agence Telegraphique Belge (Belgium), Agence Telegraphique (Bulgaria), Rihaus Buros (Denmrak), Agenca Fabra (Spain), Finlako Notirburo (Finland), Agence d'Athene (Greece), Niederlande Telegraaf Agnetschat (Holland), Agence Telegraphique Hongrois (Hungary), Agence Stefani (Italy), Norsk Telegrammburo (Norway), Agence Telegraphique Polonaise (Poland), Havas (France), Havas (Portugal), Orient Radio (Roumania), Swedish Telegraph Agency (Sweden), Agence Suisse (Switzerland), Tscheteka, (Czechoslovakia), Agence d'Antolie (Turkey), Agence d'Avala (Yugoslavia), Elta (Lithuania), Esta (Esthonia), Latvian Telegraph Agency (Latvia), Associated Press (North America), Havas (South America), Reuter (China) Wolff (Germany), Kokissai (Japan).

THIS list is sufficient evidence that this organization spreads its ramifications all over the world. All these news agencies have contracts with one another. On the terms of these agreements these agencies "exchange" news with one another, each agency reserving the right in the first place of refusing to publish certain news, and secondly of having news whose publication and dissemination appear of special importance circulated, accompanied by a special notice, at the expense of the agency. In actual practice this agreement means that the Wolff office, Reuter, Havas, Stefani, etc., remit to Germany, England, France, Italy, etc., only such news of Yugoslavia as the Yugoslavian government wishes to be published, and whose publication does not run counter to the interests of the governments of the countries concerned. The formulation, standpoint, and journalistic political treatment of events is left to each individual agency. Thus we learn nothing about Japan except what the Japanese government wishes us to learn, and that in a form and elucidation which appears desirable to the Japanese government. And this does not apply to Japan only, but to the whole world.

It may of course be pointed out that these are not the only agencies in the world; there are a number of other and independent agencies. In the United States there is the United Press, in England the Exchange company, in France the "Radio" and "San Fil," in Germany the Telegraphic Union, etc. But these agencies are again associated in cartels; some of them are even more reactionary than the members of the great concern, and they are in any case one and all bourgeois agencies.

SOME feeble efforts have been made towards founding agencies better representing working class interests. Thus the "Federated Press" was formed in America, but its lack of capital scarcely permits it to compete with the great agencies. And in Germany there is the "social democratic parliament service," which has of late made the attempt to organise a foreign service. But all these organizations are but weak, and the "social democratic parliament service" is naturally social democratic.

Up to now the Communist parties have made no attempt at forming independent agencies for the news service. The German Communist Party forms a praiseworthy exception to this rule, for it has founded the "Communist Press Service," which at least reports the events of the German labor movement from their original sources. The telegraphic agency of the "Inprecorr" took up this work lately, but has so far been obliged to confine itself to reporting information on the most important events in the labor movement, on party life in Soviet Russia, on the white terror, etc.

At the present time the Communist press is thus dependent on the bourgeois sources for information regarding the most important events taking place in the labor movement of the West, and even for information on the revolutionary movement in the East. The fact that some few Communist organs here and there possess their own reporters makes no difference to this, or at least very little.

WHAT have we to do? It would be exceedingly simple to issue a slogan. We must have our own Communist organization, a Communist telegraphic agency. But every prerequisite is lacking. At the present time our press cannot raise the money required by such an organization and its running expenditure. We must of course strive towards the final goal of a Communist news service. But we shall not attain this goal all at once, and meanwhile we must manage somehow. The following suggestions may be made for trasitional measures:

1. We must continue to make use of the bourgeois sources of information. It must however not be permitted to make use of the news material supplied by the bourgeois agencies without elucidating it in such a manner as to render its real import clear to the workers. The comrades working up this material for our newspapers must themselves be thoroly informed on questions of foreign politics. Otherwise we may continue in the future, as in the present, to permit our Communist press to act as a channel for the propaganda of bourgeois governments.
2. Every party must begin at once with the organization of an inland information service, commissioned to report on the labor movement of the country.
3. The parties must coordinate their information services, and the larger parties must endeavor to send reporters to the more important among the neighboring countries.
4. The editors of the central organs of the larger parties must organise a daily exchange of information (with the aid of the "Inprecorr" telegraphic agency).
5. The "Inprecorr" telegraphic news agency must be extended.

THE measures here proposed are by no means exhaustive, and do not lead rapidly to our goal. But they are at least capable of realization, and they lead none the less to the goal, tho slowly,—to the emancipation of the Communist press from bourgeois influence. It is exceedingly difficult to solve this problem. Here we have merely drawn the rough outlines of the question, and briefly indicated the lines upon which it may be solved.

The problem must however be solved, if we are to have a Bolshevist press.

DOUKHABORS ARE PERSECUTED BY BRITISH POLICE

Pacifist Sect Robbed of Their Property

VICTORIA, B. C., June 14.—Here is a story rivalling in cold-blooded cruelty the incident which the poet Longfellow immortalized in Evangeline. It did not happen nl Bulgaria but here in British Columbia under the protection of the Union Jack, the flag that is reputed to stand for the liberties which the pirate empire holds in trust for all those who come under her jurisdiction.

The Doukabor, a religious sect, opposed to war, settled down in British Columbia. Because they are conscious objectors against bloodshed or violence of any sort, they refused to send their children to the government schools where they would be taught that killing in behalf of the ruling class was highest form of virtue.

In retaliation for their refusal to send their children to the government schools, the police broke into the Doukabor offices, took all their books, papers, safe and other office eqipment. They seized the mill where the year's supply of wheat was stored. They seized all the possessions of this pacifist sect and put them up for auction. A tractor that cost $3,000.00 was sold for $52.00. An automobile worth $500.00 was sold for $35.00. In all $20,000 worth of property went under the hammer for $250.00

Police Witnout Pity

Here is an excerpt from a letter written by a Doukabor to a radical in Victoria: "When the police were taking the flour and wheat a lot of men and women begged the police not to take their last bread; to have pity on the children and not to leave us without bread, but the police did not pay any attention to the entreaties of the women and children. Then all knell and cried and prayed for the police to pity them, but the crowd of 200 men were bold to make them act fearlessly.

"Our people asked them not to take the seeds that were set aside for planting. The police replied by beating them savagely, with whips and sticks. One woman was hurt so bad that she was taken to the house unconscious and she is still in bed. She has four children. They beat the men also very badly and many were bleeding. And now good friends we write you the exact truth and ask you to come to our aid."

There is a valuable lesson in the treatment accorded to the Doukabor, by the capitalists of British Columbia. Those unfortunate people were into Vancouver to break the latest longshoremens' strike in that port. The Doukabor did not know what it was all about, so they scabbed. They served the master class well. And what is their reward? The foregoing story is the answer.

Big Victory on Economic Front in U. S. S. R.

By M. A. SKROMNY.

WAY back in 1920, while the young Soviet Republic was being attacked on nineteen different fronts by the capitalist robbers of the world in a desperate attempt to destroy the workers' and peasants' government, the Poles invaded the Ukraine. They captured the capital, Kiev. But like all the other foreign invaders they were unable to remain, being driven out and almost annihilated by the victorious Red Army.

Altho they remained in the Ukraine a very short time they did enough damage to be felt for many years.

While retreating in haste they paused long enough to destroy public institutions, to blow up government buildings, etc. Perhaps the greatest crime against the poplation committed by the "civilized" invaders was the blowing up of the bridges over the River Dnieper connecting the city with the rural population, the villages from which the city was getting its food supplies.

Up until the end of 1924 there was no possibility of rebuilding these bridges. The Dnieper is the Mississippi of the Ukraine. There was no money to spare for such an enormous construction, and no machinery on hand for such a job. Finally in November, 1924, they began to work on the reconstruction of the main bridge. The work was divided among the different mills and foundries of the city. They began to construct first the needed machinery for the works, obtaining some of it from other Russian cities.

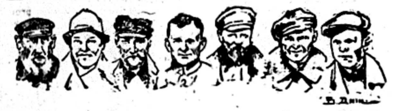
It was quite a big job, but they did it. They "Americanized Bolshevism" as one of the workers expressed it. They worker two shifts and in some cases three shifts. About a thousand workers participated in all. It took them about nine months to do it, but finally, on May 10th of this year they celebrated the official opening of the Bosh bridge, named after a famous Ukrainian revolutionists, Eugene Bosh and the Rusanov bridge.

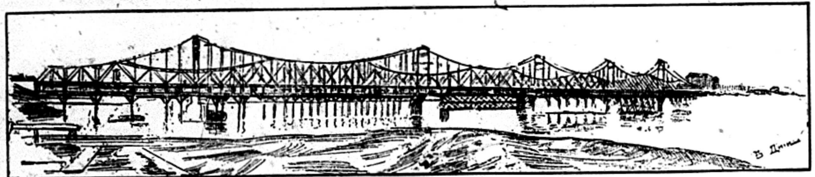
On May 10th, thousands of workers and peasants from the nearby villages came to the bridges to celebrate the official opening. The trade unions, the factories, the schools, and other organizations sent their delegations and banners to the celebration. Representatives of the government and the army participated. Congratulations were read from the central government. Speeches were made by representatives of the workers who participated in the construction of the bridge.

Exactly at 1 p. m., the red ribbon closing the bridge was cut to the sound of The International played by the bands and the cheering of the thousands.

The workers of Kiev have won one of the greatest victories on the economic front! Our congratulations to the Kiev comrades!

The Workers Who Bossed the Job





Another Monument to the Triumphant Struggle of Soviet Labor.

SEND IT ON

A CERTAIN southern community of very moral people had been loud and emphatic in its criticism of the character of the commercial motion picture, and equally insistant upon the need for a censor "to do something about it." The local film exchange was much surprised when one of the church organizations in this town sent in for "Lillies of the Field." They were told that this film represented the "demi-monde," and that it was "hardly suited for church purposes."

"Send it on," was the reply, "we want to make money."

In reporting this story, The Film Daily undoubtedly intended to hand a dig to the prurient censorship hunters among the "goody-goody" church crowd. But they did more—they exposed the basic determinant of conduct in capitalist society—that of making money. A church will run "Three Weeks" in order to put a roof on the parish house.

LABOR DEFENSE COUNCIL CALLS FOR "RALLY AGAINST REACTION" JUNE 28

The principal order of business at the last meeting of the Chicago Conference for Labor Defense and Relief was the arrangement of a rally against reaction protest mass meeting for June 28, to culminate the national conference of all labor defense organizations which meets the same day.

Prominent speakers from among the delegates will address this meeting, among them being Bishop William Montgomery Brown, the "red bishop of Ohio," author of "Christianism and Communism." Bishop Brown is probably the best known rebel churchman in the world today because he has figured in several heresy trials for his beliefs, the last of them only recently in Ohio. He has always supported every working class defense cause and will take part in this great unity effort.

Another speaker is expected to be Alexander Howatt, the fighting chief of the Kansas coal diggers, who himself went to jail time after time to fight to a frazzle Gov. Allen's notorious industrial court law.

There will be other well-known figures among the delegates who will speak at the mass meeting. Among them will be William Z. Foster, Scott Nearing and C. E. Ruthenberg. The meeting will be held at Temple Hall, the headquarters of the Plasterers' Union, at Marshfield Ave. and Van Buren street.

Other business taken up at this well attended and enthusiastic meeting included raising of a local bail fund and progress in the organizing of ex-service men for a determined campaign for the freedom of Crouch and Trumbull, imprisoned U. S. soldiers.

It was decided to meet every Friday night until the national conference on June 28, at Greek Workers' Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave.

Seek Time Saving Schemes.

MOSCOW, June 14.—Leon Trotsky has been appointed chairman of the commission for raising the productivity of labor. In addition he also is a member of the presidium, or supreme economic council; chairman of the concessions committee and head of the scientific and technical branch of the supreme council.

His first step in his new position today was to offer premiums to workers fro labor and time-saving schemes.

BUILDERS AT WORK IN NEW YORK

THE Hungarian Yorkville branch of New York pledge that it will secure at least sixty new subscribers for the DAILY WORKER during Red Week. This news is just brought in by the wide awake DAILY WORKER agent of that branch, Comrade Szepesi. If every New York branch will follow the splendid example set by these Hungarian comrades then the circulation of the DAILY WORKER in New York will double next week.

A COMPLETE catalog of DAILY WORKER subscribers is kept up to date at the DAILY WORKER New York office thru the volunteer help of Comrades Frank Miller, Rose Chester, Fay Croll and Rose Schwartz. This catalog is available for the use of Branch DAILY WORKER agents and organizers. Every DAILY WORKER branch agent should bring the list of branch members, compare it with the subscription list, and then get after those members who are not yet subscribers until they do their duty.

THE New York office of the DAILY WORKER at 108 East 14th Street has a few sets of the Magazine Sections of the DAILY WORKER containing all instalments of Comrade Lassen's wonderful story, "Masters and Slaves" that have appeared to date. Get a few of these sets during Red Week, ask some of your friends, neighbors or shopmates to read Lassen's masterpiece and they will surely want to subscribe to the DAILY WORKER to get the rest of the story.

IF you have not yet settled with your branch for the Paris Commune Press Pageant subscription tickets you must do so at once. Every subscription ticket must be returned or paid for. Naturally your branch can not balance its account until you do so. The New York District Executive Committee will be asked to take disciplinary measures against those who neglect to make this accounting.

English Branch in Boston Aids T. U. E. L. with Picnic Funds

WORCESTER, Mass.—The English Branch of this city, at its last meeting decided that twenty-five per cent of the proceeds of the picnic to be held July 19 would be sent to the Trade Union Educational League. This action was taken on the basis of the letter sent to the branch by the district office instructing all branches and C. C. C.'s to arrange an affair for the benefit of the Trade Union Educational League.

An interseting debate has been arranged between A. F. Lewis, organizer for the remnants of the socialist party in this state, and Comrade Max Lerner, local organizer of the Workers Party. The debate will take place on June 19 at the M. C. O. F. Hall, 112 Front street. On this occasion the socialists will be given an opportunity to hear of the role they have been playing as the tools of the bosses in this country.

Open air meetings are being held every Sunday at the City Hall. Last Sunday Comrade Tom Bell, acting district organizer, was the chief speaker. Fine audiences are attending these meetings, and much literature and many copies of the DAILY WORKER are sold to the crowds who attend.

AS SURE AS DAY OR NIGHT
-:- OR THE REVOLUTION -:-

The development of proletarian writers proceeds with the growth of the Communist movement.

In this development the Little Red Library offers unequalled opportunities.

All subjects of working class interest can be covered: social and industrial problems, history, philosophy, fiction, poetry and art . . . the field is well-nigh unlimited.

There are only these main requirements: the work must be clearly of working class character and interest, and . . . bear this in mind—

It must for the present at least, be limited to 10,000 to 30,000 words.

Original manuscripts will be given most careful consideration—and translations and suggestions for reprint most heartily welcomed.

Mexico Openly Challenges Wall Street Imperialism

24-HOUR ALL [illegible] STRIKE HUGE SUCC[illegible], SAY REPORTS FROM BIG INDUSTRY CENTERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 15.—With the leaders of the Kuo Min Tang demanding that Chinese troops be sent to occupy Shanghai, oust foreign imperialists and enforce abrogation of humiliating treaties, the 24-hour strike that today is going on all over China is reported a success in most of the great cities heard from at noon. And rising to a roar is the demand for war upon Great Britain, to drive the British out.

This city is already on strike. Peking has wired that the greatest demonstration in its history is being held. Strikes and memorial meetings for the dead are being held in Peking, Nanking, Mukden, Kirin, Kalgan, Tsing Tsao, Chung King, Kiukiang and many other cities. Money is being raised for Shanghai strikers and for relief of the dead and wounded.

Demands War on Britain.

SHANGHAI, June 15. — Open demands that China declare war on Great Britain were being made by Chinese radicals here today.

The demands came as a climax to a wave of anti-British feeling that has been sweeping China as the result of the killing of eight Chinese by British marines in Hankow last week.

Parts of the Chinese press were publishing warlike editorials urging

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

THERE was a time when children were supposed to open their ears, shut their mouths and ask no questions. As a matter of fact those days are not gone entirely. There was an old saying in Ireland to the effect that it was better "to be a devil than a child." Which carried the hint that a devil was treated better. Working class children are at the receiving end of everything unpleasant, whether it be the pickled willow or the odoriferous hocus pocus that is designed to make little morons, babbits, rotarians and pa(y)triots out of them.

LAYING in front of me on the desk is a red book entitled: "Fairy Tales For Workers Children:" I am not partial to fairy tales and tho I knew the book was gotten out by the DAILY WORKER Publishing company, a memory of children's stories that I read when a child prejudiced me against it. Before opening the book I happened to pick up a copy of the Federated Press news sheet and spied the following paragraph by Carl Haessler:

"THERE is no propaganda book so suitable for the children of class conscious labor men and radicals as the Fairy Tales for Workers' Children, published by the DAILY WORKER Publishing Co., of Chicago. Large clear black type, beautiful drawings in colors and a simple effective propaganda text on the broadest class lines make it an ideal instrument for its purpose."

• • •

THIS was encouraging. The stories are translated from the German of Herminia Zur Muhlen, by Ida Dailes. The language is simple and graceful. It is the kind children and grownup people will like. And the pictures! There are some by a German artist and very pretty ones by Lydia Gibson—pretty and instructive. The first story is about a Rosebush. Of course the Rosebush belongs to the bourgeoisie and when a proletarian sympathizer in the form of a gust of wind blows some blossoms from the Rosebush out thru the gate to some poor children who longed for them the bourgeois lady was mad and decided to pluck the blossoms before "the rabble" would get them all.

WHAT happened to the lady is interesting: "And as the woman bent down to pick the flowers, the Rosebush hit her in the face with a twig, stretching out all her thorns like a cat stretching out its claws and scratched up the woman's face. She screamed aloud. The woman did not want to cease from her task, but the Rosebush was as wilful as she; wherever the hand of the woman reached, a large thorn sprang out and scratched her till she bled. At last the woman, with torn clothes, with scratched, dirty hands, had to turn back home."

THIS is only an eyeful of what the book contains. It was written especially for children but the grownups will get a kick out of it. It would not surprise us to see it made the basis for sixteen long articles by some stoolpigeon like Spolansky to show what havoc the reds are making among the youth. It is the best antidote to the poison now spread among

RIFFS CAPTURE BIBANE HEIGHTS ON ROAD TO FEZ

Socialists Give Up Capital Levy Demand

PARIS, France, June 15.—The Moroccan troops have retaken the important fortress of Bibane, guarding the road to Fez, and have wiped out the entire garrison of the French invaders. The fortress was burned by the Riffians after they had captured it. Premier Painleve, meanwhile, was flying back to France where he will report to his cabinet Tuesday morning, and to the chamber of deputies Tuesday afternoon.

Col. Freydenberg's and Gen. Columbat's troops made desperate but successful efforts to relieve the heights of Bibane. The garrison consisted of officers and seventy five private soldiers.

Socialists Again Betray Workers

The French capitalists who instigated the invasion of northern Africa, have little to fear from the socialists during the coming discussion of the Moroccan war before the chamber of deputies. The socialists, just as they previously supported the imperialists in indorsing the Moroccan campaign

TRUSTEES FIRE HOWARD FACULTY MEMBERS WHO SIDED, WITH STUDENTS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15—Faculty members who were sympathetic with the Negro students during their recent strike against compulsory military training and abuses enacted by the white president, Durkee, have been discharged by the Howard University trustees.

Even the land is now being militarized.

STRIKE LEADER FRAMED UP BY SUGAR BARONS

Arrest Many Filipino Strikers in Hawaii

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HONOLULU, T. H., June 15—Pablo Manlapit, leader of the striking Filipino sugar plantation workers in Oahu, who was recentl convicted on a frame-up charge of conspiracy in the first circuit court of the territory, is appealing his case to the supreme court.

In a statement after the trial, Manlapit said, "I proved an alibi from the records of the detectives, George Bruns and Alfred Afat, who were employed by Mr. Arthur McDuffie to shadow me the day in question. I discredited the testimony of the witnesses against me by the evidence of Sheriff David R. Trask and the police records.

In spite of this, I was convicted by a prejudiced jury. I asked for a new trial on the strength of new evidence, filing affidavits showing that the case against me had been framed-up by agents of the sugar planters and the witnesses against me bribed to swear falsehoods."

His plea for a new trial was denied and he is appealing to the supreme court of the territory of Hawaii. The strike of the sugar workers continues with many arrests being made of the Filipino participants.

'NO FOREIGN INTERFERENCE' IS MEXICO'S REPLY TO KELLOGG'S DRIVE AGAINST MILITANT LABOR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—American dollar diplomacy, dictated by Wall Street, was faced here today with the open defiance by Mexico of Coolidge's arbitrary ultimatum delivered last week.

Mexico's militant note against U. S. imperialism was struck in that part of Mexico's reply to Washington's arbitrary dictum, which declares that, "Mexico does not accord to any foreign country the right to intervene in any form in her domestic affairs."

This bold declaration of the Mexican republic engaged the immediate attention of President Coolidge and his secretary of state, Kellogg, upon their return here today from a week-end cruise down the Potomac on the presidential yacht, Mayflower.

Discuss Mexican Situation

Coolidge was accompanied on his week-end trip, during which the Mexican situation was thoroly discussed, by General "Black Jack" Pershing, leader of the last military invasion of Mexico; Maj. Gen. John J. LeJeune, supposed to be a capitalist "expert" on Mexican and Latin-American affairs; and by Arthur Brisbane, spokesman for the publisher, William Randolph Hearst, who has vast estates, estimated at 1,000,000 acres, in Mexico.

The Mexican reply was handed direct to the newspapers on Sunday. It declared that it was the duty of the Mexican government to "rectify Mr. Kellogg's sattement as required by truth and justice." President Calles declares his government will not countenance foreign interference in her

1,200 MINERS STRIKE IN ANTHRACITE FIELD TO ENFORCE DEMANDS

ASHLEY, Pa., June 15.—(FP)—About 1,200 miners employed in Lehigh and Wilkes-Barre Coal Co. colliery number 20 at Ashley are striking in protest of the company's failure to provide sufficient help for drivers and helpers. This is the first strike in many years at this mine.

CASUALTIES IN BOOZE WAR ARE MOUNTING UP

GangstersMakeMistake of Shooting Cops

(Special to The Daily Worker)

Last Saturday's shooting affray between gunmen from the detective bureau and members of an alleged bootlegging gang, in which two policemen and one gangster bit the dust, has created another one of those fake drives on crime which has been such a montonous feature of Chicago life ever since Police Chief Morgan Collins assumed his present job.

Before the advent of prohibition there was no money in the liquor business except what could be made openly. In those days the gangsters were employed by rival politicians in the democratic and republican parties and by their agents in the labor movement. Gunmen were a necessary adjunct to the equipment of a crooked labor faker who traded the confidence of the members of his union to the employers for money. Those rival grafters often shot it out with each other. Owing to their usefulness to the politicians they led a charmed life as far as jails were concerned and the prospect of a dangling noose in front of their necks never gave them any uneasiness. But let a striker utter a word of warning to a scab and the police authorities would act and no influence was exerted to save him from the heavy hand of the law.

With the advent of prohibition the gangsters went into the bootlegging business to their profit and also to the joy of the undertakers. Hoodlums who hitherto were satisfied with a bone now wanted the juicy steak. Naturally there were quarrels. And behind the gangsters were those who were supposed to enforce the law. Prosecuting attorneys, police, prohibition agents and judges were mixed up in the game. There was profit in it and in any capitalist country those who get away with it are honored and even those who are caught get away provided they take enough while they are at it. Only the pikers get punished.

Town Was Wide Open.

Under the William Hale Thompson regime everything in Chicago was running wide open. The red light district did not have to pull down the blinds and the women of easy virtue who now play the suburbs were working unmolested within a stone's throw of the Loop. But while this

TRIAL OF MERRICK AND COMRADES POSTPONED UNTIL OCTOBER BY JUDGE

By C. E. RUTHENBERG.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PITTSBURGH, Penn., June 15.—Fred Merrick together with Attorney Meredith Marshall, S. E. Ferguson and eight other defendants appeared in court this morning to answer the charge of sedition only to have the case postponed by the judge until October 8.

It appears that the setting of the trial was a bluff to intimidate the defendants. The bluff was called by the defense statement in the the court that they were ready for trial. The defense demanded that the trial take place but the judge refused.

ARROGANT TEXTILE BARONS FIRE 400 WORKERS WHO DARED STRIKE AGAINST WAGE CUT AND SPEEDUP

By WILLIAM SIMONS.

SHELTON, Conn., June 15.—The Sidney Blumenthal Co. of Shelton, Conn., fired the 400 striking weavers and loom fixers when they appeared for their pay yesterday, after being out since Monday, June 6.

This was in line with the autocratic conduct of the firm in the handling of the dispute. When the committee representing the weavers spoke to the manager on Monday, presenting their demands, this autocrat replied: "Nothing doing."

The company got that way, because it is in open shop Connecticut, because the strike in 1913 was lost, and because there has been no union in the plant. Trouble began in January when the company announced a cut of 10 per cent, in reality from 13 per cent to 45 per cent on different kinds of work.

Unorganized, the weavers left the looms. The company agreed to 63c an hour on good or bad material, but upon their return, it violated its promise. A Weavers Club sprang into existence, which still functions.

The Two Loom System.

The second shot in the company offensive was fired several weeks ago with the imposition of the two loom system. It was tried out for a few weeks, and the men found that it was impossible to make a day's pay. They met and decided to send a committee to the manager, a report to be given that night, but the resentment was so keen that when the commitee came back to the factory, all he weavers left their looms.

The strike was on. Tuesday morning, the loomfixers went to the manager, trying to bring about a settlement, but were told to work or go home. The loomfixers met and voted to go out by more than a two thirds vote.

The Demands.

The demands are: 1, the abolition of

SENTENCE COLO. KLAN LEADER IN CONTEMPT CASE

Dodged Income Tax Payment Is Charge

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DENVER, Colo., June 15—Dr. John Galen Locke, grand dragon of the ku klux klan in Colorado, who was imprisoned last Saturday for an indefinite term for contemtp of court today received a definite sentence of ten days in jail and a fine of $1,500. Federal Judge J. Foster Symes who imposed the sentence said Locke would be kept in jail until the fine was paid.

Locke's sentence is an outgrowth of his failure to produce records of his financial transactions for investigators who are trying to determine whether he violated the law in not making an income tax return.

DOVER, N. J., ROLLING MILL WORKERS LAID OFF BECAUSE THEY "DON'T PRODUCE ENOUGH IN THE SUMMER"

By COPOULOS

(Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 15.—Six hundred workers were laid off in the Dover, N. J., rolling mills. The boss said: "I am sorry to tell you workers that I have to close my shop on account of the hot weather. I know very well that you wouldn't produce as much as you ought to, so you may as well go home and try to find another job for the summer season. You have my sympathy but I can't help it. In fall I will open again and you will be welcome to your job. Sorry."

The funniest thing is that many of the workers think that this is quite proper. They say: "Since we can tend only to 3 ovens in the hot season, instead of to 5 ovens, as all the year round, we can't blame the boss. He must look out for himself."

It never entered their mind that they must also look out for themselves.

Glass Dealers Get Windfall-Storm Also Ruins Crops

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa June 15.—Dealers in glass estimated today that sixty thousand window panes were smashed by the record breaking hail storm that swept over this city and Omaha Sunday afternoon.

There was not enough glass in stock in either city today to supply the demand and deaders have wired for glass by the carloads.

It was estimated that eight to ten carloads of glass would be needed.

Reports from surrounding farm districts stated that hail virtually wiped out crops.

War Debt Payments Trickle Into United States Money Chests

WASHINGTON, June 15—Great Britain today paid the United States the small sum of $68,310,000 on her $4,600,000,000 war debt, according to a treasury announcement. Payment was made thru the federal reserve bank of New York.

Other debt payments received by the United States today were:

Finland, $133,650.
Hungary, $14,905.
Lithuania, $75,000.
Poland, $500,000.

During the present year, payments from European debtors who have already made funding agreements with the United States will total $162,153,000, in addition to a payment of $20,500,000 by France as interest on her debt for relief supplies.

Bar Association Charges Scopes Case "Collusion"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CATTANOOGA, Tenn., June 15.—The Tennessee bar association will ask Frank Thompson, states' attorney generau, to refuse to prosecute the Scopes case should it reach the supreme court, on the ground that John Scopes, who will be tried next month for violating the state anti-evolution law, was indicted by collusion, it was announced here.

Scopes, on his way from New York to his home in Dayton, Tenn., when asked in Washington why he chose Clarance Darrow as his attorney, replied he was "chiefly impressed by the breadth of Darrow's vision as shown in his appeal to the jury in the Big 'Bill' Haywood trial in Idaho."

Norway Ready to Start Search for Lost Artic Flyer

LONDON, June 15.—Inclement weather delayed the start from Spitzbergen of the Norwegian government's relief expedition in its search for Raoul Amundsen, missing North Pole explorer.

Advices from Spitzergen said that two seaplanes after successful trial flights in Advent Bay were waiting for clearer weather.

No word has as yet been received from the Amundsen party, which left Spitzbergen May 21 for the Polar regions.

COMMUNIST IS RE-ELECTED TO SEATTLE COUNCIL

No Opposition to Jones in Painters' Union

SEATTLE, June 15—William H. Jones, business agent of Painters Local No. 300, the Glass Workers' Union, Local No. 188, and Sign Writers' Local No. 435 one of the six Communists under expulsion from the Seattle Central Labor Council won an overwhelming victory over the conservative forces by being re-elected at the time of nomination.

In his own local, Painters' Union No. 300, one of the progressive local unions, Jones was nominated by a vote of more than two to one. Out of an attendance of 240 members present at the meeting Jones received 160, while his opponent A. E. Bock, former business agent and conservative in spite of strenuous efforts received 77 of the votes cast.

At the meeting of the Glass Workers' Local 188, E. Tarman was nominated as one of the opponents of Jones, however, in view of the fact that he had not the slightest chance, withdrew from the race. In the Sign Writers' Local 435 Jones was nominated without any opposition. Therefore at the meeting of the District Council of Painters consisting of the above three local unions Jones was declared elected without opposition for the ensuing term of six months. The council will thereby save more than $100 in costs, the expense necessary for elections when there are opponents.

Paul K. Mohr, another of the six Communists under expulsion and promient in the local labor movement was nominated by his local Bakers' Union No. 9, without opposition as assistant business agent and delegate to the Central Labor Council. The same victory is being predicted for all Communist delegates under expulsion.

THIRTEEN HUNDRED MORE MINERS LAID OFF AT VALIER, ILL., AFTER 14 MONTHS OF PART TIME WORK

By JOHN MATOSICH

(Worker Correspondent)

VALIER, Ill., June 15.—Today we were officially notified that the Peoria, Burlington and Quincy railroad mine, known as the Valier Coal company mine, would suspend work indefinitely. Thirteen hundred men were laid off.

The rumors were spread by the mine officials that some repairs had to be made, but the miners know better, for they have been working only two or three days a week for the last 14 months.

Work will be suspended for at least five weeks, the bosses announced.

UNION MINERS ON TRIAL FOR STRIKE DUTY

West Va. Courts Aid Coal Barons

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHARLESTOWN, W. Va. June 15.—Because they asked non-union mine workers to quit work and join the United Mine Workers, 136 unionists are being tried in Marion county by circuit court of Judge Merdith on contempt charges.

The facts developed by the trial show that the accused were arrested at the instigation of the New England Fuel & Transportation company. The general manager of those mines and every coal company witness has sworn that no violence, no intimidation and no threats were made by the unionists.

The charge, according to the coal company, is that they asked the nonunion miners to join them.

PROGRESSIVE MINERS DEMAND WORK OR RELIEF FOR STARVING, AND AN IMMEDIATE CONVENTION

By ALEX REID.

(Secretary, Progressive Miners' International Committee of the United Mine Workers of America)

Brother miners! From all over the country come reports of intense suffering among our brothers, their wives and families due to unemployment, starvation is stalking thruout the mining towns of the country, and many mining villages are completely deserted.

Never in the history of mining has the suffering been so general thruout the country with so little prospect of recovery, and in certain districts, starvation, while children mechanically move around, the picture of ill health caused by malnutrition.

Children Starved.

I talked with a school superintendent a few days ago, and commenting on the pupils at school, the workers' children, he said, "They come into school in the morning and a tragedy is plainly written on their face. Their whole demeanor is saddening, many of them not properly washed, no doubt for lack of soap, many in rags, unkept in every way, and all of them plainly hungry. Ambition, desire to learn completely gone, while a dark atmosphere surrounds the school house."

In one mining camp I visited, 50 per cent of the houses were empty, and going to wreck, many of them empty for two and some for three years, the owners, after a life of self-denial to build themselves a little home, to be a little independent in their old age, to be free from the spectre of evictions in the evening of their life, to pass a few quiet days in peace before they passed out into the great beyond, have been forced to move out with their offspring, most of them to the large cities where their conditions are terrible.

Further Poverty Threatened.

In Illinois, Ohio, and Indiana and to nearly as great an extent, the outlying districts from the central competitive field, the miners and their families are practically in collapse and unless some aid is soon forthcoming a condition will arise which lower wages and open shops will intensify and which will require all the powers of the workers to remedy.

With this situation staring us in the face, the progressive miners thruout the land are arousing their brothers to action, protest meetings are being called, demand is made for work in the coal mines, and failing that, that the state furnish work, or unemployment insurance.

Capitalism Owes Its Slaves a Living.

The progressive miners contend that it makes no difference how much work there is, their wives and families with themselves are entitled to a living, and demand that living from capitalist industry, or its child—the state.

The progressive miners are also showing the reason for this extraordinary wave of unemployment, the shifting of the center of production from the union fields to the nonunion fields, to break the standards of living, to cut deep into the wages of the miners, to break our working conditions in the mines, conditions which we have fought for thru many years of bloody struggle.

Sacrifices have been made that have thrilled the workers of the world, by the miners in their fights for justice, the Cabin creeks, the Ludlows, and Walsenburgs, the Calumets, the Dividen's, Pana's, and Herrin's, all attest to the struggle, that the miners have made and let no man believe those struggles have been in vain.

Let These Millions Feed Miners' Children!

The progressive miners are calling upon their brother slaves of the picks to organize and demand action for immediate relief from the government.

Millions of dollars are being spent by the government in China to crush the Chinese workers in their fight for justice.

Millions of dollars of blood money wrung out of the toilers' lives are being paraded in the Pacific to awe the world with the mailed fist of Yankee imperialism while the toilers at home are starving.

We demand the immediate return of the marines, and soldiers from China, the immediate return of the fleet from the Pacific, and the money used for those inhuman ventures be used to feed the straving workers in America.

Treachery in the Unions.

The progressive miners are showing what the workers' leaders are doing at this time of trial, what the Lewis, Farrington, Cappellini, gang of traitors are doing for the unemployed, refusing aid to the progressive miners in their noble fight in behalf of the rank and file, and their fights against wage cuts and reduced conditions.

The Lewis gang of fakers are not only refusing aid to the progressive miners, but they are lined up with the coal operators, thru their class colaboration schemes, thru their expulsions from office of the militant progressive coal diggers and the expelling from membership of the rank and file progressives.

Rank and File Demands Regular Convention.

Letters from every state in the union are pouring into the office of the progressive miners' committee, protesting against the inactivity of the Lewis fakers and demanding militant action in behalf of the rank and file. The committee is instructed by the militant rank and file to state that the vote for postponement of the regular constitituonal international convention is snowing under the treacherous proposal of the Lewis machine.

Brother miners! On behalf of our starving fellow workers, we, the progressive miners' committee of the U. M. W. of A. demand mass protest meetings against unemployment and starvation, demand government aid,—and to bring about a mass organised movement for the same,—we demand no postponement of the miners' convention, but the same to convene as soon as possible.

For Immediate Action

We demand the international executive board convene at once to arrange for same and we further demand that the international executive board at once interview and demand from the government authorities immediate relief for the unemployed miners.

Brothers, organize, and subscribe for the Progressive Miner, our militant rank and file paper.

Golf Caddies' Strike Wins More Wages from Pennsylvania Wealthy

By SANDE
(Worker Correspondent)

WILKINSBURG, June 15.—Three hundred caddies employed on the Edgewood country club's golf links, recently struck for and won an increase in wages after showing the caddie master a real display of solidarity.

These young rebels who last year were receiving 65 cents a round, and who sometime ago demanded and were given 85 cents, are now proud to announce that a short strike has forced this club of wealthy business men and capitalists to pay them a $1 a round.

Two members of the East Pittsburgh Junior group of the Young Workers League who are employed as caddies had an additional demand added which was also taken up as one condition upon which the caddies would return.

The caddie master had them divided into two classes. Class A boys were receiving more than the Class B boys. The Juniors pointed out that this was unfair as all boys did the same work and that there was only one class—the working class.

Before these successful strikes the caddies who are all young boys, were among the poorest paid in the Pittsburgh district, now they can tell the cock-eyed world they are among the highest paid and wish to announce that they are not thru as they are taking steps to organize a union among the caddies to win bigger victories.

Five thousand subs for Red Week.

SOVIET LABOR UNIONS ANSWER AMSTERDAM INTERNATIONAL ON BASIS OF ANGLO-RUSSIAN PACT

MOSCOW, May 19, (By Mail)—The Foreign Relations Committee of the All-Russian Trade Union Council has directed the following letter to the Amsterdam Trade Union Federation:

Dear Comrades: For various reasons, and in view of the London Conference of British and Russian Trade Unions, the plenary session of the All-Russian Central Trade Union Council could not be held sooner than April 30-May 3. The London Conference of the British and Soviet trade unions examined exhaustively both the question of trade union unity and the question of the relations of the All-Russian Central Trade Union Council and of the Soviet trade unions to the Amsterdam International.

The plenum of the All-Russian Trade Union Council ratified the work and decisions of the London conference and instructed its foreign relations commission to send you a reply. On the basis of these decisions we consider it our duty to inform you of the fact that the February 7 decision of your general council has made a very deep impression on our trade unions and on their membership.

Wanted a Joint Unconditional Conference.

We were of the opinion that our correspondence would bring about a greater mutual understanding resulting in a conference of our representatives with those of Amsterdam for the purpose of examining jointly the question of trade union unity—which would have constituted a first attempt at an objective treatment of this problem, which we consider to be of the greatest importance to the workers of the world.

We desired a joint unconditional conference of the representatives of the Soviet trade unions with those of Amsterdam. Your resolution rejects our proposal and makes such a conference conditional upon a previous declaration on our part to the effect that we desire to affiliate to Amsterdam.

The Aim of the Soviet Unions.

This would mean: affiliation to the Amsterdam International as it is, i.e., on the basis of its constitution and statutes. The statements of Oudegeest and Jouhaux wherein they confirm this view is of enormous importance. We find with deep regret that these interpretations and statements, even more than the Amsterdam resolution itself, sharpen our differences and far from promote unity.

We repeat that we are for a single international. Our aim, and the aim of the majority of the class conscious workers of the world is: To create a single trade union international comprising the organized workers of all countries and standing on the platform of the class struggle, and the final liberation of the working class from the yoke of capitalism.

Statutes Not Important.

Compared with this great goal, the statute question is of secondary importance. The trade unions of the Soviet Union are prepared to join a united trade union international whose statutes do not, on the whole, differ much from the statutes of the Amsterdam International.

The enumeration of aims of this united international could contain all the aims enumerated in the statutes of the Amsterdam International. However, the Soviet trade unions have no possibility of participating in the formulation of the statutes of the Amsterdam International.

For All-Inclusive International.

We are convinced that the United Trade Union International should include not only the Soviet trade unions, but all existing trade union organizations at present not affiliated to Amsterdam as well. In order to achieve this, the historical and political peculiarities of each country must be taken itno consideration.

How is this to be done? How can the mutual suspicion existing between the various sections of the divided trade union movement be removed.—without a personal conference or without an exhaustive and objective examination of these vital questions? The mutual acquaintance of the British and Soviet trade union representatives, and the sincere desire on both sides to achieve trade union unity thru joint conferences and joint methods, undoubtedly had good results.

Propose an International Meeting.

There is no doubt but that the recent London conference promoted the proletarian solidarity between the British and Soviet workers. Similarly, a conference between the representatives of the Russian trade unions and those of the Amsterdam International could, with mutual good will, serve as a beginning to the relaization of unity of the whole trade union movement.

We therefore suggest that the general council of the Amsterdam International revise its decision of Feb. 5, and 7, and convene a joint unconditional conference with the All-Russian trade union council, to deal with the question of trade union unity.

President: TOMSKY.
Secretary: DOGADOV.

I. C. C. Probes Freight Rates

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The interstate commerce commission today ordered an investigation of the proposal to cancel the present joint thru freight rates, provided by the application of the St. Paul, Minn., basis of rates from points in northern Iowa on the Chicago, Rock Island and Pacific railroad on shipments of wheat, corn, cereal products and other articles taking the same rates to St. Louis-San Francisco railroad points in Oklahoma and to apply high combination rates in lieu thereof.

LYNCH OF I. T. U. MUST THINK THE UNION USELESS

Can't Hold Gains If Union Don't Fight

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—In his speech at the 35th anniversary celebration of the local Typographical Union No. 377, James M. Lynch, president of the International, suggested that conservative means be adopted, which in common sense would indicate that the struggle against the bosses should be so modified that it would not disturb the profits of the bosses merely to help the workers interests.

He stated that "It suffices to hold what we have already gained," and he warned against "going over the limit" for fear of losing what has been gained. Evidently, Brother Lynch intends to break no speed laws in fighting against the bosses for our interests.

Why Have Unions, Brother Lynch?

Assertions like the above from the I .T. U. president ought to make our membership sit up and take notice. It is real Wahneta expression of the function of a labor union. It amounts to saying that the bosses are good fellows and will give us just what we need, no more and no less. But according to such logic, our union is not necessary and it may become a nuisance.

However, the members of our union think differently. They know the union is the only means by which the printers can defend their economic interests and fight steadily to beter them. They know (and others are distinctly beginning to feel it) that to hold what we already have is not sufficient—for the cost of living is continually on the upward climb.

Has He "Strayed?"—We'll Say So!

The members also know that it means a fight to even keep what we have, especially a fight against the open shop drive conducted by the bosses at the present time. Our membership disagrees with our international president at least on the above points. They believe he has strayed from the fundamental principles of our International Typographical Union.

As for the question of amalgamation in the printing trades, it is totally contrary to the ideas expressed by Brother Lynch. Amalgamation of the unions means strengthening of the unions to fight against the bosses for work day, etc. Brother Lynch's policy work day ,etc. Brother Lynch's policy is "Peace at any price"—with the bosses.

HAT WORKERS STRIKE FOR WAGE RAISE

Want More Pay and Better Conditions

NEW YORK.—Men's felt hat workers of Local 8, United Hatters of America, are striking for 15 per cent wage increases which the New York Hat Manufacturers' Association refuses so far to grant. About 3,000 workers, both men and women, are striking.

Boss Baits Collaboration Trap

Poor materials are given the workers, they claim, so that they are not able to make enough wages at present piece work rates. The strikers ask for better materials and improved conditions in their industry. One of the manufacturers suggests that a joint committee of workers and employers undertake to see that wages are brought up to standard levels in all shops.

He said that the empolyers were willing to see that individual shops below standard be brought up to the general level but that the association will not collectively accept the union demands. With poor logic he declares that the workers' requests would bring wages to $9 a day and that employers insist that most workers make this much already.

The Usual Threat

The men's felt hat manufacturing season is just at its height so that the union should have some advantage in that. The manufacturers are making the usual threat to move their shops 20 to 50 miles out of town in the hope of evading the union.

8-HOUR DAY IN STEEL MILLS IS ALL BUNK

Worker Tells of Gary Fairy Stories

By THOMAS
(Worker Correspondent)

PITTSBURGH, June 15. — Judge Gary, the noted steel slave-driver, once stated in a chamber of commerce meeting that they had the eight-hour day in force all thru the steel industry. Never was there a more brazen lie. There is no such a thing as a general eight-hour day. It is mostly ten or twelve hours and there are men working fourteen hours a day.

Of course, they have the eight-hour shift in certain departments which can be forced to produce six times as much as when they were on the ten-hour shift, or where it would be impossible for the men to last much more owing to the terrific heat. So you can see the only time that the steel corporation gives its employes anything is when they can get twice as much back. They will give water for blood any day and the blood of the workers flows freely in the United States Steel corporation works—altho it is never allowed to get outside the gates.

Workers Pay for Funerals.

When there has been a serious accident it is all hushed up. The steel company makes another boast, that is, that if a man gets killed in their works, that they will see that he gets a decent funeral. They see to that all right. They send their underbosses to make a collection from the workers who have to pay it all.

They are very desirous of giving flowers to the workers when they are dead. When those same workers were living they never had a chance to see or smell a flower as flowers would not grow near the hovels and shacks that workers live in.

A worker who has had the privilege of staying in the place for fifteen years is allowed to have one week's vacation with pay. After wasting his energy for fifteen years he is given a week to recover and get ready for another fifteen years' work. But there are not many who live or remain in the mills long enough to receive that pension as they are so broken after a few years in the mill that they have to retire or find some lighter work. There is no doubt that those who reach the pension stage deserve every penny of it for being able to stick it out that long.

Control Librarians.

The steel worker does not have much time for study thru the long hours. But even if he did the steel trust owns and controls the public library, so if the worker has time to read and gets a book from the library he can only get a certain type which the bosses allow. A worker could not get any of the latest educational books, but only stuff that will make the workers believe that support of the boss class is the only way to save the world from ruin.

Then they have meetings all thru the mill explaining what the capitalists have done for the workers. But for all that they are not so sure of themselves as they keep a very large force of police to guard their interests and in case the workers start to show a little class consciousness these coal and iron thugs will soon put a stop to it. They walk about with guns and balckjacks and if a worker gets into an argument with his boss they are right there to take the part of the boss.

Private Police and Courts.

Workers are arrested and fined for minor offenses and the money to pay the fine is taken out of the workers' pay without consent. These policemen watch whether a man is doing his work or not. If they catch anyone loafing they arrest him and take him to the foreman to be fired. It is a common sight to see two or three of these thugs hauling a worker to jail for all kinds of minor offenses.

The worst part of it is that they almost get their arms torn from their shoulders. The police and spies work as close together as if they were the Siamese twins. A worker no sooner will say something than it is in the ears of the foreman or police. If you mention "unions" you are immediately told that you are opening your mouth a little too wide and that it would be far wiser to keep it closed. If they hear another word from that same worker about unions he is red.

The workers are alwyas in fear of losing their jobs from the time they go in until the time they come out. There are so many men around the employment office that they do not give a rap what they do with men who are working, as they know they can get a dozen to take his place. The mills around here are only working four days a week and certain sections are shut down.

U. S. Imports Soviet Furs

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—In 1924, the United States imported over $80,000,000 worth of undressed furs, according to the European division of the department of Commerce. Of this amount $6,750,000 is credited to Russia in Europe and $5,000 to Russia in Asia.

NEW YORK BAKERS IN UNITED FRONT TO ORGANIZE INDUSTRY AND FIGHT OPEN SHOP TRUST

By JOSEPH MANLEY.*

The task of bringing unity into the ranks of the Bakers' Union o Greater New York is meeting with a hearty response, especially from th Amalgamated Food Workers and the rank and file of the A. F. of L. o ganizations.

Since the recent formation of the Bakers' United Front Committee, th movement has taken on more than ever a rank and file character. Th United Front Committee is composed of five delegates from the local unio of the A. F. of L., and the A. F. W., organizations. This committee since it inception has met regularly. Its principle task has been to draft a practi program of action and to drive the united front ever more deeply into the ranks of the entire membership.

To achieve this end the United Front Committee at its last meeting decided that speakers on the united front will be invited to address general membership meetings of the various locals, and to have such general membership meetings register themselves squarely upon the issue of a united front of the Bakers' Unions in Greater New York. It also ordered the printing of thousands of copies in three languages of the following letter:

An Open Letter to the Members.

The movement of a united front of the bakery workers against the bread trust is progressing. This movement had its origin in the rapid growth of the gread trust, which is threatening to crush the workers' organisations, and destroy their standards of wages, hours and working conditions for which they have struggled. Unemployment amongst the bakery workers of New York is a disease, which must be eliminated.

To cope with these conditions, a mass meeting was held at Cooper Union on February 29. This mass meeting passed resolutions, which called upon the respective organizations—A. F. of L. and A. F. W. to form a Joint Bakers' United Front Committee to organize the bakers, and to develop a united front for the betterment of the bakers' wages, hours and working conditions.

A United Front Committee.

Following the Cooper Union meeting, this United Front Committee was composed of a number of local unions both of the A. F. of L. and A. F. W. each sending five delegates to this United Front Committee. To further carry on the work and to familiarize the rank and file with the necessity for a united front, another mass meeting was called at Webster Hall on April 11. This meeting was a rank and file affair, and a full discussion was had, which indicated that the rank and file of the respective organizations were overwhelmingly in favor of the united front.

The task which faces this committee in the immediate future is to actually put this united front into effect. Action and not words must be the slogan. We, therefore, appeal to you to rally to the support of this committee and undertake the future tasks.

The existing conditions among the bakers at the present moment are well-known to you, who suffer under them. Unemployment has shown a steady increase in recent years amongst the organized bakers.

Both organizations endeavor to cope with it. The A. F. of L. organization, itself hemmed in by the increased production of the bread trust, which decreases the market supplied by the small bake shops, has endeavored to spread the remaining amount of work amongst the members. This only partially meets the situation, we must deal with it more fundamentally.

Some Questions For Bakers.

Today you are only working fo days a week. The jobbers are wor ing only two or three days a wee Why? Because the bread trust is o ganized to destroy us.

Almost the same situation fac the members of the A. F. W. A lar proportion of the members are [illegible] or less permanently unemploy Those employed work six days week with one working day a [illegible] off. This too is no real solution.

That this unemployment is cau by the growth of the trusts [illegible] be successfully disputed. Today trust puts out 75 per cent of t bakery goods consumed in great New York. The wages paid by t trust plants are far below the [illegible] paid in union bake shops.

Must Fight.

The organised bakers cannot p mit this situation to continue. W must not allow their respective or izations to be annihilated by t bread trust. The problem that fa the bakers is, not to take the e ployes of the trust and to place th at work in the union bake [illegible] The problem is to organize the [illegible] union shops and plants, especia those controlled by the trusts. T wages, hours and working condi of the workers of the bread tr must be bettered. The [illegible] the trust must be organized.

By organising these workers a carrying on a militant struggle f better conditions and increased es, the entire problem of the ba workers will take on a new char ter instead of as at present, in [illegible] ing a section of the bosses with small section of the workers.

We must unite the workers to f the united bosses. The Bakers' U ed Front Committee proposes a wi spread organisation campaign to ganize the workers of the bread tr To increase the wages and bet their conditions. Detailed plans policies for the carrying on of t work will be formulated by the ers' United Front Committee. call upon you to support us in coming struggle for!

HARRIMAN CO. TO GET MANGANESE MINE IN RUSSIA

First Large Scale Entry of America

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, June 15.—Representatives of the Soviet Union, and of the W. A. Harriman and company interests, of New York, have signed the contract conceding the Harriman interests the righ to exploit the rich manganese mines at Chiatouri, Georgia, for twenty years.

M. Djerjinsky head of the Supreme Economic Council, and George Tchitcherin, minister of foreign affairs signed the contract for the Soviet Union, and John S. Elliott signed for the Harriman banking interests. The contract becomes operative within forty five days.

As soon as the Georgian Soviet Government liquidates their present state monopoly for the export of manganese of the Chiatouri mines, the $1,000,000 in cash advanced by the American interests will be released to the Soviet Union thru Lloyd's bank in London, as advance on the first year's royalties.

"I am confident that the contract will prove to be the forerunner of other projects of a similar kind," said Djerjinsky after the signing the contract.

The Soviet Union is expected to realise at least $62,000,000 from the mines during the twenty year period, while the Harriman interests are expected to profit by $120,000,000. The concession marks the first entry of American business into the Soviet Union on a large scale. The Harriman interests agree to install the most modern machinery and equipment.

Hold an International Radio Show in Moscow July, August, Sept.

NEW YORK.—The first international radio show in Soviet Russia will be held in Moscow during the months of July, August and September, 1925, according to information received from the exhibition committee by the Amtorg Trading corporation of 165 Broadway, New York, which has been purchasing radio sets and appliances for Soviet Russia.

It is expected that the exhibition will cause a widespread interest, owing to the growing popularity of the radio which has already penetrated the remotest parts of the Soviet Union, and the increasing demand for receiving sets and apparatus. The Amtorg Trading corporation, being interested in promoting business between the United States and the Soviet Union, has consented to act as representative of the exhibition committee in this country.

U. S. TRIES TO SUGAR-COAT RULE OF IMPERIALISM IN NICARAGUA

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Secretary of State Kellogg permitted Col. Clifford D. Ham, collector general of customs in Nicaragua, to announce in Washington on June 10, that the American marines would end their 13-year occupation of Nicaragua on Sept. 1.

At the same time, Col. Ham announced that the Nicaraguan government representative had signed an agreement employing Maj. C. B. Carter as chief of the school of instruction of the Nicaraguan national guard, the new constabulary. And Carter admitted that he hoped to get full control of the guard, and to extend the system to many other Latin American countries.

Secretary Kellogg himself arranged for the employment of Carter. The latter was formerly an officer in the Philippine constabulary, and was governor of the Philippine province of Cotobato. He will have power as inspector-general of the force of 23 officers and 362 men in the new constabulary, which is in process of completion; he can dismiss anyone from the force. He takes with him from the United States four ex-constabulary officers as assistants.

Col. Ham, who gathers the customs duties in Nicaragua for the benefit of American bankers who held a mortgage on the finances of the republic, is much pleased that, altho the marines are to go, the armed might of the United States, in the persons of Carter and his staff, will remain. A New Orleans lumber concern which has invested $1,000,000 in a hardwood mill down there, and a radio company that recently completed the erection of a station in the republic, were much alarmed when the order arrived for removal of the marines. On the other hand, the Wall Street bankers do not believe that their influence in Nicaragua is ended. The Miner C. Keith firm has just secured a contract for paving some of the streets of Managua, and an added clause gives the concern a preferential right to construct a new railroad for Nicaragua. It was only six months ago that the existing railroad was redeemed from pawn to Seligman & Co. and Brown Brothers.

See Britain in Second Place.

WASHINGTON.—In the field of international investments the United States is taking the place of leadership which has been held by Great Britain, says the report of the committee on foreign credits to the National Association of Credit Men in convention in Washington.

"Our commitments abroad are no temporary experiment," it asserts, "but are a permanent movement of our funds into foreign countries. These investments will become of great importance to us as a nation in the near future."

Brands Consul-General Cunningham Imperialist Tool.

To the DAILY WORKER:—Edwin S. Cunningham, the American consul general at Shanghai is supposed to be over there an ambassador of good-will and an official representative of the American people, according to their highest ideals and noblest principles; namely, justice and humanity. And his mission over there is to create a liking of the Chinese for himself and the people of America.

So far he has deplorably failed in doing all these, particularly in the last analysis. He has been and is a notorious personnel who takes extreme delight in despising and offending the Chinese and therby creating in their minds for the American nation and the American people a place of hatred instead of affection; a fact which has been made glaringly manifested by the recent occurrences, outrageous as well at tragical, which took place in Shanghai in the last few days.

In the unjust decision to the oppressed Chinese workers he exerted an unestimable influence, thus violating the American fundamental principle of justice. In the shooting of the unarmed and innocent Chinese students he also played a prominent part in the way of encouragement, thereby violating the American fundamental principle of humanity. He ordered more warships from his country than it was necessary to protect the lives and property of the American residents in Shanghai. He did this of course, only to show the pacific Chinese what power he has at his command on one hand, and how he can please his capitalist "bosses" in Shanghai on the other.

Of course, we know that he is working there, and has been for the past several years, in the interests of the exploiting capitalists. But we also know that this nominal official duty is to represent the American people. If he cannot please, he can, at least, refrain himself from offending the people in whose midst he finds his lot. Should it be impossible for him to create a friendship between these two nations, he can at least manage not to manufacture enmity (taking for granted he knows the difference between friendliness and enmity).

It is quite easy for himself to engage in the "amusing" games of destroying the lives of the Chinese, but it is mighty hard for the Chinese to forget. His blood-thirsty characteristic, which some of the uneducated Chinese have already alleged to be the common characteristic of the American people, will sink down deep in the memories of the Chinese for the coming two generations and perhaps for ever.

With all this as his past "good" record, to displace him from his present post is a matter for nobody else to discuss, but the American government and the American public. And it is to the sagacity of the powerful American public opinion that we Chinese, who still hope that a friendship can be somehow established between these two contries, would like to entrust the whole matter.

IRISH FAMINE VICTIMS GET AID FROM U. S.

Relief Committee's Financial Report

The Irish Workers and Peasants Famine Relief Committee sent $1,500.00 to relieve the distress of the famine sufferers in Ireland according to a financial statement issued by that organization, which is published below. The committee pays no salaries or overhead expenses and all funds collected outside of the outlay for printing, circularization, postage and organized expense goes for relief. The statement follows:

The following is a financial report of the Irish Workers and Peasants Famine Relief Committee for the three months beginning with March and ending wiht May (1925);

Receipts
March		$ 270.10
April		1846.89
May		1148.49
Total		$3265.48
Expenses:
Circularization	$395.50
Postage	276.20
Printing	539.00
Organizers Expense (R. R. Fare, per diem, etc.)	488.50
Cable charges	19.44	1536.64
Cash Cabled		1500.00
Cash in Bank		228.84
Total		$3265.48

Free State Propaganda

The amount collected is considerably less than our expectations. The comparatively poor response made to the appeal for funds is due to the scepticism created in the minds of the American workers and peasants, by the propaganda of the Free State Government, regarding the situation in the famine stricken region. At a time when the Free State Government was appropriating money to relieve the distress officials stated that there was no famine.

Our affiliations in England and Ireland did the best they could to make the outside world acquainted with the situation on the west coat of Ireland. The Workers' International Relief, organised relief activities in all countries where they had branches. The Russian workers and peasants contributed their share, but it was though that America, where there are Millions of Irish people, would contribute most of all. However, our Committee has been able to send $1,500 for the relief of the starving workers and peasants on the west coast of Ireland.

Heavy Initial Expense

Our initial expense were heavy. We printed thousands of contribution blanks and hundreds of thousands of leaflets, in order to counteract the lying propaganda in the capitalist press. This expense plus that of postage and of an organizer, whose services were required for a few weeks, was the only overhead our Committee carried. Office maintenance and stenographer's help, is contributed by the International Workers' Aid.

The committee wishes to thank all those who have contributed and the labor papers who have given our publicity space in their columns. Among those that deserve honorable mention in this respect are the Federated Press, Industrial Solidarity, The Daily Worker, The Workers' Monthly, The Llano Colonist, the Cleveland Citizen, The Denver Labor Bulletin and the New Era of Louisville, Ky.

From all reports, the situation in Ireland at present is more serious than ever. Only a very poor crop can be expected this year on the west coast due to the water logged condition of the soil, and the rest of Ireland is scourged by unemployment.

The committee calls upon all friends of the Irish Workers and Peasants to continue and extend their support until assistance is no longer needed.

Fraternally submitted,
T. J. O'Flaherty, Secretary.

America Buys Russian Furs.

WASHINGTON.—Undressed furs to the total value of $6,755,000 were imported into the United States from Russia in 1924, according to an estimate by the European division of the department of commerce. All but $5,000 worth of these came thru European Russia, altho it is probable that most of them originated in Asiatic Russia. Total American imports of raw furs from all countries were $80,000,000. Thus, Russia furnished 8.4 per cent of the American furs last year. For the average of the years 1910-14 inclusive, it furnished only 5 per cent. Last year's Russian furs purchased by Americans included 546,439 skins of fox, other than silver or black, worth $2,081,513; squirrel 2,660,441, worth $2,602,468; marten 15,596, worth $228,119; hare 368,221 worth $104,666, and 1,077,194 skins of various kinds worth $1,735,306.

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

It was in a little mining shanty in Pennsylvania. There was not a single window, and only a low opening for a door. There was one small bed in the room, with no mattress, and a torn, filthy sheet for a cover. A mother was soothing two babies crying for want of food. A ragged girl of five was sitting on a box, lonely waiting for her brother to come home.

These were one of the poor fatherless families, who were caught in the claws of capitalism and didn't have a chance to get out.

The father had died working in a mine, and the oldest boy, Johnny, went to take his father's place. He was only nine years of age, and didn't know of the suffering he would have to go thru.

It was nine o'clock at night, and the little shanty was still waiting for its supporter to come home.

There was a knock, and a small boy, clad in mining clothes, came in. The little girl ran to him, hugged him, and all she could say was: "Johnny! Johnny!"

"Well, my son," said the mother, "how much did you get?" The boy's face grew dark as he laid on the table a few dollars. "Eight dollars," he said. "The boss said that there was'nt very much to do this time. I saw him give the men fifteen dollars, and just because I was small he took advantage over me." And the family again was left to its sorrow and wailing.

Ten years had passed.

John was married already. He had three children. His other brothers and his sister were working. They were doing their part of the world's slavery, while John went to resume his mining life.

Another ten years had elapsed. John was lying in his shanty with a broken leg. He, his wife, and two of his children were silently awaiting the coming of their oldest son from the mine, the future Johnny. There was a knock, and in came a form which resembled the one that had stood twenty years ago in another shanty. But this time it only brought five dollars. "My son," said John, "when I look at you I recollect my younger years." And with that he told his son the whole story of his life. And John thought for a while, and then with his eyes ablaze, and fists clenched, he said, "No, father, this won't happen to me. I will struggle, and see that there will be a new and better generation."

1,000 Plasterers Out in Washington, D. C., in Jurisdiction Fight

WASHINGTON—(F.P.)—One thousand plasterers have quit work in the capital, due to the failure of adjustment of the jurisdictional dispute between their international union and that of the bricklayers. The later claim a share in jurisdiction over plastering. The Plasterers' International denies it. The first walkout took place at Miami, Fla., on March 19, and threatened to extend to all construction jobs handled by the big contractors who had recognized the Bricklayers' claim to plastering work. However, a truce was arranged pending attempts at settlement thru the national board of jurisdictional awards. These attempts have failed and Washington shares with New York, Chicago, and Detroit the spotlight of the contest. Bricklayers remain at work on all regular union jobs in the city, while the plasterers refuse to work until the Bricklayers' International shall leave the Plasterers' International undisturbed in control of plastering, or until the contractors shall sign an agreement to give all plastering work to the plasterers.

Anti-union builders in Washington, recently defeated by the painters and the plumbers on the issue of a wage increase, now announce that there are enough non-union plasterers in town to do all the work that is in dispute between the two unions.

BROOKLYN SHOE WORKERS' STRIKE WELL ORGANIZED

Stick Like Glue with All Out for 6 Weeks

By MAX MARIASH
(Worker Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 15.—The strike of the workers of the B. W. S. shoe shop, 233 Powell St., Brooklyn, started about 5 weeks ago, still shows great strength. The strikers are picketing in full force and show no signs of weakening, in spite of the rumors that the bosses are negotiating for the sale of the shop.

On the contrary, the men know that this is only a ruse to discourage them and force them to seek other jobs. The men are showing a splendid spirit of solidarity with the Shoe Workers' Protective Union which called the strike upon the arbitrary refusal of the bosses to live up to their agreement with the union.

At a conference held two weeks ago between the strike committee and the bosses, the bosses refused to sign an agreement for the security for the workers in the shop. However the strike committee informed them that it is only thru such an agreement that the welfare, wages and particularly the solidarity of the workers will be secure. They further took the position that they will not place the hiring and firing of workers in the hands of bosses, nor will they agree to any other agreement that the bosses may ask for, except one that is based on these demands.

In spite of police interference which prohibits mass picketing, the picket committee has organised itself in such a way that every striking worker is on the picket line every day for several hours.

Soviet Statistical Reports Show Big Economic Gains

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 15.—Statistical reports on Russian industry and commerce for the first half of the current Soviet fiscal year, October 1 to April 1, received by the Russian Information Bureau here, show marked economic gains. The bureau summarizes the reports as follows:

"The gross industrial output increased 44 per cent over the previous half year and 55 per cent over the first half of the fiscal year 1923-24. Among the heavy industries the metal industry showed the greatest gain.

"The domestic trade turnover increased 58 per cent as compared with the preceding half year. Foreign trade increased by $25,000,000 over the same period last year, despite the fact that grain exports, which normally constitute 60 per cent of the export trade, fell from $70,000,000 to $7,500,000 as a result of the poor harvest of last year. The foreign trade turnover amounted to $238,500,000, with an adverse trade balance of about $1,000,000.

"The output of the large-scale state industries was $990,000,000, at current prices, an increase of 56 per cent over the same period of last year.

"The average labor force in industry increased only 12 per cent over the previous half year, but there was a marked qualitative improvement in the productive process. Owing to the bad harvest grain prices rose sharply during the period, but prices of virtually all other commodities declined.

"Russian economists declare that the statistics of the half-year that the Soviet Union has passed the stage where even a bad harvest can halt the general economic revival."

Threatening Mexico

In his note to the Mexican government which is to all intents and purposes an ultimatum, the secretary of state intimates that another revolution is brewing in Mexico and threatens intervention in the event of its occurrence. He speaks further of the intention of the "American government to support the government in Mexico ONLY so long as it protects American lives and rights and lives up to its international engagements and obligation." (Emphasis ours.)

This can mean nothing else than a last warning to the Calles regime that it must carry out the orders of Wall Street without reservations, that its work of smashing unions and evicting peasants must be carried on more energetically. Undoubtedly the intention is also to intensify the warfare on the Communists whose influence is especially strong in the Tampico oil region and among great masses of the agrarians.

It requires only a few organizational measures to make of Mexico an actual protectorate if the Calles government accepts the dictum of the state department.

For those of the Mexican workers and peasants who believed honestly that the policy of compromise and attempted conciliation of Wall Street followed by Calles would give them a breathing spell in which to build up their organizations, the Kellogg note brings bitter disillusionment. The unions of the workers and peasants have been weakened systematically by the bureaucracy of the Mexican Federation of Labor in line with the policy handed them by the A. F. of L. officialdom at El Paso. Mexico faces a crisis and unless this threat of armed intervention unites the populace in resistance to the demands of Wall Street, she will cease to exist as a nation.

It may be that the sharp tone of the note, brutal in disregard of even the polite usages of capitalist diplomacy, will awaken not only Mexico but the republics to the south to the danger of the imperialist avalanche that is now moving steadily toward the equator.

Here is a new issue for the All-American Anti-Imperialist League and its sections in the Latin-American countries.

The German Situation

It is hard to say how much of the bankruptcy of great firms like the Stinnes concern, which is now shaking Germany, is due to the failure of the Dawes plan and how much to the manipulation by American financiers with the end in view of extending their control of German industry.

For the workers, however, who are thrown jobless into the street in a country where jobs are at a premium, these speculations matter little. With them it is a question of living.

The social-democrats had their day of power; they bowed to the allied imperialists, rejected an alliance with the workers' and peasants' government of Russia and made war on the working class. So servile were they that the masses preferred the monarchist Hindenburg in the election following the death of Ebert.

It is now apparent to thousands of workers that monarchists and republicans, social-democrats and industrialists, have nothing for the workers except misery added to misery. The Communists alone have fought uncompromisingly for a workers' and farmers' government—for working class power.

That there is much hopelessness among the German working class is obvious. Nothing else accounts for the desertion of the unions and the rise of fascism. This hopelessness must be overcome and the rebuilding of the organizations of the workers carried on with new energy and determination. This sounds like a platitude, but it is a simple statement of the elementary necessities of the German situation.

German capitalism has created the conditions for its overthrow but unless the workers have the will to fight and conquer first their own apathy and next their class enemies, the breakdown of German capitalism means only greater suffering for them.

This is the present role of the German Communist Party—reorganizing and inspiring the German workers and peasantry for new efforts and to new struggles.

The Nova Scotia Strike

The striking miners of Nova Scotia reached the limit of their patience when the British Empire Steel corporation, which had been starving them to death by refusal of credit in towns controlled by the trust, prepared to defy the 12,000 strikers and run their mines with guards of gunmen.

The miners, once they began, seem to have been very thoro and workmanlike. They took the New Waterford powerhouse and as this is written they are still holding it, shutting off the source of power for the mines.

There seems to have been some bloodshed, but in this instance most of the casualties were on the side of the company and its thugs. No worker will take exception to this very happy outcome of the heroic struggle waged by the coal diggers.

The mines are still closed, the powerhouse is not functioning, but troops are on the ground and more are on the way. It is probable that the next dispatches will tell of wholesale arrests and general terrorization of the strikers. This is the way of capitalist government and the only way it could be properly answered in this case would be by a general strike of Canadian workers.

If the Canadian labor movement is unable to initiate such a movement then the least it can do is to hold monster protest meetings in every city and bring pressure on the government for the withdrawal of troops and the quashing of all indictments that will be brought against the strikers.

We send our heartiest greetings and wishes for victory to the Nova Scotia miners with a feeling of gladness that such militancy as they have displayed is in the labor movement of the continent, that it cannot be stamped out by the combined efforts of traitorous union officials and the persecutions of the capitalist government.

The Enslavement of China

By Wm. F. Dunne

ARTICLE VIII.

HAVING forced China to sever diplomatic relations, the next step was to get her to declare war.

Premier Tuan Chi-Jui was in favor of war. He was under Japanese influence and wanted China to enter the war as one of the allies and not as a follower of America. He was supported by influential Chinamen who had either been educated in Japan, who had been or who were ministers to Japan—Tsao Ju-Lin, Lu Tsung-Yu and Chang Tsung-Hsiang. President Li Yuan-Hung was opposed to the declaration of war and the Young China party, while theoretically in favor of war was afraid of the rise of the militarists they felt would result, and opposed it for that reason.

IT is essential to keep in mind that between the United States and Japan a struggle was going on all the time to secure a predominating influence in China. A correspondent of the New York Tribune put it this way on April 12:

> It is understood that the principal question confronting the Pekin government at this moment is not whether China should enter the war, as this virtually has been decided, but whether China should continue to align herself with the United States and follow this country's lead, or should join the entente alliance under the leadership and direction of Japan. If a decision following the latter course is made it is believed here that Japan will obtain control of China's army and military resources, and estbalish a semi-protectorate over China that would make it difficult for either China or the other powers to induce Japan to surrender after the war.

SUN YAT SEN made his opposition to the declaration of war public on March 7, in the following open letter to Lloyd George:

> . . . . . . I have been approached by prominent English to consider the question of China joining the allies. After carfeul study I come to the conclusion that it would be disastrous to both countries should China break her neutrality. For China is yet an infant republic and as a nation she may be likened to a sick man just entering the hospital of constitutionalism. Unable to look after herself at this stage, she needs careful nursing and support. Therefore China cannot be regarded as an organized country. She is held intact only by custom and sentiment of a peace-loving people. But at once, should there arise discord, general anarchy would result . . . . Should China enter the war, it would prove dangerous to her national life and injurious to the prestige of England in the Far East. The mere desire to get China to join the allies is to Chinese minds a confusion of the inability of the allies to cope with Germany. Just now comes Premier Tuan's report to the president that the entente powers are coercing China to join the allies. Already the question has raised bitter dissensions among our statesmen. Discord now may evoke anarchism which will arouse the two strong but perilious elements in China, anti-foreign fanatics and the Mohammedans.

IN the light of later events this letter should not be taken too literally. Sun Yat Sen was not concerned over the loss of British prestige in the Far East except insofar as that prestige served to curb the ambitions of Japan. He feared also that the hostility to foreigners that a declaration of war would arouse would be used as an excuse by Japan to intervene for the "protection of foreigners" and to bring "stability."

President Li Yuan-Hung resigned as he saw that it was inevitable that China could not resist the pressure of the allied government much longer and his place was filled by Feng-uo-Chang.

ON August 14 President Feng declared war.

It was done without sanction of parliament and was solely the act of the militarists—the tuchuns—who had formed a provisional government in Pekin after the members of parliament had been intimidated and a number of provinces under military rule had declared their independence.

The dissolution of parliament had been demanded by the council of tuchuns, some bribed by French, some by British and some by Japanese money. Wu Ting Fang, acting premier, refused to sign the mandate with these words: "You may take off my head, but I will sign no such mandate." He resigned, a willing tool of the militarists was appointed and parliament disbanded.

CIVIL war began. Chang Hsun, the blackest reactionary among the tuchuns, took Pekin and restored the monarchy. A few days later he was defeated by the army commanded by the ex-premier, Tuan Chi-Jui.

A constitutional government was set up at Shanghai and Tuan Chi-Jui became premier without a parliament.

The Chinese republic was dissolved in civil strife. China was once more at the mercy of outside foes and her allied advisors were now quarreling among themselves to decide which should take the first huge chunk of her territory.

BUT Japan had the advantage and in her trickery she had the assistance of France. A note sent by the French ambassador at Tokio to the Japanese government reads in part:

> The government of the French republic is disposed to give the Japanese government its accord in regulating at the time of the peace negotitaions questions vital to Japan concerning Shangtung and the German islands on the Pacific north of the equator. It also agrees to support the demands of the imperial Japanese government for the surrender of the rights Germany possessed before the war in this Chinese province and these islands.

JAPAN, managed to maintain her influential position in Peking during all the welter of bribery, civil war and intrigue:

> When it was evident that the united urging of the American, British and French governments, and the influence of individual foreigners would bring China into the war, Japanese diplomacy made a characteristic maneuver. The Chinese government was advised by Japan to declare war as one of the allies, and not as a separate nation. This was a scheme to detach China from the United States, which power had never formally joined the allies, and attach her to the allies, thereby making her a part of and subject to the private agreements made among the nations composing the original alliance. (Democracy and the Eastern Question," Thomas F. Millard, Page 131.)

THE budding Chinese republic was blighted, civil war stirred up, Chinese territory given to Japan, and China once more reduced to the status of a dependency.

The forbodings of Sun Yat Sen had been fulfilled. All promises that China would have an equal place at the peace table, the promise of financial assistance, the promise that Chinese territory should remain inviolate, all were forgotten.

Each great power now began to look around for some Chinese "general" who could be bought to fight for their share of the natural resources of the Chinese nation.

The allied governments browbeat and humilated the Chinese in every possible manner while the land was seething with civil war and the history of this period is of importance as showing the long series of insults endured by the Chinese and which are now remembered as grievances which still exist as long as foreigners enjoy extra-territerial rights in China.

These incidents will be treated in the next article.

Chinese Workers Call for War on British Imperialists

the immediate severance of diplomatic relations with Britain.

Kuo Min Tang Wants Action.

Speaking to a students' union meeting here today, George Hsu Chien, Kuo Min Tang (People's Party) leader and former minister of justice, urged that a Chinese army be dispatched immediately to Shanghai.

Labor and student resolutions demand the immediate return of all British concessions and the abrogation of all treaties.

The strike situation at Shanghai was unchanged.

Conference Deadlocked.

Foreign and Chinese delegates in conference here continued deadlocked over the thirteen Chinese demands made to the powers in connection with the shooting of ten Shanghai students May 30, by foreign settlement police. No further reports of trouble in the Yangtse valley were reported.

A British gunboat was rushing to Kiukiang, upper Yangtze port, scene of rioting Saturday, to take aboard foreign missionaries.

It is reported that the foreign authorities have decided that they will withdraw their troops from Shanghai, but gradually. Whether this is a trick to get the strikers back to work is not yet ascertainable. The strike is costing $3,000,000 a day at the very least.

It is learned from Hankow that one of the wounded Chinese shot down by the British Saturday, has died of his wounds. This makes the total at Hankow, nine killed.

Peking in Huge Strike Demonstration

PEKING, China, June 15.—Chinese students, merchants, shopkeepers and workmen in the largest demonstration made here during the present troubles today went to the foreign office and demanded that the Chinese government sever relations with Great Britain and instruct the tuchun of Hankow forcibly to take possession of the British concession there.

The British legation has sent a lengthy reply to the Chinese note of protest over the shooting of a number of Chinese last week during an attack on the British concession in Hankow.

The reply ignores the fact that the British are interlopers in China.

Refusing to admit that any responsibility rests on the British authorities, the reply cites a previous warning against allowing the anti-British agitation to go unchecked and asks that energetic measures be taken to check such agitation.

The China Press, an American newspaper, admits that the biggest thing in the situation is the unification of all the military, political and students with the workers on a radical program of anti-imperialism which may force the Peking government to abrogate all treaties thrust upon China by the powers when China was helpless.

The strike continues, with more than forty ships tied up in the harbor. The cotton mills are closed, with 60,000 operatives idle, and the shops and native banks are closed, refusing to do business with foreigners.

Imperialists Getting Nervous.

LONDON, June 15.— The foreign powers today looked upon the Chinese situation as "serious," the British foreign office said, and another Birtish warship is being sent to Hankow. Eight Chinese rioters were killed at Hankow several days ago by British marines and the Chinese government has made an official protest to Great Britain against the incident.

The powers are in "complete accord" and while there are no plans for immediate intervention, representatives of the powers are in negotiation in Peking, the foreign office said.

However, the foreign office is evidently worried over the tidal wave of anti-British sentiment rising in China, and is far—in spite of its words—from being in "complete accord" with Japan, which is trying to charge all responsibility to Britain.

The British foreign office is likewise irritated by the claim that the Sikh police in the international settlement at Shanghai is under "British control."

They say that it is true that there is a large proportion of British officers, but the police of the settlement are controlled by the International Municipal Council, which happens to have at present as chairman—an American, Sterling Fessenden.

The British foreign office also reminds the world at large that Americans fired on the Chinese during a fight in which one of the white guard "volunteers" had been wounded.

Kuo Min Tang Armies Rule Canton

CANTON, China, June 15. — The Yunnanese, who thoroly looted the city before they were driven out by the armies of the Kuo Min Tang, are scattered and in flight, hiding in all sorts of corners.

So detested have the mercenaries made themselves in the minds of the Canton workers, that when Chinese civilians find anyone speaking Yunnanese, they beat them and throw them in the river.

The Kuo Min Tang volunteers, which are practically Red Guards, are in full control of the city again, and are welcomed on every hand by all except the foreigners and the reactionary merchant class.

From Hong Kong it is learned that the British government is trying desperately to stop the strike movement and has suppressed the Chinese labor paper published there. Nevertheless, the Hong Kong seamen are striking today.

BRITISH LABOR CABLES CHINESE WORKERS CONGRATULATIONS FOR THEIR FIGHT ON IMPERIALISM

LONDON, June 15.—A cablegram was sent by the General Council of the Trades Union Congress to the "Chinese workers," congratulating them upon "their determination to fight international capitalism and to secure improved industrial conditions."

It expressed abhorrence over "the appalling industrial conditions imposed in Chinese factories," and said the council was confident that the stand of the Chinese workers will result "in the firm establishment of a militant industrial organization in China and will do much to build up a powerful bond of unity between eastern and western trade unionism."

The message was signed by the chairman of the general council, A. B. Swales, and the assistant secretary, W. L. Citrine.

BLEEDING COOLIE AND CLASS CONSCIOUS STUDENT TO TURN IMPERIALISM UP SIDE DOWN

By SINBAD.

SHANHGAI, China, (By Mail.)— A friend was telling me of a condition which exists in Annam, Indo China. The police are French and when a foreigner overpays (?) a rickishaw coolie, it is the rickishaw coolie that gets brutally beaten.

This, a very common occurrence, characterizes the attitude of the foreigner in China. It's the same old story repeated over and over again.

The continual oppression, inhuman brutality and self-superiority, not to mention the most important of all, a systematic economic imperialism all combine to create the pressure which someday will find an outlet. That it finds an outlet is inevitable; as inevitable as the result produced by air pressure on a piston.

New China Not the Old China.

China is not what she was 20 years ago. The great student class of China and incidentally the Chinese students of the mission schools included have come to the realization that the foreigner has too long been permitted to create havoc and perpetually drain China's resources in the form of unjust punitive burdens, etc.

And what is more important the greater proletarian class, the millions of enslaved coolies are also, but more slowly, coming to the same realization.

"What Right Have You?"

A few years ago when the foreigner was walking on the sidewalk, the Chinese from the opposite direction would step off into the gutter and give the foreigner the right of way. Now one feels the difference.

The foreigner is no longer the "foreign devil," no longer an uncombatable supernatural being. Now he is looked straight in the eye and the expression on the face of the Chinese is an unspoken question, "What right have you?"

Five years ago it was passive, submissive. Sadly, much of that submissiveness exists today but there also exists that questioning of rights. Five years from now it will no longer be the passive submissiveness, no longer the questioning of rights, but the stern, power-backed demand.

In Annam, the coolie, bleeding and half dead, is dazedly wondering why he was struck. His wonder changes to hate.

And when China gains her freedom from foreign imperialism it will be the bleeding coolie and the class-conscious student who will have fought side by side for that freedom.

Deny Scott Appeal.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 15—The supreme court today denied the motion of attorneys for Russell Scott to set aside a previous order and reconsider the petition for a writ of error and supersedeas. Scott is sentenced to hang in Chicago July 17 for the murder of Joseph Maurer, loop drug store clerk, who was shot and killed during an alleged hold-up perpetrated by Scott.

Detroit Y. W. L. to Have Picnic on the Longest Day in Year

DETROIT, Mich., June 15.—At last swimming, on the longest day in the season when daylight lasts till 9:30.

The Young Workers' League of Detroit will celebrate with a picnic on Sunday, June 21, at Cass Lake, in Dodge Park. Sports, swimming, games, songs await you! Lunches and refreshments will be served out there.

Meet us at the House of the Masses, at 9 a. m., sharp. Fare including admission is 50 cents. Don't forget—we meet on Gratiot, corner St. Aubin. If you have an auto, bring it along—we will pay for its use on that day.

Joseph Kiell, Committee Chairman.

Teachers Explain Why They Were Ill So Often

As a preliminary to docking teachers' pay for sick leave, the board of education thu their accountants, Griffenhagen and association, accused the teachers of Chicago of playing hookie. Their alibi is that teachers have abused the part reductions in teachers' salaries during illness by taking wholesale holidays during the school term. As an economy measure they recommend that at a time of illness, when there are doctor's bills, medicines and what-not, teachers are to receive no wages.

The Chicago Teachers' Federation explain the seemingly undue absence of teachers during this last winter in the following way. With the board of education lined up behind the new superintendent in a continuous attack upon the teachers, with the new rules and regulations and economy schemes that have been directed at the teachers thruout the entire winter, is it any wonder to anyone that it has resulted in undermining the health of many teachers and made them easy prey for the flu and other ailments. In addition, the board of education economy program kept the classrooms so poorly heated the teachers were ill with minor colds oftener this year than any other.

Storm Wrecks Mason City.

MASON CITY, Ill., June 15—Mason City today began extracting itself from the twisted mass of house roofs, trees and demolished automobiles which a wind storm late Sunday picked up as it might so many pieces of paper, whirled skyward, then dropped with reckless abandon, imperiling the lives of scores, seriously injuring one and bruising a dozen others.

Japanese Halt Law Which Would Wipe Out Schools

HONOLULU, Hawaii, June 15.—Counsel for 146 Japanese language schools have entered suit against the governor, attorney general, and superintendent of public instruction, charging that the enforcement of the territorial law is contrary to the constitution of the United States and the treaty between Japan and America.

A temporary restraining order against the enforcing of the law, which taxes the schools to such an extent that they would be forced to disband, was granted, and further arguments will be heard.

Shepherd Defense Scores Victory in Germ Murder Trial

The defense scored an important victory in the trial of William D. Shepherd, charged with slaying "Billy" McClintock, today, when Dr. Amanete Rongetti, the witness who on Saturday testified that Shepherd talked to him about taking up a course in bacteriology, failed to identify the defendant in court.

The state's forces were completely taken by surprise.

All Ireland Is Now Facing Famine

NEW YORK.—The Evening World of June 2 states that "virtually all Ireland is now facing famine, following thirteen months of almost continual rain. The famine, which at first threatened only the western seaboard, has struck inland."

The capitalist press of this country denied that there was any famine on the western seaboard. Now it admits that the famine is striking inland and threatening to engulf the whole country. At first 750,000 workers and peasants were starving—now all the workers and peasants face the worst hunger that has attacked the country.

The Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief Committee is carrying on the work of relief in this country. On June 27-28, the committee is arranging a famine relief tag day. Every worker of New York who wishes to show class solidarity with their brothers in Ireland must do his utmost to make the relief fund as large as possible. Men, women and children are starving in Ireland. Babies can get no milk. There is no fuel. Thirteen months of continual rain have flooded the fields, the oat and potato crop is ruined. Despair faces the whole working population.

Workers of New York, make this tag day a success. Show the workers and peasants of Ireland that you are standing by them. Show your class solidarity. Contribute liberally!

COMMUNISTS RALLY OPPRESSED WORKERS TO FIGHT THE RULE [illegible] L STREET IMPERIALISM

The W[illegible]munist) Party has issued an appeal to all workers a[illegible]ers oppressed by the far flung tentacles of American [illegible] to join with the Communists during Anti-Imperiali[illegible]e 29 to July 4, in protesting against the domination [illegible]t over the subject peoples.

The coloni[illegible]colonial peoples of the world have demonstrated th[illegible]are no longer defenseless. Revolt against the domination o[illegible]oreign capitalism flames in China. In Morocco French imperialism has met its master in the gallant Riffian defenders of their native soil.

And now the Mexican workers and peasants openly defy America's Morgan-Rockefeller exploitation.

The Soviet Union stands the guiding light of the oppressed peoples of the world, a bulwark of strength to the exploited workers suffering under American imperialism. The victims of Wall Street imperialism will rally to the call of the Workers (Communist) Party for a united front against the American government's brutal domination.

The manifesto of the Workers Party declares:

Celebrate Anti-Imperialist Week!

AMERICA's Independence Day is not to be surrendered to the capitalists and the militaristic freebooters after all.

A new factor has appeared upon the scene: The All-American Anti-Impeialisrt League—which has answered President Coolidge's proclamation of "mobilization day" by a counter proclamation declaring the week of June 29, to July 4, to be "Anti-Imperialist Week" thruout America. Representing predominantly national liberation, labor and student organizations of Latin America, the league has issued a call to all anti-imperialist elements to unite in making "Anti-

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

WHILE Calvin Coolidge was saying many nice things about peace, his secretary of state was preparing a public statement on the Mexican situation, which for truculence and brutal frankness has not been equalled by even the famous Austrian ultimatum which was the diplomatic introduction to the catastrophic world war. Coolidge took a slam at the jingoes, by the way, and thus won the plaudits of pacifists of the Villard type, but last Saturday this same Coolidge, while taking a week end cruise on the Mayflower had as his guests "Black Jack" Pershing, who led the wild goose chase after Villa in 1914 and General Le Jeune of the marines who also knows something about landing Wall Street's armed forces in Mexico.

NEITHER did Coolidge neglect the publicity end of his offensive against Mexico. He invited that notorious pen prostitute, Arthur Brisbane, to spend the week end with him on the Potomac river. Arthur will express his gratitude for this most favored treatment by slamming Mexico. In fact he has paid his debt already in his column in the Hearst papers.

IT does not take much political acumen to smell a rat in the presence of Pershing and Le Jeune on the presidential yacht last Saturday. People in the know have no hestitation in saying that Pershing's famous chase after Villa was not for the purpose of catching the bandit but merely an explorative mission, with the object of getting acquainted with the probable route of a real invasion, that would plant the flag of Wall Street over the southern republic.

PERSHING did not catch Villa but there was no hard feeling. Perhaps "Black Jack" was able to enlighten Coolidge on the necessary steps to be taken in case the question got out of the letter writing stage. Le Jeune could tell him how many marines would be required to make Wall Street's threat stand up in Mexico. Brisbane could be depended on to show that it was in the interests of civilization for America to invade and conquer Mexico.

BUT things are not going so well for imperialism nowadays what with things as they are in China and Morocco. Calle's note was all that could be desired in the way of a two-fisted acceptance of a challenge. Strange

ROTTEN MESS OF CLASS PEACE IN LAWRENCE UNION

Union Meeting Aids Only the Bosses

By FRED E. BEAL.

LAWRENCE, Mass., June 16.—Last Tuesday evening at the Oliver school hall an open mass meeting was held under the auspices of the Dyer's and Finishers' Union local of the United Textile Workers' Union, (U. T. W.) "to discuss the industrial problems that are now facing our city and to ascertain if possible the cause of the great depression which has caused thousands of our citizens to be thrown out of employment."

Tho thousands of textile workers here are taking Senator Butler's word for it that the "textile industry is passing thru a singular and trying period," few textile workers were present. The fifty citizens seated in the beautiful little school hall were composed largely of business men and sky pilots. The chairman of the evening was Michael Guilfoyle, presi-

Italy Not Ready to Enter German-Allied Agreement

PARIS, June 16.—Italy informed France today that while she is "in sympathy" with the proposed German "security" pact, the matter is still regarded as being in an embryonic stage, and consequently Italy will reserve her final decision until the negotiations have produced something more concrete.

A communication outlining the Italian position was received at the French foreign office today in response to a copy of the French note to Germany, of which a copy has been sent to Italy.

The French answer to Germany's "security" pact proposals will be published in Germany Thursday.

Foreign Minister Stressman received the note from the French ambassador today and turned it over to the German foreign office for translation.

Belgian Fund Commission.

BRUSSELS, June 16. — Belgium plans to send a debt-funding commission to Washington before December 20, the foreign office announced today.

Definite announcement of the personnel of the commission will not be made until the formation of a New Belgian cabinet, the foreign office said.

AVENTINE DEPUTIES TO RE-ENTER CHAMBER UPON ADVICE OF KING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROME, Italy, June 16.—On the advice of king Victor Emanuel, the Aventine opposition, which has been away from the parliament for a year in protest against fascist acts of violence, will return to the chamber on Thursday, it is announced.

One hundred and forty deputies will re-enter parliament at that time.

'FINISH FIGHT' AGAINST RIFFS, PAINLEVE ORDER

Socialists Vote for French Invasion

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, June 16.—The chamber of deputies voted Premier Painleve a vote of confidence today, 436 to 34. The premier reported on his visit to the Riffian front and insisted that a defeat for France in Morocco would endanger all the colonial interests of the country.

The Communist bloc voted against the government and so did a few others, but the socialists supported Painleve in his war on the Riffians who are trying to free their country from the foreigners.

The report of Premier Painleve, who just returned from an airplane trip along the French lines in Morocco, to the cabinet, shows that Painleve has decided on an aggressive warfare against the Moroccans on their own soil. Painleve recommended the appointment of Gen. Daugan as commander-in-chief of the invading forces, with Marshal Lyautey remaining as resident general, and the speeding up of negotiations with Spain for a combined assault.

Painleve's report included a recommemlation that Gen. Colombat be relieved of his command, in an effort to take the sting of defeat from the French army Painleve declares that Colombat "made an over-hasty evacuation of Ouezzan"

Minister of Marine Emile Borel told the cabinet that Louis Malvy, who conducted the discussions with the Spanish a month ago, has left with a delegation for Madrid, where the Franco-Spanish conference will be resumed Wednesday.

The French have sent their own warships to Spanish waters and are now patrolling the Riffian coast themselves, attempting to blockade the Riffians and cut off their supplies.

Small Whips House to Pass Political Bills; Labor Ignored

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 16—With Governor Small's "club" hanging over its head, the house today passed the Weisbrod bill providing that candidates' names be rotated in alphabetical order on election ballots in Cook county. The vote was 78 to 30. The governor had threatened to veto the McClugage bill increasing the Chicago sanitary district's bonding power if this "pet" bill was not passed.

Women's eight hour and other labor bills were ignored by the governor.

COOLIDGE WAITS FOR CALLES TO CRUSH UNIONS

Communists Rally to Mexican Labor's Aid

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16.—The note of President Calles of Mexico, informing the state department that Mexico will stand no foreign interference, will be officially ignored by the Coolidge government, it was made known here.

The state department professes to see in the Calles note an empty utterance meant to win Calles support at home. "It is not what Calles says but what he does that counts," said one state department official.

The demand of the Coolidge government, as expressed in Kelloggs' declaration, that "American property and life in Mexico be protected," will be allowed formally, to rest for several weeks, but meanwhile, the Coolidge agents will quietly investigate to determine whether or not Calles has taken the hint to crush militant labor with a firmer hand.

The agrarians in Mexico have taken over much of the land, and Calles is now ordered to drive these Mexican peasants away or pay the American capitalists damages. The note is also seen as a warning that the militant labor unions, especially the oil workers and miners who have struck against American exploitation, be destroyed.

The Communist Party of Mexico is holding meetings thruout the country protesting against the dictatorship of Wall Street imperialism and demanding that such exploitation cease. The Communists have rallied to the support of militant labor in Mexico.

It has not yet been announced whether or not ambassador Sheffield will be sent back to Mexico. Sheffield has been acting as the agent of the Standard Oil—Coolidge government in Mexico.

STRIKE LOOMS IN 12 BUILDING TRADES UNIONS

Union men in twelve trades will go on strike when work is started on the new forty-story Jeweler's building, if the "citizens' committee to enforce the Landis award," an agency which hires nonunion men, and the "Landis award" contractors adhere to their announced intention of defying the ultimatum of the Chicago building trades council.

The council, thru its president, Patrick Sullivan, announced that work will be stopped on new contracts let which permit nonunion men to work alongside union men. The contract for the Jeweler's building was let after Sullivan's announcement, and union men in the following trades will therefore be called on strike, architectural iron workers, asbestos workers, bricklayers, composition floor finishers, electrical workers, machinery movers, mantel and tile setters, plasterers, steamfitters, stone cutters, and structural iron workers.

The "citizens' committee" announced that it will furnish nonunion labor to attempt to break the strike on this and seven other new construction jobs which have recently been awarded to "openshop contractors.

Great Powers Weaken As Chinese Remain Firm In Fight For Their Demands

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 16.—The crisis existing shows no signs of abating, altho the foreign negotiators conferring with the Chinese over the latter's demands are anxious to find some way to make concessions without injuring their dignity and their superior attitude towards all things Chinese.

The three principal demands, punishment of the police, indemnity for the victims slain by them and a return of the "international mixed court" to Chinese jurisdiction and control are being insisted upon by the Chinese. The foreign negotiators wish to save their faces by holding out on some of these demands, tho willing, perhaps, to grant the return of the mixed court.

Chinese exchange speculators started feverish buying of gold bars today following the rumor that an understanding will be reached that will end the strike tomorrow.

However, in ddition to the fact that anti-imperialist sentiment is seething thruout all China, it would be a mistake to regard the subsidence of the disorders as evidence that the crisis is over. Nothing would be further from the truth.

Have Program to Rally Masses.

On the contrary the present strike movement is only one step toward the objectives of the Kuo Min Tang Party of liberation from foreign domination, and the even partial victory of the present strike movement will be consolidated and the movement organized for further campaigns.

The leaders insist that their purpose is not "anti-foreign" in the negative sense, but simply patriotic in that they desire the right of the Chinese people to be master in their own house. Apparently, the leadership has definite aims around which to rally the masses. The efforts for national liberation proceed broadly as follows:

1. To overcome the doubts, and timidity of the older political leaders (and the corruption of some

SENTENCE MEANS DEATH TO SUGAR STRIKE LEADER

Struggle Not Ended by Jailing of Manlapit

HONOLULU, Hawaii, June 16—Pablo Manlapit, the leader of the striking Filipino cane-field workers, lost his case before the supreme court of the territory, the decision being rendered on technical grounds. The opinion declared that the appeal was filed one day too late and the additional time granted for preparation of the case was not legally authorized and the appeal therefore without merit. Manlapit was committed to Oahu prison on Friday, May 29, to serve a sentence of two to ten years at hard labor.

Manlapit is a slight, nervous man, very high strung and intense. His health has been broken by the strain of the prolonged strike and the burden of responsibility resting on his shoulders. During his trial he was confined for several days to the hospital from hernia brot about by lifting heavy sacks of rice, the staple food of the strikers. A sentence of hard labor, with the attendant brutality which goes with it, amounts to a sentence of death if rigidly enforced.

The sugar barons assumed that Manlapit's removal would end the strike, but this is merely another proof of the stupidity of those who control the big industries. They have made a hero and a martyr of him in the eyes of his countrymen, and his final sacrifice has united all factional differences and silenced all criticism.

There is menace in the situation that the sugar planters fail to see. Manlapit's influence has heretofore restrained the Filipinos from acts of violence; with that influence withdrawn and their cup of bitterness overflowing, no man can tell what the reaction will be.

COAL MINE OUT OF BUSINESS BUT TENEMENTS STAY

Miners Now Slave in the Steel Mills

By WORKER CORRESPONDENT.

MONESSEN, Pa., June 16—One of the oldest mines in the Monongahela Valley passed out of existence when the Equitable mine at Webster closed, and the tipple was torn down and taken away.

The mine has given employment to hundreds of men for the past 50 years, but now the only remains as a black past, and a dark hole in the side of a hill.

The old red houses that are owned by the coal company are to remain where they are by the request of some business men—because the men have got jobs with the steel trust.

These houses are not fit to live in, but still the miners have to call it a home. The local papers had a great deal to say about this mine, all about its present owners, etc., but not a word to say about the number of men that have been killed or crippled for life piling up profit for the coal barons. Nor, had they a single word about the strikes that these miners have fought thru to get a shorter day and at least a little better pay.

Now these miners are working in the steel mills 10 or 12 hours a day or else they have given their strength to the other coal operators.

NOVA SCOTIA MINERS STILL WAR ON BESCO

Hungry and Desperate Mass Rebellion

(Special to The Daily Worker)

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, June 16.—Trouble continues at the Besco collieries in the Cape Breton region after the battle between the company gunmen and the striking miners which left the strikers in full control.

The provincial police, which distinguished itself for brutality against the steel workers in 1923 are on the ground in force, along with several hundred troops, but evidently are being held in restraint for fear on the part of high authorities of a desperate war to the death.

Infamous Stool on Job

It is known that the gang of gunmen who charged the miners on picket last Thursday killing one and wounding many, was commanded by Captain Noble, a notorious stool pigeon who Canada in 1918-19 in stooling on the dragged a slimy trail over Western lumber workers and who appeared as an armed thug for Besco in the 1923 steel strike.

The effort of Besco to force a wage cut by lockout and cutting off store credit was generally condemned even by liberal capitalist politicians. Even John L. Lewis had to admit that Besco "spurned" every offer of the miners. At the time he stated as follows:

Oysters Did Not Kill William, Miss Pope Tells Jury

Miss Pope, fiancee of the dead Billy McClintock, whom Wm. D. Shepherd is accused of murdering, resumed the stand this afternoon. She was questioned about the dinner on the South Side November 3, 1924, and said her cousin and his fiance were present and neither of them were made ill by the oysters. It had been asserted by the defense that McClintock was made ill from eating oysters at this dinner.

She was excused after having been on the stand four hours.

FARMER'S HOMES SOLVING SOVIET CROP PROBLEMS

Peasants Learn New Agricultural Methods

By ALFRED KNUTSON

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, (By Mail) The farm problem in Soviet Russia is a big problem but the Soviet government is solving it in a practical way. So much ignorance and slavery have been inherited from the time of the czars that it requires almost superhuman efforts to bring about reconstruction in the field of agriculture.

Among the many institutions that have been and are being established by the Soviets to raise the cultural level of the farmers the Farmers' Homes are of great importance. 171 of such homes have already been established in the Soviet Union and their number is increasing.

Provide Farm Libraries

Good, spacious buildings are provided for these homes and the farmers can get much information and aid from them. There is information on crop production, cattle raising, horticulture, fruit raising, what kind of building to have on the farm and many other things that pertain to agriculture.

The homes contain a lecture room and a library where the farmers can receive up-to-date and scientific knowledge concerning farming. It is true that some things may yet be lacking in this respect when judged by American standards, but it is significant that such a good start has been made and that the Soviet authorities are doing everything possible to make these homes even more useful to the farmers.

Agricultural Exhibits

Connected with these homes are also a museum, hospital, lodging rooms and a dining hall. Meals and lunches can be had from 10 kopeks (5 cents) to 40 kopeks (20 cents) and the services of the doctor are free to the farmers. The museum contains many varieties of Russian farm implements and here is also found exhibited wheat, oats, flax and other grain, orticultural products, fruits, etc. Many objects made by the farmers themselves are placed on exhibition in this museum.

The now famous Lenin corner has also found its way into the Farmers' Homes. Busts and portraits of Lenin are plentiful and his useful saying and slogans relative to the revolution and agriculture cover the walls.

Eventually—and the time is not far off—a tremendous transformation is going to take place in Russian agriculture. The revolution has cleared the decks for action.

Two Building Unions of New Jersey Unite on Wage Raise Issue

TRENTON, N. J., June 16. — The building laborers of Bergen county, N. J., and Rockland county, N. Y., have gone out on strike for an increase from $7 to $8 per day. The bricklayers are supporting the laborers by striking in sympathy. Fully 500 men are affected. A large number of contractors not associated with the Master Builders' Association have granted the increase, but the Association members are holding out against the increase.

COLUMBIA UNIVERSITY STUDENTS FIGHT FOR WORKER VICTIMS OF WORLD IMPERIALISM IN CHINA

By BEN GITLOW.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK.—A few weeks ago a group of students in Columbia University, who are Communists and radicals, organized. This group of young intellectuals is doing verything in its power among the students to further the interests of the proletarians and to win the support of the students for the Communist movement.

At the meeting on June 12 the revolt against imperialism now spreading over China was discussed. Those present particularly interested themselves with the role the Chinese students were playing in the strikes and mass demonstrations that were taking place.

They decided that it was necessary to get in touch with the Chinese students in this country in order to get them to engage in joint action with American students in support of the Chinese workers and against the bloody invading imperialist powers. They immediately established the most friendly relations with a Chinese students body in Columbia university. As a basis for their future activity in this matter they adopted the following resolution:

Resolution of Columbia university students.

1. The radical and Communist students of Columbia university sympathize with the Chinese people in their heroic struggle to save China from the greed and exploitation of the imperialist powers, Japan, England and the United States.

2. They sympathize with the Chinese workers in their struggle against he brutal exploitation of Japanese mill owners.

3. And with the students and vorkers who have risen in arms for he defense of the Chinese strikers in 'singtao and Shanghia.

4. And they admire and encourage e action of the Chinese students of reater New York in their support their exploited countrymen, and in eir protest against the partition of hina and the massacre of workers d students.

Therefore, This group puts the serves of its members at the disposal the Chinese students of Greater w York and volunteers to co-opere in whatever capacity the situan requires.

And as an immediate pledge of od will and support we donate five llars towards the relief of the opessed and exploited Chinese rkers.

'HANDS OFF CHINA' MASS MEETING IN 'FRISCO SUNDAY

Japanese and Chinese Among Speakers

SAN FRANCISCO.—What promises to be one of the biggest mass meetings ever held by the Communists of this city will take place Sunday night, June 21, at the party headquarters, 225 Valencia street. The affair will be a demonstration against the interference of American soldiers, sailors, and diplomats, in the affairs of the Chinese republic. Speakers will be as follows: James H. Dolsen, in English; Shiji Matsui, of Berkeley, in Japanese; Miss Sum Way Gum, President of the Chinese Unionist Guild, and Chan Sut Yeu, secretary of the Guild and editor of Kung Sing (a Chinese labor paper), in Chinese. Marshall Jeng, vice-president of the Guild and an officer in the Chinese Students Association of America, will address the meeting in English. Benjamin Ellisberg will act as chairman.

The Kuo Min Tang branch here, which is one of the strongest in America, is cooperating. The meeting will be extensively advertised in both the Chinese and Japanese press. This is the first affair of this kind in which both Oriental groups have been represented, along with the American workers, and augurs well for further cooperation in the future.

EVEN CHRISTIAN ADMITS CHINESE ARE JUSTIFIED

Describes Hell of Cotton Mills

NEW YORK, June 16.—(FP)—"I think it would better become foreigners to treat the Chinese with less superiority," says Dr. Charles K. Edmunds, for 17 years president of Canton christian college and now in the college's New York office.

"There is justification for the antiforeign feeling in Shanghai," says Dr. Edmunds. "The native mill workers had a right to protest against the conditions under which they worked. The cotton mills owned by Japanese and British, employ women and children, at small pay, to work 13 hours a day."

"It is not uncommon to see a mother take her baby to the mill and permit it to lie on the floor with the cotton flying about it, while she performs her work at the looms. Children as young as eight years old work 13 hours a day. The pay is not more than sufficient to keep them alive."

Can't Apply "Western Methods"

"When the workers struck the student classes sympathized with them and organized demonstrations in the international settlement. The demonstrators were unarmed. The Sikh police, controlled by the British, opened fire on the crowds in the street. To meet a strike of unarmed persons with gunfire is not helpful. You can't apply Western methods to the labor situation in China. The labor movement is in its infancy there."

"It is incumbent on foreigners to use discretion in dealing with Chinese. Unfortunately, foreigners have taken advantage of their extra-territorial rights and have ruthlessly employed western methods in dealing with labor.... Dr. Jacob Gould Schurman, who recently retired as Minister to China, suggested that the present uprisings are indicative of a new nationalism in China. I am inclined to agree with him," Edmunds states.

N. Y. Workers' Sport Alliance Invites You to North Beach, July 26

NEW YORK,—If you are looking for a nice cool place, where to go on Sunday July 26, by all means come to the picnic of the Workers Sport Alliance, which will be held on that date, at the Belvedere Park, North Beach, L. I.

The committee in charge of arrangements assures you a splendid time full of enjoyment and fun. Besides the contests in running, jumping and throwing arranged for the members of the W. S. A. there will also be other games arranged for the nonmembers.

A good buffet will be arranged at the picnic by an expert committee in that line, so that everyone will be able to satisfy his or her appetite after dancing in step with the music to be furnished by a good orchestra.

Come to the nicest place in Long Island on Sunday, July 26, at 10 a. m. and while enjoying yourself at the picnic, you will be helping the building up of the Workers Sport Alliance, section of the Red Sportintern, the only revolutionary working class sport organization of the world.

LABOR BOYCOTTS U. S. FLEET IN AUSTRALIA, DEMANDING RELEASE OF AMERICAN LABOR PRISONERS

By W. FRANCIS AHERN.

MELBOURNE, Australia—(FP)—Speaking on behalf of a million organized workers, the Melbourne Trades Hall Council calls upon the Australian workers to refrain from any social functions in connection with the visit of the American fleet as a protest against the action of the U. S. government in piling radicals in jail.

The manifesto points out that "a large number of the members of the American working class are still lying in United States jails serving long and brutal terms of imprisonment for alleged offenses. Their only crime is that they dared to oppose war and conscription and dared to advocate industrial unionism and socialism."

After pointing out that protests have been made to the American consul and the Australian parliament for presentation to Pres. Coolidge, the manifesto says:

"The Australian Labor movement considers the action of the American authorities in attacking members of the American working class organizations to be an attack upon the cardinal principles of the labor movement, namely: freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and the right of combination, all of which are embodied in the American constitution. We therefore join with the workers of all lands in calling upon the people of America to demand from their government the release of all such prisoners.

"In making this appeal to the workers of America, we cordially invite the cooperation of the workingclass of the American fleet. Our fight against oppression affects the welfare of the rank and file of the army and navy, either at home or abroad, just as the rest of the members of the community. We join with them in urging the American people, if they believe in the rights and liberties of the American constitution, to open the jails and set our comrades free."

HAT MAKERS FIGHT TRADE DISABILITIES

Strain and Steam Cause Illness

By ESTHER LOWELL,

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 16.—The strike of men's felt hat workers in New York is directed chiefly toward improving conditions and eliminating health hazards in the industry, President Richard M. Humphrey of Local 8, United Hatters of America, the union on strike, says. The workers are asking for satisfactory working conditions and 15 per cent wage increases.

Occupational Disease.

The union charges that many employers are buying inferior materials and felts too small to make the required head sizes. The workers as a consequence have to strain over the mold with steam and all the strength of their bodies to stretch the felts to the size demanded. Hernia is one of the serious results.

Colds and susceptibility to tuberculosis come from the prolonged working over steaming molds in not too well ventilated shops. Irritation of the lungs leading to serious disease comes from the aniline dye dust used.

High Wages For Only Short Time.

The workers make both soft felt and hard derby hats. Their work is seasonal, the busy period being between June and November. During that time the best workers may make as much as $9 a day, which the employers have tried to claim as the average wage, but most of the workers average around $6 while working.

Men do the difficult and heavy work of shaping. Women and girls do the trimming of the hats. All the workers, about 2000, in greater New York's shops are striking for the new wage scale and better working conditions. The industry centers in New York and Connecticut.

WORKERS OF DENMARK STRIKE FOR BETTER WAGES AGAINST BOSSES ASSOCIATION—COMMUNSTS ACTIV

COPENHAGEN, Denmark. (By Mail.)—The Communist Party of Den mark is not a big party, but is in good condition and shows a healthy growt in all the different parts of the country. It has one weekly paper, Arbeiderbladet, with about 15,000 circulation and considerable influence among organized labor, especially the transport workers, who belong to the Workingmen's Union, that counts its membership at about 90,000 and is the largest union within the federation of labor, De Samvirkende Fagforeninger. E. Christiansen is the chairman and editor. They have no secretary. The youth is organized. The organization of the children is called Den Unge Pioner and its paper Pioneren.

Three Types of Farmers.

As for the other parties: The bourgeoisie belong to the conservative, the large farmers to the moderate left, the small farmers and the city intelligentsia to the radical left, and the large majority of the workingmen and some of the landowners and smallest farmers belong to the social-democratic party. This is now the ruling party, but not having a majority over all the other parties it depends upon the support of the radical left.

There are three kinds of farmers: The large farmers, the smaller ones that own their land and make a living out of it by their own work, only occasionally hiring a little help, and the smallest ones, the "husmaend," who by the aid of state loan own their land, but in order to make a living have to hire out and so work for others. Then the landworkers.

Socialists a Dead Party

The social-democratic party counts 123,000 members that pay 10 cents quarterly and otherwise have no obligations, the dues even being collected by messenger. It meets twice a year, but there is no obligation for the members to attend.

The attendance is small and only about 10 per cent cast their vote at party elections. It is not a live party, simply an election machine. Outside of an evening school, financed by the labor organization, its efforts confine themselves to excursions and Christmas festivals.

There is no opposition group within the party. It does nothing for the working class, and the Communist Party points out that altho in power it will do nothing for the workers.

There is a considerable movement to the left among workingmen, but it is not yet revolutionary. The disarmament proposition was not seriously meant, only election propaganda, and will not be carried out.

Workers Locked Out.

De samvirkende (the federation of labor), count 235,000 members and are now in a severe battle with the employers' organization, that has locked out about a hundred thousand of its members.

The locked-out workers receive liberal assistance not only from their own organizations, but also from the international, and the 90,000 members of the Workingmen's Union have declared a strike in sympathy with the transportation workers. This is about a 100 per cent strike and will undoubtedly prove effective.

The Workingmen's Union has been the victim of unfair wages and now want this corrected.

Thirteen New Strikes 'Every Week to Worry American Government

WASHINGTON, June 16.—On June 6, 1925, there were 37 strikes before the department of labor for settlement, and in addition 31 controversies which had not reached the strike stage. Total number of cases pending, 68, thirteen of which are new. The 13 new cases may be compared with 18 and 13 of the first and second weeks preceding. The new cases involve miners, plumbers, culinary workers, hod carriers, lathers, teamsters and painters.

SOVIET GRAIN TRUST RUN FOR PEASANTS' USE

Prevents Speculation and Suffering

By ANISE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MOSCOW, (By Mail)—About forty per cent of all the grain marketed in Russia passes thru the hands of the State Grain Trust, an organization just now celebrating its three year anniversary. Three years ago, when the Soviet Union went over from the basis of war Communism to free trade between city and country, this trust was formed out of the remnants of the old Commissariat of Supply, an organization which existed to comandeer grain and other supplies and apportion them where needed by the emergencies of the state.

Under the new economic policy, the peasant could sell grain where he chose, and the function of the new grain trust was to buy it from him, trying if possible to control enuf of the market so that the peasant might be protected against private speculators. It was this trust, last autumn, when the crop failure started wild shifts of prices in grain and livestock, which swiftly stabalized markets and prevented much suffering.

Importance of Grain Trust.

"Great is the importance of the State Grain Trust," says Smirnov, commissar of agriculture, in an interview given on the third anniversary of the founding of the trust.

"This trust, newly organized three years ago, had to build a market for peasant produce, stabilize prices, and keep this all in harmony with the interests of state industry, the conditions of our transport and our monopoly of foreign commerce.

Aids Industries.

"Capital was very scant, and consisted chiefly of leftover supplies of the department of supply, most of them the things which the peasants had not wanted. Bank financing was still imperfect and inadequate. Yet in its first year this Grain Trust handled the equivalent of 45 million bushels of grain. (This figure reduces the animal products and other commodities to their grain equivalent.) This was almost twice the amount expected for its first year's work. Over half of this went straight into aiding state industries, helping put them on their feet.

"But the big achievement of the first year was the building of its apparatus, both for buying and selling, using for this purpose the net of co-operative stores, wherever possible, but in very many places creating new agencies which had not yet existed. By the second and third years the work could be much widened, so that now the State Grain Trust is handling 40 per cent of all the peasants' grain reaching the market. It has partly put thru a new plan for lines of grain elevators, which will greatly strengthen its work. The commercial production of flour for the entire Soviet Union has also been transferred to this trust."

Buys Thru Co-operatives.

Khinchuk, head of the Central Co-operative Union of Russia, also pays his respects to the Grain Trust in an interview regarding its relations with the cooperatives. "We have had the most attentive and kindly treatment from the Grain Trust" he says, "both in our central organization and in our local scattered branches. Our contracts with them have increased steadily.

"In its first year the Grain Trust did only 14 per cent of its buying and 16 per cent of its selling thru the co-operatives; this has now increased to 25 per cent and 29 per cent respectively. Actually the proportion of sales thru co-operative organs is much larger, as only the large scales made on contract are listed as made 'with the co-operatives,' while very many sales thru smaller co-operatives count as if made by the 'Grain Trust's own branches,' as these smaller co-operatives often have that function. I should judge that about half of all the Grain Trust's sales are really thru co-operatives stores. As our net of co-operatives grows stronger, we expect the grain trust to leave the retail trade in our hands."

Enters Flour Production.

Something over one hundred and fifty million dollars is the present yearly turnover of the State Grain Trust of Russia. Kamenev, in predicting its future steps, says: "Whenever possible it is using even building co-operatives to handle the retail trade in the villages. It must now take up the special field of flour production, where more than anywhere else, the competition of private capital has been felt. It will also do more export. The state can rely on this trust as one of the most serious tools for regulating the grain market."

It is rather startling for an American, just returned from the United States to Russia, to see how openly and cheerfully they expect "trusts" to do price-fixing and to "control the market." What a completely different meaning the word "trust" has in the two countries! For the Russian trusts are state-owned, and directed for the benefit of the workers.

The Workers Party in Action

FOR A DAILY IL LAVORATORE!

An Appeal to the Membership of the Italian Federation by the Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party.

COMRADES:—The Philadelphia Convention of the Italian Section was unanimous in its decision that the Il Lavoratore must again appear as a daily as soon as a definite fund had been secured. In this decision the convention expressed the wish not only of our Italian membership, but also of the entire party. The Central Executive Committee declares that the interests of the party absolutely demand that the Il Lavoratore again become a daily in the shortest possible time.

Every member of our Italian Section will subscribe to this statement of the Central Executive Committee of the party. Every class conscious and militant Italian worker, even of those who have not yet become party members, will approve and support the proposition of making the Il Lavoratore the daily organ of the Italian toiling masses in the United States.

What is necessary for the success of the Il Lavoratore is that every member of our Italian Section should participate with enthusiasm and devotion in the money-raising campaign initiated by the Bureau of the Italian Federation.

Comrades! The Italian workers in the United States have shown on numerous occasions that they realize the need for a daily organ such as the Il Lavoratore. The experiences of the Italian masses with the brutal rule of American capitalsim in the mines, railroads, building trades, in the textile industry and in the garment trades, have created for our movement excellent opportunities for growth. A daily Il Lavoratore will help the Italian masses in their daily struggles and will enable our party to build a powerful revolutionary movement among the Italian speaking workers in the United States.

The Central Executive Committee of the Workers Party calls upon every member of our Italian Section to join wholeheartedly in the campaign FOR A DAILY IL LAVORATORE. We call upon every Italian worker in the United States to support our Italian Section in this campaign.

A DAILY IL LAVORATORE means more strength for the Italian workers in their daily struggles against the bosses. A DAILY IL LAVORATORE means more consciousness and more determination on the part of the Italian masses in their fight against the Mussolinis of American capitalism. Every member of our Italian Section must at once answer the call of the Italian Bureau, and of the Central Executive Committee to transform the IL LAVORATORE into a daly in the shortest possible time.

DOWN WITH THE MUSSOLINIS OF AMERICAN CAPITALISM!

DOWN WITH CORRUPTING INFLUENCES OF THE CAPITALIST PRESS!

HAIL THE STRUGGLES OF THE ITALIAN WORKERS IN THE UNITED STATES!

HAIL THE DAILY IL LAVORATORE!

Central Executive Committee, WORKERS PARTY OF AMERICA.

INTERNATIONAL PICNIC OF THE POLISH, RUSSIAN, AND UKRAINIAN COMMUNISTS DEFENDS CHINESE

The Polish, Russian and Ukrainian branches of the Workers Party in Chicago had an international picnic on June 14. Masses of militant Chicago Communists and sympathizers came to this picnic. They knew that it had the nature of a demonstration against imperialism's bloody dance in China and that their duty is to raise their voices in protest against the killing and murdering of China's workers and students who fight for their liberation from the yoke of international imperialism.

Joseph Kowalski opened the meeting as chairman, pointing out that the Communists everywhere are making it their duty to point out to the workers the revolutionary struggles going on between the oppressed workers and their masters. And because at present in the Far East our Chinese brothers are in a bitter struggle against the common enemy—world imperialism, we make it our duty to inform the men and women present about the magnificent fight of the Chinese workers.

James P. Cannon, member of the central executive committee of the Workers Party, was then called to the platform. Comrade Cannon said that the Second International never was able or willing to realize the importance of meeting the backward masses of Asia, India, and Africa, and lead them in their fight for their liberation. Comrade Lenin was the only one who long before the world war pointed out this fact. The Second International collapsed. The Communist International was then organized. Comrade Lenin was it's leader.

And the result of following Comrade Lenin's tactics is the fight of the Chinese today against foreign imperialism.

Our duty, Comrade Cannon said, as American workers is to prevent this government and its capitalists from sending soldiers and warships to China, because every bullet sent into the body of a Chinese worker or student, means at the same time a blow at the American working class.

After Comrade Cannon, Comrade B. K. Gebert spoke in Polish. He pointed out that at the present time in West Virginia the miners are fighting against their bosses. If some foreign government would come down and interfere the United States government would fight the foreigners, but when the Chinese workers are fighting against their bosses, who happen to be Japanese capitalists, the foreign capitalist governments are interfering and shooting them down in the streets of their own land.

Comrade Deviatkin, member of the Russian branch, and an old time fighter in the underground movement in Russia at the time of the czar, spoke in Russian. He pointed out that Soviet republics have been established over one-sixth of the earth's surface which inspire the oppressed masses and races against their masters.

The masses of Asia and India, Comrade Deviatkin said, are looking toward the red banner of the Soviets in Russia and under that banner they will liberate themselves, establishing the Soviet Socialist Republic of China.

Bulgarian Comrades Picnic Sunday at Madison, Illinois

MADISON, Ill.,—All comrades and sympathizers from Madison and the surrounding towns are cordially invited to the biggest, the grandest and the liveliest picnic of the season given by the Bulgarian group of the Workers Party of Madison Sunday, June 21 at Lakeview, the place considered the most beautiful in Madison county.

Ford Refusal to Pay State Compensation Fund May Wreck Law

COLUMBUS, O.—(FP)—Because the Ford Motor Co., boasted friend of the proletariat, refuses to pay into the Ohio workmen's compensation fund, the whole structure of the accident commission is endangered. A court of appeals upholds Ford in his refusal to pay his quota. Other firms are expected to follow the Ford example.

KLUXERS, KOPS, RAID WORKERS PARTY MEETING

Steel Barons Don't Like Red Message

By WALLACE METCALFE
(Special to The Daily Worker)

GIRARD, O., June 16.—Despite interference on part of the K. K. K. and allied 100 per cent plus organizations the 3rd annual steel sub-district picnic held here in Avon Park was a success in every way.

Steel workers from all over the sub-district with their families gathered early and enjoyed the day.

In the afternoon the sport events attracted the attention of the workers. Comrade Harry Sirotnik of the Junior Y. W. L. won first prize in the 100 yard dash for juniors and he gets a fine baseball glove donated by comrade Jos. Coope. The junior girls prize was won by the Y. W. L. of Warren—a fine vanity case donated by Comrade Coope. The adult race for men was won by Sam Frank. The Y. W. L. race was won by a Greek comrade. Following the sport program the DAILY WORKER contest for the most subs to be secured on the grounds was started. Comrade A. Doago of East Youngstown won first prize having secured 6 new subs and one for our Italian paper.

Comrade Frank Bespeck secured 1 full year sub while some other workers took sub-cards and want to continue their sub getting work during Red Week. The sub-district secretary will furnish prizes to those winning out during the week. Comrade Doago was presented the sub-contest prize of $5,00 worth of Communist literature and a personal letter from comrade Walt Carmon of the DAILY WORKER.

Too Much For Klucks

C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers' (Communist) Party was introduced by Comrade W. J. White. Comparing the fake democracy existing in America with the workers and peasants government of Soviet Russia was too much for the K. K. K. who are strong in these parts. The park management insisted that the meeting discontinue and when Max Salzman of the Y. W. L. started to speak on the imperialist invasion of China a squad of cops, kluxers and associated law and order patriots appeared and stopped the meeting. Avon Park is but a short distance from Niles, Ohio, where the klan riots took place a short time ago and the law and order brigade were fearful that another such battle would occur if the speaking continued. It was reported that the kluxers were assembled outside the park ready to raid the meeting. Across from the meeting place sweating christians were jazzing their heads off on the dance floor but the kluxers didn't seem to worry much about dancing on their Sabbath Day just so nothing was said 'against the government.' Comrade Ruthenberg held the audience for one hour and a half and made one of the finest speeches ever delivered in the steel valley. The workers present were given an example of the brand of democracy dished out in the steel valley when the kluxers and cops stopped further speaking. This backed up everything charged by the speaker against the fake democracy exhibited in America.

The sub-district executives announced that Comrade William F. Dunne of the DAILY WORKER will be the principal speaker at a "Hands Off China" mass meeting to be held Sunday, June 21, at 8 p. m. at the Ukrainian Hall—525½ West Rayen Ave., Youngstown, Ohio.

FOSTER SPEAKS AT BIG PICNIC IN MILWAUKEE

Communist Movement Grows in Milwaukee

By ANDREW OVERGAARD

MILWAUKEE, June 16.—William Z. Foster, chairman of the Workers (Communist) Party was the principal speaker at the big picnic in Tippecanoe Park, last Sunday, which was held under the auspices of the local section of the Party. Comrade Foster spoke for over an hour and held the close attention of his audience on the very interesting topic of the present situation of the trade union movement in Europe and particulairly of the condition of the workers in the Soviet Union.

Comrade Gibson of the Milwaukee local, introduced Comrade Foster. The affair was a decided success socially and financially.

A new Greek branch of the Workers (Communist) Party has been formed in Milwaukee. The first meeting was attened by eleven workers and five of them poined the party. Meetings will be held every Saturday from now on with the object of bringing the message of Communism to the Greek workers in Milwaukee.

Arrest Pat Toohey on Frame-up Charge in Anthracite Fields

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WILKES BARRE, Pa.—The desperation of the anthracite coal barons and their lackeys in face of the growing militancy among the miners is evidenced by the recent arrest of Comrade Pat Toohey, sub-district organizer of the Workers (Communist) Party, on a cheap frame-up.

For some time the capitalist press of Scranton and Wilkes-Barre has been levelling a barrage against Toohey, calling him the "red vampire" of the anthracite because of his brilliant defense of his position before the working class of this region. Shortly after the campaign, was launched Toohey and two others were arrested charged with cutting a steel rope and releasing a coal barge that in reality broke its moorings being rotten and decayed, and floated a few miles down the Susquehanna river.

The facts are that some time after the barge broke away, Toohey, along with some hundred or more others were bathing in the river. Known to have been in the vicinity of the barge, Toohey and two other miners were arrested by company detectives as they came out of the mine where they were working, haled before a magistrate and held under $500 bail, with no opportunity to summon witnesses in their behalf.

Toohey issued a scathing statement to the local press taking the hides of the mine owners and their flunkkeys, the mine police and company flunkeys, who were "witnesses" against him. His "case" will come up before the court during the September sessions.

Every sub you get during Red Week of June 15 to 21 is a sub to "make another Communist."

ROTTEN MESS OF CLASS PEACE IN LAWRENCE UNION

dent of the Dyers' & Finishers' Union.

A. B. Sutherland was the first business man to speak. He had it all figured out that the low tariff was the fundamental cause of the depression and visioned that a higher tariff would bring prosperity to the worker. As if this hoary joke had not been exploded long ago.

U. T. W. Organizer Speaks.

The next speaker was Thomas J. Regan, organizer for the U. T. W. and residing in Lowell, Mass. Textile manufacturers held a conference in Lowell a few weeks ago and one of the statements issued from this meeting was that the textile industry in Massachusetts must return again to 54 hours a week, in order to compete with the south.

Mr. Regan said in answer that other states in New England where the workers are working the 54 hours or more, conditions are just as bad as in Lawrence, Lowell or any other city in Massachusetts, and so he did not see any benefit for the workers in going back to 54 hours.

Drive for Longer Hours Foretold.

He argued that the large manufacturers would, in September of this year, deliver the ultimatum to the workers that unless they went to their legislators and asked that the eight hour law, so-called, be abrogated and the workers allowed to work 10 hours a day for the same pay, and at the same time rescinding the order effecting the employment of women and minors, the mill owners would remove their mills to the south, where child labor is allowed.

He closed by explaining the class collaboration principle of the U. T. W. saying it wasn't his purpose to overthrow the government but only a desire on his part that the manufacturers meet with the workers and "lay their cards on the table and be friends." He had no remedy to stop the drive for longer hours.

God of Battles Shows up Himself.

The Rev. Donald H. Gerrish, who usually struts around in an army uniform was the next on the program. Gerrish who is the principle gospel expounder on "Defense Days" and who loves the smell of fresh blood of humans (he was a chaplain in the "last" war) was full of pious optimism. He pointed to the poetic lines on the school wall: "The thoughts of Youth are Long, Long Thoughts." He thot this should apply to grown ups as well. He meant by this that the future would take the workers out of their present dungeon of despair.

This reminded one to think of that poetic soul in the story "Masters and Slaves," who says, "And what is poverty? Imagination." Rev. Gerrish: "What is hunger? Optimism." He concluded by quoting Cal, "Have faith in Mass." Mayor Rockefort said that unemployment was general in all industries and was a direct aftermath of the world conflict. He also was optimistic and pictured a rainbow just ahead.

At Last a Worker!

The only one that had a message to deliver on the "causes of the depression" of real value to the workers was Comrade Samuel Bramhall, a former textile worker and a hard fighter in the class struggle for many years. Comrade Bramhall was the leader in the Lawrence textile strike of 1919. The strike was won after a hard fight and the capitalist press and politicians have had it in for "Sam" ever since.

He stated the basic cause of the trouble was in the capitalist system itself, and that the business men and preachers present were only beating around the bush and attempting to lead the workers up a blind alley. He mentioned the speeding up system that has been put into effect in the mills and which has thrown hundreds of workers out of work.

At this point, what workers were in the hall, showed their approval by giving him a ringing applause, while no other speaker was thus favored during their talk, which showed that the workers appreciated hearing the truth.

The audience seemed very much interested in Comrade Bramhall's remarks but the chairman decided that enough was said and insisted that the speaker be seated. Protests were made from the floor on this ruling to no avail.

And It Ended by—Helping Business!

A resolution was passed calling upon the mayor to call a conference of manufacturers, merchants and textile operatives to form themselves into a "Comunity Committee" to see what could be done to help business along. A worker made an amendment to the resolution which was seconded but which the chairman decided to ignore. The merchants and their holy associates went home full of optimism and the workers' empty stomachs.

SOVIET UNION BUYS RIGHTS TO BOTTLE MACHINE

One of Largest Deals Concluded in U. S.

TOLEDO, Ohio, Jue 16. — One of the largest business transactions ever concluded by the Soviet Union in this country was closed when the Soviet government glass trust (Prodosilicat), bought the Russian rights to the Graham type of bottle machine from the Owens Bottle company of this city. Hundreds of thousands of dollars were involved in the transaction.

The Prodosilicat does all the buying and selling for the glass and other allied industries.

The negotiations, which have been under way for a year and a half, were brought to a successful conclusion when the contract for the sale was signed by representatives of the Soviet Union and the Owens Bottle company. The Soviet Union paid cash for the bottle rights, thru a New York bank.

Scranton Bakers to Organize in A. F. of L.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 16.—(FP)—Scranton bakers are to organize in the Bakery and Confectionery Workers International Union by Christ A. Kerker. A special meeting at the Central Labor Union with Edward F. McGrady, organiser for the American Federation of Labor, and Kerker speaking will open the organization drive.

Speaks at Salt Lake City Labor Council

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, June 16.—"Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor, who is hiking from Los Angeles to New York securing subscriptions for the DAILY WORKER at mass meetings which have been arranged for her, reports that she had an excellent meeting here.

"I am on the way to Rock Springs," "Mother" Bloor declared. "I also addressed the Central Labor Council, at their invitation, on the Menace of Unemployment. Hay Bales is active in the labor movement here. I addressed a third big meeting here on the subject of Amalgamation."

Shortage of Fruit Is Expected this Year

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16—According to latest reports from the United States department of agriculture fruit crops will be smaller this year than last.

The condition of apples on June 1 was nearly 10 per cent below the usual average on that date. Peach production in all parts of the country with the exception of California is expected to be substantially smaller than last year. The pear crop also is reported only fair this year.

you may say, that Wall Street should rebuke one who has tried his best to give no excuse for dissatisfaction. But Wall Street does not trust those who placed Calles in power and Calles no matter how willing he may be finds himself restricted in his desire to fulfill his promise to the bankers. This is the reason Kellogg hints of a revolution in Mexico; a De La Huerta revolution supported by the fascisti elements and the Catholic church.

SO far the honors are with Calles, even tho the weight of metal and man power are with the United States. But Coolidge will not find it so easy to prepare the masses of this country for an invasion of Mexico. The workers and farmers of the United States will not feel elated over the prospect of going over the border and risking their lives to collect bills for the House of Morgan or see that their pillaged lands and their mines are returned to the American bandits who took them from their rightful owners. It looks as if "Nervous Nell" Kellogg pulled a boner. Hands off Mexico!

Perhaps, but it is also possible that young bloods like Kahn would like to distinguish themselves saving the country from "Bolshevism" or in strikebreaking activities.

BUSINESS was stimulated in South Africa during May by the visit of the Prince of Wales. This information is sent out over the press service of the United States labor department. We are not informed what particular business was benefitted by the prince's presence, but venture to guess that the liquor business did not go down unless it went down Edward P.'s throat. Anyhow it is interesting to note that the DAILY WORKER stated that the prince was travelling as an imperial salesman. And it is a poor salesman who does not boost his firm's business.

QUITE a rumpus was raised in the house of lords recently when one of the peers stated that slave trading was going on in parts of the British empire. Viscount Cecil, one of those slimy pseudo-liberals whose hypocrisy makes such a hit with our half-baked pacifists, denied that the government knew anything about such activity. He said the league of nations was investigating those rumors and the league favored pitiless publicity. The league is owned by Britian and naturally favors publicity for any wrong doing that other nations are concerned in, but it maintains a policy of silence for the unsavory ventures of British business.

IRON MINES OF SOUTH EXHIBIT LOW WAGE CURSE

Gary Likes Conditions in Alabama

By LELAND OLDS,
Federated Press.

Iron miners in the southern ore mines of the steel trust slave 60 hours a week underground while those in the mines of Minnesota and Michigan average less than 48 hours. But do the 60-hour men of the south earn correspondingly higher wages? They do not, for their hourly rate is so low that they make less in 60 hours than their northern brothers make in a fraction over 47.

In the northern ore region the steel magnates have over 1,000,000,000 tons of ore in reserve. But in the south their reserves total over 10,000,000,000 tons.

Gary Radiates Optimism.

It is this situation in the south that makes chairman Gary radiate optimism when visiting the steel corporation plants near Birmingham, Ala. He sees inexhaustible stores of ore surrounded by large reserves of the cheapest labor in the country, labor accustomed to sweat long hours for a bare subsistence. It makes him so happy that he chooses the corporation's Birmingham sanitarium as an ideal place to recoup his tired nerves.

The contrast between iron mines north and south of the Mason and Dixon line is brought out in a study of wages and hours in metal mines by the U. S. bureau of labor statistics. From this are taken the following figures showing hourly and weekly earnings in the two regions:

	Per hour		Per week
Occupation	North	Ala.	North	Ala.
Chute loaders	54.0	30.0	$25.54	$18.00
Co. miners	61.4	48.3	29.10	28.98
Con. miners	71.7	82.1	33.99	49.26
Min'rs' help'rs	53.5	39.3	24.88	23.58
Laborers	50.3	33.0	23.79	19.80
Motormen	55.8	44.4	26.39	26.64
Muckers	53.1	42.9	25.12	25.74
Pumpmen	49.8	38.4	28.04	25.19
Timbermen	57.8	42.1	27.34	25.26
Topmen	41.8	28.2	24.08	17.00
Trammers	56.0	37.0	26.66	22.20
Trip riders	55.2	34.5	26.05	20.70
Other workers	58.4	42.0	20.95	25.75

These are the principal occupations aside from maintenance mechanics. Practically all the miners in Alabama are company miners, the 8 contract miners being obviously in the supervisory class. On the other hand the majority of miners in the northern field are clasified as contract miners averaging about $34 a week.

In both regions there are also open pit mines in which the 60-hour week prevails both north and south. But there is a vast difference in earnings. Thus common labor in the northern pit mines gets $25.74 a week compared with the $14.70 weekly average in Alabama. Other comparisons are pitmen $28.14 and $15.18; shovel firemen $32.95 and $16.50; trackmen $25.14 and $15.00; trip riders $30.46 and $28.86; other employes $32.31 and $17.58.

For the present the quality of the northern ore and the ease with which it is worked make possible the maintenance of the higher wage standards of the north. But any time the miners of Minnesota and Michigan make an organized attempt to secure better conditions they will face the ability of the steel trust to meet all its demands in the south.

Conscription in Next War.

NEW YORK, June 16.— Complete conscription of labor on the same basis that soldiers and other fighting forces are conscripted will be the course of the government in the next war, acting secretary of war, Dwight F. Davis told the graduating class at West Point, army officers' training school.

Monessen, Pa., first to lead from the very beginning of the campaign, was also first to fill its quota and first to reach its amount.

Pittsburg, Kansas, home of Alec Hewatt and other fighting miners, is right behind in second place.

FOLLOWER OF CHRIST IS BIG LAND GAMBLER

Tried to Jug His Aged Parent

By A. W. HOWITT
(Worker Correspondent)

TOLEDO, Ohio, June 13—(By Mail)—Canton Ave. which has been known as the bad lands in Toledo for many years, and which has been a notorious spot for holdups and murders, is experiencing a great change in appearance.

About a dozen old shacks and tenements are being torn down. The reason for this change is not because of the fact that these delapidated structures are a menace to the life and health of the slum proletariat who have been inhabiting them but; it is because that real estate values have increased.

As long as these smug church members and hypocrites who prate so much about our pure womanhood and who are the advocates of bible reading in the schools, could rent these mouldy, disease breeding, vermin infested, fire traps to unfortunate women who have to sell their bodies for bread; they were perfectly willing to do this.

The Christly Plunderer.

The heaviest holder of real estate in this neighborhood is a very pa(y)triotic church member by name Sam Davis, who has become wealthy by exploiting slaves in the coal, and trucking business.

This man attempted to send his aged father to the poorhouse several years ago, but was prevented from doing this however, by indignant neighbors who learned of his intentions.

The city has grown up around these slums and the real estate values have increased to such an extent that the parasites who hold this land can cash is now and can make as much as they would by renting to unfortunate women and bootleggers.

This is the reason that the fallen women who ply their trade on the street with the familiar salutation of "hello, dear," will have to seek a place elsewhere in some other location, where the landlord is looking for double or triple the rent that he gets now for some old shack.

The City Prison.

The most beautiful building that is being built in this neighborhood, and which covers half a city block is the city prison.

This building is being built on the site of what was formerly known as the slave market, or in polite English the state employment office.

The wage slaves who came here for years to sell their labor power still come to this rendezvous; I suppose from force of habit.

It is more than possible that many of these workers will be compelled to visit this beautiful building in the near future.

This is just a guess, and a contingency which we hope will not happen, but economic conditions get worse and the crowd on the street here increases from day to day. It looks as if this would be the outcome.

Dairy Products Reported Low.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 16—Production of milk, butter and cheese in the North Central States will be somewhat reduced this year because of poor conditions of pastures, according to reports received by the United States department of agriculture.

BRITISH UNIONS TO WAGE WAR ON UNEMPLOYMENT AS CAPITAL GETS SUPER-PROFIT IN INDIA

LONDON, June 17.—(F.P.)—The whole strength of the British trade union movement will be mobilized June 21 to advertize the growing menace of unemployment. The mass demonstrations will be directed jointly by the executive of the British Trades Union Congress and the National Unemployment Workers Committee.

Government statistics show 1,250,000 unemployed. Trade union returns show the most serious situation in the industries employing skilled men. The percentage of unemployed in these industries is growing, with 19 per cent out of work in the coal mines, 13 per cent in the metal industries, and 10.6 per cent in leather.

Unions Being Weakened.

The financial losses of the trade unions in direct expenditure on behalf of the unemployed are running to huge figures. The amalgamated metal trades alone have spent approximately $16,000,000. The unions contend that the wage cutting by employers with the connivance of the government has intensified a situation already made serious by a 25 per cent cut in foreign trade.

Meanwhile British capital goes on in Asia developing competition for British workers. The export of British textile machinery to India, China and Japan is an illustration. In 1913 Britain exported about $9,600,000 of textile machinery to India. The corresponding figures for 1921, 1922 and 1923 were $42,000,000, $38,000,000 and $27,000,000. Similarly exports of textile machinery to China went from $3,300,000 in 1913 to $14,000,000 in 1921, $14,000,000 in 1922 and $10,000,000 in 1923.

India Replaces Lancashire.

India now employs 350,000 cotton-mill operatives with about 8,000,000 spindles in 340 mills. The average working man in Bombay gets $4.35 a week out of which he pays $2.40 for food, 42 cents for clothing and 28 cents for rent. He can be worked 60 hours a week.

A recent government report shows India with fewer unemployed than England and higher relative profits.

Bosses Still Prosperous.

Cotton goods normally constitute about one-fourth of British exports. To a great extent England's world dominance has been built up by the Manchester merchants who sold cotton cloth, principally to India and China. And now tho the products of Lancashire cannot compete with the goods produced by the cheap labor of Japan, China, India and Italy, these merchants appear to be prospering.

The answer appear to be that when the orders come in to England as formerly these patriotic merchants fill them with goods produced in the mills of Japan, Italy, etc. Sometimes these goods are shipped direct from the place of production. At other times they are shipped via England camouflaged as British goods. And they are shipped in English ships so that the shipping trust continues its profits.

But this doesn't provide employment for the British unemployed.

Iowa Hit By Storm.

WATERLOO, Iowa, June 17—A terrific wind storm swept northeastern Iowa early today, according to reports received here. Huge property damage was done at Greene, Marble Rock, New Hampton and other towns. Buildings were reported damaged, trees uprooted and fields inundated by torrential rains.

Chicago Garbage Collectors May Strike for Raise

Chicago garbage collectors will go on strike within a few days unless the 15 cents a day raise promised them is met, to become retroactive from February 1, Paul David, business agent of the union declared.

The demand of the 360 garbage collectors have not been met, David said, and must be acceded to at once if a strike is to be prevented.

IRON WORKERS DO NOT ACCEPT PAGE'S RULING

Judge for Non-Union Employers in Strike

A federal judge, George T. Page, has again ruled in favor of the contractors, declaring that a strike of the structural iron workers is in violation of the "Landis award" agreement between the contractors and the unions in the Building Trades Council. The iron workers, however, having learned a lesson from the ruling of judge K. M. Landis, who established the "open shop" in Chicago, have refused to accept the authority of judge Page's ruling.

Page ruled that under the "Landis award" agreement a strike is permisable only when non-union men of the same union are employed. The iron workers struck on the new produce market construction job because non-union plumbers had been hired.

Patrick Sullivan, president of the Building Trades Council, declared the iron workers would not accept the decision as official or binding.

4 More Junior High Schools for Chicago

Four more elementary schools in the city will be changed into junior high schools. To meet the objections of parents the kindergarten, first, second, third and fourth grades will be retained in these schools. The schools are the Cameron School, 123 N. Monticello av.; Kelvyn Park, 4343 Wrightwood av., and the new Stockton School.

Three Violent Deaths.

SPRINGFIELD, Ills., June 17—The list of violent deaths in central Illinois in the last 24 hours mounted to three with reports that Daly Stewart, 15, son of William Stewart, Hillsboro, drowned while swimming in the city lake there.

RED WEEK—June 15 to 21.

COMMUNIST-CHILDREN'S-COLUMN

The Juniors of Perth Amboy.

PERTH AMBOY, June 16. — The Frederick Engels Junior group which consists of 22 members meets every Saturday at 2 p. m., at the Workers' Home, 265 New Brunswick Ave. All children of Perth Amboy are invited to attend these meetings.

The Juniors will have many features at the picnic to be held by the Workers Party on July 4, at Stonehouse Inn, Convery Place.

RUSSIAN SECTION IS BIGGEST FEATURE OF GREAT SWEDISH FAIR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 17—The first Scandinavian Baltic fair, which opened here this week, is a significant sign of Stockholm's aim to dominate Baltic business.

The fair occupies three great buildings. Some sections are still incomplete, but there are abundant indications that the exposition will become a flourishing, permanent annual institution.

The outstanding feature is the excellence and admirable arrangement of the Russian section installed by the Soviet government. It is in the best position in the entire foreign section and has a rare artistic charm. The literature explaining the Russian exhibit has been prepared in several languages, including English.

WORKERS IN CAR SHOPS FLEECED AT DRINK JOINT

Cops Guard Money of Paycheck Skinflints

By ALONZO WALTERS.
(Workers Correspondent)

At the corner of Crawford Ave., and Ferdinand street, just opposite the Crawford Ave., entrance to the Chicago & Northwestern railway shops, is a "soft" drink joint. True, some of the drinks sold there are more stimulating than soft, but that is not what I started to write about.

This very obliging joint offers to cash the pay checks of all the boys who work in the Chicago & Northwestern carshops, on every bi-monthly pay day. There are in normal times about five thousand men working in these shops. Their pay checks average $60.00 per man for each half-month period. These men get paid on the 10th and 25th of each month.

Charge $.25 Apiece.

As the banks are all closed at the hour when the men quit, it is a great convenience for them to be able to step into the above mentioned joint and get their checks cashed.

So far, so good. But here is where the interesting feature comes in. From each check cashed the proprietor of this "soft drink" stand deducts 25 cents. In return for this deduction a little ticket is given to the shopman which is good for a root beer or some other drink that can be bought at an ordinary soft drink stand for five cents.

This ticket bears the name "GARFIELD PARK STATE SAVINGS BANK."

If the shop worker, after he has expended his little root beer ticket, desires something stronger, all that he needs to do is to lay two bits on the counter, and say to the bar attendant, "Give me a shot."

Cops Keep Men in Line.

Two cops stand guard at this joint on pay-days. One stands just outside the entrance, sees who goes in and who comes out. The other stands just inside the door. He sees that the shopmen stand in line in their proper order, watches them get their checks cashed, and unless he is blind and deaf, sees the liquid transactions at the bar.

The number of the cop who stood on the outside last payday was 2874. The number of the cop on the inside, a sergeant, was 828.

Minnesota Bank Is Shut Down.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 17—The Ulen State Bank, at Ulen, with deposits aggregating $225,000, was closed because of depleted reserves, the State Superintendent of Banks announced.

BOSSES SCARED BY THREATENED BUILDING WAR

Workers in Onslaught on "Open Shop"

By CARL HAESSLER

Building contractors in Chicago are badly shaken by the ultimatum of the building trades council against the "halfbreed" construction under which union men have to work on the same job with non-unionists, many of them imported to Chicago by the open shop interests to smash wages and destroy trade union organization. Hereafter on new jobs the union man will have union associates or he quits.

The American Contractor, a weekly devoted to the business interests of the contractor, sounds the wail of the employers in its June 13 construction news edition. Contractors, it says, "cannot view the proposal to close Chicago for the building trades unions with any great enthusiasm. The closed shop seems to mean continuous jurisdictional squabbling and the open shop at the present time will probably mean innumerable strikes accompanied by mass picketing."

Bosses Use Another Judge.

The clause in the agreement between the building trades council and the Building Construction Employers' Association on which the men are relying to oust non-unionists reads: "Nothing in this agreement shall interfere with the right of members of the party of the second part (the building trades unions) to refuse to work for members of the party of the first part (the employer association) when employed by any person or firm having building construction work done in Cook county (Chicago district) by parties (non-union workers) not affiliated with the party of the second part (the unions.)"

The union interpretation is that this clause, which was written by Judge Landis in 1921 as part of the Landis award, permits a union steamfitter to quit his job under the agreement if the contractor also employs a non-union stonecutter, for example, on another job within the county. The employers hold that the clause merely permits the steamfitter to quit if he has to work with a non-union steamfitter.

The employers, who had done so well in 1921 when Judge Landis tried to rip up the building trades unions by his award as arbitrator, immediately ran to another federal judge named Page and wanted him to interpret the Landis clause. But the unions, who had been caught asleep by their agreeing to accept the Landis award in advance four years ago, now announce that the Page verdict, when rendered, will not be official and binding. They have had enough of impartial federal judges appointed by the employing class.

Many Trades in Fight.

The unions signing the ultimatum of the Chicago building trades council are the architectural iron workers, asbestos workers, boilermakers, bricklayers, bridge and structural iron workers, drain layers, tile layers, and their helpers cement finishers, electrical workers, composition roofers, hod carriers, hoisting engineers, stone cutters, marblecutters and setters, and their helpers, stone polishers, machinery movers, terrazzo workers, and their helpers, slate and tile roofers, glaziers, sprinkler fitters, steam fitters, gas fitters, tuck pointers, plumbers, lathers, plasterers and the elevator constructors. The carpenters, painters and sheet metal workers do not appear among the signers because they are not parties to the Landis uniform agreement.

"MOTHER" BLOOR ARRIVES IN ROCK SPRINGS, WYOMING, IN LONG TOUR ACROSS NATION FOR "THE DAILY"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., June 17.—Ella Reeves ("Mother") Bloor, on a coast-to-coast "hitch-hiking" tour for the DAILY WORKER, arrived here yesterday for meetings arranged for her by the workers in this city.

Enthusiasm was rife and a welcome assured to this sixty-year-old Communist fighter who is touring the country without paying railroad fare.

Last Thursday arriving in Salt Lake City, Mother Bloor spoke to the Central Labor Council, on invitation from this body, on the menace of unemployment and a splendid reception was given her by the delegates of organized labor in session.

This meeting was in great contrast to the recent attempt made by Mother Bloor to hold a meeting in Reno, Nevada, where the local authorities together with the trade union officials prevented the attendance of union men at the meeting arranged.

Proceeding to Ogden, Utah, Mother Bloor, Communist fighter and agitator, made the first steps to organize another Communist local in this city to forge further links in the chain of growing Communist units in this country.

In this city Mother Bloor received the active assistance of Hay Bales, an artist whose splendid work is well-known to the many readers of the Workers' Monthly. Following Mother Bloor's talk on the question of Communism and its official organ in this country—the DAILY WORKER. Hay Bales spoke on Amalgamation to a receptive audience of workers attending.

Today Mother Bloor arrives in Denver, Colorado, for a three-day stay for meetings at a picnic to be given by the local Communist units and at the Week's Joint Fair arranged by the local Central Labor body.

From here Mother Bloor proceeds to Kansas City for meetings to be held on June 26 and 27.

must live in crowded, unsanitary tenements. The cost of living is still going up.

The SUBWAYS are jammed to suffocation and the hirelings of the traction ring in the city and state government are trying to force an EIGHT CENTS FARE on the workers of the city.

In the PUBLIC SCHOOLS the children of the working class are herded like cattle in crowded rooms, under part-time instruction and poorly-paid teachers. The public school system has become a huge machine for turning out willing slaves for big business.

The POLICE and the COURTS are used again and again in the interests of the employers against the workers, thru the use of the injunction and the arrest of pickets.

The treasury of the city has been drained by grafting contractors and crooked officials. GRAFT AND CORRUPTION PREVAILS.

The administration of Hylan, like that of his predecessor, Mitchell, has openly sacrificed the interests of the workers in behalf of the real estate magnates and the traction ring of Wall Street.

These are some of the facts that the workers of the city must bear in mind in the coming mayoralty campaign this fall. These conditions, added to the low wages and the growing unemployment make the life of the workers of New York one of increasing misery. Under these circumstances the workers must make every effort to abolish these conditions and the capitalist system responsible for them. To meet the immediate needs of the masses.

The Workers Must Demand:

A municipal housing program insuring decent living quarters at cost;

Lower rent;

Low fares for the working people and adequate transit facilities by doing away with the private ownership of public utilities and the establishment of municipal ownership;

The management and operation of the public utilities with the participation of the workers of the industry;

A seat for every child in the public schools;

Full-time instruction, with properly paid teachers;

An elected board of education with teachers and labor representation;

Abolition of the injunction and the police interference in labor disputes;

To lower food costs thru the establishment of municipal terminal and markets to sell food without profit;

To meet the misery of unemployment thru the compensation of the unemployed by the city from a fund raised by taxation of excess profits.

These are some of the vital demands which labor must make in the coming election, in its fight to improve its conditions and to strengthen its power for the overthrow of the capitalist system.

To achieve these ends the workers must break the power of Tammany Hall and the republican party, renounce once and for all the fatal "non-partisan" policy and unite labor's forces into one powerful party of the producing classes—A Labor Party. The democratic party of Hylan and Tammany Hall and the republican party of the strikebreaker Coolidge and reactionary Dawes are both the tools of the landlords and capitalists and at the beck and call of the money bags of Wall Street. These parties under their own names or parading as "Reform," "Fusion" or "Progressive" are the vicious enemies of the working class. From these parties, the workers of New York can gain only increasing exploitation, and still worse conditions.

Unity and Labor Party the Need of the Hour

Only by uniting the workers of hand and brain against the powerful capitalist exploiters, by adopting a policy of Independent Political Action, and by breaking away from the two capitalist parties, can the workers strike an effective blow against the power of the money interests. The workers of New York City must show the way to the workers of the entire country by making a real step toward the building-up of a nation-wide Labor Party—a party of the toilers against the landlords and the capitalist exploiters.

For a United Labor Ticket in the Coming Election Campaign

The coming campaign affords an opportunity to make a real beginning in the direction of building a Labor Party. The workers must take the first step by establishing a United Labor Ticket in the fall campaign. This United Labor Ticket, backed by the masses of organized workers of this city, representing all working class groups, trade unions, labor political parties and labor fraternal organisations, rising the banner of Independent Political Action, will wrest the workers away from the domination of the parties of big business. It will unite the forces of labor for their coming struggle against the powerful forces of the capitalist parties.

For a Real Labor Unity Conference

The task of the hour is, therefore, the calling of a real Labor Unity Conference, with representatives of organized labor from local unions, the Central Trades and Labor Council and all labor political and labor fraternal organisations. Only thru a broad conference of this all-embracing nature will a United Labor Ticket be secured.

Labor Fusion Convention Will Not Bring Unity

The call for a "Labor Fusion Convention" on June 20, issued by the socialist party, will attract only the adherents of the socialist party and its immediate sympathizers. It will fail to attract the main body of the organized labor movement. No efforts has been made to unite all of labor's forces in the political and economic working class organizations. This convention cannot serve to establish labor political unity in the next election campaign. It can only result in further division and demoralisation in the ranks of the workers and thereby serve the interests of the capitalist class.

The workers of the city must demand thru their organizations that a real labor conference be called. The delegates to the "Labor Fusion Conference" must, in an organized manner, raise the concrete demand that arrangements be made at once with the Central Trades and Labor Council and all other labor political parties for the calling of a convention to which all labor organizations shall be invited. The Workers Party of America stands ready to join in such a labor conference and will give its whole-hearted support to a genuine effort to secure Labor Political Unity, to close the ranks of the workers in a United Labor Ticket, to make the first step toward the building of a Labor Party. The Workers Party of America which aims to establish a Workers' and Farmers' Republic in the United States calls upon the workers of New York for a united struggle against capitalist exploitation, and the rule of the bankers, capitalists and landlords. It raises the banner for a united action to demand the end of the miserable conditions of the city.

Down with the rule of the parties of Wall Street!

Forward to a Labor Party!

Down with capitalist exploitation!

Forward to better living conditions for the workers!

Onward to a Workers' and Farmers' Republic!

BRITISH UNIONS TO WAGE WAR ON UNEMPLOYMENT AS CAPITAL GETS SUPER-PROFIT IN INDIA

LONDON, June 17.—(F.P.)—The whole strength of the British trade union movement will be mobilized June 21 to advertize the growing menace of unemployment. The mass demonstrations will be directed jointly by the executive of the British Trades Union Congress and the National Unemployment Workers Committee.

Government statistics show 1,250,000 unemployed. Trade union returns show the most serious situation in the industries employing skilled men. The percentage of unemployed in these industries is growing, with 19 per cent out of work in the coal mines, 13 per cent in the metal industries, and 10.6 per cent in leather.

Unions Being Weakened.

The financial losses of the trade unions in direct expenditure on behalf of the unemployed are running to huge figures. The amalgamated metal trades alone have spent approximately $16,000,000. The unions contend that the wage cutting by employers with the connivance of the government has intensified a situation already made serious by a 25 per cent cut in foreign trade.

Meanwhile British capital goes on in Asia developing competition for British workers. The export of British textile machinery to India, China and Japan is an illustration. In 1913 Britain exported about $9,600,000 of textile machinery to India. The corresponding figures for 1921, 1922 and 1923 were $42,000,000, $38,000,000 and $27,000,000. Similarly exports of textile machinery to China went from $3,800,000 in 1913 to $14,000,000 in 1921, $14,000,000 in 1922 and $10,000,000 in 1923.

India Replaces Lancashire.

India now employs 350,000 cotton-mill operatives with about 8,000,000 spindles in 340 mills. The average working man in Bombay gets $4.35 a week out of which he pays $2.40 for food, 42 cents for clothing and 28 cents for rent. He can be worked 60 hours a week.

A recent government report shows India with fewer unemployed than England and higher relative profits.

Bosses Still Prosperous.

Cotton goods normally constitute about one-fourth of British exports. To a great extent England's world dominance has been built up by the Manchester merchants who sold cotton cloth, principally to India and China. And now tho the products of Lancashire cannot compete with the goods produced by the cheap labor of Japan, China, India and Italy, these merchants appear to be prospering.

The answer appear to be that when the orders come in to England as formerly these patriotic merchants fill them with goods produced in the mills of Japan, Italy, etc. Sometimes these goods are shipped direct from the place of production. At other times they are shipped via England camouflaged as British goods. And they are shipped in English ships so that the shipping trust continues its profits.

But this doesn't provide employment for the British unemployed.

Iowa Hit By Storm.

WATERLOO, Iowa, June 17—A terrific wind storm swept northeastern Iowa early today, according to reports received here. Huge property damage was done at Greene, Marble Rock, New Hampton and other towns. Buildings were reported damaged, trees uprooted and fields inundated by torrential rains.

Chicago Garbage Collectors May Strike for Raise

Chicago garbage collectors will go on strike within a few days unless the 15 cents a day raise promised them is met, to become retroactive from February 1, Paul David, business agent of the union declared.

The demand of the 360 garbage collectors have not been met, David said, and must be acceded to at once if a strike is to be prevented.

IRON WORKERS DO NOT ACCEPT PAGE'S RULING

Judge for Non-Union Employers in Strike

A federal judge, George T. Page, has again ruled in favor of the contractors, declaring that a strike of the structural iron workers is in violation of the "Landis award" agreement between the contractors and the unions in the Building Trades Council. The iron workers, however, having learned a lesson from the ruling of judge K. M. Landis, who established the "open shop" in Chicago, have refused to accept the authority of judge Page's ruling.

Page ruled that under the "Landis award" agreement a strike is permisable only when non-union men of the same union are employed. The iron workers struck on the new produce market construction job because non-union plumbers had been hired.

Patrick Sullivan, president of the Building Trades Council, declared the iron workers would not accept the decision as official or binding.

4 More Junior High Schools for Chicago

Four more elementary schools in the city will be changed into junior high schools. To meet the objections of parents the kindergarten, first, second, third and fourth grades will be retained in these schools. The schools are the Cameron School, 123 N. Monticello av.; Kelvyn Park, 4343 Wrightwood av., and the new Stockton School.

RUSSIAN SECTION IS BIGGEST FEATURE OF GREAT SWEDISH FAIR

(Special to The Daily Worker)

STOCKHOLM, Sweden, June 17—The first Scandinavian Baltic fair, which opened here this week, is a significant sign of Stockholm's aim to dominate Baltic business.

The fair occupies three great buildings. Some sections are still incomplete, but there are abundant indications that the exposition will become a flourishing, permanent annual institution.

The outstanding feature is the excellence and admirable arrangement of the Russian section installed by the Soviet government. It is in the best position in the entire foreign section and has a rare artistic charm. The literature explaining the Russian exhibit has been prepared in several languages, including English.

WORKERS IN CAR SHOPS FLEECED AT DRINK JOINT

Cops Guard Money of Paycheck Skinflints

By ALONZO WALTERS
(Workers Correspondent)

At the corner of Crawford Ave., and Ferdinand street, just opposite the Crawford Ave., entrance to the Chicago & Northwestern railway shops, is a "soft" drink joint. True, some of the drinks sold there are more stimulating than soft, but that is not what I started to write about.

This very obliging joint offers to cash the pay checks of all the boys who work in the Chicago & Northwestern carshops, on every bi-monthly pay day. There are in normal times about five thousand men working in these shops. Their pay checks average $60.00 per man for each half-month period. These men get paid on the 10th and 25th of each month.

Charge $.25 Apiece.

As the banks are all closed at the hour when the men quit, it is a great convenience for them to be able to step into the above mentioned joint and get their checks cashed.

So far, so good. But here is where the interesting feature comes in. From each check cashed the proprietor of this "soft drink" stand deducts 25 cents. In return for this deduction a little ticket is given to the shopman which is good for a root beer or some other drink that can be bought at an ordinary soft drink stand for five cents.

This ticket bears the name "GARFIELD PARK STATE SAVINGS BANK."

If the shop worker, after he has expended his little root beer ticket, desires something stronger, all that he needs to do is to lay two bits on the counter, and say to the bar attendant, "Give me a shot."

Cops Keep Men in Line.

Two cops stand guard at this joint on pay-days. One stands just outside the entrance, sees who goes in and who comes out. The other stands just inside the door. He sees that the shopmen stand in line in their proper order, watches them get their checks cashed, and unless he is blind and deaf, sees the liquid transactions at the bar.

The number of the cop who stood on the outside last payday was 2874. The number of the cop on the inside, a sergeant, was 823.

Minnesota Bank is Shut Down.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 17—The Ulen State Bank, at Ulen, with deposits aggregating $225,000, was closed because of depleted reserves, the State Superintendent of Banks announced.

BOSSES SCARED BY THREATENED BUILDING WAR

Workers in Onslaught on "Open Shop"

By CARL HAESSLER

Building contractors in Chicago are badly shaken by the ultimatum of the building trades council against the "halfbreed" construction under which union men have to work on the same job with non-unionists, many of them imported to Chicago by the open shop interests to smash wages and destroy trade union organization. Hereafter on new jobs the union man will have union associates or he quits.

The American Contractor, a weekly devoted to the business interests of the contractor, sounds the wail of the employers in its June 13 construction news edition. Contractors, it says, "cannot view the proposal to close Chicago for the building trades unions with any great enthusiasm. The closed shop seems to mean continuous jurisdictional squabbling and the open shop at the present time will probably mean innumerable strikes accompanied by mass picketing."

Bosses Use Another Judge.

The clause in the agreement between the building trades council and the Building Construction Employers' Association on which the men are relying to oust non-unionists reads: "Nothing in this agreement shall interfere with the right of members of the party of the second part (the building trades unions) to refuse to work for members of the party of the first part (the employer association) when employed by any person or firm having building construction work done in Cook county (Chicago district) by parties (non-union workers) not affiliated with the party of the second part (the unions.)"

The union interpretation is that this clause, which was written by Judge Landis in 1921 as part of the Landis award, permits a union steamfitter to quit his job under the agreement if the contractor also employs a non-union stonecutter, for example, on another job within the county. The employers hold that the clause merely permits the steamfitter to quit if he has to work with a non-union steamfitter.

The employers, who had done so well in 1921 when Judge Landis tried to rip up the building trades unions by his award as arbitrator, immediately ran to another federal judge named Page and wanted him to interpret the Landis clause. But the unions, who had been caught asleep by their agreeing to accept the Landis award in advance four years ago, now announce that the Page verdict, when rendered, will not be official and binding. They have had enough of impartial federal judges appointed by the employing class.

Many Trades in Fight.

The unions signing the ultimatum of the Chicago building trades council are the architectural iron workers, asbestos workers, boilermakers, bricklayers, bridge and structural iron workers, drain layers, tile layers, and their helpers cement finishers, electrical workers, composition roofers, hod carriers, hoisting engineers, stone cutters, marblecutters and setters, and their helpers, stone polishers, machinery movers, terrazzo workers, and their helpers, slate and tile roofers, glaziers, sprinkler fitters, steam fitters, gas fitters, tuck pointers, plumbers, lathers, plasterers and the elevator constructors. The carpenters, painters and sheet metal workers do not appear among the signers because they are not parties to the Landis uniform agreement.

"MOTHER" BLOOR ARRIVES IN ROCK SPRINGS, WYOMING, IN LONG TOUR ACROSS NATION FOR "THE DAILY"

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ROCK SPRINGS, Wyo., June 17.—Ella Reeves ("Mother") Bloor, on a coast-to-coast "hitch-hiking" tour for the DAILY WORKER, arrived here yesterday for meetings arranged for her by the workers in this city.

Enthusiasm was rife and a welcome assured to this sixty-year-old Communist fighter who is touring the country without paying railroad fare.

Last Thursday arriving in Salt Lake City, Mother Bloor spoke to the Central Labor Council, on invitation from this body, on the menace of unemployment and a splendid reception was given her by the delegates of organized labor in session.

This meeting was in great contrast to the recent attempt made by Mother Bloor to hold a meeting in Reno, Nevada, where the local authorities together with the trade union officials prevented the attendance of union men at the meeting arranged.

Proceeding to Ogden, Utah, Mother Bloor, Communist fighter and agitator, made the first steps to organize another Communist local in this city to forge further links in the chain of growing Communist units in this country.

In this city Mother Bloor received the active assistance of Hay Bales, an artist whose splendid work is well-known to the many readers of the Workers' Monthly. Following Mother Bloor's talk on the question of Communism and its official organ in this country—the DAILY WORKER. Hay Bales spoke on Amalgamation to a receptive audience of workers attending.

Today Mother Bloor arrives in Denver, Colorado, for a three-day stay for meetings at a picnic to be given by the local Communist units and at the Week's Joint Fair arranged by the local Central Labor body.

From here Mother Bloor proceeds to Kansas City for meetings to be held on June 26 and 27.

NEW YORK FIRST NATIONAL BANK HAS MIDAS TOUCH

Very Few Holders of Valuable Stocks

By LELAND OLDS.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

A quarterly dividend of $2,500,000 declared by the First National Bank of New York on its $10,000,000 capital stock means an annual dividend rate of 100 per cent on the stock of this branch of the Morgan combine. It means that the owners with a nominal investment of $10,000,000 will receive $10,000,000 back each year as their share of the tribute levied by bankers on industry.

In recent years the owners have been satisfied with a mere 60 per cent. During that period the bank accumulated surplus profits of $68,000,000, nearly 7 times the par value of the stock. The recently announced increase in the dividend rate caused the market value of the stock to jump to over $2,600 a share.

Profits Go to Small Circle.

That the bulk of bank profits go to a little circle of multi-millionaires who constitute the country's money aristocracy is revealed by a compilation in the Chicago Evening Post showing 24 owners holding $32,949,890 of the stock of Chicago banks. The list starts with the N. W. Harris estate, holding worth $4,225,260 and includes only those owning more than $1,000,000 of Chicago bank stock. For that reason Hell 'an Maria Dawes does not figure, as his bank holdings only total $759,994. But that ought to help out his vice-presidential salary.

The estate of E. C. Converse includes New York bank stocks now worth more than $8,000,000. Converse held 9,777 shares of Bankers Trust, 4,375 shares of Guaranty Trust and 4,000 shares of Liberty Trust, to mention only the largest holdings. These are all parts of the Morgan combine thru which railroad and industrial corporations are manipulated.

Wield Great Powers.

The power over the country's economic life exercised by bankers thru the funds which small investors have accumulated in life insurance companies is shown in a recent study of their assets by the superintendent of insurance of New York state. His figures show that today $9,000,000,000 of the country's wealth is controlled by life insurance companies. The largest item is $3,863,644,251 of stocks and bonds. Next comes $3,465,104,333 in mortgage loans. For a generation the New York financiers have used these huge assets in building up their control of industry.

Letter Carriers Pay Own Pensions.

NEW YORK.—Postal employes are unjustly required by the U. S. government to pay their own pensions from their salaries, it was charged at the annual memorial service of the New York Letter Carriers' Association. It was declared that "hardship and the dread of poverty in old age" hastened the death of letter carriers. Postal workers' pensions are $720 a year; 3½ per cent of the weekly pay is deducted for pension fund.

MELLON TAX PLAN TRANSFERS LOAD FROM BIG CAPITAL ON TO PETTY BOURGEOISIE INTERESTS

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The new Mellon plan for reducing taxes shows the persistence of the millionaire class in saddling the war debt on the backs of farmers, wage earners and the small salaried class who pay the bulk of the indirect taxes. The cut proposed in the maximum surtax rate from 40 per cent to 20 per cent and the elimination of all inheritance taxes means a big reduction in the annual surplus available for reducing the outstanding liberty and victory loans.

Some Difference.

The income taxes paid by the wealthy in this country are far lighter than in England as shown in the following Wall Street Journal figures for total taxes paid on various incomes:

Annual Income	American tax	British tax
$ 5,000	$ 50	$ 1,000
6,000	70	1,200
7,000	100	1,400
8,000	140	1,600
10,000	220	2,000
12,000	350	2,490
16,000	650	3,650
20,000	1,030	5,150
25,000	1,620	7,250
50,000	6,150	19,200
100,000	22,630	45,200
150,000	44,130	72,000
200,000	65,630	117,000

Rich Cleaned up During War.

The justice of making the rich pay off the war debt cannot be questioned. The debt reached its present proportions because the financing of the war largely by loans inflated costs and produced enormous profits which enabled the owners of industry to absorb liberty bonds without sacrifice. This method of financing was adopted at the order of big business against the advice of conservative economists.

A policy of high income and inheritance taxes devoted to paying the interest and principal of the war debt simply means that the wealthy are called upon slowly to cancel the usurious mortgage which they exacted from the country in its war emergency. Mellon's plan on the other hand will mean that small tax payers will be forced to pay off this huge mortgage over a long period in which the general purchasing power of farmers and workers will be correspondingly reduced.

To Make the Petty Bourgeois Pay.

The Pollack Foundation for Economic Research describes the national debt as "nothing but a kind of claim of some people on a part of the future production of all the people." It says: "The liberty bonds issued by the United States were not devices for making future generations pay for the war. These bonds transfer obligations, not from one generation to the next, but from some people to other people. When the two billions of the First Liberty loan are paid, two billions will be taken from some people and paid to others."

Mellon and his millionaire clique are going to make sure that these billions are taken from the workers and farmers.

Government Has Slave Market to Auction Off 20th Century Bondmen

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Almost in the style of the slave-auction advertisements of 70 years ago are the offerings made by the U. S. employment service, in a circular "Clearance No. 13," issued June 12 in co-operation with the District of Columbia public employment service. It asks correspondence regarding jobs for a list of men, individually described.

"Auditor-Bookkeeper" is thus presented: "Age 59 years. College training. Also graduate of technical school of commerce. Well versed in modern business methods; 30 years experience as bookkeeper and auditor. Capable of general supervision of clerical force. References unquestionable. Fine type. Excellent physical stamina. Moderate salary in exchance for service of very highest order. Location, Washington or south."

A manager of a grocery department is also offered, and since he is 50 years of age the government assures bidders that he has "fine personality and physique warranting ability to stand heavy strain."

Women are listed, too, and here again "physical stamina" is guaranteed in a number of instances, along with "fine personality" and a record of working with "high-class" people after graduation from college. Women in their 20s and 30s offer expert services in big offices, as secretaries to managers, at $100 to $150 a month.

Maryland Reverses Itself.

BALTIMORE.—Workers who contract industrial diseases in the course of their employment in Maryland are now eligible to compensation under the latest ruling of the state industrial accident commission, which reversed all former rulings. In the case of a woman worker who had contracted necrosis of the jaw from phosphorus poisoning, the court of appeals ruled that the worker should be compensated for occupational diseases under the state law, giving the commission the basis for its new ruling.

Spingarn Medal to Johnson.

NEW YORK.—The Spingarn medal which is awarded annually to the citizen of African descent for most distinguished achievement goes this year to James Weldon Johnson, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The medal will be presented at 16th annual conference of the association in Denver, June 30. Johnson investigated American misrule in Haiti, was U. S. consul in Central and South American countries and is author of several volumes of verse and prose.

WORKERS FLOCK TO CONGRESS OF THE SOVIET UNION

Russian Crowds Hear Speeches on Radio

people were sitting on the stage, and upon my queaftion as to why they were there I was told that they represented workers' organizations of various kinds and that they had come to the Congress to place their needs and demands before that body. Among this group of workers was to be seen the venerable revolutionary fighter, Clara Zetkin of Germany. Next came tables and seats reserved for the presidium of the congress and directly in front on the stage was a long table with seats reserved for the president of the congress and the members of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party.

Press Table Draped In Red

Right below the stage were sitting the foreign and Russian press correspondent. Evidently the Soviet government is not afraid to let the outside world know what subjects are discussed at the Congrecs of the Soviets, for about 15 writers, representing capitalist papers in the western countries, were busily taking down the proceedings. And they had fine tables, draped in Red, to write on!

The entire lower floor was given over to the delegates, over 2,000 of them coming from all parts of the Soviet Union, representing Soviets from Minsk to Vladivostok. They were all workers and farmers, their faces glowing with interest and determination, highly resolved to do something at this Congress that would promote industry and agriculture and increase the well-being of the millions of toilers in the Soviet Republic. There was nothing fanatical about them, only sober, serious, studious purpose to achieve something really constructive.

A Congress of Workers'

In the rear on the first balcony, directly opposite the stage were seated representatives and diplomats of England, France, Germany, Italy, Norway and other countries. The remainder of the audience was made up of farmers and workers who had come from many parts of Russia to watch the congress in action and to talk over with the delegates the needs and requirements of their particular communities as well as the Soviet union in general. Such universal interest among the workers in political matters is hard to find in any other country but Russia.

Communist Leaders Present

A soviet band played the "International" and Kalinin, the farmer president of the Soviet Republic officially opened the Congress. As Kalinin and the members of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party took their places on the platform, they were greeted with great applause. The ovation given Trotsky was especially lively, and this, gives the lie to his supposed expulsion from all party activities, as related by the capitalist press. Other prominent members of the Committee present were Zinoviev, Bucharin and Stalin.

Far East Delegation.

Greetings to the Congress were given by representatives of various nationalities, especially from the East. Picturesque characters from the Tartar and other republics had come all the way to Moscow to be present at the Congress and express their sympathy and solidarity with the aspirations of the first Workers Republic.

Mongolia, which is very sympathetic towards the Soviet Union, had sent two representatives to the Congress, both of whom spoke highly appreciative of the work done by the Soviets. Kalenin expressed thanks for the greetings, pointing out that it was necessary for the workers of all lands to get together and do away with the capitalist system everywhere and for all the time.

Speeches Over Radio.

The congress adjourned for the day. Outside the theatre in Moscow and many parts of the Soviet Union, the workers and farmers were listening to the speeches and the discussions over the radio. In the succeeding days, during the sessions of the congress, crowds of people were to be seen on the Red Square and in dozens of other places in Moscow, taking in the deliberations by radio-phone, and I was told that similar crowds in the same way received the news from the Congress in Leningrad, Karkoff, Kiev and other places in Russia.

The workers and farmers in the Soviet Union are yet poor. There is lack of manufactured products of many kinds, owing to a shortage of equipment and machines to keep the industries running. Agricultural production must be increased and capital is needed for many enterprises. The struggle is not yet over. However, it is a victorious struggle. Every step that is made in increasing production counts for something in the way of bettering the conditions for the workers generally. There are no capitalists here to run away with the profits. For this reason both the worker and the farmer in Soviet Russia can contently look forward to a better and a happier day.

PHILADELPHIA BUILDER GOES TO HIS UNION

Meets Ready Response

One reason why local Philadelphia has been able to be right among the leaders in the Sub-Campaign, is because of some outstanding work of individual Builders.

Samuel Weinberg, a comparatively new member of the Communist unit there, has already learned of the best field for building.

Every two weeks, he takes with him a bundle of twenty-five copies of the DAILY WORKER to his local meeting and naturally he secures many subs.

At the last meeting he took the floor to speak on the DAILY WORKER as a builder of the organized labor movement and a discussion following resulted in five new subs to the DAILY WORKER.

Comrade Weinberg as we mentioned before, is a comparatively new member of the Communist Party—but he knows that it is a party of action!

money. When the war was over Shaw also made good money proving in his own inimitable way that the war was a great tragedy.

IN a recent issue the New York Times, there appears a London dispatch purporting to give the gist of a controversy between Shaw and Philip Snowden, leading British socialist. Snowden denounced the Communist Party in an article in a capitalist sheet (for which he got well paid); Shaw replied in a letter to the same paper, taking issue with Snowden for applying the term Communist to the extreme left wing of the British labor movement. Shaw says this element is ignorant of political etiquette, and they prove it by accepting money from Russia to bring about revolution in England. Others are like Mussolini and the King of Spain, some are anarchists while more are Communists who suffer from the delusion that all those who call themselves Communists are Communists.

THIS kind of persiflage is the typical Shavian way of treating important questions, that he wants to duck. It means nothing, contains not a grain of sense, but much poison. Of course, it is hard to tell when Shaw is jesting or when he is serious. His profession of clown enables him to don the cap and bells when he wants to say what he thinks and wear a skull cap when he wants to jest.

CHINESE HAVE STRONG GRIP IN PHILIPPINES

Chain Stores Built Up for Trading

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—The chain store method of distribution which is popularily supposed to have originated and attained its greatest growth in the United States has been carried much further in many other countries, some of which can be classified as "backward" in other respects, according to E. D. Gothwaite, of the Foodstuffs division of the department of commerce.

Writing in a bulletin on the "Trade of Philippine Copra and Cocoanut Oil" Mr. Gothwaide states that Chinese controlled chain stores have long held a dominant position in the mercantile business of the Islands. In fact he says "there has been evolved thru several hundred years of operation a closed corporation of distribution which seems to defy successful competition."

This system, according to Mr. Gothwaite, is grouped about a few financially powerful Chinese importing and exporting houses located in Manila, with wholesale distributing stations in all the chief centers thruout the provinces and with retail stores extending into the most remote barrios and native trading stations.

As these trading companies also act as factors and buying agents for stocks of Philippine products, especially copra and hemp, and as they control this trade throuout much of the outlying unsettled districts they play an important role in the export field.

Coolidge Sees Smoot of Sugar Trust and High Tariff Stands

WASHINGTON —(FP)— Sugar tariff rates will remain high, by decision of President Coolidge, who has held up "under consideration" for a year past the recommendation of the federal tariff commission that the duty be reduced. Prices of refined sugar have meanwhile come down, but the sugar trust continues to control both the importation of cane sugar from Cuba and the manufacture of cane and beet sugar in the United States.

Coolidge announced his decision just after he had had a long conference with Sen. Smoot of Utah, one of the best department of the sugar trust crowd, who has to face the voters next year. Utah voters produce a large quantity of sugar beets.

Sen. LaFollette last summer issued a statement showing that Coolidge had then suppresed for some months the recommendation of the tariff commission—a 3 to 2 decision—that the duty on sugar should be cut. He proved that the maintaining of the higher rate was costing the American consumers hundreds of thousands of dollars each week.

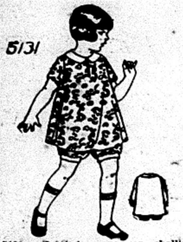
OUR DAILY PATTERNS

A PLAY DRESS.



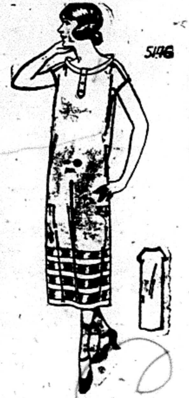
5131. Printed crepe, or challie would be good for this design. The bloomers may be joined to an underbody. The smock may be finished with sleeves in short or wrist length.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 2, 3, 4 and 5 years. A 4 year size requires 3 yards of 27 inch material with ⅜ yard of contrasting material for collar facing and leg bands, if made with long sleeves. With short sleeves ⅛ yard less is required.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in silver or stamps.

NOTICE TO PATTERN BUYERS—The patterns being sold thru the DAILY WORKER pattern department are furnished by a New York firm of pattern manufacturers. Orders are forwarded by the DAILY WORKER every day as received, and they are mailed by the manufacturer direct to the customer. The DAILY WORKER does not keep a stock of patterns on hand. Delivery of patterns ordinarily will take at least 10 days from the date of mailing the order. Do not become impatient if your pattern is delayed.

A UNIQUE DESIGN



5146. Kasha, tub silk, crepe, flannel or linen could be used for this design. Bordered flannel is shown in the illustration.

The pattern is cut in 6 sizes; 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. A 38 inch size requires 4 yards of 32 inch material. The width at the foot is 1⅞ yard.

NEW YORK FIRST NATIONAL BANK HAS MIDAS TOUCH

Very Few Holders of Valuable Stocks

By LELAND OLDS.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

A quarterly dividend of $2,500,000 declared by the First National Bank of New York on its $10,000,000 capital stock means an annual dividend rate of 100 per cent on the stock of this branch of the Morgan combine. It means that the owners with a nominal investment of $10,000,000 will receive $10,000,000 back each year as their share of the tribute levied by bankers on industry.

In recent years the owners have been satisfied with a mere 60 per cent. During that period the bank accumulated surplus profits of $68,000,000, nearly 7 times the par value of the stock. The recently announced increase in the dividend rate caused the market value of the stock to jump to over $2,600 a share.

Profits Go to Small Circle.

That the bulk of bank profits go to a little circle of multi-millionaires who constitute the country's money aristocracy is revealed by a compilation in the Chicago Evening Post showing 24 owners holding $32,949,890 of the stock of Chicago banks. The list starts with the N. W. Harris estate, holding worth $4,228,260 and includes only those owning more than $1,000,000 of Chicago bank stock. For that reason Hell 'an Maria Dawes does not figure, as his bank holdings only total $759,994. But that ought to help out his vice-presidential salary.

The estate of E. C. Converse includes New York bank stocks now worth more than $8,000,000. Converse held 9,777 shares of Bankers Trust, 4,275 shares of Guaranty Trust and 4,000 shares of Liberty Trust, to mention only the largest holdings. These are all parts of the Morgan combine thru which railroad and industrial corporations are manipulated.

Wield Great Powers.

The power over the country's economic life exercised by bankers thru the funds which small investors have accumulated in life insurance companies is shown in a recent study of their assets by the superintendent of insurance of New York state. His figures show that today $9,000,000,000 of the country's wealth is controlled by life insurance companies. The largest item is $3,863,644,281 of stocks and bonds. Next comes $3,465,104,383 in mortgage loans. For a generation the New York financiers have used these huge assets in building up their control of industry.

Government Has Slave Market to Auction Off 20th Century Bondmen

WASHINGTON—(FP)—Almost in the style of the slave-auction advertisements of 70 years ago are the offerings made by the U. S. employment service, in a circular "Clearance No. 13," issued June 12 in co-operation with the District of Columbia public employment service. It asks correspondence regarding jobs for a list of men, individually described.

"Auditor-Bookkeeper" is thus presented: "Age 59 years. College training. Also graduate of technical school of commerce. Well versed in modern business methods; 30 years experience as bookkeeper and auditor. Capable of general supervision of clerical force. References unquestionable. Fine type. Excellent physical stamina. Moderate salary in exchance for service of very highest order. Location, Washington or south."

A manager of a grocery department is also offered, and since he is 56 years of age the government assures bidders that he has "fine personality and physique warranting ability to stand heavy strain."

Women are listed, too, and here again "physical stamina" is guaranteed in a number of instances, along with "fine personality" and a record of working with "high-class" people after graduation from college. Women in their 20s and 30s offer expert services in big offices, as secretaries to managers, at $100 to $150 a month.

Maryland Reverses Itself.

BALTIMORE.—Workers who contract industrial diseases in the course of their employment in Maryland are now eligible to compensation under the latest ruling of the state industrial accident commission, which reversed all former rulings. In the case of a woman worker who had contracted necrosis of the jaw from phosphorus poisoning, the court of appeals ruled that the worker should be compensated for occupational diseases under the state law, giving the commission the basis for its new ruling.

Spingarn Medal to Johnson.

NEW YORK.—The Spingarn medal which is awarded annually to the citizen of African descent for most distinguished achievement goes this year to James Weldon Johnson, secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The medal will be presented at 16th annual conference of the association in Denver, June 30. Johnson investigated American misrule in Haiti, was U. S. consul in Central and South American countries and is author of several volumes of verse and prose.

WORKERS FLOCK TO CONGRESS OF THE SOVIET UNION

people were sitting on the stage, and upon my quesftion as to why they were there I was told that they represented workers' organizations of various kinds and that they had come to the Congress to place their needs and demands before that body. Among this group of workers was to be seen the venerable revolutionary fighter, Clara Zetkin of Germany. Next came tables and seats reserved for the presidium of the congress and directly in front on the stage was a long table with seats reserved for the president of the congress and the members of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party.

Press Table Draped in Red

Right below the stage were sitting the foreign and Russian press correspondent. Evidently the Soviet government is not afraid to let the outside world know what subjects are discussed at the Congress of the Soviets, for about 15 writers, representing capitalist papers in the western countries, were busily taking down the proceedings. And they had fine tables, draped in Red, to write on!

The entire lower floor was given over to the delegates, over 2,000 of them coming from all parts of the Soviet Union, representing Soviets from Minsk to Vladivostok. They were all workers and farmers, their faces glowing with interest and determination, highly resolved to do something at this Congress that would promote industry and agriculture and increase the well-being of the millions of toilers in the Soviet Republic. There was nothing fanatical about them, only sober, serious, studious purpose to achieve something really constructive.

A Congress of Workers'

In the rear on the first balcony, directly opposite the stage were seated representatives and diplomats of England, France, Germany, Italy, Norway and other countries. The remainder of the audience was made up of farmers and workers who had come from many parts of Russia to watch the congress in action and to talk over with the delegates the needs and requirements of their particular communities as well as the Soviet union in general. Such universal interest among the workers in political matters is hard to find in any other country but Russia.

Communist Leaders Present

A soviet band played the "International" and Kalinin, the farmer president of the Soviet Republic officially opened the Congress. As Kalinin and the members of the Central Committee of the Russian Communist Party took their places on the platform, they were greeted with great applause. The ovation given Trotsky was especially lively, and this, gives the lie to his supposed expulsion from all party activities, as related by the capitalist press. Other prominent members of the Committee present were Zinoviev, Bucharin and Stalin.

Far East Delegation.

Greetings to the Congress were given by representatives of various nationalities, especially from the East. Picturesque characters from the Tartar and other republics had come all the way to Moscow to be present at the Congress and express their sympathy and solidarity with the aspirations of the first Workers Republic.

Mongolia, which is very sympathetic towards the Soviet Union, had sent two representatives to the Congress, both of whom spoke highly appreciative of the work done by the Soviets. Kalenin expressed thanks for the greetings, pointing out that it was necessary for the workers of all lands to get together and do away with the capitalist system everywhere and for all the time.

Speeches Over Radio.

The congress adjourned for the day. Outside the theatre in Moscow and many parts of the Soviet Union, the workers and farmers were listening to the speeches and the discussions over the radio. In the succeeding days, during the sessions of the congress, crowds of people were to be seen on the Red Square and in dozens of other places in Moscow, taking in the deliberations by radio-phone, and I was told that similar crowds in the same way received the news from the Congress in Leningrad, Karkoff, Kiev and other places in Russia.

The workers and farmers in the Soviet Union are yet poor. There is lack of manufactured products of many kinds, owing to a shortage of equipment and machines to keep the industries running. Agricultural production must be increased and capital is needed for many enterprises. The struggle is not yet over. However, it is a victorious struggle. Every step that is made in increasing production counts for something in the way of bettering the conditions for the workers generally. There are no capitalists here to run away with the profits. For this reason both the worker and the farmer in Soviet Russia can contently look forward to a better and a happier day.

PHILADELPHIA BUILDER GOES TO HIS UNION

Meets Ready Response

One reason why local Philadelphia has been able to be right among the leaders in the Sub-Campaign, is because of some outstanding work of individual Builders.

Samuel Weinberg, a comparatively new member of the Communist unit there, has already learned of the best field for building.

Every two weeks, he takes with him a bundle of twenty-five copies of the DAILY WORKER to his local meeting and naturally he secures many subs.

At the last meeting he took the floor to speak on the DAILY WORKER as a builder of the organized labor movement and a discussion following resulted in five new subs to the DAILY WORKER.

Comrade Weinberg as we mentioned before, is a comparatively new member of the Communist Party—but he knows that it is a party of action!

money. When the war was over Shaw also made good money proving in his own inimitable way that the war was a great tragedy.

IN a recent issue the New York Times, there appears a London dispatch purporting to give the gist of a controversy between Shaw and Philip Snowden, leading British socialist. Snowden denounced the Communist Party in an article in a capitalist sheet (for which he got well paid); Shaw replied in a letter to the same paper, taking issue with Snowden for applying the term Communist to the extreme left wing of the British labor movement. Shaw says this element is ignorant of political etiquette, and they prove it by accepting money from Russia to bring about revolution in England. Others are like Mussolini and the King of Spain, some are anarchists while more are Communists who suffer from the delusion that all those who call themselves Communists are Communists.

THIS kind of persiflage is the typical Shavian way of treating important questions, that he wants to duck. It means nothing, contains not a grain of sense, but much poison. Of course, it is hard to tell when Shaw is jesting or when he is serious. His profession of clown enables him to don the cap and bells when he wants to say what he thinks and wear a skull cap when he wants to jest.

CHINESE HAVE STRONG GRIP IN PHILIPPINES

Chain Stores Built Up for Trading

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 17.—The chain store method of distribution which is popularily supposed to have originated and attained its greatest growth in the United States has been carried much further in many other countries, some of which can be classified as "backward" in other respects, according to E. D. Gothwaite, of the Foodstuffs division of the department of commerce.

Writing in a bulletin on the "Trade of Philippine Copra and Cocoanut Oil" Mr. Gothwaide states that Chinese controlled chain stores have long held a dominant position in the mercantile business of the Islands. In fact he says "there has been evolved thru several hundred years of operation a closed corporation of distribution which seems to defy successful competition."

This system, according to Mr. Gothwaite, is grouped about a few financially powerful Chinese importing and exporting houses located in Manila, with wholesale distributing stations in all the chief centers throut the provinces and with retail stores extending into the most remote barrios and native trading stations.

As these trading companies also act as factors and buying agents for stocks of Philippine products, especially copra and hemp, and as they control this trade throuout much of the outlying unsettled districts they play an important role in the export field.

Coolidge Sees Smoot of Sugar Trust and High Tariff Stands

WASHINGTON—(FP)— Sugar tariff rates will remain high, by decision of President Coolidge, who has held up "under consideration" for a year past the recommendation of the federal tariff commission that the duty be reduced. Prices of refined sugar have meanwhile come down, but the sugar trust continues to control both the importation of cane sugar from Cuba and the manufacture of cane and beet sugar in the United States.

Coolidge announced his decision just after he had had a long conference with Sen. Smoot of Utah, one of the best department of the sugar trust crowd, who has to face the voters next year. Utah voters produce a large quantity of sugar beets.

Sen. LaFollette last summer issued a statement showing that Coolidge had then suppresed for some months the recommendation of the tariff commission—a 3 to 2 decision—that the duty on sugar should be cut. He proved that the maintaining of the higher rate was costing the American consumers hundreds of thousands of dollars each week.

AMALGAMATED CLOTHING WORKERS TIE UP BIG ST. LOUIS OPEN SHOP IN FIGHT TO ORGANIZE UNION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 18.—The strike of the clothing workers of the big open shop Curlee Clothing Company, which began on June 1, as previously reported in the DAILY WORKER, is continuing with vigor and complete paralysis of production, despite the brutal interference of the St. Louis police. The strike is being directed by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America in an effort to organize St. Louis, which as a large open shop center is producing under scab conditions clothing which undersells the New York and Chicago manufacturers.

The strikers, who are getting their first strike experience, are standing loyally by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union, and according to those in charge of the strike about 80 per cent of the whole working force are out, only a few Italian women remaining, and it is expected that these will soon join when the meaning of the strike is understood by them.

Began with Cutters

The Curlee shop is the largest clothing establishment in St. Louis. The strike began with a one hundred per cent walkout of the cutters. The next day a group of tailors joined the strike. Then nearly every day new groups have been joining in, until at present the shop is completely tied up.

Reports received by the strikers with plenty of proof to show their truth, show that the Curlee shop is unable to turn out a single finished garment.

Seventeen Arrests on Second Day.

On June 2, as reported at the time by the DAILY WORKER, there was the first interference of the police. Nine women and eight men on the picket line were arrested on the strange charge that they "made so much noise" that the workers in other factories were "disturbed" in their labor of producing profits for their class, the following:

The arrested included, among the women and girls who have shown

AS WE SEE IT

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY.

WARREN S. STONE, deceased leader of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, is defended against the "compliment" of never having led a strike, by Albert F. Coyle, editor of the Engineers' Journal. Labor leaders as a rule do not consider it a compliment not to have led strikes, tho our present-day crop, prefer to have that part of their record in the distant past, something to boast about, as an old man might furtively brag about incidents in his early life that are condonable in youth if not virtuous.

THE compliment—Coyle calls it a charge—was given to Stone by capitalist writers. Coyle says it is not true—at the time of Stone's death, his organization was engaged in a strike against the Virginian railway. Mr. Coyle did not bring forth all the evidence in his possession to dynamite the charge against his boss. Why not tell of Stone's brilliant leadership of the strike against the United Mine Workers of America in the Coal River Colliers in West Virginia? Stone was a real strike [illegible] to leading strikes against the workers. He was very patient and sympathetic with the demands and suggestions of the employers 'tho he was quite dogged in his refusal to compromise with the union miners, insisting on running his plant openshop.

MR. COYLE, no doubt will be able to harmonize Stone's scabbery with the eulogy he has written of him for the press. He may prove to his own satisfaction that the labor conditions in the scab-Coal River Collieries were better than in unionized mines; that the mines were run on co-operative lines, (which is a myth) and that the miners had the privilege of purchasing stock in the company that operated the mines. But the employes of the United States Steel and Standard Oil corporations are urged to buy the stock of those trusts, yet they are a long way off from owning them. Those who defend Stone, in face of his record, and pose as progressives, possess a colossal impudence and show a mounmental contempt for the intelligence of the American working class.

AS the situation is developing in China, it appears that Japan is driven to the desperate necessity of placing her political eggs in Chang Tso-Lin's basket and running the risk of hatching a brood of ugly ducklings. The latest reports indicate that the Tokio government has given its tool, Chang, the word to go ahead and establish his dictatorship over that part of China dominated by Peking. This would make Japan the dominant influence in Manchuria and the Chili province, leaving Southern China in the hands of the Kuo Min Tang party and Mongolia under the control of a Soviet government, in close relationship with the Soviet Union.

HOW this plan will work out is problematical. If the reports on which the above summary is based are correct, it is likely that the major powers, England and the United States, have given Japan permission to assume the "white man's burden" in China, on the theory that when a choice between two evils is the only

PUTRID CORPSE OF S. P. PAST SAVING BY DEBS

Minneapolis Aldermen Betrayed Workers

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 18.—Eugene V. Debs, who is now touring the principal cities of the country, trying to revive the corpse of the socialist party, now wormy and putrid, will hold one of his glorified revivals in our city.

Debs comes here sponsored by Albert Bastis, Gissian and Lynn Thompson, who are practically the leads of the so-called socialist labor group, politically. The disgraceful defeat of five of the six "labor" alderman was due to the fact that they fought running away from the charge of being "labor."

Socialists Have Bad Record.

It is extremely doubtful, whether Debs would throw his revolutionary cloak, which he wore in the past so nobly, and which is now sullied by bad stains of opportunism, over the yellow and treasonable record of the

RANK AND FILE OF I. L. G. W. U. PROTECTS OFFICES OF LOCAL 22

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 18.—Thousands of grament workers are today protecting the office of Local Twenty-two of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union against seizure by reactionary officials. Rank and file committees have been organized for day and night guard service. They are determined there shall be no repetition of the seizure of the offices of Locals Two and Nine, which were taken by force in the middle of the night. The attack upon Local Twenty-two offices yesterday afternoon failed. Nine needle workers, six girls, arrested on orders of Vice-President Feinberg, charged with disturbing the peace, have been released on bail. A joint committee of the three unions is issuing an appeal to all locals and members of "the International" to condemn the outrageous assault and support the rights of the three locals.

AMUNDSEN, POLE FLIER, IS SAFE AT KING'S BAY

LONDON, June 18.—Captain Roald Amundsen, and his party of Polar explorers, including Lieut. Lincoln Ellsworth, an Ohio aviator, are safe at King's Bay, according to a central news dispatch received here this afternoon.

The explorer and his party thus returned to their hopping off place just 28 days after they poked the noses of their planes toward the North Pole.

King's Bay, the point mentioned in the news dispatch, is north of Spitzbergen, the northernmost group of islands from which departure for the Pole could be made.

Belgium to Send Debt Commission to U. S. in July

WASHINGTON, June 18—Italy will start negotiations here on June 25 for funding her $2,138,000,000 war debt to the United States, the state department announced.

The Italian offer to begin debt funding negotiations resulted from informal conferences which have been held here between Baron G. de Martino, the Italian ambassador, and secretary of the treasury, Mellon, chairman of the American debt funding commission.

Italy is the second of the principal debtors to make definite announcement of her intention to make arrangements to discharge her war-time obligations. Belgium is planning to send a debt commission to Washington in July.

GENERAL STRIKE CONFERENCE AT SHANGHAI ENDS

Peace Negotiations in Sudden Ending

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, June 18.—Negotiations for a peaceful ending of the general strike here which has tied up all of the city's activities for two weeks and resulted in serious disturbances broke down tonight and grave events—possibly imperialist intervention may result.

Owing to the unyielding attitude of the Chinese negotiators, who insisted on the granting of their demands, foreign diplomats bolted the conference and announced that further negotiations were futile.

Diplomats Go to Peking.

The diplomats, it was announced, will return immediately to Peking. It is thought they were ordered to refuse all concessions and threaten China with invasion by order of their home governments.

The Chinese negotiators insisted that their demands be granted in full including the lifting of martial law, punishment of police who fired on student demonstrators precipitating the general strike, indemnity for the slain and injured and abolition of extraterritorialities.

Meanwhile the city is seething with indignation and unrest. Strike leaders have apparently decided to concentrate their attempts to tie up all shipping and wharves. Three thousand lightermen and 20,000 wharf workers have struck, all wharves being affected except those of the Dollar Line (American). Not only all coast and river, but all ocean traffic as well may be tied up.

National General Strike June 25.

The students of Shanghai and all other cities have decided to rally the nation for a general strike on June 25, which is the "Dragon-boat Festival" when all financial accounts should be squared.

Ninety former Chinese municipal police led a huge procession yesterday to enforce the boycott against British and Japanese. The parade went thru the streets breaking every window that contained British or Japanese goods.

The procession was broken up by Chinese (Manchurian) troops com-

LA FOLLETTE IS DEAD AT HOME IN WASHINGTON

"Insurgent" Did Not Leave Republicans

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Sen. LaFollette, of Wisconsin, who died at his home here, crowned his long political career inside the republican party by denouncing the June 17 national convention of the farmer-labor parties, held just a year ago at St. Paul.

La Follette ran for president last fall as an individual, altho he never definitely withdrew from the republican party. La Follette's Wisconsin organization took part in the last republican national convention.

As chairman of the senate committee on manufactures, senator La Follette sponsored the resolution which led to the famous senate oil investigations, but in spite of the corruption exposed, La Follette did not foresake the republican party.

Smash Mohammedan Tradition.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Turkey, June 18.—Another ancient Mohammedan custom was overthrown when Mustapha Kemal Pasha, president of the Turkish republic, allowed the Austrian sculptor Krippel to make a bust of him. Mohammedan tradition forbids sculping. The statue, when completed, will be placed in a public park in Constantinople.

RED WEEK—June 15 to 21.

"HANDS OFF CHINA!" MASS MEETING WILL BE HELD NEXT WEDNESDAY

The war waged by foreign imperialism against the people of China will be aired at a mass meeting next Wednesday evening, in Northwest Hall, corner of Western and North Aves. Among the speakers listed are: William F. Dunne, edtior of the DAILY WORKER; Henry Phillips, one of the organizers of the American Negro Labor Congress and a Chinese speaker.

The crisis in China is occupying the attention of the best brains in every foreign office of the European, American and Asiatic capitalist powers. The Chinese are in a state of revolt against foreign domination. American warships are stationed in Chinese waters. Marines have been landed from those warships to awe the Chinese masses and shoot them if they protest. The American workers must give the capitalist class of this country to understand that they will not tolerate the use of American troops to keep China in slavery. "Hands off China!" must be the slogan of the American workers.

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES GO UP 43,894 IN ONE WEEK IN ENGLAND

N. Y. Garment Workers Vote Confidence in Their Suspended Local Officers

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 18.—The Sigman-Peristein-Feinberg-Forward gangsters early Tuesday morning raided with armed sluggers the headquarters of Locals 2 and 9 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union and attempted to raide the headquarters of Local 22, all suspended by the official autocracy ruling the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union.

Under the guise of "taking over the locals" by temporary officers appointed by the machine, a large crowd of gangsters swooped down and captured by sheer force the offices of Local 2 and 9. When they approached the headquarters of Local 22, things were different.

Girl Militants Give Battle.

About 200 young militant girl members of Local 22 had mobilized against just such raids and stood ready to give battle to all comers. They had been waiting for twenty-four hours, sleeping in relays, and they sallied forth with war spirit shining in their bonnie eyes and soon the gangsters had ignominously fled.

Locals 2, 9 and 22 of the I. L. G. W. U. on Tuesday night held three big mass meetings with two extra overflow meetings which had to be provided for the members of Local 22. All these meeting were packed and jammed on a hot sultry night with wildly indignant needle trades workers worked up to the highest pitch of excitement by the outrageous and high handed suspension of the officers of the above three locals by the joint board "clique" headed by Morris Sigman and a small army of gangsters.

These mass meetings repudiated the action of Sigman and his gang. They were addressed by speakers who showed how the deposed left wing executives had fought for the rank and file issues versus the class collaboration of the Sigman gang.

Why They Were Deposed

The executives of these locals had fought against the increase in dues; against the governors commission; against the reckless expulsion of the left wing and the consequent expenditure by the Sigman administration of tremendous sums of money. All the speakers were wildly applauded and to all those present it was apparent that this time the membership of these three locals which approximates thirty thousand will not allow Sigman and his gang to break up the organization.

Resolutions were adopted at all these meetings which gave the executives full power to act, to set up a joint council of action and to fight relentlessly against the suspension order of the Sigman gang.

All New York Fired By Struggle

The New York labor movement is afire with this struggle its results will have a far reaching effect upon the entire labor movement. The militant needle trades workers are determined to win this fight and preserve the unity of their organization against Sigman and his disgusting tactics.

Statement Of Suspended Local Officers

The following statement has been issued by the suspended officials of locals 2, 9 and 22 of the I. L. G. W. U. as answer to the ridiculous charges of the Sigman machine:

"In answer to the statement of the joint board we can state that up to date, we have not received a copy of any charges and we have seen it today for the first time in the newspapers.

"The charges made against us, we believe, are for the purpose of illegally seizing our treasury and preventing the members of our union from conducting the affairs of the union.

NATIONAL LEFT WING CONFERENCE OF NEEDLE TRADES IS CALLED FOR NEW YORK CITY ON AUGUST 8-9

The problems pressing upon the workers in the needle trades, especially those bearing upon the attitude of the various unions toward the rapidly worsening condition, are becoming crucial. It is therefore significant that the National Committee of the Trade Union Educational League and the National Committee of the Needle Trades Section of the T. U. E. L. have issued the following call for a national left wing conference:

TO ALL NEEDLE TRADES WORKERS:—

A critical situation exists in the needle industry. The employers are carrying on war against wages, against union control and union conditions and to destroy the union. The contracting evil is growing and the union administrations are doing nothing effective to cope with it. The agreements that are made with the employers are being flagrantly violated by them. Unemployment is crushing great numbers of workers. The union officials, instead of fighting to improve these conditions, are entering into collaboration with the bosses, and surrendering the demands of the workers under cover of so-called impartial tribunals, the Governor's Commission, etc.

Against these crying evils the membership is in revolt. Mass protest against the collaboration of the union officials with the employers, against surrender, is swiftly crystallizing around the Left Wing, led by the Trade Union Educational League. In many of the most important local unions of all trades the membership has elected Left Wing administrations, and in many others the Left Wing has gained almost a majority of the membership and will soon receive overwhelming support.

In order to carry out the reactionary policy of surrendering to the bosses, the bureaucrats in control of the needle trades union national offices are again trying to launch a war of expulsions, suspensions, reorganizations, and extermination of the Left Wing. The suspension of the Left Wing officials of locals 2, 9 and 22, in the I. L. G. W. U.—the expulsion of local 5 in the A. C. W. of A., and the expulsion of members of local 5, and expulsions in Chicago—all these are part of the campaign

FAKE UNION ORGANIZED BY SHOE MANUFACTURERS SWALLOWING THE INDEPENDENTS AT LYNN, MASS.

By TOM BELL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LYNN, Mass., June 18.—The swallowing up of the locals of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers' Union by the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union (the A. F. of L. "company union" which masquerades as a real labor union) has gone froward with great strides during the past week.

The widespread propaganda in favor of the Boot and Shoe by the shoe manufacturers, the chamber of commerce, and their newspapers, has had the effect of swinging the workers to the Boot and Shoe. The absence of any militant leadership among the shoe workers has rendered them helpless before the campaign for bringing in the Boot and Shoe, and the destruction of the locals of the independent union.

Last Thursday a committee representing the cutters', edgemakers', heelers' and packers' locals of the Amalgamated went to the offices of the Boot and Shoe in Boston to enquire as to the terms of admission into that union. The Boot and Shoe was represented by a fine selection of labor

KELLOGG INSULT TO MEXICO FROM MORGAN'S MOUTH

Sheffield Tool of American Bankers

Specifically charging that Secretary of State Kellogg's latest studied insult to Mexico was dictated by Thomas W. Lamont of J. P. Morgan & Co., thru the mouth of Ambassador Sheffield the All-American Anti-Imperialist League has issued a statement warning the people of Mexico as well as the working class of the United States that a new crisis is being precipitated by Wall Street in the interests of its imperialist designs—a crisis which can have the most disastrous consequence for the exploited peoples of both countries.

Threat to Overthrow Mexican Government.

"Secretary Kellogg's action," says the statement of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League, "represents an immediate and serious menace.

"For the first time in the history of American imperialist policy toward Mexico, the official head of the U. S. department of state has threatened the Mexican government point blank that a revolution will be engineered against it unless it accedes to the arrogant demands of the American bankers."

Secretary Kellogg told the Mexican government in so many words that the United States cannot promise to help against a possible internal revolution in Mexico until the Mexican government shows unmistakable signs of good faith and, it is politely hinted,

SOVIET MASSES DEMONSTRATE, SHOW LOYALTY

By ALFRED KNUTSON.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BERLIN, Germany. (By Mail).—I had the good fortune of witnessing a 1st of May celebration in Russia. I say good fortune for the reason that nowhere else in the world is it possible for the workers and farmers to let go off all restraints and give themselves over to a full and complete expression of working class feelings and aspirations.

Here the workers and farmers rule and we find no capitalist policemen and capitalist politicians putting barriers in the way of bringing out clearly and boldly that freedom from oppression which has been surging in the breasts of the workers for centuries.

March to Victory.

For the first time in hundreds and thousands of years the workers and farmes of one great country march

WHEN LOCAL 22 MET TO DECIDE FATE OF UNION

Membership of I. L. G. W. Pledges Mass Revolt

By FANNIE BOBICK,
(Worker Correspondent.)

NEW YORK CITY, June 18.— On Tuesday, June 16, I attended a meeting of workers in Webster Hall. As I approached the hall, I saw hundreds of workers marching up the stairs, hurriedly.

The joint board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers had thrown out the executive boards of Locals 22, 2 and 9, which were legally elected by the members. The workers were hurrying to protest against this rotten action of the International.

As I entered the hall I saw all the chairs already occupied and every space filled by standing workers. It was only six o'clock.

Foolish Charges.

In a few minutes the executive mounted the platform and amid loud cheers Brother Portnoi called the meeting to order and Brother Zimmerman was elected chairman. He gave a brief outline of the charges brought against the local executive board. These were: The executive board allowed Communists to speak at the first of May celebration; it endorsed a certain loan to a workers' summer camp colony which is frequently visited by Communists.

Plain Talk.

After that the floor was open for discussion by the membership. The members spoke in plain working class language, but they vigorously protested against the corrupt action of the joint board. They said that the joint board will have to take back the executive board which the workers elected; that the joint board will have to reckon with the will of the workers, otherwise the workers will drive them out of the working class movement; they will drive them like mice into their holes until they will not dare to show their faces again before the workers.

Brother Zimmerman asked that if any one in the audience who is against the executive board would take the platform and express himself. One responded. Many workers recognized him as an official of the International and protested. The chairman, however, allowed him to speak. He mounted the platform and produced his membership card of Local 22.

All Swelled Up.

One could see that he was self-satisfied and confident that because of his well-fed appearance and good English the workers would listen to him. He opened his speech by telling that it is easy to appear before the masses when the masses are with the speaker.

He, however, took the difficult task of appearing before the masses knowing that the workers are against him.

Then he went on to the arguments defending the action of the joint board. These arguments were so flimsy and ungrounded that the workers refused to listen to him very long. They drove him off the platform with loud boos, which lasted for several minutes. They convinced him that they will not be satisfied with good language unless that language expresses the truth.

Spirit of Victors.

Three resolutions were read and approved by the workers unanimously. They expressed the will of the workers to stand by the executive board tooth and nail. The executive board pledged itself to give everything in their power, even their lives, to the fight against the action of the joint board and remain where the workers elected them to stay, and to work for the workers' interests.

With this the meeting adjourned. But many workers went to guard the headquarters which the joint board wants to seize by force. Gangsters are sent there for that purpose. They succeeded in the other two locals, Nos. 9 and 2.

Lerner Debates Lewis of Socialist Party in Worcester Tonight

WORCESTER, aMss., June 18.— Max Lerner is to debate Alfred Lewis, district organizer of the socialist party, tonight at Foresters Hall.

The subject is:

Is the policy of the socialist party better adopted to secure the end of capitalism than that of the Workers (Communist) Party?

Much interest has been aroused in the Workers Party program by the series of lectures delivered recently by Lerner and a large crowd is expected to attend.

French Reply on Security Pact.

BERLIN, June 18.—France would welcome participation of the United States in the forming of a security pact guaranteeing Germany's western frontiers, the French reply to Germany's security proposals asserted today.

A security pact "is only possible if Germany joins the league of nations," the note added.

All present treaties must stand unchanged.

Stand by Suspended Officials

that day, which we have held regularly for many years. We were not the only locals which held such meetings; in fact, Local 35, headed by vice-president Breslau, held their meeting in Tammany Hall and were addressed by Jacob Panken of the socialist party.

"Local 22 informed everyone of their meeting in Carnegie Hall by a letter five days before the meetings was held, and invited President Sigman to address their members. They also invited Prof. Scott Nearing and Juliet Stuart Poynts, the latter an honorary member of Local No. 25, recently amalgamated with Local 22. Miss Poynts worked as an educational director for Local 25 and for the International for many years.

Invited Sigman, Too

"Local 22 printed its program six days before May 1. Mr. Sigman knew about it and we have a written answer from him in which he stated he could not attend the meeting because of an engagement in Chicago.

"As far as the alleged loan to Camp Nitgedaiget, this is another excuse to cloak the real purpose of the joint board. The Unity Co-operative Association, 1815 Madison Ave., New York City, an organization to promote co-operation among the workers, had asked Local 22 to help them secure a loan from the Amalgamated Bank of N. Y.

Loan For Socialists All Right

"They made this loan on a second mortgage on their property, but since the bank laws do not permit such loans on second mortgages, our local deposited with the bank $2,000 worth of bonds, something which is quite common. For instance, Local No. 66 has loaned the Rand School Camp $5,000 and our own organization has signed notes for various co-operative organizations in the past.

"The real reason we have been suspended without notice is our stand for the right of the members to have their say in the union. Our joint board and international are conducting themselves in no better manner than the building unions. Brindellism is an open fact in our international union. We wished to abolish professional "organization committees" that have brought shame and disgrace to our organization. We insisted that the work should be done by the membership and we succeeded in rallying it to abolish the professional 'organizational committees.'

Where Is That Half Million?

"We fought also against the right of officials to raise the dues against the will and desire of the membership. Although we paid our per capita and proportional payments to the International, when Locals 2, 9 and 22 called a conference for the purpose of charging our members 40 c. instead of 50c. dues, we were forbidden to hold such a conference and were compelled to charge our members more money against our own will.

"We also fought against fooling our members with stoppages and agreements that are never carried out. The last so-called stoppage has cost the dressmakers $500,000, and we cannot secure an accounting of how this money was spent.

For Proportional Representation

"Although our three locals comprise 60 per cent of the membership represented in the joint board, we have only a 20 per cent vote in that body.

"Business agents have been appointed for our members against their vote, which is unusual and outrageous. Also at the last convention, the International decided to increase the per capita of every member from 10c. to 15c. In addition, the International has levied unconstitutionally a $2.50 tax against our members. Our locals protested against this and challenged the right of the international to levy such a tax. The officials of the joint board, however, entirely ignored the representatives of our three locals.

Freezing Out The Largest Membership

"The conference committee that worked out the demands of the Cloakmakers before the governor's commission, consisted of one representative of every local. After all the demands were submitted to the governor's commission, a secret meeting was held of the conference committee, leaving out entirely the representatives of our locals comprising 60 per cent of the membership. The representatives of the three locals protested against this procedure. We believe that the members have a right to vote on these questions.

"When we started to expose these matters to our members, the international decided to throw us out by force illegally. This morning, they broke by force into the headquarters of locals 2 and 9.

"The Dressmakers' Building at 16 W. 21st St. is now in a state of siege. They have attempted to break in at four o'clock this morning, but we had over 100 members on guard. We called membership meetings for Local 22 at Webster Hall, Local 9 at Cooper Union, and Local 2 at Manhattan Lyceum; and we left it to our members to decide what course of action they want us to take.

Elected by Big Majority

"In the last elections, a few months ago, the present administrations of the three locals were elected with votes of four to one. We challenge the joint board and the international to call membership meetings of our locals, and we are willing to leave our office if the members so decide. We consider this attempt on the part of the joint board and the international a gross violation of our rights as officers and members of the union.

"The international and the joint board officers know that we are right. They do not dare to face the real issues. Instead of answering our members squarely they cry 'Communism,' a charge irrelevant to union business, and attack us for celebrating the workers holiday in the usual manner."

Tie Up Open Shop in St. Louis

such excellent strike solidarity with their class, the following:

Louise Belf, 18 years old, 1302 Gratiot street; Sophie Heber, 18, 6303 Dardanella avenue; Leona Niehoff, 21, 1475a Burd avenue; Gertrude Schkolnik, 20, 4605a St. Ferdinand avenue; Anna Hancovsky, 20, 1627 South Ninth street; Ida Coffes, 47, 3117 Kimberly avenue; Mary Dennis, 18, 1604 Cas avenue; Melissa Iaab, 2G9, 924 Tyler street; Hattie Madino, 22, 1401 North Ninth street.

Good Picketing the Key to Victory.

In spite of the continual police persecution, the shop is being picketed every hour of the day. An example of police brutality took place Wednesday morning, when a strike sympathizer was viciously beaten up by the police in front of the shop. This was done without any cause or provocation given by the victim, but simply as an effort to terrorize the strikers.

This latest crime against the working class of St. Louis is only one of the many outrages and is practical proof of the Communist contention that the capitalist government is an instrument of suppression which will be ended only when the workers replace it with a government of their own, of, by and for labor.

Girl Strikers Good Fighters.

The morale of the strikers is exceptionally good, considering that it is the first experience of hundreds of girls, who are none the less standing shoulder to shoulder with the men and showing the finest fighting spirit.

At the strike meeting Monday the Amalgamated officials announced that it would begin paying strike benefits and also serve noonday lunch to strikers in the Fraternal building, which is strike headquarters.

Don't Forget the Demands.

The unusual "vacation"—while a serious matter of battling for tLeir demands, including the reinstatement of workers fired for "talking union," the right to organize, sanitary conditions, time and a half for overtime and a 25 per cent raise—is being enjoyed by the strikers, who held a picnic last Sunday (a picture of which accompanies) and an "athletic benefit" Wednesday, with marked success.

Recognition of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers is the chief point of issue as a matter of course, and the fight of the union is supported by all members of the Young Workers League and the Trade Union Educational League among the Curlee strikers.

The crafty effort of the Curlee company to try to discredit the Amalgamated Clothing Workers as somehow bad because "not connected with the American Federation of Labor," has met a sharp and praiseworthy rebuke from the A. F. of L. unionists in St. Louis.

And Old Trick of Curlee.

The Curlee company, a confirmed open shop outfit, has tried to play such games before. But when the United Garment Workers which is connected with the A. F. of L. tried to organize the Curlee shop, the management, far from welcoming it, hastily formed a fake union called the "Industrial Tailors' Union" to break the strike of the United Garment Workers' Union.

All trade unionists in St. Louis, especially those who are conscious of their class interests and who adhere to the principles of the Trade Union Educational League, are expected to rally the whole of the local labor movement to help the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union organize and win the Curlee strike.

Faiman Supplied Germs That Killed "Billy," Court Told

"I had some tubes of bacteria. Shepherd asked me if he could have them and I told him he could. I could get more; they didn't cost me anything. He asked me if I knew of any instance of bacteria being used for criminal purposes."

William D. Shepherd, charged with the murder of his millionaire foster son, William Nelson McClintock, sat in the criminal court and heard, in these words, the most damaging testimony scored against him.

Dr. Charles C. Faiman, head of the national university of sciences, star of the prosecution, was on the stand, called as a court witness.

Faimon testified he had arranged with Shepherd to supply germs to kill McClintock, Shepherd agreeing to pay Faiman $100,000.

Peace Negotiations in Sudden Ending

manded by General Chang Hsuehliang, son of Chang Tso-lin. The activity of the students are increasing.

All Chinese shops are forbidden to display any brands of cigarettes made by the British-American tobacco company. Chinese newspapers are refusing foreign advertising.

One of the demands most insisted upon in the negotiations now broken by the bolt of foreign negotiators, was the right to vote of Chinese residents within the foreign concession. The Chinese pay taxes there, and far and away out number the foreign residents, but are permitted no right of representation at all in the municipal council government. As the chairman of the council is an American, the Chinese have reminded him of the old American slogan about "taxation without representation," being tyranny.

Maintaining a firm attitude, the students today inaugurated a picket system around the railway stations in Chinese territory in order to prevent food supplies from reaching foreign residents. Many cases of rice and other food are held up.

Chinese Reaction Plays Traitor.

PEKING, China, June 18.—Signs of reactionary and foreign-bribed Chinese elements are coming to the surface. While the foreign imperialists make a great deal of noise over the story of "Soviet aid" to the upheaval going on for national liberation, they have no condemnation of the open subserviency of Chang Tso-lin to Japanese interests.

Also, it is known that the American consul had a secret conference at Hankow with Chinese officials who later executed an alleged "Chinese Bolshevist" and arrested many members of the Kuo Min Tang.

Behead Chinese Communists.

The governor of the province of Hupeh, also, has arrested several student leaders, jailed several members of the Chinese Communist Party and ordered some beheaded.

Chinese troops are picketing the streets of the capital and the students continue to bombard the government with demands, urging forcible occupation of the legation quarters, disarming of the foreign guards and even a declaration of war against Great Britain.

Rail Workers to Help Strikers.

The employes of the Peking-Hankow railway propose to devote one day's pay each month for the support of the Shanghai strikers and the employes of other lines are said to be taking similar action.

Thousands of posters have appeared in Peking depicting British policemen shooting and bayoneting strikers, women and children, with bodies lying about on the ground.

British Consul Chased Into the Water

CHUNG KIANG, June 18.—Chinese today forced the British consul here to take refuge on board a ship. The diplomatic corps is meeting to send instructions to their commissioners at Shanghai who are conferring with the Chinese commissioners, but no solution of the difficulties here has been reached.

WORKERS PARTY CONTINUES FREE SPEECH FIGHT

The Workers (Communist) Party will continue its free speech fight on the corner of North Ave. and Orchard St. on Saturday night. Last Saturday eighteen members of the Workers Party were arrested when they conducted an open air meeting on this corner. They are charged with violating a city ordinance, declared unconstitutional by the Illinois supreme court, requiring a permit from the chief of police to hold open air meetings. The cases will be fought in the courts.

The speakers at Workers Party street meetings Saturday night will be:

North and Orchard—Barney Mass and Karl Reeve.

North and Washtenaw—Manuel Gomez and Al Shaap.

Division and Washtenaw—I. A. Davidson and J. Louis Engdahl.

Kedzie and 22nd—Sam Hammersmark and William F. Kruse.

Philadelphia Y. W. L. Picnic Sunday, June 21

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18.—The Young Workers' picnic will be held on Sunday, June 21, at Burholme Park. There will be games, dancing and good music, refreshments and a jolly time for all.

To get to the park, take car No. 50 on 5th street, get off at Cottman street and walk three blocks across the railroad tracks to the bottom of the hill and there you will see the bunch.

Hearst Attack on Wall Street's Mexican Policy "Does'nt Mean Anything"

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, James R. Sheffield, by the grace of Wall Street American ambassador at Mexico City, plans to cross the southern border to resume his duties at the Mexican capital. "Cal" Coolidge put his foot down hard on any attempt to discredit the spokesman of oil and high finance by sending some one else in his stead, in view of the recent sharp interchange of notes between Calles and the American president. But it has become very evident that Sheffield is not going south with the blessing of William Randolph Hearst.

• • • •

The ubiquitous publisher has vast estates in Mexico and to safeguard these he has very evidently adopted a changed policy. In the days when "Black Jack" Pershing under orders of the "pacifist" president, Woodrow Wilson, crossed the Rio Grande with a choice collection of American soldiery, ready to loot and murder in Mexico, there was no jingo who shouted louder in favor of intervention than did this same "Willie" Hearst. He had received his estates from Porfirio Diaz, and "Back to Diaz!" was Hearst's slogan at that time.

But times have changed. "Diaz" is a dream, or a nightmare, in Mexican history, gradually fading into the past. This same Hearst now demands an easy-going diplomacy in handling the Mexicans. Hearst champions the cause of Calles, the "socialist" president of Mexico, the last bulwark against the demands of the peasants for the complete expropriation of the land. Hearst has evidently concluded that it is better to have a friend in Calles, than in the American embassy, since he can't have both. If he can't keep all of his estates, estimated at 1,000,000 acres, he will keep all he can, as long as Calles lasts; until the Mexican tillers of the soil, with labor in the cities, take power into their own hands.

• • • •

Hearst attacks Sheffield as an agent of the British. Hearst has always had a consistent anti-British policy. That helps sell papers. It is true that when Great Britain withdrew her ambassador to Mexico, following the trouble brewing out of the death of Mrs. Evans, the British government turned over to the American government (Sheffield) the duty of looking after its interests. This was more an indication of the international solidarity of capitalism, in addition to the pro-British sympathies of the Wall Street bankers, especially the House of Morgan. It is better for Hearst to join former President Obregon, supporter of President Calles, in declaring that, "The Americans are apparently trying to pull the British chestnuts out of the fire," pretending that American imperialism has no selfish interests of its own in Mexico.

• • • •

The duty of the American workers and poor farmers is first of all to attack the capitalist power in this country. It is safer for Hearst, with his 25 daily newspapers and half a dozen magazines, and an annual income of $120,000,000 to direct his paper broadside against the British, than it is to criticise Wall Street, which he needs in his financial deals. American labor must make this situation clear to Mexican labor so that it will not be misled by Hearst, the master charlatan, into granting him even the slightest concessions, in the belief that he is now their "friend."

• • • •

Every square inch of land given Hearst by Diaz, the butcher of workers and peasants, should be taken from him. Only in the complete overthrow of capitalism, in all its forms, will Mexican labor be able to march forward to complete emancipation, to enjoy victory to the full over world imperialism. Every class conscious worker and poor farmer struggles toward that goal north of the Rio Grande, even as militant labor in Mexico makes steady progress toward that same end, which must result in a Soviet America.

"The American government could not contemplate with equaninity the establishment of a Soviet government just across the Rio Grande," writes the Washington correspondent of the New York World. Neither can the workers of the United States. Soviet Rule must be established in both sides of the Rio Grande.

ST. LOUIS JOY FEST FOR UNIONISTS HELD SATURDAY EVENING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 18.—The trade unionists of St. Louis are to hold a lawn party at the Labor Lyceum at 8 p. m., Saturday, June 20. The Trade Union Educational League, the Young Workers League and all local branches of the Workers Party are taking part in the affair which promises everyone a good time.

The local committee is going to cut the speaking to one-half hour, so that there is more time for play and enjoyment.

The program comprises dancing, singing and several different games that are aimed to be interesting to all.

As an item of special interest, there will be a speaker to explain the issues of the clothing strike of the Curlee shop, and all Curlee strikers are invited to attend.

Ice cream, sandwiches and other refreshments will be served. Don't forget the place—Labor Lyceum, 1243 North Garrison avenue, on Saturday evening, June 20. Held under the auspices of the Trade Union Educational League.

Morgan's Wife Has 8 Doctors

NEW YORK, June 18.—The illness of Mrs. J. Pierpont Morgan, wife of the banker, has been diagnosed as sleeping sickness in a serious form, it was announced today. Her condition late this morning was improved over last night.

Since she became ill last Sunday, eight specialists have been called to attend her.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18. — William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, has issued a warning that he will not support Kellogg's statement on the Mexican situation on the ground that it "might encourage revolutionaries."

EMPLOYES OF 'L' TURN DOWN COMPANY PACT

Surface Men's Union Votes Acceptance

The employes of the elevated lines, owned by Samuel Insull, voted to reject the contract offered by the company on the basis of the present agreement which carries a wage scale varying from 77 cents for motormen to 71 cents for guards. The vote was 807 to 515.

On the other hand the surface employes under the leadership of President William Quinlan, voted to accept the agreement. While Quinlan did not directly advise the membership how to vote at the last membership meeting, he attacked those who would suggest strike action and declared that these men were "irresponsible." The original demands of the surface men included a wage raise of 5 cents per hour above the present scale. It was evident that Quinlan had an understanding with Blair, the president of the Surface Lines, on a settlement along the lines of the existing agreement.

Quinlan Is Willing.

The leadership of the elevated men's union does not seem to be as complacent as that of the surface men's. In 1919 the elevated men voted against the company's proposed agreement, but a settlement was reached by pooling the votes of both divisions of the amalgamated union. Employes of the Aurora, Elgin and Chicago lines were granted a 2 cents per hour increase a week ago. There is no doubt but the workers on the surface and elevated lines would have also gained their paltry five cents an hour increase, but for the willingness of President William Quinlan of the street carmen's union to comply with the wishes of President Blair of the Surface Lines.

The street carmen's union has 15,000 members. Out of this number 7,531 cast their votes for the agreement and 1,818 voted against it.

Building Unions Are Enjoined from Aiding Chauffeurs

NEW YORK, June 18. — Building trades unions of Westchester county, New York, are enjoined by an injunction granted by supreme court justice Joseph Morschauser from calling strikes on jobs where non-union chauffeurs deliver building materials. The injunction is directed against officers of the buildnig trades council of Westchester county, Carpenters' Union, Bricklayers' Union, and Hod Carriers' Union. According to the affidavit of F. Herbert Brown of the Building Material Men's Association the Westchester building materials men would have to let their chaffeurs join the International Brotherhood of Teamsters, Chauffeurs, Stablemen and Helpers.

KELLOGG INSULT TO MEXICO FROM MORGAN'S MOUTH

without the support of the United States no Mexican government can hope to maintain itself.

Conferences with Morgan Partner.

"Ambassador Sheffield, who recommended the action taken by Secretary Kellogg, acted practically as the agent of the Wall Street interests during the whole of his stay in Mexico. In every one of his communications to President Calles, the claims of the bankers have occupied the most prominent place.

"When he returned to this country a short time ago, Mr. Sheffield went immediately to the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., where he was closeted with Thomas W. Lamont for two whole days. Mr. Lamont is head of the international bankers' committee representing holders of Mexican securities.

"After the conference, Lamont and Sheffield traveled together to Washington, where Sheffield made his recommendations to the state department.

"Never was the connection between American financial capital and the Mexican policy of the United States government more apparent.

Must Support Calles Against Wall St.

"President Calles of Mexico has answered Secretary Kellogg in the only way which the Mexican people could expect. In the past, the Mexican president has shown himself more than amenable to the demands of Wall Street, but these demands have now become so insistent that even he is forced to resist if he wishes to retain the backing of any considerable section of the Mexican people.

"All enemies of imperialism must rally to the support of Mexico's independence and of the stand taken by the Mexican president against the imperialists.

"Not for one moment can we afford to ignore the threat of a reactionary coup d'etat in Mexico stimulated and encouraged by support from without. Mexico must be on her guard.

"The wage earners of the United States, who have nothing to gain and everything to lose by the reckless policy of imperialism being pursued by their government at the dictation of a financial oligarchy, must be prepared to act at a moment's notice. Right now they must demonstrate their solidarity with the exploited people of Mexico, and of all Latin America.

"Every day's news brings fresh stories of the advance of American imperialism. Yesterday it is China; today Mexico; tomorrow some fresh outrage in the Philippines.

June 29 to July 4 is Anti-Imperialist Week.

"The All-American Anti-Imperialist League reiterates its appeal to the workers of the United States to join with their Latin-American brothers in observing Anti-Imperialist Week, June 29 to July 4. Anti-Imperialist Week must be a demonstration of the solidarity of all the anti-imperialist forces from Alaska to Cape Horn."

Union Hatters Hope to Get Work

ORANGE, N. J.,—(FP)—Union hat workers of Orange, N. J., anticipate an increase in the amount of work available when the Morris Katz Hat Co. opens up the abandoned plant of the C. B. Rutan Co. About 200 workers will be accommodated in the factory, which includes finishing and trimming hat bodies made in other districts in addition to manufacturing hat bodies. The Rutan plant has been closed since the company decided that it could not deal with the United Hatters' Union any longer.

At the 137th convocation of the University of Chicago, C. H. Markham, president of the Illinois Central railroad, was allowed to deliver the convocational address, advertising his road. Markham's subject was, "Transportation in Modern Life."

BORAH SAYS HE FAVORS ABOLITION OF FOREIGN IMPOSITION ON CHINA

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 18.—Senator Borah, in an interview in which he plainly evaded the joint responsibility of the United States with other imperialist powers in China, nevertheless expressed himself as follows:

"Personally, I would favor the withdrawal of extra-territorial rights in China as speedily as practicable, and a policy adopted by all which would respect the territorial integrity and national rights of a great people."

38,000 N.Y. TAXI DRIVERS SUFFER WITHOUT UNION

Are Helpless Victims of Many Regulations

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 18.—Due to an order issued by Police Commissioner Enright, all taxicab drivers must wear uniforms and uniform caps. It was only a few weeks ago that the commissioner took control of the taxi industry in this city, by an act of the board of aldermen. Who will supply the uniforms and caps to the drivers no one knows. But the taxi drivers seem to have the feeling that they will have to buy this equipment themselves and are therefore preparing to protest against this order which is confiscatory.

Driven Off Fifth Ave.

Some months ago the commisisoner issued an order to all police on Fifth Ave. and on Broadway to keep all cruising taxis off these streets. His reason for that order was that cabs congest traffic. An injunction was secured from the courts restraining the commissioner from interfering with the taxi drivers, but the commissioner was soon able to have the injunction set aside.

That is what the taxi drivers are getting from the Hylan administration and that is what they can expect further if they re-elect the "peoples" man into power.

There are in this city 38,000 taxi drivers and not one organization that will fight for these drivers. The only taxicab organizations in this city are the ones the bosses and manufacterers belong to.

Union Official Asleep on Job.

The Teamsters and Chauffeurs Union is the only union that these exploited drivers can affiliate with, but it seems for some reason or other the officials of that union will not organize these drivers together. The drivers want a union and are waiting for some one to start the drive. One driver who has been operating a taxi in this city for nine years, said, "I have been hacking in this town for nine years and it seems that conditions are getting so that the next thing you know Enright will issue an order that no taxicabs be seen on the streets after dark. Why the devil don't some union official come around and organize us."

Yellows Want to Join Union.

Another driver working for the open shop Yellow Taxi corporation had this to say: "I have been working for this company for seventeen months and I am tired of the whole thing, if I go on Fifth Ave. I get chased off. It seems that these streets were made for the limousines of the millionaires and not for a working man. The only thing that will help us is a union. I would join and get some of the drivers at the garage where I work to join." Asked if the company that employs him would have any objection to his joining a union, he said, "If the company would find this out I would get fired immediately; they have spotters on the job and if any one is heard talking about a union he is turned in and fired. Last week a fellow was fired for agitating. The men don't care and don't give a damn any more. They are disgusted and all the fellows need is a leader and the men will do the rest."

AS WE SEE IT -:- By T. J. O'Flaherty

one left the lesser of the two is preferable. A big slice of China is now under the influence of the Soviet Union and much as the American capitalist dislikes the competition of the Japanese in China it hates the spread of Communism much more.

ALREADY the most farsighted of American capitalists are expressing themselves against hasty action in China on the part of the government. They even hint that missionaries and other stoolpigeons of American capitalism should be held responsible for any trouble they may get themselves into. In fact it is hinted that should they make a trip unto the unknown for their temerity in mistaking the Chinese for pacifists that the dead Americans should be charged with suicide.

FOR this much American wisdom, the Chinese have to thank their trusty rifles. When the favorite Chinese weapon was the pigtail, foreign powers expressed very little regard for the rights of self-determination, but now that they have welded their plough shares into swords, the Christian nations show a most commendable desire to follow in the footsteps of the meek and lowly Nazarene, and repay violence with humility. In the meantime Chang-Tso-Lin will be worth the attention of the Chinese student. And don't forget General Feng. He's the fellow we're rooting for just now.

THE DAILY WORKER hinted that Secretary of State Kellogg pulled a boner when he made public a statement attacking Mexico without giving the facts on which his provocatory and insulting fulmination was based. Of course the facts would not alter the case, but they would at least indicate that Kellogg was not a political moron. His own class would be able to find justification for his actions. As it is, several republican papers have delicately hinted that Mr. Kellogg has a garret for rent and that the place left vacant by Charles Evans Hughes is still empty.

Negroes Answer Gen. Bullard

By WILLIAM F. DUNNE.

FAR more interesting and much more important than the paranoic tales of adventure by flood, blood and field ostensibly written by General Bullard and syndicated to a number of capitalist papers, are the expressions of opinion from members of the Negro race aroused by Bullard's attack on the Negro soldiers.

General Bullard claims that the Ninety-second Negro division would not fight—that they could not stand bombardment, and had to be sent to the rear.

THIS may or may not be true, but it is of no moment and those who rush to the defense of the Negroes against the general's charge of cowardice are falling into a trap set for them by this militarist. Ability to stand shell fire is not the possession of any race or nationality. It is solely a question of training and every soldier knows that raw troops—and particularly raw peasant troops, unaccustomed even to the clamor and vibration of factories and city streets—sink into helplessness in the face of prolonged bombardment by high explosive shells. Most of the Negro troops in the "army of democracy" came from the agricultural districts; they had not even had industrial experience and it is entirely probable that they did not stand shell fire any better than did the conscripts from the farming districts of France, England, Italy and other countries.

Even General Bullard admits that Negro troops of the regular army were good combat units—proving that training and experience is the important difference.

BUT all this is beside the point. The important thing for Communists is what the Negroes themselves think about Bullard's charges of cowardice.

Fortunately, the Bullard article produced a number of letters to the capitalist press, praising or condemning the general's statements, and many of these were from Negroes.

They can be divided into two classes:

First, the protest of the Negro intellectual who resent the charge of cowardice per se, but who resents only the implied insult to his race but not apparently, the whole scheme of white domination fostered by American capitalism, who accepted both the war and the duty of the Negroes to take part in it.

The second, disregarding the charge of cowardice as unimportant in the face of well-known facts and throwing the challenge of the race conscious Negro into the teeth of Bullard and his kind.

INTO the first classification falls the following letter:

"CHICAGO, June 9.—It is inconceivable that one who has attained Gen. Bullard's position should stoop so low as to make such a cowardly attack upon a division that Gen. Pershing, in reviewing it at Le Mans, before our return to the States, stated 'Was, in his opinion, second to none in its efficiency.'

I, like many others, interrupted my education at the University of Chicago to volunteer a few days after war was declared by this country, and, starting from the colored officers' training camp at Des Moines, Ia., where every prejudiced external influence and Col. C. C. Ballou, the commandant, tried to discourage the efforts of Negroes to train themselves for leadership of their own in war, we who attained the rank of officers continually suffered under such injustices as this last one by the general.

Official records of the war department will be called upon to refute every statement made by Gen. Bullard.

Levi E. Southe,
Second Lieut. 356th Inf., 92nd Div."

THE writer of this letter seems to view the problem of the Negro in the world war as one of securing on an equal footing with white dupes, the right to kill and be killed for American capitalism and its fetishes. His remedy for such slanders as those of Bullard is to have the war department "refute every statement made by General Bullard."

Needless to say, the war department will be only too glad to tell the Negroes that they made first-class cannon fodder if only for the reason that from all indications they will be needed soon in another war.

The war department will soothe the injured pride of this type of Negro and he will be greatly pleased, so pleased that he will tell others of his race that the white masters appreciate fully the willingness of the Negroes to fight and die for them.

If all Negroes took this attitude towards their problems as a race, their situation would be worse than hopeless.

BUT if Bullard's articles have done nothing else they have shown that the first type by no means represents the thought of the American Negroes. The following letter quite correctly ignores the slanders of Bullard as unimportant and goes right to the heart of the whole question:

CHICAGO, June 9.—I was a lieutenant in the 92nd division during the war. Gen. Bullard says that the Negro division was cowardly and refused to fight. What about it? It was a well known fact that our men were to be nothing but cannon fodder. Why should a Negro fight the battles of the white man and be his slave?

We learned a whole lot about the white man in the war. He is nothing but a beast and a devil and a hypocrite. We know what they did to each other. The worst savages in Africa are harmless in comparison. When the north was fighting the south in America, Gen. Sherman destroyed the whole country he marched thru on his way to Georgia. He made a more complete job of it than was done by the Germans in France. And this was done by Americans against Americans, against their own people. Even in those days they forced the Negroes into the army to fight their battles.

As for Gen. Bullard's story, it is bunk. His great victories were against deserters and half starved Germans who were glad to be captured. There was only one real battle in which Americans had a hand; that was in the Argonne, and Germany was starved out and beaten before it started. The Negro division (92d) was not in this fight. We refused to fight; we had no quarrel with the Germans; they never did us any harm.

J. Williams,
Formerly of the 92d Division.

THIS letter puts before the white ruling class a question which they cannot answer:

Why should a Negro fight the battles of the white man and be his slave?

In addition it punctures the bubble-myth of the prowess of the American forces in France—they were fighting against worn-out, half-starved enemies. "Food will win the war," said Hoover, and it did—together with the avalanche of war munitions poured out from factories manned by American workers—black and white.

One more letter:

TOLEDO, Ia., June 9.—The Negro soldier fought and died for the Stars and Stripes and now is called a coward by Gen. Bullard, who states that "they are hopelessly inferior."

I wonder if there is a race on the globe that has made the progress that the Negro has since the emancipation, altho they are persecuted at every turn by such narrow minded people as the general?

One of America's foremost statesmen once said, "keep the Negro out of the schoolhouse and a gun out of his hand or he will whip the world." I wonder if Bullard remembers that and is just trying to kid himself into believing that they are cowards.

LIKE the second letter, this one points out a vitally important change that has taken place among the Negroes, not only in America, but in the African colonies of British and French imperialism.

During the world war the Negroes had guns put in their hands. They were taught of warware, all the white man knew because he needed them to fight other white men. The Negro masses will never forget the lessons beaten into them at the point of bayonets and amid the thunder of the white man's artillery.

If it is right for white men to kill one another and get black men to help them, why is it not alright for black men to fight and kill white men who terrorize and torture them?

THE question may be put a little crudely here, but in one form or another, it is being asked by millions of enslaved Negroes.

The statements above are two to one for militancy among the Negro masses—against a servile acceptance of the white man's right to judge and punish. If this represented the feeling among the Negro masses in the United States, they would be well on their way to social, political and economic equality.

BUT the Negro workers and farmers are still, in too large numbers, fooled by promises and meaningless concessions. Their leaders for the most part are timid and apologetic, unaware of the tremendous driving power inherent in the millions of Negro workers and farmers, all too ready to make their plea on a basis of respectability and willingness to "keep their place."

What is needed is a leadership which will din into the ears of the white rulers unceasingly the question asked by the Negro veteran:

Why should a Negro fight the battles of the white man and be his slave?

DEATH LIST IN WRECK ON LACKAWANNA NOW 44; OTHERS ARE DYING

(Special to The Daily Worker)

Hackettstown, N. J., June 18.—The death list in the Lackawanna railroad wreck near here Tuesday mounted to 44 today, with the death of Clemens Schmidt, 47, of Chicago.

Twenty four still are in hospitals. The condition of several is critical.

Meanwhile, the work of investigating the disaster was continued.

PRESIDENT OF LABEL LEAGUE GETS AUTOMOBILE

Must Be Given Chance to Use His Head

President Scheck, of the local branch of the Trades Union Label League, will soon be riding around in a first class Essex Coach at the expense of the league according to a report of a meeting held by that organization recently. The coach which his grateful co-workers intend to purchase for Scheck will cost in the vicinity of one thousand dollars, or to be exact $917.00.

It is rumored that the Essex Coach is a scab wagon, but as the late Samuel Gompers once said when told that the beer he was drinking was non-union: "Yes, but it is good beer." Perhaps Scheck will fasten one of his labels on his coach and exhibit it to the workers of Chicago as an example of what can be accomplished by one person who takes a personal interest in the union label. If the workers of Chicago bought Essex coaches instead of Fords or Packards (?) perhaps the Essex people might find it to their interest to go union. What worked with Clown cigarets might work all around.

Still Resisting Public Power

WASHINGTON—(FP)—On the eve of his business meeting of cabinet chiefs and heads of commissions and other branches of the executive end of the government, to consider economies, President Coolidge is found to be resisting the idea of federal development and distribution of power at Boulder canyon, on the Colorado river. He agrees that the government should carry the burden of providing flood control and irrigation, but he is dead against its entering into the business of generating and selling electricity. On general principle, he hopes that the two sides of water-storage on the Colorado can be kept apart, so that private capital shall not be deprived of a profit from power.

"ECONOMIC AND CULTURAL PROGRESS OF NATIONAL MINORITIES AND OF PEACANTS, SOVIETS' AIM"—KALININ

MOSCOW, (By Mail).—In a detailed report he delivered at the sitting of the Third Congress of Soviets, Kalinin, President of the Central Executive Committee of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, declared that, seeking to improve the Soviet power as exercised by the local authorities and institutions, the Central Government had set it as its task to resolve the following problems:

To increase measures tending to involve the peasants in the labors of Soviets; to increase the responsibility of members of local Soviets by way of more liberal criticism of the actions of the various authorities; to enforce judicial responsibility of officials guilty of unlawful organization of elections—in which event the latter are to be cancelled; to limit the scope of application of administrative penalties, with its frequent substitution for regular judicial prosecution, by local authorities; to attract the local population, as far as possible, to judicial activities; to mitigate the penalties for offenses against taxation regulations and others, while meting severe punishment on officials for illegal actions.

Aid to Peasants

Stating that it was impossible to regard as completed the work of perfecting the national Soviet administration in regions with national minorities, the speaker pointed out to the difficulties that were bound with such work, mainly through the separate groups of those minorities being dispersed over a large territory covered by a number of different republics. This part of his speech the President of the Central Executive Committee of the Union concluded by moving a proposition that the Central Government be charged with the task of closely following the general realization of measures bent towards cultural development of minorities.

During the lively debate that followed Kalinin's speech, fourteen peasant delegates emphasized the fact that the putting into effect of the measures enumerated by the president of the executive corresponded to the demands voiced by all farming population of the Union.

Rights of National Minorities

Larin, a prominent leader and deputy—member of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee (R. S. F. S. R.), reproached the Ukranian administration for what he called a certain want of due regard for needs of national minorities and urged the right of every minority, however weak and whatever its numerical strength, to live as a separate and independent territorial unit.

However, Larin's asertion were refuted by members of the government of the Ukrainian Soviet Republic at the Moscow Congress, who, with practical evidence in hands, were able to state that all the minorities in Ukraine—Russian, Polish, Jewish Bulgarian and others—had their own national councils, even in case the population concerned did not exceed that of one village; moreover, the Ukrainian government energetically opposed any attempts at forcible "Ukrainization" of Russian or other minorities.

of the reactionaries to surrender to the employers.

All of these facts combine to make it especially necessary at this time that the Left Wing forces should consolidate themselves, clarify their program and tactics, and solidify the Left Wing leadership with the masses in the needle trades, for a militant struggle against the employers and against the collaborators with the employers.

The National Committee Needle Trades Section, T. U. E. L. therefore, in cooperation with the T. U. E. L. National Committee, issues this call for

to be convened in New York City, August 8th and 9th, 1925, to consider and act upon the following agenda:

1. Report of the T. U. E. L. National Committee.
2. Report of National Committee of the Needle Trades Section.
3. Amalgamation and Trade Union Unity;—(a) Amalgamation of the Needle Trades; (b) National Trade Union Unity; (c) International Trade Union Unity—Anglo-Russian Commission.
4. Trade issues and program: (a) General; (b) For each union.
5. Unemployment.
6. Shop Committees.
7. Organization of the Unorganized.
8. Struggle against the Bureaucracy—Tactics of the Left Wing.
9. Left Bloc in the Needle Trades.
10. Labor Party.
11. Organization Problems of the Left Wing.
12. Press—"The Needle Worker."
13. Finance.
14. Election of National Committee of Needle Trades.
15. Adjournment.

Every separately functioning group of Left Wing Needle Trades workers is entitled to send TWO DELEGATES to this National Conference. Certain of the larger and stronger groups in New York City will be entitled to additional delegates, the number of which will be set by the National Committee, not to exceed eight delegates from any group.

Needle Workers! At this time when our movement is growing so rapidly, when such tremendous problems are pressing upon us for solution, it is a supreme duty of every Left Wing Group to take a responsible part in formulating policies and perfecting the organization that will lead to victory.

ELECT YOUR DELEGATES TO THE NATIONAL CONFERENCE, TO BE HELD AT 108 EAST 14th ST., NEW YORK CITY, ON AUGUST 8th AND 9th, 1925.

Fraternally yours,
NATIONAL COMMITTEE, T. U. E. L.,

COMMUNISTS TO PICNIC HERE ON FOURTH OF JULY

Bosses Will Propagate for Militarism

Calvin Coolidge is receiving the plaudits of socialists and pacifists because he refused to place the seal of his official approval on the plan to make the anniversary of the armistice, that terminated the world war, an annual defense day. Canny Calvin showed his sympathy for militarism by turning July 4th over to them.

That day, formerly devoted to making speeches glorifying American capitalism and paying lip loyalty to the declaration of independence, will be henceforth used by the bourgeoisie as an occasion to inoculate the minds of the American masses with the virus of capitalist militarism and to gradually organize them into the military machine which our ruling class is building up to defend their loot against the working class, whom they know sooner or later will demand their rights and insist on getting them.

But the workers are not idle. While the capitalists in Chicago with their myriad publicity agencies will inveigle large numbers of workers to their demonstrations, celebrations and military exercises, the most class conscious of the workers will keep aloof from the capitalist show and participate in their own demonstrations.

Cannon Will Speak

In Beyer's Grove, local Chicago of the Workers' (Communist) Party will hold its annual picnic. This will be more than a gathering of merrymakers tho fun will be on the menu. It will also be a demonstration against American imperialism, and the audience will have an opportunity of hearing Comrade James P. Cannon, member of the central executive committee of the party speak on the present situation in Europe. Comrade Cannon was one of the representatives of the party at the last meeting of the enlarged session of the executive committee of the Communist International held in Moscow.

Don't make any other engagement for July 4. All roads lead to Beyer's Grove, at the end of the California Avenue car line. Admission is 50 cents.

Infant Mortality Rate Is High in Maine Mill Town

PORTLAND, Me.—(FP)—The only future disadvantage to textile manufacturing in Maine, according to the group of Maine bankers financing the Hill Manufacturing Co. of Lewiston, is the possibility of a 48-hour law. The bankers point out that Maine is the best textile manufacturing state in the union because of its skilled operatives, water power and mills in good physical condition. Maine workers can be employed 54 hours a week, an hour less than southern mill operatives. The situation of workers in Lewiston is being investigated by a committee of legislators because of charges that the infant mortality rate was so high in a mill city. Women who work in Lewiston mills are weakened physically and cannot give their children the proper care.

PUTRID CORPSE OF S. P. PAST SAVING

Pastis-Thompson group. We are confident that even if Debs knew the truth concerning their malodorous political history even he would not lend himself to be used by them, as a cover for their down right political rottenness. What is that record?

It is known that Minneapolis a few years ago, was a big center of radical labor. Today, it is the scabbiest town in America. Both the political and the economic arms of labor, have suffered deep wounds which are still bleeding badly, as June 8 showed. The Bastis-Thompson "socialist" treason is responsible for this.

As the result of twenty years of constant socialist propaganda, based upon the waging of the class struggle, Thomas Van Lear, was elected socialist mayor in 1916. He was supported by six socialist aldermen in the city council.

Treachery of Van Lear.

The very first thing that Van Lear did as mayor, was to cut loose from all socialist and labor control. He became sufficient unto himself. He struck a political alliance with Frank McCormick, the democratic leader of the underworld elements. In this desertion of the class struggle, Van Lear commanded the loyal support of Bastis and Lynn Thompson. When Van Lear was put under fire, in the party for his capitalistic alliance, it was Bastis and Lynn Thompson who rallied to his defense. This support of Bastis, together with that of Lynn Thompson, now county commissioner, but at the period in question, socialist member of the school board, strengthened the hand of Van Lear greatly.

Notorious "Star" Steal.

So that in 1918, Van Lear, as a candidate for re-election, conducted this campaign in connection with the corrupt elements represented by Frank McCormick, and abandoned all political relations with both the socialist and labor movements. He was, of course, defeated. He has suffered two crushing defeats since then.

When it was proposed after 1918, that a campaign of exposure be instituted against Van Lear, before he wrecked labor's organization, it was the socialist alderman headed by Bastis, who stopped the party wheels from rolling in that direction. Thus Van Lear was left free to consumate the notorious "Star" steal. That steal could have been prevented, had the Bastis-Thompson leadership been true to its trust.

The class conscious workers of the city and state, naturally looked toward these socialists to act as the watch dogs of their interests in the Star. They were in an excellent position to do that, as ward leaders of the working class. But they failed the working class miserably, for the simple reason that they favored Van Lear's policies of class collaboration and desertion. They were, in fact, until quite recently, his political henchmen. And Albert Bastis is even now in his power, for divers reasons known to others besides Bastis.

Socialists go Over to G. O. P.

In 1923, a wholesale betrayal of the political interest of the working class was put over by this socialist gang. Dick Wiggin and the inimitable Bob Cramer were the chief oilers. The debacle of June 8, this year, is rooted in the treachery of 1923.

In that year the entire socialist labor group went over to the republican candidacy of Leach. The socialist aldermen constituted the central committee of the still lingering S. P. They sabotaged the nomination of a united socialist labor candidate for mayor. The class conscious workers were astounded at this action. That was the next step taken to demoralize the political strength of labor.

Bastis, who is the intellectual and practical leader and tactician of the socialist group in and out of the city council, was openly rewarded by the capitalists for his part in the betrayal of 1923, by their refusal to oppose his election in the sixth ward.

His seat was not contested. This brilliant strategy of Bastis, brought its full fruits to the workers, when five of the six aldermen up for re-election, were defeated on June 8, this year. Nevertheless, Bastis possesses the gall to affix his name to a call for the grand revival en masse, of the dead socialist corpse, which, when it lived, he did so much to kill. Debs cannot purge the tribe led by Bastis, of its political filth.

Debs Shields Such Filth.

That part of the working class which is politically conscious, knows full well that if Debs is to be honest with the working class movements, it is his revolutionary duty to lash these traitors as he did in the past. However, since Debs has permitted himself to be made a pawn in the yellow hands of the Cahans and the Hillquits, nothing of such a nature is expected of him, we must confess.

When Paul J. Smith, Sam Gompers' representative, opened his drive on the left wing in 1921, had the Bastis-Thompson group really been socialists, Smith could have been stopped at that time. However, instead of blocking Smith, whose reports on the various Reds in Minneapolis, found their way into the archives of the department of justice, they consorted with Smith and became his secret allies.

Socialists Vote For Scab.

Lynn Thompson as a socialist member of the board of county commissioners, voted to let the contract for the construction of the Mendota bridge, to the big rat firm of Kuss Construction Co. This firm is actively hostile to all union labor. But the board has a so-called labor majority of three. Common labor is paid thirty cents an hour. The skilled crafts are getting forty cents per hour. No union workers are allowed on the job. This is a sample of Thompson's interest in the working class.

Not only that, but all of the county appointments were handed on a silver platter to members of the Lincoln Club, which is the political expression of the Citizens' Alliance. Lynn Thompson voted approval for all of them, as the record shows. It is a favorite pastime of Thompson, to hide under the past red mantle of Debs, and let the workers gaze at him while he is doing that. Thompson is as socialistic as a yellow lemon is a red apple. His treacherous actions as a member of the board of county commissioners, have inspired even the reactionaries in the unions to protest against him on more than one occasion. Thompson is a whitened sepulchre of fakerism.

Opposed United Front.

This Bastis-Thompson outfit rejected the united front proposals of the Workers Party, on the question of mayor this spring. It was a proposition to unite all working class elements on a labor candidate for mayor. These tactics would have netted the workers a candidate.

However, these gentlemen turned down the unification of labor, for the capitalist method of splitting the workers. The socialist labor aldermen gave the workers two republican candidates; Leach and Elwell. A united front would have saved all this.

This, then, is the gentry that Debs is coming to save. It certainly is a bad mess that Debs has on his list. It is indeed a very regretable thing to behold—Debs in this last role of his. He ought to have been spared the task of throwing his former red mantle, over the hideous political carcasses of these political fakers.

But Debs is not privileged to fool the workers consciously or unconsciously. The class struggle is inexorable. And if Debs can stand up for these tools of capitalism, then Debs is acting against the best interests of the working classes. No man is greater than the working class. In fact, Debs himself, in the past, used to emphatically stress this sentiment.

Communists Are Workers' Defenders

This treachery is not something peculiar to the Minneapolis socialists. It is world-wide. It is the work of the Second International. Witness England, Germany and France. The only socialism that is socialism today, is the socialism of the Communist International.

The S. P. of Minneapolis died in 1923. Debs comes here to revive it again, so that the Bastis-Thompson gang can continue to betray the workers under its banner, as they have in the past. No real socialist; no class conscious worker, will become a party to this move.

The Workers (Communist) Party is the place for all class conscious workers imbued with genuine socialism.

Conference Is "Pleasant"

WASHINGTON—(FP)— Following a conference in the office of Secretary of Labor, Davis, June 16, with the executive boards of the Bricklayers and the Operative Plasters' International Union, during which he tried to get them to agree on terms of settlement of their dispute as to jurisdiction over plasterers, Davis announced that they "had a very agreable conference, and adjourned to meet on Friday."

More Looney Gas?

NEW YORK,—Chemical, a trade paper of the chemical industry, reports that 25,000 pounds of ethylene dibromide, for mixing with tetra ethyl lead in fluid for use in gasoline, is being shipped from Germany to the Ethyl Gasoline corporation. The Ethyl Gasoline company announced the withdrawal of the looney gas before the surgeon-general's conference at which organized labor protested the sale of the dangerous fuel. New Jersey filling stations still advertise with big signs that tettra ethyl lead gasoline is on sale.

WASHINGTON—(FP)— Fire fighters at Lorain, O., have joined, 100 per cent, the new union resisted by the city commission there, according to a report to headquarters in Washington.

SOVIET MASSES DEMONSTRATE, SHOW LOYALTY

History Has Never Seen Such Parades

triumphantly forward towards the victory that they know to be theirs.

To a worker this is all really very, very wonderful and it is impossible not to be impressed by such a great historical event.

On May 1st tens of millions of workers and farmers in the Soviet Union march with inspiring hope and determination to the strains of the "International." In Moscow, Leningrad, Kiev, Karkoff, Tiflis, Irkutsk, Vladivostok it is all the same—the workers turn out enmasse to pay homage to labor's great international holiday.

Mass Demonstrations.

Such mass demonstrations by workers on such a large scale has never taken place before in all human history.

Three features in particular charcterized the May demonstration that saw at Kiev: (1) the great number of participants, (2) the educational character of the parade and (3) its internationalism.

Kiev is a city of about 460,000 and yet the number of workers who actually took part in the parade was conservatively estimated at 400,000. To me it seemed as if the whole city and the surrounding territory were on the move.

Youth Take Part.

The young pioneers, boys and girls, the builders of the future Communist society, marched by the thousands through the streets singing jubilantly and at intervals telling us in no uncertain tones that they were ever ready to defend the cause of the revolution.

The red army boys, dressed in neat, good uniforms let it be known in thunderous hurrah that they were a working class army, prepared to defend the Soviet Union against attacks by counter-revolutionists.

Thousands of banners and flags were to be seen representing various kinds of labor unions and organizations, factories, clubs, societies, schools. A Ukrainian choir of 600 voices was stationed on one side of the street, by the reviewing stand, enlivening the occasion with revolutionary songs. Even the aged and the crippled workers had come out on this day to give expression to their feelings of solidarity.

The parade aimed to teach the workers something. It was an educational parade. There was, for instance, the blacksmith with his anvil and hammer, the carpenter with his building tools, the weaver with his loom, emphasising the necessity and the importance of building up the industries in the Workers' Republic. Health, sanitation, literacy were not forgotten, as was shown by the floats and the many appropriate slogans on the banners. The parade was orderly thruout and no one seemed to leave the line of march despite the fact that it required hours of continuous walking. It was a good example of working class discipline.

International Solidarity.

The first of May is, of course, an international workers' holiday and the demonstration at Kiev clearly showed that this was so. Groups of Germans Poles and other nationalities, who have found an asylum in the Soviet union, marched with fire in their eyes alongside the Ukrainians.

One large banner had inscribed on it "Workers of the World, Unite" in several languages, and another almost seemed to shout "Down with Hindenburg." The work and purpose of the International Red Aid was expressed by a float bearing a prison with imprisoned workers, appealing to the workers everywhere for aid against oppression and the white terror. Nationalism had no place in this Kiev demonstration.

Soviet Republic Safe.

After seeing Russia and noting the temper of the workers and farmers one cannot help get the conviction that the new Workers' Republic is safe from its enemies and sure to grow in influence and power.

CLEVELAND BRANCH AGENT GETS ROUGH

Talk This Way to Your Branch

Comrade Paul Lukachic of Cleveland is one of those rare Builders who never takes a lay-off on the job of Communist building. Subs have been coming from this comrade in a steady stream and on special occasions he is always to be relied upon to double his efforts.

During RED WEEK, he gave his branch rough treatment. He heaved a challenge to the whole branch that or every sub that the members got altogether—he alone would equal the number with subs turned in, by himself.

"So the more subs my branch membership gets, the harder I will have to work to make good", he writes the DAILY WORKER.

"But there's more fun making good on a hard job", he adds, "and I'm going to do it or break a leg trying."

Here's an example of what a real Red can do during RED WEEK—and here is inspiration for other Communist Builders.

PHILA. WORKERS PREPARING FOR JULY 4, PICNIC

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 18.—The Philadelphia Labor Defense Council and the Workers Party have arranged a joint Picnic for Saturday, July Fourth at Burholme Park.

This picnic will be a demonstration of solidarity to the number of workers now before the courts of Philadelphia as well as an opportunity to the Communists and their sympathizers to again enjoy cooling grass and the ample shades of one of the most beautiful natural parks of Philadelphia.

The Philadelphia Labor Defense Council has handled a number of very important defense cases during the last few weeks among them thirty state sedition cases, most of which have been satisfactorily settled by having them nolle prossed.

Five cases are still pending and a number of deportation cases are about to come up.

All of these cases date back to May 1921 and the difficulty of creating interest and enthusiasm for the defense of these cases lies in the fact that most workers have forgotten about them. In addition to these cases the Labor Defense Council is handling the case of Carlo Previlligio a worker who was arested during an anti-fascisti demonstration and is now being held for court on several charges, including deportation.

This Defense Picnic will be a means of creating new interest in these cases and a help in raising the badly needed funds to defray the legal expenses. The Communists and their sympathizers well remember Burholme Park as an ideal picnic ground and one of coolest spots in the city.

The admission to the picnic will be free and plenty of refreshments, cool drinks and amusements will be on hand.

Sympathetic labor organizations are requested to kep this date open.

ELLA BLOOR TO SPEAK AT BIG DENVER PICNIC

Reaches Colorado City on Hike June 21

DENVER, Colo., June 18.—"Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor, who is hiking across country addressing mass meetings on behalf of the DAILY WORKER, will arrive here in time to speak at the "DAILY WORKER Picnic," to be held near Morrison on Sunday, June 21.

Comrade Bloor has addressed large meetings in California, Nevada, Utah and elsewhere on her cross country trip. The letter advertising the picnic states:—

"The Workers Party is growing steadily both locally as well as nationally. Former sincere socialists and members of the Industrial Workers of the World are becoming interested here."

"Take note of our activities; we shall have a booth at the Labor Centenalia which thousands of union men will visit during the week of June 14th to 21st at 5th and Broadway. At our booth copies of the DAILY WORKER will be given away free and literature will be sold."

"On June 21st we shall have a picnic near Morrison at which Ella Reeve Bloor will be the main speaker. Tickets are only 10c., if you furnish your own transportation. If not we shall furnish such for 40c. difference. If you wish transportation leave word at Book Store, 1407 Arapahoe St."

Chinese Communists

Communists in China are the target of attack.

According to the latest dispatches the governor of Hupeh is jailing and beheading members of the Chinese Communist Party. The usual tales of a "Communist plot" are being given circulation by the agents of the allied embassies.

It is certainly a tribute to the political and executive ability of the Chinese Communists if they have solidified the nation to such an extent that the agents of the allied imperialists must single them out for special persecution in order to prevent a social revolution.

This, however, is all poppycock. The Communists in China are not organizing a social revolution. They are helping the rest of the Chinese workers and peasants to build a powerful national liberation movement, anti-imperialist in character, based on the broad masses of the Chinese population. That the present drive against foreign domination in the form of extra-territoriality (the independence of foreigners from Chinese law), against the collection of Chinese customs duties by foreign powers, the maintenance of circles of foreign power inside of China proper in the shape of treaty ports, etc., is of the broadest character, as seen by the support of strikes and demonstrations of workers and students by the Chinese merchants. Every social group in China, with the exception of the biggest capitalists and landlords and some of the military chieftains under Japanese or allied influence supports the liberation movement.

The work of the Communist parties in semi-colonial nations such as China consists in stimulating the national liberation movements, in drawing the widest circles of workers and peasants into the struggle for the abolittion of foreign capitalist control.

It was Lenin himself who said at "the attempt to give such movements a Communist or quasi-Communist character" must be combatted. The Chinese Communists are following this policy and would probably receive less opposition from the imperialists if they were merely carrying on a campaign for a social revolution impossible to achieve at present.

It is not necessary that China abolish capitalism in order to cripple world imperialism seriously. It is only necessary for China to throw off the foreign yoke and establish herself as an independent nation, to abolish the special privileges that make the robbery of the Chinese masses such a tremendous source of super-profit for the imperialist nations.

It is because Soviet Russia is a real friend and ally of the Chinese masses, that she appears in the role of an ally instead of an enemy seeking to rule and rob that the imperialist world is panic-stricken. Of all the great powers only Soviet Russia honestly tries to unite the Chinese nation for freedom. This the Chinese Communists understand and point out and for this their severed heads go rolling in the filthy dust of the jail yards.

But beheading Communists is a poor answer to the demands of the marching millions of Chinese workers and peasants. The Manchus could not rule solely with executioner's axes and neither will the imperialists be able to do so.

Already the imperialist nations are considering the advisability of revising the drastic regulations by which they strangle China. This they have been forced to do by mass pressure. This pressure will not relax because the most elementary needs of the masses are involved, the solidarity of the Chinese will increase while the rivalries among the imperialist powers become more acute as the prospects of easy pickings in China fade.

Kellogg Rebuked

Secretary of State Kellogg is either crazy or else he wished, on behalf of his Wall Street masters, to sound out public opinion in Mexico and the United States on the question of armed intervention.

Wall Street has had its answer if that was the purpose. In no quarter, except in the Street itself has there appeared anything but opposition in response to the insulting note of the mental defective who fills the office of secretary of state In any other country in the world such an arbitrary act would have been the cause of instant resignation once it was made public. But this is America where elected persons automatically become dictators for a certain period of years without the faint responsibility to the citizenry that prevails in even the monarchial countries like England. Consequently Kellogg can continue to threaten war without any possibility of removal unless he begins to drive potential votes away from the republican administration.

The incident has been useful. It has shown that even the flood of anti-Mexican propaganda and the Communist bugaboo has not succeeded in completely fooling the American masses, even the gullible middle class.

In Mexico itself it will probably unify a number of the conflicting elements and it may convince the Calles government that the persecution of Communists and the smashing of unions, together with the alienation of the peasantry by the sabotage of land distribution, is a poor way to prepare resistance which the Mexican masses evidently want, to the avaricious demands of Wall Street.

The American populace is surprisingly inarticulate for a people that are literate, great public demonstrations against governmental acts of tyranny are almost unknown, but on this issue the "people" have come as near speaking with one voice as is possible under the circumstances.

A headline reads: "Police save moron from mob after he dopes boy in park." After reading Kellogg's statement on the Mexican question, we suggest that the moron be made secretary of state. He would be a decided improvement on the present incumbent.

Samuel Insull, public utilities magnate, received a degree from Northwestern University. It's no wonder the Genna boys got sore at the way they were neglected, and went on a shooting spree.

A bishop broke his leg while hiking in the Wisconsin weeds last week. Strange to relate he did not pray to god to mend the break. He went to a doctor.

The Enslavement of China

By Wm. F. Dunne

ARTICLE X.

OF the many insulting notes sent to China during the war period by the allied legations, with the intention of convincing her of her utter helplessness in the face of the solid front of the imperialist powers, the following, sent October 29, 1918, was typical. Each point is a studied insult as well as a warning that China's only task in the war to aid the allies in eliminating Germany.

It has been explained in an earlier article that China's chief reasons for entering the war were to escape the payment of the Boxer indemnity to Austria and Germany, to secure badly needed loans and to insure herself a at the peace conference on an equal footing with the other powers, Japan particularly.

THE loans that were made were diverted by the military governors under allied domination to their own purposes. This served to intensify civil strife and weaken the Chinese nation, while the allies looked on approvingly. Nevertheless the first point in this note, with a shamelessness hard to beat, says:

1. At the commencement of China's declaration of war against the central powers, the allied governments agreed to the postponement of the payment of the Boxer indemnity and other privileges in the hope that the Chinese government would use the proceeds for the betterment of China's industry and economical conditions to the mutual advantage of both China and the allied powers; but, to the dissatisfaction of the allies, it is reported that the proceeds have been squandered by certain high government authorities for party strifes.

The "certain high government authorities" were the tuchuns under Japanese or allied control.

THE second point was:

2. Although the war participation bureau has been established for some time in Peking, nevertheless it has done nothing to assist the allies, and it is rumored that part of the troops who were originally trained for services in Europe have been misused for civil war in certain provinces of China.

It is only necessary to say of this that the war participation bureau formed under allied direction had taken all such matters out of the hands of the Chinese foreign office. Further, when China declared war, no demand was made that she take an active part in hostilities.

Point three shows that the imperialist powers considered that even in the most minor matters China had no right to exercise her own judgment:

3. Without previous consultation or knowledge of the allied powers, the Chinese government suddenly appointed Tai Chenlin as China's representative to the vatican.

THE Chinese wanted to make a complete separation between clerical affairs, certainly a very desirable if somewhat hopeless task, but the allied governments had no wish to see the Chinese dealing direct with the church authorities rather than thru the allied embassies.

The next complaint is an admission that the imperialist powers were waging war on German business interests rather than on German military strength in the Far East:

4. The effective manner in which the Chinese government have acted towards the liquidation of enemy properties in China is unsatisfactory to the allies, as in the case of the Deutsche-Asiatische Bank, etc.

IT has been pointed out in previous articles that the Chinese had no quarrel with the German business interests as against those of other nations, that the Germany policy had been far more friendly and respectful of China's integrity than had the other imperialist powers.

5. The movements of enemy subjects in China are not affectively scrutinized by the Chinese government authorities, so that dangerous Germans, such as Hanneken and others, are not interned up to the present time. It is said that the recent dispute between the American-Mongolian Trading company and the General Tien Chung-yu of Chabar was also mentioned in this category.

THE above is direct interference with the internal affairs of China in a manner calculated to arouse the keenest resentment. China was, theoretically at least, an independent nation; she had declared war on Germany as one of the allies, but it was not the business of those nations how German subjects were treated by the Chinese government.

The other point down to and including Point 10 were similar instances of interference in China's own affairs—pin pricks administered to inculcate the proper feeling of respect for the dominance of the imperialists.

6. The prohibition of Chinese subjects to trade with the enemies as promulgated by the last cabinet was not carried out by China.

7. It was known to everybody that the Hotel Du Nord was enemy property and it was used as headquarters of enemy subjects in North China for their unlawful conferences and activities against the allied cause; that the Chinese government did not do anything to close it until the matter had been many times brought to the notice of China by the allied legations in Peking. This is a strong witness that China does not intend to help the allies to check German activities.

8. In spite of the protest of the allied legations, the Chinese government has done nothing to punish the Taoyin or Neiho, of Heilungkiang, on account of his pro-Bolshevik German actions.

9. The lack of sincerity on the part of the Chinese government authorities in conducting cases concerning allied subjects and enemies and the arrested enemy subjects was quoted as an example, because China refuses to permit allied consuls to act as witnesses in the court.

10. The enemy internment camps are not properly conducted, and in consequence many dangerous Germans are not interned at all. The action of the Chinese authorities in certain cases is quite unsatisfactory to the allies.

THE next point is an example of unparalelled inpudence. Civil war had been fomented by the actions of the allies and they were now complaining of the results of their own plots.

11. Chinese bandits have been permitted to overrun the districts along the Tientsin-Pukow and Lunghai railways, so that allied interests are suffering greatly on account of these bandit activities.

The last point is the gem of the collection:

12. There is still ample time for China to do something to satisfy the allied powers; as one of the members, the Chinese government will pay attention to the twelve points enumerated by the allied representatives so as to gain for China equal rights of speech in the future peace conference in Europe.

Over the head of China Point 12 held the threat of denial of representation at the peace conference. There is no use denying that this was a powerful weapon and that it made the Chinese comply with many of the demands of the allies which served only to put her almost completely at their mercy.

EVEN after the signing of the armistice the Chinese president was forced by a categorical statement denying China representation at the peace conference in the event of refusal, to issue order for the deportation of German subjects and for the confiscation of German property in China.

It remains now only to show the seizure of certain Chinese territory by Great Britain during this period and what happened at the peace conference to close this sketch of the process by which the Chinese nation and people were enslaved by the imperialist nations.

These subjects will be dealt with in the next installment.

FRENCH SCHEME TO OUST SPAIN FROM NO. AFRICA

Communists Show Riff War Planned in 1924

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, June 18.—The publication by the French Communist deputies of a letter written by Deputy Vatin Perignon, collaborator of Marshal Lyautey, military dictator of French Morocco, to the latter's nephew, has created a sensation here and forced the resignation of Perignon. The letter gives definite evidence that the French government planned the attack on the Riffians in 1924, for the purpose of not only tightening France's hold on Africa, but to drive Spain out as well.

Perignon's resignation was accepted by the chamber of deputies, in an effort to repair the damage to Spanish-French negotiations done by Perignon's "slighting reference" to Spain.

Depend on Right.

Painleve refused to discuss the Moroccan question before the chamber and denied the demand made by the Communist Deputy Doriot, declaring that the fate of all Morocco was tied up in the Riffian warfare.

The vote on Doriot's demand for an interpellation was 436 to 34. Seventy-four socialists abstained from voting, again demonstrating the swing to the right of the Painleve government which is more and more depending on the center and right parties for support.

The vote on the Moroccan credits to finance the Riff invasion is expected to come before the chamber today. The socialists wavering as usual, decided in a caucus that the 103 members of the socialist party should abstain from voting, but a change may take place at the last minute.

Painleve has refused to reveal the status of the negotiations with Spain. It was on his orders that the Communists deputies, Doriot, Vaillant-Couterier and Marty, were forcibly expelled from the meeting to the military, naval, foreign affairs and colonial chairmen. Shouts of "traitor" were hurled at the Communists. They were expelled because Painleve feared they would tell the workers the truth of the Moroccan situation and the Spanish negotiations.

To Attack Riffs.

A large scale French offensive against the native Moroccans, including the invasion of their heart of their country, has been decided upon. Premier Painleve told the foreign affairs committee of the chamber of deputies.

Painleve Admits Severe Defeat.

"I must say to you openly," Painleve said, "that the situation in Morocco is bad. Abd-el-Krim's victories have caused a tremendous impression thruout France's north African possessions. For the first time our armies there have suffered serious setbacks. In order to prevent the downfall of our colonial empire we must act and act quickly."

It is felt here that Painleve told the deputies in confidence that France had been severely defeated with heavy casualties.

The socialist leader, M. Blum, advised his party "not to raise the question of socialist principles during the debate in order not to split the chamber," when the Moroccan credits were voted fakers led by Chas. L. Baine, secretary-treasurer of the union.

Shoe Bosses Organize Fake Union

Unconditional Surrender

Baine declared that the matter of forming locals of the Boot and Shoe in Lynn would be considered but in no way would the Amalgamated Shoe Workers' Union be recognized by the Boot and Shoe, and no action would be taken that would in any way be construed as being an amalgamation of or merging of the two organizations. Further he stated that the shoe workers of Lynn would only be admitted into the Boot and Shoe as individuals, and the matter of the formation of a local union would be taken up later.

Baine insists upon unconditional surrender of the Amalgamated to the Boot and Shoe. Admitting the workers as individuals means that the Boot and Shoe will select those to be taken in, and all militants objectionable to the Boot and Shoe officialdom will be excluded thru heavy fines being placed on them. The process of initiation will be carried on in the factories under the supervision of the bosses. The agreements with the bosses will be signed between the bosses and the officials of the Boot and Shoe.

Workers Pay For Having Their Wages Cut

In essence these agreements mean that in return for the "union stamp" the bosses will allow the Boot and Shoe to collect 25 cents a week from each worker in the factory, and an "adjustment" in wages will be arranged thru the medium of the state board of arbitration.

The swallowing of the Amalgamated locals by the Boot and Shoe means that the workers will be tied hand and foot by the Boot and Shoe and that wage cuts and worsening of conditions will take place right away. In no sense is this a struggle between two rival unions. It is a campaign of the shoe bosses to force the workers into their company union so that they will be unable to resist the wage cutting campaign which has been decided on.

A Grovelling Committee

A committee representing Stitchers' Local of the Amalgamated also made a visit to the Boot and Shoe office in Boston last Thursday. That this local should even send a committee to ask questions of the Boot and Shoe in a sign of the collapse of all opposition to the incoming of the Boot and Shoe because the stitchers were the backbone of the fight against the Boot and Shoe for twenty years.

This committee presented a list of questions to Baine to be answered for the benefit of the stitchers. These questions were pertinent as they dealt with the question of local autonomy, the right to strike, the election of local officials, and whether the Boot and Shoe would see to it that the workers on strike against the Capital Shoe Co. would be put back on their jobs.

"Have No Rights"—Says Baine

The written answers of Baine show the cynical attitude that the Boot and Shoe officialdom assumes toward all questions affecing the rank and file of the shoe workers. All the questions dealing with the rights of locals are answered by referring to the Boot and Shoe constitution. He also stated that the Boot and Shoe would do nothing to get the Capital Shoe Co. strikers their jobs back. About half of the four-page answer deals with the payment of dues and assessments. The fundamental question asked were dodged because Baine has no intention of allowing any local autonomy whatever.

The entry of the Amalgamated locals as locals will not take place. The shoe workers must apply as individuals, and this will take place under the keen eyes of the factory management. After locals are formed (and this will take place when Baine and the bosses are sure that the workers have lost all desire to fight) if any local passes a resolution, or fights against grievances to the detriment of the bosses the local will be placed in the "Local O" list which means that the members have only the "right" to pay dues and attend local meetings but cannot do anything else.

Brockton A Horrible Example

It is not necessary to theorize on this possibility. In Brockton where the Boot and Shoe dominates the situation all locals are under "Local O" and a commission appointed by the head office conducts the business of the locals. This means that dues are collected every Saturday and nothing else, because fighting grievances is a crime in the eyes of the Boot and Shoe officialdom. Brockton today is a picture of what Lynn will be before many months

CHURCHES HIRE LABOR CRUSHER TO AID BOSSES

Put Bleachery on Non-Union Basis

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, June 18.—Practical help to manufacturers who "desire to work out plans for better industrial relations in their factories," is offered by the churches affiliated with the Federal Council of churches, thru their "social service commission." Appointment of James Myers as field secretary for this work is announced at Washington headquarters.

Myers has been in charge of industrial relations at the Dutchess Bleachery, for the past seven years, as executive in conducting employe representation and works councils, and in dealing with company housing, club work, medical association, night school, unemployment insurance, etc. Myers developed the Dutches plan of "scientific selection" of employes, grading, transfer, promotion and centralized discharge. He was hired to eradicate unionism for the bleachery. He has been a preacher and Y. M. C. A. secretary.

The church commission will have Myers conduct conferences, in various cities, in which employers' associations chambers of commerce and church leaders will be represented. Unions will be invited as the poor relation of the gatherings.

Woman Burned to Death in Southside Fire Trap

A fire broke out on the south side shortly after midnight in a four-story brick flat building on 33d street near Cottage Grove avenue in which many are believed to have been burned to death. So far the body of a Negro woman was found amidst the ruins.

The fire started on the upper floors of the building and spread very rapidly until the whole building was in flames. The building, a typical fire trap, had very narrow passage ways and fire escapes. Those who escaped from the flames had gone thru such a fierce struggle and were so excited that the firemen had difficulty in discovering what had happened.

It is expected that a search of the building will reveal many more victims of the fire.

Teachers' Meeting Tuesday

The Chicago Teachers' Federation will hold a special meeting next Tuesday, June 23, to hear the platoon school report by Mr. J. J. Zmrhal, district superintendent. Mr. Zmrhal was a member of the platoon commission authorized by the board of education on Nov. 26, 1924, to visit platoon schools. The meeting will start at 4:15 in the Commandery Hall, Capitol Building, 18th floor, Randolph and State streets.

CHIN[illegible]MAND THAT THEIR GOV[illegible]NT WAR ON BRITAIN AS GREAT STRIKE APPROACHES

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 19.—The general strike which was to take place Monday last but was postponed until the 25th of June is being endorsed by workers' and students' organizations everywhere. All activities on that day, governmental, commercial, industrial and education will be stopped from 6 a. m. until noon; amusements of all kinds suspended, flags flown from half-mast and demonstrations to take place in every Chinese city.

The signs of bourgeois divergence from the aims of the national liberation movement showed up today in the vote of the Shanghai Chinese Chamber of Commerce to re-open the shops and banks in the foreign settlement on Saturday or Monday.

The chief labor union, representing 200,000 workers, announced at once that the general strike would continue, regardless of the action of the shopkeepers.

Driving Imperialist Out.

CHUNG KING, China, June 19.—The situation here has reached a point of grave danger for foreign residents. All foreigners are preparing to take refuge on foreign war craft.

The British consulate has been evacuated. Foreigners have been stoned by mobs and anti-imperialist feeling is at its height.

AS WE SEE IT.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE second international is having as hard a job to hold its secretaries as the socialist party of America is having to revive. Tom Shaw, secretary of the socialist international has resigned, as did Frederich Adler, recently. Shaw took up his old position as secretary of the international textile workers. This is a better paying proposition undoubtedly. Since the British trade union movement decided to join the Russian unions, in a move for world labor unity, feeling for the second international has grown decidedly cold in Britain. This changed attitude was undoubtedly reflected in a financial way, a fact which contributed to Shaw's decision to return to his former labors.

STOOLPIGEON SPOLANSKY is at it again peddling lies to the newspapers in return for cash. His latest venture in the field of prevarication is an alleged exposure of the espionage system of the Workers Party. The wise Mr. Spolansky got his information in the following manner, which shows that "Jake" is not nearly as big a fool as the wealthy newspaper proprietor who is paying good money for what he could gather at the expense of a yearly subscription to the International Press Correspondence.

THE International Press Correspondence publishes news of the activities of Communist Parties in th various countries, articles by prominent Communists and information concerning the doings of the Communist International. At the Enlarged Executive of the C. I. held recently in Moscow among the reports made, was one by the director of the information department. This report was published in the I. N. P., a copy of which came to Spolansky, probably by means of a subscription. Out of this report the ex-federal fink wrote an "exposure" of Communist espionage and sold it to the Chicago Daily News.

HE next turned his attention to China and shows that the Communists are responsible for everything that has happened there, including, we presume, the sixteen-hour day that the slaves of the Japanese textile mills were supposed to work. Perhaps Victor Lawson who pays for Spolansky's bunk is not such a fool after all. He knows his readers and evidently they find the mental food served up to them, palatable and digestible. A country that can produce a William Jennings Bryan and a Calvin Coolidge can stomach most anything.

KUO MIN TANG OPENS PUBLICITY OFFICES IN BERLIN, GERMANY

BERLIN, June 19.—The Kuomintang, or Chinese people's party, has established a publicity bureau here for the announced purpose of counteracting American and English news of happenings in China, which the bureau's representatives assert mislead the German people.

At the first press conference yesterday it was said at the bureau that the purpose of the present uprisings in China was to take "the first decisive step on the road toward the liberation of China from the bonds of English, Japanese and American domination."

Berlin's sole Chinese restaurant has been drawn into the Far Eastern controversy. Chinese students here, who constitute the restaurant's principal customers, insisted that Japanese be barred. The proprietor yielded.

Trainmen, and Also Conductors, to Ask Wage Raise in Nov.

CLEVELAND, O., June 19. — Chairmen's associations of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen and the Order of Railway Conductors will hold point divisional meetings in November to consider the proposition of seeking a wage increase from approximately two hundred railroads, W. G. Lee, president of the trainmen, announced yesterday.

The amount of the increase to be asked was not announced but Lee said the wage reduction to railroad men in 1921 amounted to about 12 per cent, approximately 64 cents a day, that an increase last year amounted to approximately 5 per cent and that the request for an increase would probably at least be enough to make up the 1921 reduction.

Scopes' Trial Opens July 10th.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 19—William Jennings Bryan went into conference here today with the men who will assist him next month in the prosecution of John Thomas Scopes, Dayton, Tenn., high school teacher charged with violation of the Tennessee anti-evolution law.

"The penalty for violation of the Tennessee anti-evolution law is a fine of from $100 to $500, and we will demand the full penalty," Bryan declared.

The scopes trial opens on July 10.

DIFFERENCE BETWEEN FAKE AND REAL PROGRESSIVES IN LOCAL 39, EXPOSED BY A. C. W. MEMBER

TO THE DAILY WORKER:

Reading in the DAILY WORKER of June 18 the Trade Union Educational League statement dealing with the Schneid group in Local 39 of the A. C. W., has moved me to write this article.

I agree with everything that the short statement says, but for the sake of clarity, it requires some explanation in addition to that contained in the statement.

Many honest progressive members of Local 39, and other locals, look upon Schneid as a leader of the left wing. And when they listen to Schneid

RETAIL FOOD COSTS SHOW NEW INCREASE FOR MAY IN 35 CITIES

WASHINGTON, June 19.—The retail cost of food continues to advance, rising one-half of one per cent in May as compared with April, while for the year period ending May 15, the increase in all articles of food combined was 7.5 per cent, the department of labor announced today. For the 12-year period the increase amounted to 57 per cent.

The average family expenditure for food increased in 35 cities during May as follows: Salt Lake City, 3 per cent; Baltimore, Cleveland Denver, Philadelphia, and Portland, Ore., 2 per cent; Boston, Butte, Cincinnati, Detroit, Fall River, Indianapolis, Los Angeles, Louisville, Manchester, Minneapolis, Newark, Omaha, Pittsburgh, St. Paul, San Francisco, Seattle, and Washington, 1 per cent.

PAINLEVE USES SPIES TO HOUND THE COMMUNISTS

To Be Punished for Defending Workers

PARIS, France, June 19.—Premier Painleve has held a conference with M. Chiapp, director of the French secret service, and ordered him to use the entire governmental spy system against the Communists. The order came directly after Painleve had told the cabinet that "the Communists are lending moral aid to Abd-el-Krim, leader of the Riffians", and secured the cabinet's approval of the drive against the Communists.

The Communist deputies in parliament vigorously denounced their exclusion from the joint meetings of the military, naval, foreign affairs, and financial committees of the chamber, at which Painleve gave details of his Moroccan trip.

The Communists had refused to keep secret the truth of the situation in Morocco, and Painleve, fearing the effect on the French workers if the truth were known, had the Communists forcibly excluded from the committee.

The Communists declare that French workers are being sent off to be slaughtered in a foreign land, in an invasion of the Riffians native soil. They demand that the extent of the heavy casualties and the severe French defeat be made public, that the invasion cease, and that the Moroccans be left in peace to rule their own country. The Communists charge that the Maroccan invasion is an attempt of the French imperialists to exploit the natural resources and the labor power of the Moroccans, and to build up a reservoir of colonial troops to fight in the French army.

The Franco-Spanish negotiations have agreed on a limited naval co-operation, Painleve told the chamber. The French warships are allowed to patrol the Moroccan coast in Spanish waters, and the Spanish ships are allowed to enter French waters. That is the sole result of the extended negotiations thus far.

Communists Oppose Slaughter

PARIS, France, June 19.—Another vote of confidence was accorded the Painleve cabinet on the implied question of the Moroccan invasion. The vote was 525 to 32. The Communists and three other deputies opposed the imperialistic policy of the French government.

The socialists again supported the invasion incited by the French capitalists.

CANTON QUIET BUT UNPLEASANT FOR ALL FOREIGN IMPERIALISM

CANTON, China, June 19.—Consul General Jenkins yesterday reported to Washington that "order" is restored but not the kind of order he exactly approves of. He adds:

"The situation at Canton seems to be dominated by the Whampoa military school cadets, to whom the complete destruction of the Yuanan army is due.

"It appears that Ng Bong Ping and other conservatively inclined Cantonese leaders will have a share in the new government."

Consul General Jenkins is continuing his policy of urging Americans, especially women and children, to leave for Hong Kong and other safe places.

School Board Moves Closer to Its Boss

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 19.—Altho it was always known that the Board of Education was controled by reactionary politicians and businessmen and tho they have always indignantly denied that they were the tools of the ruling class, they now let the cat out of the bag by moving into the headquarters of Business, the building of the Chamber of Commerce. The Board of Education can now easily be reached by their employers. In this we have another example of American Capitalist efficiency.

UNEMPLOYMENT IN ENGLAND IS NEARING CRISIS

Over One Million Are Now Without Jobs

LONDON, June 19.—The unemployment figures for Britain are mounting, while high society is spending hundreds of thousands of pounds on the race tracks and flaunting its wealth in the faces of the ever increasing hungry multitudes of workers who cannot find a job in the land which Lloyd George boasted was a "country fit for heroes to live in."

But in this land of heroes there are now over 1,290,000 jobless men and the number is on the increase. A few weeks ago George Lansbury wrote that medals awarded to those heroes for gallantry on the battlefield in defense of the empire's business can now be secured in pawnshops for the unheroic sum of twelve cents. The heroes haven't got the price of a doughnut.

There are 263,000 more unemployed at the present time than at the end of June 1924. The workers who voted the tories into office with the hope that big business could find jobs for them and bring them prosperity are now nursing hungry stomachs and scratching foolish heads.

There are 43,000 more unemployed

RAILROAD WORKERS' STRIKE TIES UP EAST CUBAN TRAINS

I. L. G. W. MEMBERS BATTLE THE SLUGGERS AND POLICE CALLED BY OFFICIALS; TRIAL POSTPONED

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 19.—Trial of the seventy-seven local executives of the three suspended locals of the I. L. G. W. are postponed until Tuesday, following the appearance of two officers, Kraviz and Reisner of Local 2, together with legal representatives of the local before the so-called "trial committee."

The Joint Committee of Action of the three locals issued an appeal today to all the locals in the International asking for support and stating the issues involved. The May 1st meetings were like all others, and Sigman was invited as well as Scott Nearing. The charge that Local 22 endorsed a loan made by the Amalgamated bank to a workers' co-operative enterprise is ridiculed as an excuse. The appeal states the reasons behind these faked charges.

The committee of action gives, among other issues, the professional "organization committees." The absence of $500,000 which the joint board does not account for, but chiefly the cheating out of representation of the 30,000 members of the three large locals who have only firteen delegates on the joint board. These three locals embrace 60 per cent of the membership, but the other 40 per cent of small locals have 55 delegates on the joint board. This is arranged only to insure the Sigman machine the control. The committee of action demands an end of this discrimination.

The membership of Locals 2 and 9, are refusing to recognize agents of joint board sent to shops. These agents are being thrown out of the shops by angry workers and grievance handled thru shop chairmen and shop committees.

The yellow socialist "Daily Forward" today carries a front page article hysterically denouncing the Communist and, none the less, asserting that "everything is normal and everybody happy since the left wing is expelled."

Accusers Are Also the Judges

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 19.—There seems little chance for a "fair and impartial" trial of the seventy-seven suspended members of the executive boards of Locals 2, 9 and 22 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers." Their accusers are also their judges, and the yellow socialist administration of the International and the Joint Board, are determined to give the alleged "Communists" only the merest formality of a trial.

"Not a Chance," Says Goldstein.

"They have found us guilty in advance of a set of ridiculous charges and I don't know whether we want to go thru the formality of having a trial after the verdict of guilty has been pronounced," said Abe Goldstein, president of Local 9.

"They forcibly broke in and seized our books and papers at 67 Lexington Avenue, and today they set up an agency there for collecting dues and tried to operate the union. They invited the members of the union to come in, but after they had been there for a few hours they called in the police to turn them out. We have not taken legal proceedings because we are resting our case with the rank and file of the workers. The vast majority of them disapprove of the proceedings of Joint Board."

Evidently the members who were "invited in" were invited out again when Feinberg-Sigman and company were told by swarms of workers who crowded in to the agency just what the union membership thinks of the yellow socialist crew.

Sigman, when interviewed by capitalist reporters, gushed patriotism and anti-Communism like a geyser. He had nothing to say, however, in answer to the charge of union corruption (known in New York as "Brindellism") and autocracy made by the suspended local executives. "It would be," spaketh the wise Sigman, "a waste of time and effort to answer such charges."

Sigman Attacks T. U. E. L.

Then he launched into long detalls, wasting much time and effort, incidentally, concerning the "Moscow agents" of the Neddle Trades Section of the Trade Union Educational League. This he declared was "wholly alien to the organization and in turn directed by the Communist International in Moscow."

The joint board and the international, he concluded, are "firmly rooted in American soil." Thus he "wasted no time and effort" to explain what became of the $500,000 the joint board got its fingers on without an accounting.

Trials Postponed

The trials, however, were postponed when only two members of the seventy-seven appeared.

The trial was to be held at the Hotel Cadillac in West 53rd street. David Kratz and Bernard Raisner, officials of Local No. 2, appeared, bringing with them Attorneys Louis B. Boudin and Leo J. Rosett, whom they announced would serve as counsel. Manager Feinberg refused to permit the entrance of the lawyers, however, saying they were not members of the union in good standing.

Kratz and Reisner objected, having their own stenographers note the objections when Feinberg refused to allow the discussion to go into the records of the trial. The accused men were then allowed five days in which to procure counsel who are members of the union, and the trial was postponed until next Tuesday.

In the meantime, the strong guard was continued both inside and outside the offices of Local No. 22 at No. 16 West 21st street, where a raid by joint

TEAPOT DOME STEAL LEGAL, JUDGE RULES

Sinclair, Fall and Co. Stainless

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHEYENNE, Wyo., June 19.—The government today lost its suit to declare invalid the Teapot Dome naval oil reserve lease granted to Harry F. Sinclair by former Secretary of the Interior A. D. Fall.

This means a victory for the Coolidge administration and a defeat for the progressives who were responsible for instituting the famous Teapot Dome investigation which shook the republican machine to its base.

Judge Kennedy gave Fall and Sinclair a clean bill of health. It is significant that Rear Admiral Robinson the naval officer who transferred the oil reserves from the navy department to the interior was only a few days ago elevated to the position of high commanding officer of the United State fleet. This would indicate that Secretary of the Navy Wilbur had knowledge that the decision of Judge Kennedy would be favorable to Sinclair.

Discussing the passage of $230,000 in liberty bonds from Sinclair to Fall thru the Continental Trading company of Canada, the court said no connection between Sinclair and Fall had been established in this regard.

IRON WORKERS STRIKE DELAWARE BRIDGE JOB FOR WAGE INCREASE

By R. BAKER

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 19.—Four hundred structural iron workers are on strike at the big construction job of the Delaware River bridge, for a wage raise of from $1.10 to $1.25 an hour.

This is a non-union job. Altogether there are 500 men working there. The carpenters, stone masons, laborers, and engineers are still working, altho the strike of the iron workers practically ties up the job.

ST. LOUIS COPS ARREST PICKETS AT CURLEE SHOP

But One Comes Back Stronger Than Ever

BULLETIN.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19.—Eighty four persons, most of them young girls, were arrested today when police swooped down on striking employes of the Curlee Clothing Manufacturing Co. which has been in the grip of a walkout for more than a month.

Union officials denied rumors that a carload of strikebreakers was enroute here from Chicago. Charges of disturbing the peace were lodged against the arrested strikers.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 19.—The slogan of the Curlee Clothing So. strikers is "We are out to win." If there was any doubt about the sincerity of the above slogan in the minds of the Curlee bosses and the few scabs in the plant, that doubt was removed Wednesday evening.

When the few remaining scabs in the Curlee plant started to leave for home they faced a solid line of pickets at the entrances of the two Curlee shops.

Dicks to the Rescue.

Some of them became so frightened that they ran back into the plant. Finally several auto loads of St. Louis dicks arrived to escort the scabs home.

The pickets are not even permitted to talk to the scabs. Two women strikers who attempted to talk to some of the scabs were immediately arrested and brutally handled by the police. Charges of "disturbing the peace" were placed against both of the women, Mrs. Lena Bono and Mrs. Marie Penzing.

Marie A Fine Scrapper.

In spite of the arrest Mrs. Marie Penzing returned to the picket line next morning and was again arrested. After being released on bail she addressed the regular morning meeting of the strikers which is held every day at the Fraternal Building, Eleventh and Franklin streets.

She told of her experience with the police and urged the strikers to get out on the picket line. That is the only way to win this strike, she declared. She was received with tremendous applause by the other strikers.

AID THE NOVA SCOTIA MINERS! PROGRESSIVE COMMITTEE ISSUES CALL TO AMERICA'S WORKERS

By ALEX REID

(Secretary, Progressive Miners International Committee of the United Mine Workers of America.)

The weapons of the capitalist state, the army and the courts, ever true to their class character, are again being turned on the coal miners. From Nova Scotia to West Virginia, from Pennsylvania to Oklahoma, the forces of capital are law-book and bayonet, machine guns and mummeries of capitalist courts, attempting to crush the aspirations and further reduce the wages and working conditions of the slaves of the pick.

The miners of Nova Scotia, driven to desperation in their struggle for mere existence by the British Empire Steel Corporation, have now to face the military arm of the capitalist state, while the day's news tells us that 175 of these miners are arrested on the charge that they violated the capitalist law when they took food to feed their starving wives and children.

Capitalist Law in Action.

Troops have been rushed into the coal towns to subdue these miners. Altho self-preservation is the first law of nature, the capitalist courts have issued warrants to imprison these miners who refuse to stand meek and passive while their wives and children starve and white-collared scabs are working to enforce upon them still greater privation.

Peaceful picketing, found to be a failure, gave way to more effective methods, strengthened the battle line, but arousing the fury of the Beast of Besco and the Canadian capitalist class as a whole. The forces of the capitalist state are unleashed to destroy the miners' union of Nova Scotia.

Capitalism Enforces "Order."

The starving of women and children must go on. So argues the capitalists with the voice of thousands of prostituted newspapers. To the capitalists there is no "violence," no "disorder," no "crime" in driving 12,000 miners into the pits at the end of bayonets. To the capitalists it is "law and order" to compel 12,000 miners and their families who ask only their portion of the world's wealth for their hard and perilous labor in the pits, to starve and go in rags. To capitalists it is no crime for gunmen to have shot down William Davies and wound to death Gilbert Watson.

What are our "labor leaders" doing in this crisis? Nothing of any consequence for these workers. Absolutely nothing. The orgy of violence, murder, martial law, starvation, lockout and wage cuts are crimes of capitalism. And these are Christ-like compared to the treason of the labor bureaucracy of the Lewis machine.

A Quick and Certain Remedy.

If the labor fakers had one atom of manhood or loyalty to the interests of the miners and the working class as a whole, they would call a strike in this country from coast to coast that would once and for all put an end to the arrogant persecution of labor and the reign of terror against the miners of North America.

We have a right to expect somethings besides treason from our labor leaders. We have paid them well. No labor leaders in the world are better paid than those of America. Yet no labor leaders have betrayed the interests of the workers more than they. They completely desert the class struggle for class collaboration. As generals of labor's mighty army, they surrender without a struggle. They even attack the courageous progressiveness among the rank and file troops of labor's army for urging fight without their permission and for pointing out their treachery.

An Appeal to the Working Class.

The Progressive Miners' International Committee, leader of the rank and file struggle among the coal miners, calls upon all workers to rally to the call for aid from our starving and persecuted brothers and their families of District 26, the Nova Scotia miners. Between 12,000 miners of District 26, with their hungry and ragged wives and children about them, and the victory which will bring food and clothing, stands the lines of bayonets of the capitalist state. Capitalist law reaches out and seizes their leaders, 175 of them, dragging them away from wife and children to the living death of prison.

Workers! Arise to their need! Give until it hurts. Give to the miners of District 26, the fighting miners of Nova Scotia! Give that they may be able to fight on and triumph over our enemies!

Send all donations direct to the District 26 office. Address all funds to Alex A. McKay, Secretary-Treasurer, District 26, United Mine Workers of America, Glace Bay, Nova Scotia, Canada.

CHINESE IN BELGIUM ASSERT SOLIDARITY WITH CHINA STRIKE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CHARLEROI, Belgium, June 19.—An association representing Chinese students here issued a manifesto today assuring the Belgian public that the present uprisings in China were in no wise aimed against all foreigners.

The movement, is was stated, was only against "the Anglo-Saxons and the Japanese, because they impose inacceptable and inhuman working conditions on the Chinese workmen."

LYNN SHOE WORKERS' UNIONS, LACKING FIGHTING LEADERS, SURRENDERING TO FAKE UNION

By TOM BELL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LYNN, Mass., June 19.—A neeting of Stitchers' Local of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers' Union (independent) was held here at the Auditorium Theater. About 900 members of the local attended. The meeting was held to hear the report of the committee which went to the officialdom of the Boot and Shoe Union at Boston to find out the terms of admission to the Boot and Shoe.

The report was made by Mrs. Morgan, business agent of the local. She read the list of questions presented to the Boot and Shoe officialdom and their answers. These clearly pointed out that the Boot and Shoe made only one offer to the stitchers—unconditional surrender.

Must Fight As Worker

The officials of the stitchers urged the members not to surrender to the Boot and Shoe and recalled the struggles of the past against the Boot and Shoe which the bosses wished to force upon them. The appeals of the officers were emotional, and at times hysterical. No plan of action was presented to the membership to fight the Boot and Shoe and the bosses.

The officials (all women) blamed the men in the other locals for deserting the struggle, which is true but does not leave room for a male and female struggle as the whole question is on of fighting the Boot and Shoe and the bosses as workers.

Militants Who Failed in Time of Need

The two most militant members of the committee (Harry Ross and Mary McGee) had a splendid opportunity to present a definite program of action to the members, but did not take advantage of it. Instead they adopted a hopeless attitude, and told the members present that they were unable to fight, and that the Boot and Shoe was the proper medicine for them.

Naturally, when the militants thus abdicated all semblance of leadership in the struggle there was nothing else to do but take the question of joining the Boot and Shoe to a referendum vote.

Fighting Leadership Not There

The hysterical opposition of the stitchers' officials to the Boot and Shoe, and the absence of any program or leadership on the part of the militants in the local will not prevent the members voting for the Boot and Shoe. The workers have been deluged for months with Boot and Shoe propaganda in the local yellow press.

All the ills afflicting the workers have been blamed on the Amalgamated. They were promised steady work if they joined the Boot and Shoe, and the so-called militants kept on repeating: "What's the use? The Boot and Shoe is coming in anyway so we may as well accept it and be forced into it."

Wage Cuts On The Way

Therefore it will be surprising if the stitchers do not vote for the Boot and Shoe. With the collapse of the stitchers the Boot and Shoe will have a complete victory, and the bosses will be able to put the wage reductions into effect knowing that the workers are tied hand and foot by Baine and his gang of labor fakers. The Boot and Shoe is a weapon in the hands of the shoe manufacturers of Lynn to force wage cuts on the workers.

The trimph of the Boot and Shoe in Lynn will be a victory for the bosses. The chamber of commerce and the newspapers have won their campaign for the Boot and Shoe. The militants among the shoe workers gave up the struggle, and actually advocated the entry of the workers into the Boot and Shoe.

Abandoning T. U. E. L. Is Leaving The Fight

They abandoned the practical program of the Trade Union Educational League calling for the amalgamation of the independent shoe unions as the first step toward amalgamation with the Boot and Shoe on condition that the Boot and Shoe become a real labor union fighting the battles of the workers, instead of a company union used by the bosses to enforce wage cuts.

Fakers Hire Private Dicks

Thruout the day members of Locals 2 and 9 stood outside their respective headquarters hotly discussing the charges of "Communism" brought against their officers by Feinber.

They were admitted to the offices of No. 9, at Lexington Ave. and 25th St., but about 5 o'clock, when the increasing crowd of members made the official scared, their hired private detectives, assisted by patrolmen, cleared the rooms. Several persons were knocked down but no arrests were made.

Officials Call For Police Reserves

The intense feeling among members of the suspended locals reached its height last night, when officials of the joint board committee descended upon the headquarters of Local No. 2 in Lexington Ave., between 25th and 26th streets, to confiscate books and other property. Some 300 members of the union were loitering on the street in front of their head quarters and they resented the approach of the officials.

The latter were attacked as they emerged from the local headquarters with the books, and reserves from the East 22nd St. station were called out. The arrival of the officers and of detectives McFarlane, Cronin, Jorn, Smith and Barry called forth another of the milling 300, and they challenged outburst of resentment on the part the police to arrest them.

Have Eight Members Pinched

Eight arrests were made, all members of the outlawed Local No. 2, and when they were arraigned in Yorkville court this morning they were released on $500 bail each for examination next week on the charge of disorderly conduct.

DUNLAP POLICE BILL FINALLY DIES IN HOUSE

Deny Firemen's Widows Higher Pensions

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 19.—By a vote of 80 to 48 the Illinois house has killed the Dunlap state police bill, which would have provided a force of cossacks available to break strikes.

The Barr bill, a similar bill sponsored by Governor Small, has not been finally disposed of.

A bill to increase the monthly pension payments to firemen's widows from $45 to $50 was defeated by the senate by a vote of 21 to 14.

Governor Small's Thon bill, which takes the power over circuit and superior court judges of Cook county from the Cook county democrats and the Barrett-Crowe republican organization by providing for nomination of these judges by direct popular vote, was passed by the senate. It had already been passed in the house. Gov. Small himself rounded up the votes to push thru his measure.

Small's Choice Defeated.

The senate refused to confirm Gov. Small's appointment of William H. Malone of Cook County, as a member of the tax commissioin. The vote was 24 to 12.

Chicago Schools to Be Made Model Sweat Shop

This afternoon superintendent of schools William McAndrew and John E. Byrnes, business manager, together with other school bosses held a conference to discuss recommendation by the school board accountants for revising the rules governing teachers absences.

Maybe They Will Set Time Clacks.

The new rules include the keeping of a checking up system in the schools which will give the superintendent's office a record of individual daily attendance. Rules will also be formulated governing the absence of teachers which will take effect with the beginning of the fall term, Sept 8.

Mellon Interests Lead in Open Shop War on the Coal Miners' Union

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, new facts bring to light the information that "Andy" Mellon, the multi-millionaire banker of Pittsburgh, secretary of the treasury in Cal Coolidge's cabinet, is at the head of the drive to wipe out the Jacksonville wage agreement between the mine workers and the mine owners.

This again shows that the "open shop" interests are established in the very heart of the government at Washington. Coolidge had his way of breaking the strike of the policemen in Boston. Mellon has his way of beating down the miners' wage scale.

The Mellon interests dominate the Pittsburgh Coal Company, capitalized at $78,000,000, and the dominating power in the soft coal fields of western Pennsylvania. This coal corporation, like others in Ohio, Indiana, Illinois and other unionized states insist that they cannot make satisfactory profits under the Jacksonville agreement. It has opened war on the miners' union by closing down its 54 mines in the Pittsburgh territory, from which its workers brought forth 8,300,000 tons of coal last year.

• • • •

Now these mines are closed. Sixteen have been stripped of equipment and the mines allowed to fill. These abandoned pits are in Cannonsburg, Fayette City, Bridgeville, Monongahela City, Finleyville, Webster, Bishop, Westland, Imperial, Shaner, Belle Vernon, West Elizabeth and Buena Vista. In their war on the miner's union, the coal barons proceed to lay waste this territory, forcing the workers to seek jobs in distant steel mills and in building smooth roads for the rich to travel with their high-priced automobiles.

That the whole community is dependent on the workers is shown by the fact that even Chambers of Commerce, the organization of little business in the coal camps, protest to the great coal barons. But the profit hunt of great capital doesn't take into consideration even the agonies of the little capitalist. Merchants go into bankruptcy, banks close their doors, and the general business stagnation forces new middle class elements into the ranks of the proletariat. In fact, these petty bourgeois are much worse off than the workers, since they cannot easily adjust themselves to the new conditions, and find a work place in industry.

• • • •

The propaganda of the coal barons all harps continually on the fact that the mine owners are losing money. Yet these Mellon interests, dominating the Pittsburgh Coal Company, admit earning $500,000 on a railroad subsidiary, tell of profits taken out of the non-union fields in Kentucky, and of huge winnings on 3,000,000 tons of coal bought from non-union mines in West Virginia and sold in the Great Lakes territory. It is in this West Virginia field that the whole force of the capitalist dictatorship, from hired gunmen to bought judges, is being used to crush every effort of the miners to build their union.

• • • •

In closing the mines, theirs under the capitalist system of private ownership, the coal barons use one of the declarations made by John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers' Union, published in the April 1st issue of the Mine Workers' Journal, declaring that, "coal operators should sell their coal at a profit or they should not sell it at all."

Lewis believes in capitalism—the profit system. He is helping the mine owners maintain it. The mine owners, of course, go where they can make the most profits, using the non-union fields, where Lewis has failed to establish the miners' union, against the organized fields.

• • • •

In their fight for an existence the coal miners will gradually come to the conclusion that they must not always provide profits for their exploiters; that this will end with the capitalist system. They are finding greater and greater unity among the rank and file in the struggle against both the mine owners and their henchmen within the miners' union, the reactionary officialdom.

Taking the profits out of coal is but part of the struggle for the overthrow of the whole capitalist system. Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, and his Pittsburgh Coal Co., may think that West Virginia and Kentucky offer an escape from the union fields of Western Pennsylvania. But "the Mellon interests" will meet up with the Pennsylvania coal miners again, on a battle field where the workers have advanced another notch in revolutionary working class consciousness. Then they will be compelled to stand and fight. And they will lose.

CANADIAN GOVERNMENT SEEKS TO IMPRISON 175 STRIKING MINERS

SYDNEY, Nova Scotia, June 19.—Warrants were issued yesterday for the arrest of 175 striking miners of District 26, United Mine Workers of America, on charges of "rioting and looting" in connection with the recent clashes at Sydney, New Waterford and other mining towns between the private army of the British Empire Steel Corporation and the miners who were striking against a wage cut and were denied credit at company stores. One arrest was made at once, others are being sought.

• • • •

Miners' Journal Ignores Fight

While one of the greatest labor struggles ever staged in North America is being fought to a bloody conclusion in the mine fields of Nova Scotia, under the jurisdiction of Dist. 26 of the United Mine Workers of America, the current issue of the United Mine Workers Journal, issued under the supervision of John L. Lewis, international president of the miners' union, has not even one word on the strike of the miners of Nova Scotia against the brutal oppression of bloody Besco.

On the front page of this yellow journal, which is edited by the stool-pigeon Ellis Searles, a flunkey who bears a striking resemblance to the British duke sketched by George McManus in his comic strip: "Bringing up Father" there is a cartoon, depicting the non-union operator as a fox inviting the union coal miner in the guise of a rooster to come down off a board fence, while in the rear of the fox and rushing towards his is a bull dog labelled public opinion. It is very clear that the officialdom of the miners' union, have turned their backs o nthe strike weapon and now place their reliance on "public opinion."

Lewis Is Jesting

While the guns of the British Empire Steel company are shooting down the miners in Glace Bay, Lewis's personal organ, devotes much space to the swell-headed egotist's speeches and to those of his flunkeys, Kennedy and Murray. Lewis is reported as saying to the Hockling Valley miners in Ohio, that he will not accept a wage reduction under any conditions. But the miners are accepting wage reductions and the operators are breaking the Jacksonville pact at will and Lewis is not doing a thing about it.

The operators are opening scab mines in the south and they have practically succeeded in making the whole state of West Virginia open shop. Lewis may gloat over the notorius Don Chaffin of Logan county going to jail on a bootlegging charge but the operators don't need Don Chaffin any more. The union is wrecked by the Lewis tactics and the miners are at the mercy of the bosses.

Lewis tells the miners that if they want a reduction in wages they must call a special convention and elect a new president. The faker knows that if a special convention was allowed the miners would elect a new president. That is why he has planned to postpone the next convention until 1927. The miners want to settle with Lewis

No Encouragement For Strikers

Lewis's personal organ has not one word of encouragement for the miners of Nova Scotia, but it carries an editorial denouncing those who violate the law and insinuating that those miners are responsible for injunctions secured by the operators against the miners.

The Miners' Journal devotes several columns to advising the operators how to run their mines. It boxes the suggestion in bold type: "Coal companies should sell their coal at a profit or they should not sell it at all." It carries an attack on A. J. Cook of the British Miners' Federation and features a long article by Frank Hodges, ex civil lord of the admiralty in the Ramsay MacDonald government.

Operators Expect Trouble.

Prominent members of the National Coal Association, meeting at the Edgewater Beach Hotel, expect a crisis in the coal industry next fall, when certain contracts expire. Non-union mines are producing at full capacity in Kentucky and West Virginia, while the union mines in Western Pa. Illinois and Ohio shut down.

A big merger of 19 coal companies in Kansas involving a capital of over $10,000,000 was announced. Operators claimed they would be better able to resist the union when the small fellows are eliminated and the business concentrated into fewer hands.

TELL MILWAUKEE LABOR CHINA'S BATTLE WORTHY

Unite Against World Imperialism, Red Says

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 19.—At the last meeting of the Milwaukee Central Labor Council delegate Gustave Sklar, member of the Workers (Communist) Party made a speech protesting against the use of American troops against the workers of China. Comrade Sklar declared that the students and workers of China have awakened and are fighting world imperialism.

He pointed out the necessity of the American workers understanding the fight of the Chinese against foreign imperialism, and the need of solidarity of the American workers with the Chinese workers.

Comrade Sklar urged the organized workers of America to support the struggle of the Chinese masses to throw off the yoke of foreign capitalism which has been endeavoring to exploit them.

The executive board reported "progress" in investigating the resolution for world trade union unity. They have come to no conclusion so far, it was reported. Some of the delegates declared that the socialists who dominate the council will ask the national officials of the American Federation of Labor what stand to take on this vital question.

The rest of the meeting was devoted to routine matters.

HOW ABOUT YOU?

"You going?"

"Going where?"

"Why, to the hike!"

"What hike?"

"The hike that Branch No. 4 of the Young Workers' League of Chicago is holding this Sunday in Milwaukee woods."

"When you going?"

"Well, I don't know. I might leave with the bunch at nine o'clock from 3118 W. Roosevelt Road, or again, I might meet the whole gang at the end of the Milwaukee car line at ten o'clock sharp."

"Anything special?"

"Why, I should say! Lots of it. Races, leapfrog, pie eating contest. Eats! And a million and one other things galore. And damn it, fellow, it won't cost a cent. Not a copper penny to go to one of the best times ever held. What Say?"

"You Bet!"

Unemployment in Great Britain Is Nearing Big Crisis

this week than last. This increase is unprecedented and brings about a condition approaching crisis. The left wing of the labor party and the Communists are demanding that the labor party take advantage of this situation. But the right wingers led by MacDonald and Snowden are averse to fighting with the capitalists. They prefer to work with them to any extent compatible with the careers. Mrs. Ethel, Snowden, socialist wife of Philip, is busily engaged advising housewives to patronize imperial-products and thus help to solidify the empire.

Squandering Riches.

Even the capitalist press is forced to display stories of suffering thru unemployment, but side by side with these stories appear accounts of fetes and festivities of the British ruling class, led by the royal family. The Daily Herald says: "While the official unemployment figures calmly published by the government reveal increasing and unparalleled suffering, society is playing by the thousands at Ascot and flaunting its unearned wealth." Perhaps the conservative editor of the Herald would feel better if society spent its wealth in secret, but it makes little difference to the workers whether the bandits that rob them spend it in the cellars or on the house tops.

LARGE PROPORTION OF PRISONERS PARDONED IN THE SOVIET UNION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

Moscow, (By Mail).—In 1924 the Presidium of the All-Russian Central Executive Committee investigated 39,635 private petitions for reprieve n connection with 28,373 criminal cases (all minor offences). 44.7 per cent of the petitions for reprieve were acceded to. 15.8 per cent of the petitions were acceded to at the recommendation of public organizations and institutions, and of the private petitions 28,9 per cent were acceded to.

According to the social position of the pardoned people, reprieve was granted as follows: workers—59.1 per cent; peasants 46.5 per cent. Red Army men 52.6 per cent; Red officers 32.9 per cent; employes 56.6 per cent, private business people 12.3 per cent; others 17.2 per cent of all petitions for reprieve.

Robert M. LaFollette—Middle Class Champion

By the death of Senator Robert Marion LaFollette the American middle class loses its greatest spokesman and fighter.

The life and activities of LaFollette cannot be understood without knowledge of the forces at work within American capitalist society. That LaFollette could capture the imagination of millions of workers and farmers and appear to them as their champion is evidence of the retarded development of the revolutionary struggle in the United States—a retardation due principally to the premier position of American capitalism which in turn is due to the inexhaustible natural resources of the nation and its constantly increasing population recruited from every country on the globe, its highly efficient industrial system.

In a period when the working classes in other capitalist countries are openly challenging the right of capitalism to exist and capitalists to rule, when one-sixth of the total area of the globe, the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics governed by workers and peasants, opposes the new order to the old, LaFollette is hailed as a liberator of the masses in America because he stands on a platform that the parties of the middle class in European capitalist countries have been advocating for half a century.

In Germany, France or England, LaFollette would have been only one of dozens of leaders in any of the dozen of middle class and agrarian parties.

In the United States he brought down on his head the wrath of politicians of both capitalist parties and that of many influential trade union officials.

The working class of other countries looks at the United States and marvels. Here was a man who brought forward nothing new—whose support even of such well-established measured as government ownership of railroads—an accepted fact in Europe—was hesitating when it was apparent at all, who stood for the small businessman and banker, whose whole public career showed him to be simply a vestigial remain of the early period of free competition, yet who was denounced by the capitalist press as an enemy of society.

LaFollette's opposition to the war was on purely constitutional grounds, but he was reviled, persecuted and boycotted after his St. Paul speech as a pacifist and pro-German. His advocacy of the cause of the workers was confined to such elementary things as freedom from injunction processes and in his hatred of Communists he went just as far as any of his big capitalist enemies.

That LaFollette had courage, ability and the capacity for hard work his worst enemies will not deny. In a country of the blind the one-eyed man is king and in a nation whose politicians are notoriously servile, ignorant and dishonest it was inevitable that the LaFollette virtues would secure leadership for him.

He and his chief supporter, Warren Stone, have passed from the American scene. Their personalities can no longer influence the masses and their program is not something on which can be built anything but a confused and ineffective organization.

Together with the two capitalist parties they worked to destroy the infant labor party movement and lead the workers and farmers into the camp of the middle class. They brought confusion instead of clarity, but the labor movement, under the pressure of American capitalism and by the activity of the Communists, is slowly making its way thru the fog of middle class ideology to the goal of independent working class political action and a labor party.

Individuals come and go, but the class struggle, which LaFollette refused to recognize, continues.

British Railway Clerks Against War

Contrast the recent action of the convention of the British Railway Clerks' Association in condemning the government scheme for militarizing the transport industry as part of the war scheme of the imperialists with the action of the convention of the American Federation of Labor in endorsing the mobilization and training camp plans of the war department and asking representation on all directive agencies.

The British Railway Clerks' Union pledged its members to resist all attempts to recruit them into the war service in any form—the American trade union officialdom of which Fitzgerald, head of the Railway Clerks' Union, is a part, wholeheartedly endorsed the war plans of American imperialism with a fervor far in excess of that of the Garys, Morgans and Rockefellers.

Is it any wonder that to the leadership which curses the American labor movement the visit of Purcell, the militant president of the International Federation of Trade Unions, as fraternal delegate is anathema?

But his visit will help to break the grip of the bosses on the American trade unions.

More Persecution in Hawaii

The supreme court of Hawaii territory has upheld the conviction of Pablo Manlapit, leader of the striking sugar workers—because the appeal was filed one day too late.

This is an obvious attempt to evade the real issue which is the right of colonial workers to demand and enforce the same privileges accorded the working class in the imperialist nations. Manlapit's sentence is from two to ten years at hard labor and he is already on the point of collapse from nervous strain and previous hardship.

His crime was to organize and lead the Filipino workers of the island in a struggle for better wages and living conditions. His persecutors are the sugar barons and back of them is the full might of American imperialism.

Just as the American workers rallied to the aid of Crouch and Trumbull, victims of the same murderous system, so must they come to aid of this militant leader of the colonial workers and force his release.

Warrants for the arrest of 175 Nova Scotia strikers have been issued. Troops are on the scene in full war array.

No mine owners are under arrest for their conspiracy to starve the miners and their families into submission.

The Canadian government instead marshals all its forces to aid the Britsih Empire Steel corporation against the men on strike.

Worker Shows Difference Between Fake and Real Progressives

talk in the local uinon they accept his wordy criticism of the administration and his wordy condemnation of the agreement which was lately signed, as being a fight in the interest of the membership and against the reactionaries. So we have to make clear what the T. U. E. L. means by carrying on the struggle for a progressive program and against the reactionaries who oppose progressive measures.

First we must point out very clearly to the progressive element who still accept Schneid as their leader, that when the left wing group in the A. C. W. proposed a progressive election program as against the administration with the bosses, it was Schneid and his group who signed a statement prepared by Levin which condemned this group and their program of action.

Again, at this time, when the Hillman-Levin administration has joined the reactionary Forward group of red baiters and is now carrying on a savage attack upon members of the T. U. E. L. and the left wing generally by the expulsion of Local 5 from the N. Y. joint board, the taking down off the job and expelling from the union eight leading left wingers of Local 39—this is the time that Schneid chooses to organize a so-called left wing in opposition to the T. U. E. L. This so-called "progressive" group in reality is a center group. The leaders of this group are either supporters of the Hillman machine or lean very strongly in that direction.

Schneid and the other leaders of this center group were expelled from the Workers (Communist) Party because they betrayed the left wing by the signing of the Levin statement, which action in essence meant the betrayal of the rank and file. And now they have gone so far to the right that they say openly that they do not want the support of the Workers Party or of the T. U. E. L. They echo the statements of Hillman and Levin, that they "do not want outside interference." This is also what Perlstein said in his expulsion policy against the left wing in the Ladies' Garment Workers.

The natural outcome of this attitude was the attempt to shoot Wm. Z. Foster during the Ashland Auditorium protest meeting. This was also what Levin said, and under this excuse expelled the militants from Local 39. Further, he persuaded or compelled Schneid and his followers to sign a statement repudiating the left wing within the A. C. W.

This means that Levin and his circle of officials consider it "outside interference" when the rank and file tries to combat their autocratic rule, and oppose their class collaboration policy. In other words, Schneid and his followers inside Local 39 dare not issue a printed program of class conscious action because they would be interfering with the inside ring of the administration.

You can see, therefore, why Schneid and his group are opposed to the issuing of programs that call upon the rank and file to strike if necessary for their demands.

Those progressives who think Schneid fights for progressive measures and against the administration, should study his method of struggle against the present agreement. In Local 39 Schneid proved conclusively that the new agreement was just as rotten if not worse than the old agreement. Yet what did he do when it came to acting against the agreement? He told the membership that they could do nothing else but accept it. In other words, he urged them not to vote against it.

The only difference between this and and the Hillman-Levin attitude is that Hillman and Levin tried to prove that it was a good agreement and the members should accept it, while Schneid said it was a bad agreement, but the members must accept it.

It is an elemental principle, surely known to Schneid, that only by strike or threat of strike can any union get or even keep good conditions. Yet Schneid advised against a course of action that would lead to strike. In good times strikes get better conditions, in bad trade times, it protects against "readjustments." This is simple. This is known to everyone — even Schneid. Yet Schneid advises "no strikes." So does Hillman. Where is the difference in practice?

The policy of Hillman and Levin is class collaboration under the slogan of "industrial peace," "no strikes for the next 10 years."

Schneid and his group frankly state that it would be folly to attempt to get the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers to strike for their demands. And to ask them to vote against the agreement would mean to ask them to strike against it. This is just another method of advocating "industrial peace" and "no strikes." What sort of a "progressive" is it whose strike policy cannot be distinguished from Hillman's?

Schneid has, as his slogan, "revive the old fighting spirit of the Amalgamated," and yet in the next breath he says it would be folly to expect the members of the Amalgamated to strike. How can anyone lead the militants in the Amalgamated if they are opposed to struggle against the employers and at the first threat from the administration desert the left wing and betray the rank and file as Schneid and his group did? Talk is cheap. Only actions count. The agreement prevents strikes and permits wage cuts. Hillman fought for it, Schneid did not fight against it.

Schneid and his group say that the Hillman-Levin machine has the membership terrorized, and because of this terrorism they will not accept the advice or the leadership of those members of the A. C. W. who accept the program and are adherents of the T. U. E. L. He gives this as one of the reasons why this new group has been organized.

But the real reason why he organized the group is because the left wing called for a militant struggle against the reactionary bureaucrats of the A. C. W. on the basis of progressive trade demands. While Schneid and his group, who have always been close sympathizers if not actual supporters of Hillman, cannot accept this policy.

So they have organized themselves into a center group to befuddle, confuse, and demoralise the left wing. They will fight the Hillman-Levin machine in words, but with the tongue in their cheek, and when it comes to action, such as advising the membership to vote against the agreement, they will not do it.

Hillman at one time led the left wing victoriously against the reactionary Rickert, and for a period of time believed in struggle against instead of collaboration with the employers. But, in the course of the development of the A. C. W., Hillman became the leader of a center group, attempting to follow a middle road between the reactionary right wing represented by the yellow Forward socialists, and the left wing represented by the T. U. E. L., until in the struggle he had to take his choice between the left wing and the reactionaries, and he went bag and baggage over to the Forward gang.

For over a year there has been but two groups within the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the left wing, represented by the T. U. E. L. and the Communists, and the right reactionaries, represented by the Hillman-Levin-Forward reactionary group.

This situation called for a militant struggle by the left wing against the Hillman administration. And we found within the ranks of the left wing, both T. U. E. L. and Communist, individuals now represented in the Schneid group who could not accept this policy of struggle.

Hence we have a new group taking the center position which has been given up by Hillman and the history of this group will be the history of all center groups—the honest, militant progressives who now follow Schneid will come over to the left wing, while the leaders will either be driven by force of circumstances into the camp of Hillman completely, or will acknowledge their mistake and come back and join the forces of the real left wing, the T. U. E. L.

As one who has watched the development of the Schneid group for over two years, I want to urge the progressive elements to repudiate him and his fake fight against the Hillman administration and rally to the fighting program of the T. U. E. L. group in the A. C. W. and help to solidify a strong and genuine left wing that will sweep away the class collaboration policy and make of the Amalgamated a powerful union, a fighting organ of the class struggle.

A Rank and Filer.

The Workers Party in Action

CHICAGO C. C. C. PLEDGES AID AT COMING CONFERENCE FOR GITLOW, ALL CLASS WAR FIGHTERS

Detailed reports and outlines of immediate work were outlined at the city central committee meeting of the Workers (Communist) Party, Local Chicago, at its meeting, Wednesday, June 17.

The central committee has laid out an anti-imperialist campaign for the week ending July 4. This campaign will connect itself up with the demand for Hands Off China, Release of Crouch and Trumbull, Opposition to Coolidge's July 4th Mobilization Day, Opposition to the Infamous Dawes Plan, Unconditional Independence for the Philippines, Hawaii, Porto Rico, etc.

Campaign for Hands Off China.

A special manifesto dealing with the concrete phases of imperialism will be distributed. On July 4th in Chicago at Beyer's Grove, the Workers Party annual picnic will be turned into an anti-imperialist Hands-off China demonstration with English, colored and oriental speakers if they can be obtained.

The party, it was reported, was negotiating with the local Kuo Min Tang to arrange a protest meeting. If the Kuo Min Tang is not ready to go into such a meeting, the Workers Party, together with other organizations will hold a united front protest demonstration on the Chinese situation next Wednesday, June 24, at Northwest Hall, North and Western Aves. Among the speakers will be William F. Dunne, H. V. Phillips, Negro speaker and oriental speakers, if possible, and others.

Fight Against Criminal Syndicalism.

The city central committee went strongly on record for the call issued by the Labor Defense Council to build a large defense organization and pledges itself to give full support to the June 28 Unity Defense Conference and for the release of all class war prisoners and especially on the case of Comrade Gitlow, who is to be remanded to prison on the recent decision of the supreme court declaring the criminal syndicalist laws legal. The following resolution was adopted unanimously:

Whereas, the United States supreme court, the buttress of capitalism, has decided that our Comrade Benjamin Gitlow must serve the remainder of his ten years' sentence for uttering the famous left wing manifesto of 1919, and

Whereas, our Comrade Gitlow has during the past six years held aloft the red banner of Communism in America, devoting himself unflinchingly to the cause of the Communist International, be it

Resolved by the city central committee of Local Chicago of the Workers Party in regular meeting held on June 17, 1925, to congratulate Comrade Gitlow for his determined stand for the exploited masses and to offer our support and our pledge to work unremittingly for Comrade Gitlow's freedom so that he may continue his splendid activities and in building the Workers (Communist) Party of America into a genuine mass Communist Party, and be it further

Resolved that we call upon every member of the party that for the coming week all efforts be made to push the work of the coming defense conference to be held June 28, by securing union affiliations and delegations to the conference, and be it further

Resolved, that we send this resolution to the C. E. C., the DAILY WORKER and all other party organs with the request that the same be printed therein.

The amnesty meeting for Temple Hall to follow the unity conference, will demand the release of Crouch and Trumbull, fight the deportation of Kannasto, Zinich, Lassen and all other class war prisoners. Comrades will get on the job raising funds for immediate release of these class war prisoners.

Great Britain's Trade Unionists; Work for Trade Union's Unity.

The visit of Purcell, chairman of the British Trade Union delegation among others, is of world wide significance and demands more than ever an intensified campaign on the part of militant trade unionists for unity in the world trade union movement and with particular emphasis on the American labor movement. Also the campaign for recognition of Soviet Russia assumes increasing importance thru the report of the British trade union delegation to Russia and Purcell's visit to the United States.

The party and the militants organized in the Trade Union Educational League will now increase their activities both for Russian recognition and for unity in the trade union movement.

Build a Labor Party.

The city central committee also heard the instructions for the labor party campaign adopted by the central executive committee and is proceeding to take steps to take the question of a labor party before the workers. The campaign for a labor party is to be based not on the abstract slogan for such a party, but is to be linked up with the concrete issues, agitating the workers and on the various united front campaigns of the party, such as the struggle against wage cuts, against class collaboration, for the release of Crouch and Trumbull, Hands Off China campaign, etc.

Industrial Organizers to Take Up Party United Front Campaigns.

All of the above reports and campaigns mentioned must be pushed strongly by the party organization in the trade unions, fraternal organizations, etc. The particular situation in each organization trade union or district council, central labor body, etc., will determine the tactics of the campaign and the introduction of resolutions on the various issues of criminal syndicalism, hands off China, anti- imperialism, for a labor party, for world trade union unity, etc. In order to co-ordinate these important campaigns and to lay out the work particularly and especially for each situation the meeting of the industrial organizers of the party has been called for Saturday, June 27, 2 p. m., at 19 S. Lincoln St. Every party branch industrial organizer must be present without fail, if there is to be a militant campaign for the various programs of action laid out.

Anti-Police and Injunction Bills.

In addition to the above, reports were given on the passage of the Bar State Police bill and the Anti-Injunction bill in the Illinois legislature. The passage of these bills revealed clearly the results of the non-partisan method employed by fakers. These methods brought them, nor the workers, anything. Injunctions, in the last analysis, are solved by mass violation of them. Effective struggle against state constabulary bills in one form or another will be offset only by organized action on the industrial or political fields of workers as a class.

Negro Trade Union Committee on Job

A special report was rendered on work among the Negroes. The organ of the American Negro Labor Congress, The Champion, is now out and sales are rapid. Many unions have responded to the call for the Congress scheduled for October 25. Negro speakers are covering party branches and various trade union bodies. The Negro Trade Union committee has been making decided headway.

The Book Store campaign is meeting with success. Literature sales in the form of books and pamphlets are going well. The campaign for The DAILY WORKER, however, must be pushed more strongly by the branches which must pledge themselves for a certain quota of subscriptions for The DAILY WORKER. In this immediate campaign free speech fight forms the attracting base at present of the street meetings.

ALLENTOWN, EASTON, AND BETHLEHEM, PA., COMRADES TAKE NOTICE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ALLENTOWN, Pa., June 19.—A general membership meeting of the Lehigh Valley section will be held on Wednesday, June 24th—8.00 P. M. at 1161 Mechanic street. All members of Allentown, Eaton and Bethlehem must be present.—A. Newberger, Secretary C. C. C.

CENTRAL EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE ON THE CLEVELAND SITUATION

The investigation of the secretariat of the C. E. C. dealing with the party controversy in Cleveland discloses and establishes the following facts:

1. The minority group, led by Comrades Benjamin and Boich, planned and carried thru an organized raid upon the regular meeting of the C. C. C. of Cleveland, held June 8.

2. The purpose of this raid was to seize the leadership of the local organization at all costs and without regard to the principles of Communist organization and constitution of the party, and to overrule decisions of the C. C. C., D. E. C. and C. E. C.

3. The roll call votes taken at the C. C. C. meeting on June 8, prior to its adjournment by the chairman and by the D. O. show an equal number of uncontested votes cast for each side, i. e., 19 votes for the majority.

4. In the face of a deadlock, general turmoil and the impossibility of proceeding with the meeting, the chairman and the D. O. declared the meeting adjourned. This was the correct thing to do under the circumstances.

5. Upon the legal adjournment of the meeting, the minority group, led by Benjamin, Boich and Bartov (the latter acting as chairman) proceeded to hold a rump meeting, declared themselves the regular C. C. C., rescinded and overturned action by the C. E. C. by reinstating Benjamin, the nine suspended delegates, and the suspended Jewish branch, and elected a new local executive committee, thus creating a dual, competing body to the regular local party organization.

6. This dual local executive committee, elected at the illegal, rump meeting, contains Esther Shwartzer, who was regularly expelled from the party.

7. Following this action by the minority group on June 8th, the secretary of the suspended Jewish branch Duchan, proceeded to call a meeting of the regularly suspended Jewish branch in competition and opposition to the recognized Jewish branch of the party in Cleveland.

These facts, which were definitely established by the investigation of the secretariat, demonstrate an open and flagrant violation of the fundamentals of party discipline by the minority group led by Benjamin and Boich. These and other facts disclosed by the investigation prove furthermore that the Benjamin group is carrying on a systematic campaign of opposition calculated to undermine not only the present leadership of the party, but to destroy the Communist conception of leadership in general.

Benjamin and Boich have been shown guilty in spreading and cultivating a non-Communist conception of Communist organization and discipline. Even in their statements before the secretariat on June 12th, both took the position that decisions of governing bodies of the party have no validity for the membership of the respective party units. The essence of this position is, that party decisions of C. C. C. and C. E. C. have no force unless formally approved by the membership of the branch or city. These non-Communist conceptions are not only being spread but actively acted upon by the Benjamin-Boich group is disregard of the rulings and decisions of the local, district, and national organization of the party. The root and main cause of the present difficulties in Cleveland is their anarcho-menshevist conception of party organization advocated and practiced by the minority comrades led by Benjamin and Boich.

This situation is further aggravated by the fact that the minority group is waging a desperate struggle to gain control of the Cleveland organization and in numerous cases has resorted to unpermissable means to achieve this end. In waging this factional struggle the minority group in Cleveland has overstepped the bounds of party constitution and general Communist practice and discipline as laid down by the Communist International.

In view of these facts, the secretariat finds it necessary to condemn and repudiate the action of the minority group in the rump meeting of June 8th. The secretariat draws the attention of the party membership in Cleveland to the fact that these anarcho-menshevist conception of organization constitute a real menace to the development, integrity and unity of our party. The secretariat calls upon the party membership in Cleveland to combat such non-Communist behavior and to repudiate the action of the Benjamin group at the rump meeting of June 8th.

Therefore the secretariat decides upon the following measures:

1. To declare illegal the holding of the rump C. C. C. meeting on June 8th.

2. To declare illegal and therefore void all proceedings, decisions, and actions of that meeting.

3. To cancel the membership meeting called for June 16th called by the rump C. C. C. meeting. The question of membership meetings in Cleveland and other cities in the preconvention period will be settled by the parity commission in the near future.

4. Comrades Boich and Bartoff are herewith suspended from the party for a period of three (3) months without voice and vote. The secretariat approves the action of the local executive committee and the district committee in suspending Comrade Benjamin from the party for six months without voice and vote.

FREE SPEECH FIGHT CONTINUES TONIGHT AT NORTH AND ORCHARD

The free speech fight conducted by the Workers (Communist) Party on the corner of North avenue and Orchard street is being continued. Tonight the meeting will be addressed by comrades Karl Reeve and Barney Mass. Eigtheen members of the Workers Party were arrested last Saturday when they conducted an open air meeting on this corner.

They are charged with violating a city ordinance, declared unconstitutional by the Illinois supreme court, requiring a permit from the chief of police to hold open air meetings. The cases will be fought in the courts.

The speakers at Workers Party street meetings Saturday night are:

North and Orchard—Barney Mass and Karl Reeve.

North and Washtenaw—Manuel Gomez and Al Shaap.

Division and Washtenaw—I. A. Davidson and J. Louis Engdahl.

Kedzie and 22nd—Sam Hammersmark and William F. Kruse.

12th and St. Louis—Comrade Early.

THE OUTCAST - -

By Liam O'Flaherty

"I AM a good shepherd"..... Jesus Christ.

The parish priest had returned to the parochial house at Dromullen, after a two-month's holiday at the seaside resort of Lisdoonvarna. He returned fatter than he went, with immense red gills and crimson flakes on his undulating cheeks, with pale blue eyes scowling behind mountainous barricades of darkening flesh and a paunch that would have done credit to a Roman emperor.

He sank into the old easy chair in his library with a sumptuous groan. He was tired after the journey. He filled the chair and overflowed it. His head sank into his neck as he leaned back and the neckflesh eddied turbulently over the collar of his black coat, toppling down behind in three neat billowing waves. He felt the elbow rests with his fat white palms carressingly. Great chair! It had borne his weight for ten years without a creak. Great chair! Great priest!

HIS housekeeper stood timorously on the other side of the table, with her hands clutched in front of her black skirt, a lean sickly woman with a kind white face. She had followed him in. But she was evidently afraid to disturb the great man so soon after his arrival.

He sighed, grunted, groaned and made a rumbling internal noise from his throat to his midriff. Then he said "ha," and shifted his weight slightly. He suddenly raised his eyebrows. His little eyes rested on the housekeeper's twitching hands. His eyes shot upwards to her pale face. His mouth fell open slightly.

"WELL?" he grunted, in a deep pompous voice. "Trouble again? What is it?"

"Kitty Manion wants to see ye father?" whispered the housekeeper.

"Foo," said the priest. Then he made a noise in his mouth as if he were chewing something soft. Then he grunted, "I heard about her," he continued in a tone of oppressed majesty. "I heard about the slut." He paused. "Yes, indeed." He paused. "Ough! Show her in."

The housekeeper curtseyed and disappeared. The door closed without a sound. The white handle rolled backwards with a faint squeak. In the library there was silence. The priest clasped his paunch with both hands. His paunch rose and fell as he breathed. He kept nodding his head at the ground. Two minutes passed.

THE door opened again without a sound. The housekeeper pushed Kitty Manion into the room gently. Then the door closed again. The white handle squeaked. There was a tense pause. The parish priest raised his eyes. Kitty Manion stood in front of him, at the other side of the table, two paces within the door.

She had a male child at her breast. His head emerged from the thick, heavy cashmere shawl that enveloped his mother. His blue eyes stared impassively, contentedly. The mother's eyes were distended and bloodshot. Her cheeks were feverishly red. Her shawl had fallen back onto her shoulder like a cowl, as she shifted it from one hand to another in order to re-arrange her child. Her great mass of black hair was disarranged at the poll, where it was gathered in a ball. Her neck was long, full and white. Her long slim figure shivered. These shivers passed down her spine, along her black-stockinged, tapering calves and disappeared into her high-heeled little shoes. She looked very beautiful and innocent, as only a young mother can look.

THE priest stared at her menacingly. She stared back at him helplessly. Then she suddenly lost control of herself and sank to her knees.

"Have pity on me father," she gasped. "Have pity on me child.

She began to sob. The priest did not speak. A minute passed. She rose to her feet once more. Then the priest spoke.

"You're a housemaid at Mr. Burke's, the solicitor."

"I was, father. But he dismissed me this morning. They're afraid to take me in the village for fear ye might. . . oh' father I don't mind about 'mesel' but me child. It. . ."

"Silence," cried the priest sternly. "A loose tongue is an ill omen. How did this happen?"

SHE began to tremble violently. She kept silent.

"Who is the father of your child, woman?" said the priest slowly, lowering his voice and leaning forward on his elbows.

Her lips quivered. She looked at the ground. Tears rolled down her cheeks. She did not speak.

"Ha!" he cried arrogantly. "I thought so. Obstinate slut! I have noticed you this long while. I knew where you were drifting. Ough! The menace to my parish that a serpent like you. . . Out with it!" he roared, striking the table. "Let me know who has aided you in your sin. Who is he? Name him. Name the father of your child."

SHE blubbered but she did not speak. "For the sake of your immortal soul," he thundered, "I command you to name the father of your child."

"I can't," she moaned hysterically. "I can't. There was more than one man. I don't know who. . ."

"Stop, wretch," screamed the priest, seizing his head with both hands. "Silence. Silence I command you. Oh my! Oh my!"

"Jesus, Mary and Joseph," muttered the girl in a quiet whisper.

The child began to whimper. The priest's face was livid. His eyes were bloodshot. His paunch trembled. He drew in a deep breath to regain control of himself. Then he stretched his right hand to the door, with the forefinger pointed.

"Go!" he thundered in a melancholy voice. "Begone from me accursed one. Begone with the child of your sin. Begone."

SHE turned slowly on swaying hips to the door, with the foot movements of one sinking in a quagmire. She threw back her head helplessly on her neck and seized the door handle. The handle jingled noisily. The door swung open and struck her knee. She tottered into the hall.

"Away with you!" he thundered. "Begone from me, accursed one."...

The housekeeper opened the hall door. She was thrusting something into the girl's hands but the girl did not see her. As soon as she saw the open air thru the doorway, she darted forward with a wild cry. She sprang down the drive and out into the road.

SHE paused a moment in the roadway. To the right, the road led to the village. To the left it led to the mountains. She darted away to the left, trotting on her toes, throwing her feet out sideways and swaying from her hips.

It was an August day. The sun was falling away towards the west. A heat mist hung high in the heavens, around the dark spurs of the mountains.

She trotted a long way. Then she broke into a walk as the road began to rise. It turned and twisted upwards steeply towards the mountains, a narrow white jagged crust of crushed limestone curling thru the soft heather-clad bog-land. The mountains loomed up close on either side. There were black shadows on the grey granite rocks and on the purple heather. Overhanging peaks made gloomy caverns that cast long spikes of blackness out from them. Here and there the mountains sucked their sides inwards in sumptuous curves, like seashell mouths. Long black fences raced majestically up the mountain sides and disappeared on far horizons over jagged peaks, with ferocious speed. The melancholy silence of a dead world filled the air.

THE melancholy silence soothed the girl. It numbed her. She sat down to rest on the stunted grass by the roadside. She cast one glance at the valley behind her and shuddered. Then she hugged her child fiercely and traversed the tiny face with kisses. The child began to cry. She fed him. Then he fell asleep. She arose and walked on again.

She was among the peaks, walking along a level winding stretch of road that led to the lake. A great dull weariness possessed her being. Her limbs trembled as she walked. Her heart began to throb with fear. Her forehead wrinkled and quick tremors of fear made her shiver now and again. But she walked fiercely on, driven on in spite of herself.

SHE reached the entrance to the valley was.

She saw it suddenly, nestling cunningly behind an overhanging mossy faced cliff, a flat white dot with dark edges. She stood still and stared at it for a long time. She was delirious. Her eyes glistened with a strange light.

Then she shivered and walked slowly downwards towards the lake bank, stopping many times to kiss the sleeping child. When she reached the grassy bank and saw the dark, deep water, she uttered a cry and darted away. The child awoke and began to cry. She sat down and fondled him. He ceased crying and crowed, flapping the air with his hands feebly. She kissed him fiercely and called to him strange words in a mumbling voice.

SHE took off her shawl, spread it on a fit, smooth rock, put the child in the shawl and knotted the shawl into a tight bundle about him. She placed the bundle on the rock and got to her feet. Then she knelt beside it and clasping her hands on her breast, she turned her face to the sky and prayed silently. She prayed for two minutes and then tears trickled down her cheeks and she remained for a long time staring at the sky without thinking or praying.

Finally she arose to her feet and, without looking at her child, she walked towards the lake bank quickly. When she arrived at the brink, she joined her hands above her head, closed her eyes and leaned forward.

BUT she drew backwards again with a gasp. Her child had crowed. She whirled about and rushed to him. She caught him up in her arms and began to kiss him joyously, laughing wildly as she did so. Still laughing wildly she ran to the bank.

She threw back her head. She put the child's face close against her white throat and jumped headlong into the lake.

How We Live and Work

Editor's Note:—This paper is printed for the workers, poor farmers and those who work and sweat under the present system of society. It is a paper of the workers, by the workers and for the workers. We want to reach every corner of this country where labor is being exploited for private gains, for profit. We want the workers and farmers all over the country to read the DAILY WORKER. In order to make it more interesting and be able better to reflect the life of the wide laboring masses, WE WANT OUR READERS TO WRITE TO US. This new department "HOW WE LIVE AND WORK" will appear as often as there will be sufficient letters from our readers about the life and working conditions under which our masses struggle. Try to make the letters interesting bringing out facts which may not be known to workers in other sections of the country. Try to make them short and to the point.

By RUFUS P. HEATH.
Worker Correspondent.

Coming in from Detroit I met a young fellow who had been employed on a mint farm, near Mentha, twelve miles out of Kalamazoo, on the South Haven branch of the M. C. R. R. Talking with him on prospects for work where he had been, he said that prospects were good, but conditions were poor.

He shipped out of Chicago for $5 and paid $5.57 for transportation. He went on the job as teamster at $45 a month, board and room. When he got there he was told they couldn't use him as a teamster. They offered to put him on a labor job, paying 29 cents an hour for ten-hour day, six days a week, and a dollar a day board including Sunday. They told him he had a chance to make back what he spent getting there. He took the bet on account of being broke. He worked seven days, was there one Sunday. Then a rainy day knocked him out. He put in nine days on the job. They fired him. He had no money to get home on, so he sold his clothing and personal belongings at auction in order to return to Chicago to look for work.

Pace Setter.

The slave driving system there forces you to work full speed. They have a man who doesn't understand English working for double the wages the laborers get. He is the pace setter. He is always ahead of the gang. The foreman makes the gang keep up with the pace setter. Those who cannot are fired.

When they fired this fellow he had to walk 12 miles to Kalamazoo. He caught a freight going out of Kalamazoo for Chicago. He got kicked off and caught the Wolverine which brot him to Chicago.

Bad Food.

Board was rotten: Breakfast, eggs fried straight up hard, stale bread, bacon burned, the coffee was slop. Dinner, they had the same bread and coffee as breakfast, roast beef, with tapioca for desert. Supper, same as dinner with an occasional piece of pie. That was the board seven days a week. With the exception of one noon meal. Then they had cabbage.

C. M. Tood company owns the town of Mentha, heart, body and soul. The U. S. postoffice is within the company store and Todd furnishes the postmaster. The postoffice together with the Michigan Central station are the only two buildings in the town of Mentha that do not belong to Todd Co.

ARE NEGROES COWARDS?

OR IS GENERAL ROBERT LEE BULLARD A LIAR?

By Robert Minor

NEGRO EX-SERVICE MEN!

All Negroes who served in the war: Write to us. Tell us what YOU know about the treatment of the Negro soldiers by the officers in the American army and the U. S. government. Were you Jim-Crowed? Did you get a square deal? Are Negroes cowards, as Gen. Robert Lee Bullard says, or is General Bullard a liar?

Did you want to fight for the landlords and bosses?
What did you get out of fighting for them?

Write your facts and opinions to THE DAILY WORKER, 1113 W. Washington Blvd., Chicago, Ill.

GENERAL ROBERT L. BULLARD, who was commander of the Second Army of the American expeditionary forces in France, has written a book which reveals with clumsy brutality an old and sore secret of the American army.

The secret is one that ought to be blazoned now in every town and village—and especially every "black belt" of the United States. The secret is that the commanders and officers generally of the United States army in France practically made war against the American Negro troops under their command; that the white officers committed every possible brutality against the Negro soldiers, sacrificed them heartlessly at every opportunity, led them into traps for the purpose of discrediting the Negroes, and, in short, deliberately handled their black soldiers for the purpose of preserving the traditional lie of Negro "inferiority."

It might have been expected that Gen. Robert Lee Bullard would be exactly the fool to let the cat out of the bag.

WHO is Bullard?

The records show that he was born in Alabama in the first year of the American Civil War of 1861. His name tells us that his fond parents christened him after the chief butcher of the Southern slave oligarchy—Gen. Robert E. Lee. And his present book, which has just been completed in serial publication in the Chicago Tribune, (copyrighted by Doubleday, Page & Co.), shows us that Bullard is one of those swashbuckling militarists for whom the old slave oligarchy still stands as a living ideal.

But the book and other evidence, and memories of Negro soldiers, show that Bullard, the militarist of the old South, was not out of his element in the American army of 1918. In fact, the attitude of the dominant class of this country today is similar to the attitude of the slave oligarchy of the 60's as far as the Negro is concerned. The fact is that the Negro masses are a hated enemy to the American bourgeoisie, and nowhere is it better shown than in the U. S. army.

General Bullard had in his command the 92nd division, consisting of 27,000 Negro conscripts for "democracy." His hatred of the Negro caused him first to use every device to discredit his own black troops, and then to proclaim to the world that they were "cowards."

The general shows his own highly civilized and humane character in queer ways. He boasts like an underdeveloped child of the medals he received on his own manly breast, and his great military sagacity which caused him time after time to "decide" to do many brilliant things just before Gen. Pershing commanded him to do exactly the thing he had already decided to do.

Confesses to Crime of Murdering Prisoners.

AFTER speaking like a phonograph of the "barbarous, brutal Germans," the general exposes himself in a passage that must go down in history as a virtual confession of one of the most beastly crimes known to military annals—the murder of prisoners of war. The peculiar psychopathic "southern" mind of the general makes him resort to the expedient of attributing the direct murder of the German prisoners to "niggers"—that is to the French African troops—for "niggers" always, of course, are the embodiment of cruelty. But he is himself so full of the delight of bloodlust that he boasts of the whispered rumors that his own American 3rd corps "loaned the Moroccans some German prisoners," after explaining that the Moroccan troops "were in the habit of giving no quarter in battle."

American Negroes are Cowards, Says General.

AFTER having in the Spanish-American War "raised and commanded a volunteer Negro regiment whose conduct had added to my reputation as a soldier," says the modest general, he was particularly interested when he was put in charge of the 92nd (Negro) division in the world war. "Having passed a pleasant boyhood and having had this satisfactory experience in my earlier life with Negroes, I found myself with most kindly feelings toward them and my interest was stirred now in France by finding this Negro division in my new army. I felt some doubt, however, for the success in war of a Negro command as great as a division."

It seems that nearly all of the officers of the division were white and of the regular army. And then there were some Negro officers who, much to the chagrin of the white gentlemen, had slipped thru the lines of discrimination. The white officers of course, were determined that no damned niggers should be on the same plane with them, but the army regulations required that all officers should be treated as such. The general writes that he "remembered how our government seemed to expect the same of them (the Negroes) as of the white men, or at least placed them in positions that so indicated; how politics had consistently forced for them the same treatment as white men when they were very different; how they themselves insisted upon such treatment; how surely, notwithstanding all this, if the same treatment were given black as white, it would cause trouble for him who should deal it out; how, finally, the politics of our country had forced the formation of this Negro division contrary to experience."

The general proceeds to explain: "All this constructive equality I regarded as an injustice; it is not real." So the general inquired into the matter, and of course, he "found that in the battle of the Meuse-Argonne a part of the 92nd division, beside the French in battle, had twice run away from the front of the enemy, causing the French, for their own safety, to request the relief of the Negro division from the fighting line."

The general says that 30 Negro officers were involved in "this running away." Five Negro officers, writes he, who were "the clearest cases and supposed leaders of the movement—only five, had been selected for trial by the law officers of the 2nd army." "A court martial, composed of officers from another, a white division," had been selected to try the Negro officers, and "one Negro officer had been tried, convicted, and sentenced to death."

But, of course, no one but a southern gentleman like the good General Robert Lee Bullard could understand niggers, and the kindly fellow stepped in and twisted the military regulations to let the poor Negro escape death.

Lies About Negroes

BULLARD then plunges into his orgy of slander against the Negro as such, saying:

"They are really inferior soldiers. There is no denying it. Their Negro officers have an inadequate idea of what is expected of soldiers, and their white officers are too few to leaven the lump." He quotes his diary as saying that the 92nd division "after more than a month in the trenches, cannot yet make a raid. It failed again on one today. Poor Negroes! They are hopelessly inferior." "The Negroes were a great disappointment. . . ." "The French had had like experience with their Negro troops in their front line trenches against the enemy. The Negro, it seems, cannot stand bombardment . . ." "The poor 92nd Negroes wasted time and dawdled where they did attack and in some places where they should have attacked, never budged at all. It seems to be as much the fault of the general as of the Negroes. . ." "Two days ago and again yesterday the 92nd division would not fight, couldn't be made to attack in any effective sense. The general who commands them can't make them fight."

And then it appears that when the armistice came, the white officers were very much afraid of what the Negro soldiers were going to do to the poor, helpless white women of France. All the superstitious vituperation of the feeble-minded southern village Negro-hater was poured out by the general in the effort to get the French to hate and fear the American Negro troops. He pompously notified General Foch that "no man could be responsible for the acts of these Negroes toward French women, and that he had better send this division home at once." Bullard accuses "these vigorous black men" of having raped French women, and is sure that the Negro man "is far more offensive to white women than a white man is." (Are all men offensive to women, general? Indeed, what a gentleman you are!)

The general closes this series of Negro-baiting in the Chicago Tribune (republican organ!) with the admonition that "it will always be so with Negroes wherever they are in contact with whites. . . If you need combat soldiers, and especially if you need them in a hurry, don't put your time upon Negroes."

While reading this stuff, we can't help thinking about some past history, and about some present news from all quarters of the world. We remember the struggles of the Negroes for their freedom in America—something like forty heroic slave revolts against desperate odds in this country before the American Civil War, and again of the undeniable but often obscured fact of the heroic role that was played by the black troops in turning the tide of battle and saving this American capitalist republic from General Bullard's ancestors of the slave oligarchy in 1865. We remember how the puny New York weakling, playing "cowboy" in Cuba, Theodore Roosevelt, was saved by Negro troops after the white troops could not stand the fire; and how this fact was covered up in order to make Roosevelt an artificial hero for the benefit ef the Morgan bank which needed him in public office.

WE are suddenly reminded of the flood of renewed Negro baiting which the capitalist society has turned loose since the world war. It is increasing, not diminishing. We are thinking of the twenty-seven members of the 24th (Negro) infantry who are now suffering in the U. S. prison at Leavenworth—and the other men who were hanged—for the crime of defending a Negro woman from being beaten by a policemen in Houston, Texas, in 1919.

Then we think of the fact which every Negro knows, that in every segregated, Jim-crowed Negro residence district in the United States, thousands of black men have been muttering ever since the world war: "The next time we fight; it'll be for ourselves."

The secret which Gen. Bullard is not telling is well known to many Negro veterans of the war. The truth is that when these Negro troopers "never budged at all," it was not due to any cowardice, but to a stirring of a certain kind of courage greater than any that could ever be known to the yallow-souled white general from Alabama—the courage which is beginning to stir in a hundred million black breasts—the courage to resent and fight against the treatment as "inferiors" which was being dealt out by Bullard and his white officer puppets.

In times of peace when General Bullard sits in quiet safety in his officers' club with his mint julep, the average southern Negro goes every hour of day and night in danger greater than Bullard faced in France. No, general, these Negroes were not afraid. They had only begun to learn. When they get started fighting, you among others may wish they were cowards.

The World and the Dark Races.

AND now we look at the news of the world of today. The darker races of the world are on the rise. They constitute the majority of the population of the world—black men, yellow men of China, brown men of India, these men of color are more than half of the population of the whole world. Thruout the world the capitalist class dogma of "race inferiority" is being assaulted by the countless millions who are suppressed in colonial bondage. Even at this moment the telegraph is clicking the news that the swarthy "greasers"—the heroic Mexican workers and peasants—have forced even Calles to throw back into the teeth of Calvin Coolidge the insolent assertion of American imperialist domination over the "inferior" people of Mexico.

China! Listen to the yellow men's guns, General Robert Lee Bullard! Listen! Are yellow men "hopelessly inferior"? Are they afraid to fight!

LISTEN to the guns in Africa, General Bullard! Is Abd-el-Krim also "incapable of being an officer"? It is true that the Riffians are not considered Negroes, but Berbers, and therefore technically "white" in spite of their dark skin. But watch Africa, General Robert Lee Bullard, and you will soon see black Africa join dark Asia in the general rise of the "inferior" races. At present the French imperialists depend on black Senegalese troops to fight their fellow-Africans of the Riff, but sooner or later, these black men will learn—and turn to help fight for Africa for the Africans.

It is a good thing that General Bullard published that book. It will help to put to shame those Negroes who are to this day pretending to maintain the lie of the possibility of Negroes obtaining a certain degree of "equality" under the Wall Street government of the United States. It will help to jolt the black American semi-slave into a consciousness as to which side he is on in the struggle of the working class and the colonial suppressed peoples against capitalism.

The Negro at home and abroad is destined to be a great soldier in the freeing of the world from capitalist oppression. Gen. Bullard and his kind (the capitalist class in general) are beginning instinctively to feel this, and that partly accounts for the growing propaganda against the Negro.

We are not concerned for the Negro to be a "brave" soldier in the armies of the enemies of his class and race. When he begins to fight in the armies of his own kind and class, for the freedom of the oppressed of the earth, he will show Gen. Robert Lee Bullard what courage is.

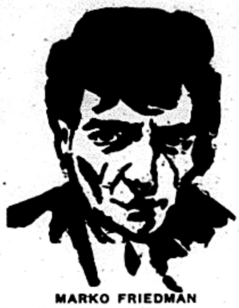
Every sub you get during Red Week of June 15 to 21 is a sub to "make another Communist."

The Language of the Gallows in the Balkans

FOR over a week Zankov has been announcing that he will employ the gallows. For over a week bourgeois Europe has been awaiting with curiosity to hear the crack of the broken necks of the Communists who are compelled to swing from the gallows.

Not a single voice has been raised in the bourgeois press. Nobody has called out to the hangmen of Sofia: Stop! or, Enough!

The "Defenders of right and justice" seem to be employing their whole energies in cursing the red terror. The humanitarian bourgeoisie smiles with approval at the spectacle afforded in Sofia. The Bulgarian social democrats have likewise given their approval to the Zankov government. The corpses of Stambulisky and hundreds of peasant leaders had hardly grown cold, when the Bulgarian social democrats entered the government. And now, when this government is clinging desperately to power, and is reintroducing the medieval methods for suppressing the people's movement, the Bulgarian social democrats declare their approval of the executions.

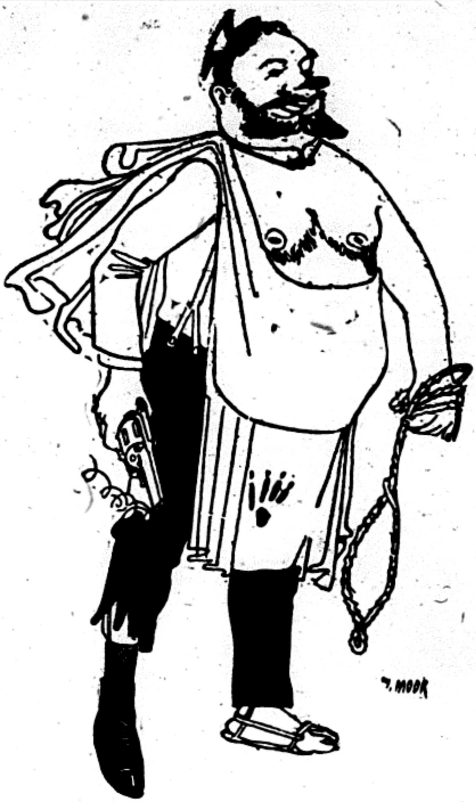


MARKO FRIEDMAN
One of the victims publicly hanged by Zankov "for the Sofia cathedral explosion."

THE Second International, which during the trial of the counter-revolutionary social revolutionary terrorists and conspirators of Russia, attempted to mobilize the public opinion of the whole world and proclaimed on this occasion the inadmissibility of the armed struggle "between the various sections of the proletariat," finds not a single word of blame for the Bulgarian social-democrats. The Second International, which sent lawyers in order to defend the terrorists who had made attempts upon the life of Lenin, does not find it necessary to denounce the bloody reprisals of Sofia.

The telegraph announces: "Listen, listen! In Sofia they are going to hang the representatives of the working class and of the peasants whom they did not succeed in killing on their arrest!"

In the Name of Civilization



The Bloody Zankov Is Saving the World from Bolshevism.

"LISTEN!" we say to the proletarians of all countries, for the gallows of Sofia will speak their own language: "The acts of violence of Zankov teach you that in civil war there is no mercy. Proletarians of all countries, do not forget this! A day will come when the roles will be exchanged, when the representatives of the bourgeoisie will be in your hands! Remember then the lessons of Sofia! No Mercy! Those who do not understand how to hit the class enemy hard, will die at his hands. They or we!"

It is the language of the gallows which are set up in the Cathedral Square of Sofia. May we never forget this! This is the will of the reactionaries of Bulgaria and the world bourgeoisie. May the memory of these acts of violence be stamped in the heart of every proletarian child! May this picture harden us in the fight when we shall be the stronger!

WORKERS and peasants will be or are already hanging side by side. A roll of drums will drown their last words. We, however, will hear these last words and shall spread them thruout the whole world. Every peasant, every worker must hear them.

The martyrs of the Bulgarian Peasant Party cry to the peasants of the whole world: "Peasants, comrades, see! We, the Peasant Party of Bulgaria drove the bourgeoisie from power, but we did not venture to destroy it and feared to make an alliance with the workers. We did not understand how to create a point of support in the towns. We have not found among us any leaders for our troops. Among the peasants we have not found people who had been trained in the school of long fights against the bourgeoisie. The bourgeoisie understood how to throw the net of their conspiracies over us. They understood how to seize power again. Then they killed the best among us in thousands. They shot us and hanged us. May our example serve as a lesson to you. Remember, therefore, that the peasants can only liberate themselves from the capitalist yoke in brotherly alliance with the workers, and under their leadership!"

THE Communist on the way to his execution calls to his fellow workers: "Comrades of all countries! We are perishing here because we have not understood how to unite with the peasant class. We did not support them in the fight against the bourgeoisie. We left it to their inexperienced hands to control power. We attempted to retrieve this error, but too late! And this is costing us thousands of victims. What is lost in one moment of history must often be won again in long years of pitiless struggles. Learn and strengthen yourself! Keep up your courage! Remember that on the day on which the working class and the peasants find themselves side by side confronting the bourgeoisie, side by side as the Bulgarian workers and peasants are now dying together, we will be victorious!"

The Bulgarian counter-revolution, and with it the international counter-revolution, are organizing a demonstration in Sofia—the first of its kind—for the united front of the workers and peasants. They demonstrate that their victory means annihilation of the one as much as the other. We will do everything in order that this shall be understood. The ghastly spectacle of the world bourgeoisie and of the Bulgarian bourgeoisie will turn against those who have arranged it.

TO the Bulgarian Communists and peasants who are dying there, we send our last greetings! We know that they will go courageously to death. In their final hour they will neither find themselves alone nor forsaken. We are sure that their blood will be a fruitful seed. Over the walls of the bayonets they will see the millions of workers and peasants reaching out towards them, raising their hands in farewell and also in sign of an oath. We swear to revenge them! We swear that the working class will know how to scourge its executioners!

PRODUCTIVITY OF LABOR IN THE SOVIET UNION STEADILY CLIMBS TO PREWAR LEVEL—WAGES GO UP

MOSCOW, (By Mail)—In the budget year 1922-23 the average wage in the Soviet Union was 49 per cent and the productivity of labor 46 per cent of the pre-war level. In the budget year 1923-24 the correspondingfigures for the first quarter were: wages 60 per cent, productivity of labor 50 per cent of the pre-war level; in the fourth quarter: wages 65 per cent and productivity of labor 59 per cent of the pre-war level.

The first quarter of the budget year 1924-25 wages were 79 per cent and productivity of labor 71 per cent of the pre-war level. At present the average productivity of labor for the Soviet Union as a whole is 77.7 per cent and wages 78.7 per cent of the pre-war level.

According to Comrade Korotkov's report in the Central Control Commission, in the budget year 1923-24 the considerable wages increase was accompanied by a comparatively slow upward movement of the productivity of labor. In the first quarter of the budget year 1924-25, this proportion was remedied by the daily output per head increasing 14.8 per cent instead of only 3.8 per cent, whilst wages experienced a further increase of 4.4 per cent. The following table is an illustration of the flunctuation of the wages and the daily output per head since October 1922:

Oct. 1922	3.13	42.2
Oct. 1923	4.34	83.3
Oct. 1924	4.71	102.5
Jan. 1925	5.63	101.2
Feb. 1925	5.93	102
Percent. incr.	90	141.7

MASTERS AND SLAVES (A Story of the Working Class)

By John Lassen

SYNOPSIS.

Nickles and Joe Vavas, migratory workers, meet under a freight train while beating their way west. They get off at Colorado Springs. Joe Vavas is a barber by trade, and Nickles has no fixed trade. In Colorado Springs Vavas buys second-hand clothes for the two of them and they go to look for jobs. Vavas gets a job as a barber. Nickles manages to get work as a footman at Broadmoor, the mansion of the Broidins. His work is constant drudgery. Vavas is class conscious, while Nickles is not, but they are staunch friends nevertheless. An attachment springs up between Nickles and Marguerite, the maid at the Broadmoor mansion. One day Joe Vavas tells Nickles and Marguerite that a barbers' union has been formed to fight against the intolerable conditions. Joe Vavas has formed the union with the help of William who is an American by birth and not an immigrant like Joe. The younger elements in the union, led by Joe and William force a strike against the bosses. The strike is won by the barbers, but the union delegate from Denver sells out at the last moment, and the strikers are deprived of most of the fruits of their victory. As a result of the fight of the workers the ku klux klan of Colorado Springs holds an initiation ceremony. They swear to exterminate the Reds. Mr. Broidin takes part in the ceremony. He desires Marguerite the young servant, and makes love to her, which enrages Nickles. Gradually Nickles is becoming more and more receptive to the ideas of Joe Vavas who is a Communist. The Broidins are more and more tyrannical. A Christian Science service is held at the Broadmoor mansion. At the ceremony the poet who presides delivers an oration full of the claptrap of the master class. All this spiritual bunk does not prevent the guests from devouring a great quantity of food after the services are over. This means more work for the servants who are overworked as it is. The Broidins give a bathing party for their friends, which means extra hard work for the servants. Mr. Broidin purposely leaves his camera at the lake in order to send Marguerite to find it at night when everybody is gone. There he attacks her. In Colorado Springs there is a general strike wave following the strike of the barbers. The ku klux klan is preparing for a counter-offensive against the workers. The Broidins give a big ball at which the wealthy guests rage against the workers while indulging themselves in all sorts of pleasure. Broidin makes love to a young woman of the highest society who responds to his advances. The servants are worn out from their work for the ball. Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER XVII.

WILLIAM'S wife gave Joe a cordial welcome.

And Joe seemed perfectly happy. It was so pleasant to rest up in this place after work. To watch the two lively children and to listen to the wife.

"Today is a big day for you,"—the woman said with a smile.

"Yes, it will be a big day."

"Are there many coming?"

"No; I wanted only a few to take part in the organization meeting, whom we know very good, so we can trust them absolutely."

"Then there won't be much discussion"—said the woman, and thought of the passionate word-battles that ocurred again and again.

"You never can tell,—without discussion you can't clear up any question, you can't have progress."

"You are right there . . . When is William coming?"

"I don't know. Saturday, you know, there is lots of work."—He sighed.—"Just look, only half a year has passed and them people are already acting fresh again!"

He was thinking of the barber-shop owners.

"You see, the slack season is coming, and the contract is expiring."

The woman stared fixedly ahead.

"Life is very hard. And there are two children. You can't put them on the street . . . Nothing but work all week long . . . and how much is the wage? . . . "

"Yes, life is hard, very hard!"

"I can't go to work. Maybe later, when the children are a bit older . . . "

There was a short pause. It seemed as if she was trying to collect her thoughts.

"Do you know, at first I was very much against William going to meetings. I said: a father's place is home, with his family; but he was stronger. And he was right in everything."

"And it certainly is a person's duty to stick up for what's right. By this time I've gone so far myself that I make him go to the meetings . . . Life is so hard, and in time it teaches us lots of things."

Steps.

"William!"

He also seemed to be in good spirits:

"Here are the membership cards and also a wonderful little pamphlet: 'Program of the Workers Party!' "

"How many are coming?"

"I figure on nine."

"The main thing is that every trade should be represented."

"I thought of that too."

There were eight.

The men gathered slowly.

Eight came of the nine.

William opened the meeting with an official air. He talked about the purpose of the meeting. Their object was to organize a local branch of the Workers Party in Colorado Springs. He got a good deal of practice in speaking at the union meetings and was able to tell them concisely and without any hesitation what the problems were.

The point of his speech was that the workers are in need of the Workers Party which would take over the leadership in the fights of the workers. He proposed that the Workers Party shall launch a big campaign of agitation with the object of creating a united fighting front against the reaction which was becoming bolder and bolder all the time, and also for the right of organising and the eight hour day. The fight must be general and unified.

One comrade was not in agreement with the plan. His idea was that the Workers Party should go to the battlefield only with the program of armed insurrection and the overthrow of the government by force. He rejected all minor points on the program which only sreved to divert the attention from the main question.

But the rest backed William.

The worker who was dissatisfied with the program as mapped out, stated that a bomb thrown against the city hall would be ten times as effective as minor points on the program, and he demanded that his proposal be included in the program that was to be published.

The suspicion that the worker was a spy seemed unfounded. Yet, when it was decided not to mention any bomb in the leaflet he left the meeting in anger.

William was entrusted with drawing up the leaflet, and he was also elected organizer. Joe was elected executive secretary.

At the end they sang the International.

It was all fine.

The wife came in and sang with them.

Then she brought tea.

They discussed whom to take into the organization.

"We need women too"—Joe said—"Without women, no revolution. And our goal after all."

The rest were of the same opinion.

"How much work there is ahead of us"—William sighed. And as he thought about the matter it seemed to him that the work required superhuman powers. For they were only ten in a city of 30,000 population. And yet the thought came to him: "We are young and we are prepared to work!"

It grew late.

And the next day they would have to be back again at work early in the morning.

They left full of great hope and noble zeal.

Life's misery had brought them together. And the belief in a more beautiful, happier existence put them at the head of the dissatisfied workers' battalions.

CHAPTER XVIII.

NICKLES had an appointment with Joe.

Dolly, the faithful friend, went along with him today too, as always. He sat down on a bench. The dog put its two forepaws on his knee and with its head sought for his hand.

This touching demonstration of dog-love filled Nickles with shame. He drew the dog to him:

"And I wanted to give you a kick! . . . "

He thought of how there was a good deal of evil in people.

At last Joe came.

"Did I make you wait long?"

Nickles assured him that he preferred to be in the open even when it was cold.

"I got to speak with you something . . ."

"Go ahead!"

Joe told him that he was elected secretary of the local branch of the Workers Party and that they discovered that William was being watched.

"Couldn't we have our letters sent to you? It wouldn't be noticed."

Nickles was very happy to be able to do something too for the Workers Party.

For the violent discussions between the two friends had grown more and more rare. The months spent in the mansion had convinced Nickles that he could not expect much from the Broidins.

Though his own hard lot he had glimpsed the life of millions of people and he had come to realise that a considerable part of humanity exhausted itself polishing table service for others, in order that these others might live well and in luxury.

That was the negative side of the matter. And he did not as yet accept full-heartedly the positive side. The tremendousness of the task frightened him.

"We are so few, the ones who see the truth"—Joe would say.

"But you too did not see the truth and you do see it today"—was Joe's answer.

"The others are educated, they're smarter and there's such a lot of them . . . "

"A lot? But wasn't it you yourself told me that you're fourteen, and they two! And it ain't necessary to be so educated to cut off the head of your minister—whatever his name is. The main thing is to get the power. Those that have power also have the education."

Dolly whined.

It was cold. Winter was approaching.

• • • •

Marguerite had a warm room and hot tea ready for Nickles. He loved the girl dearly and he didn't fail to notice that lately a remarkable change had come over her.

Something tortured Marguerite. She was often confused. And her eyes were red with weeping. He turned off the electric light. In the dark he drew Marguerite to himself.

"Is anything the matter, girl? . . . "

"No, nothing. Do you love me?"

Nickles wasn't storng on sentimental scenes. But he was of a gentle nature. He stroked the girl affectionately.

"Has anybody hurt you?"

Marguerite could no longer control herself.

She began to sob. And she told what had happened that night. Then she awaited her fate silently, expecting that Nickles would fly into a rage and would perhaps even strike her, because she was so wicked.

She waited.

But that is not what happened.

She felt that Nickles' breast heaved violently.

And yet he did not fly into any rage. On the contrary. He pressed her even closer. Kissed her. And said:

"Poor little worm . . . "

Yes, that's just what he said: "Poor little worm."

Marguerite sobbed.

"Don't cry, girl. That's how the masters are, they can do anything they like with the likes of us . . . "

Marguerite did not see in the dark that Nickles' hand was clenched in a fist. Wild, uncontrollable.

They talked about the future.

They will remain here only one to two months. They will be very economical. Without money it is impossible to go out into the world. Now it was not like that time when Nickles had come with an empty knapsack. Now they were two . . . .

CHAPTER XIX.

WILLIAM wrote the leaflet.

The first leaflet of the Springs Local of the Workers Party. He wrote it from his heart. And as his heart throbbed like that of the Springs' workers, it was written from their heart too. It had its effect.

The workers of the various trades rallied. At the meeting there was great feeling. Strong words were expressed against the bosses who were now intent upon depriving the workers of the little advantage which the summer had brought them. The demand for strong action was unanimous.

The "Springs Paper" attacked the Bolshevist meeting most violently. It complained that Colorado Springs was left in the lurch by the arm of the law to which the businessmen had looked with so much expectation. They heaped sneers upon the chief of police because he had not broken up the meeting with clubs.

"Citizens, where is law and order?"—the editorial exclaimed pathetically. It demanded "Law and Order" which since the memorable burial had become a household word.

In a second article ti was pointed out that order must be established immediately and was a necessary thing because the time at which the half-year agreement would exprie was very near.

"Does the public want to be thrown into chains because of its own inertia? Do you, free citizens, want the mob to force a contract on you again? Do you want organized slavery or free labor,—it's up to you to choose, citizens!"

On Sunday the ku klux klan held its religious services in the church of the Christian Scientists.

A white-hood preached:

" . . . Soul-crystals, go younder upon the road, towards salvation . . . "

At the end of the services the white-hood with the death's head knelt before the altar, and out of his heart there burst an ardent prayer which swept along the whole assemblage.

"Oh give us, Jesus Christ, strength and endurance, so that we will once more set up law and order in our poor, troubled city. Grant us that we may root out the weeds . . . We thank thee, Lord Jesus Christ, that thou are our leader and that thou givest us counsel. We thank thee, oh Lord . . . "

• • • •

The next day the "Springs Paper" wrote with appreciation about the ku klux klan religious services. "The sun of freedom has once more risen in our city"—and that sort of thing.

The workers planned a great protest meeting.

The paper demanded that the police take steps against this anarchy.

• • • •

William an Joe were arrested, and their homes were searched. The chief of police knew well enough that he had no legal ground for arresting them, but the search was necessary. He had to have names.

The two were liberated the very same day.

There was very great excitement.

Everybody was waiting for something to happen.

Snow fell in big flakes and covered everything with dazzling whiteness.

William's wife sobbed:

"What do they want of you?"

But she got no answer to her question.

UNCLE SAM is buying future cannon fodder. The above poster, broadcast thruout Seattle by the American Legion, shows an orphaned son of an ex-soldier appealing for funds. And Uncle Sam is gladly giving the orphan enough to keep him alive until he can be sent into a factory and latter on used in the next war.

The poster was so frank it created a sensation in Seattle, and the American Legion was forced to call in all posters that were sent out and distribute safer ones, that hid the truth.

The Seattle employers and "open shoppers" objected to the above poster on the ground that it would cause resentment among the Seattle workers.

Workers as Factory Managers

MOSCOW, (By Mail).—Twenty-seven workers have graduated from the higher administration courses of the Ukrainian Supreme Council of National Economy in Kharkov. All of them are members of the Communist Party and each of them has worked 10-15 years in factories and about 4 years in administrative bodies. They are to be given responsible posts in the industries and are principally to serve in the capacity of red factory managers.

Our Readers' Views

"Daily" Makes Workers Normal.

To the DAILY WORKER: I have only worked 27 days during the last 16 months and I am therefore subscribing for a half year instead of a full year as I should like to.

I positively cannot think of missing a single copy of your DAILY WORKER. Workers who do not read our paper are blind with their minds—they do not understand how to interpret the developments in the economic life of the people in every country. Once a worker reads the DAILY WORKER he needs it everyday to understand what is happening around him.

What the good nurse is to the sick the DAILY WORKER is to the working class.

Rockefeller-McCormick Parasites Quarrel Over Their Unearned Booty

NEW YORK, June 19.—A further division in the McCormick-Rockefeller family was revealed today.

Miss Muriel McCormick, daughter of Harold F. and Mrs. Edith Rockefeller-McCormick, has joined her father in opposing payment to her mother of $750,000 accrued under a trust fund established for her in 1917 by John D. Rockefeller, Sr.

The McCormicks were divorced several years ago. McCormick later married Ganna Walska.

Mrs. Anita Oser, younger sister of Muriel, also is a party to the suit on the side of her father.

Germany and the Guarantee Pact

By Georg (Berlin)

THE German Foreign Minister, Stresemann, was right when he mentioned in his speech on foreign policy that the expression, "the question of security," had very little to do with the things which were discussed under this heading.

As a matter of fact, it is not a question of the securing of peace or such like things, but on the contrary, of organizing the next war, of preparing the grouping of powers.

FRENCH imperialism—represented today by a "left" government—understands by "security": securing its hegemony in Europe, the recognition and consolidation of its military alliances, the creation of a self-sufficing economic, and before all heavy industrial basis of its military power, and for this purpose to draw German economy into its sphere of power, further, to bind English imperialism by a military alliance in order to prevent its increasing armaments against France.

ENGLISH imperialism understands by the same term of security, something quite different.

Weakening of the political influence of France, its separation from its European allies (Poland, Czecho-Slovakia, etc.), its separation from Germany (expulsion from the Rhine and Ruhr district, separation from the German coke and German chemical industry), the drawing of Germany, as a future factor in world politics, in the wake of English imperialism in a military combination against the Soviet Union, playing off of Germany (military and economically) against France and France's allies, pressure upon France for the purpose of preventing its insane increase of armaments.

AMERICAN imperialism understands by security; the safeguarding of its money lending business in Europe, securing of the European market for its goods and capital, setting the European powers one against the other, in order to enable America to carry on its business in the east undisturbed, and the formation of a united bloc for the war against the Soviet Union.

If now each one of the great imperialist powers conceals such divergent interests under the mask of "security," what could bourgeois Germany hope to achieve with its well-known offer of a guarantee pact? Vanquished bourgeois Germany is not an independent factor and is endeavoring to cling to the skirts of one or other of the imperialist powers and thus to carry on an imperialist policy. This is what it calls "national realistic policy."

THE German government of heavy industrialists and junkers, in making the offer to the entente powers that the latter shall finally renounce the districts which are occupied in the west, to subject the frontiers drawn by the Versailles treaty in the east and the south to a future arbitration court, and upon this basis to enter the league of nations, is acting in the interests of English imperialism. For the discussion of this offer is calculated to arouse excitement among France's European allies, to arouse in them a mistrust of France and thereby make the first step towards the isolation of France in Europe (Czecho-Slovakia and Poland, and also other little states, only remain true to France so long as they are convinced that they can obtain support from France), to indicate to the allies of France that it would be more advantageous for them to link their fate, not with French imperialism, but to orientate to England and America, to clear France out of the Rhine and Ruhr district, in order to destroy the industrial foundation of French imperialism, and to attract Germany into the English grouping of powers against the Soviet Union and at the same time to compel France to enter this grouping under Anglo-American leadership.

It follows from this that England and America are straightening every nerve to have this plan—which has been formally brought forward by Germany but in reality was worked out by them—publicly and thoroly discussed in order to compel France openly to pronounce its attitude towards it. The most important means to this end are the pressure of America as the creditor of France, and the English offer of a partial military guarantee of the French frontiers.

FRENCH imperialism on the other hand, for the reasons mentioned above, has, of course, every cause to reject this plan, that is to do everything in order not to commit itself. Thus French imprelialism retreats to the platform of the so-called Geneva protocol, which contrary to the Anglo-German offer of a guarantee, is intended to solve the "question of security" in the French sense, that is, by strengthening the French military alliances and the position of France in agreement with its continental allies. In the meantime, France wishes to gain time in order to see whether its position in Europe can yet be saved by bargaining with England in North Africa (Morocco war) and Asia (Syria, Mossul, Mesopotamia, Turkey). French imperialism, in its dilemma and very much against its will, is showing a more friendly countenance even to Soviet Russia in order to disturb the English group of powers directed against the Soviet Union.

THE real purpose of the Anglo-German guarantee offer can be best seen from the secret document of the Foreign Minister Chamberlain, which was published in the American press. The main ideas of this memorandum are the following: The chief enemy of the capitalist world is the Soviet Union. Against the latter every group of powers must be directed. In this group Germany can play a very important role, thanks in the first place to its chemical industry (Rhineland). A military alliance with France, with the inclusion of Germany, would promote the English war plans in the Baltic, but also weaken the disagreeable French rival by separating it from its European allies. For this purpose there is dangled before Germany the bait of an eventual revision of the division of Upper Silesia, of the Polish corridor and of the prohibition of the inclusion of Austria in the German republic. By such means the bloc of the little entente and Poland would be undermined and brot under English influence.

If the French imperialist press expresses its fear of an approaching German-Austrian-Hungarian bloc, it really means the fear of an English bloc. If Germany maintains its offer accompanied by ambiguous expressions of friendship to the Soviet Union, this is the result of the all too justified fear (as the plaything of the imperialists, abandoned by the Soviet Union and completely isolated) of falling heavily to the ground between the various stools. In spite of this, counter-revolutionary Germany has no possibility of conducting any other policy, its only means of escape, which consists in a firm alliance with the Soviet Union, is closed to it by its counter-revolutionary nature.

THUS the "security negotiations" are calculated to expose and to increase the insecurity of the capitalist powers, of its war preparations against the Soviet Union and against each other. The opposite pole of all these combinations, the Soviet Union, is the only power which is capable of manoeuvering in this chaos of intrigues with self-confidence and to its own advantage.

The Jailor Gets Busy Again

By Thurber Lewis

A WORKER is thrown into jail. He may have been accused of criminal anarchy, espionage, sedition or he may have been framed-up by artists whose art consists of putting undesirable proletarians out of the way. Whatever technical charge it is he is sitting in jail for he has committed a "crime." His crime is organizing and agitating the workers against the bosses, to the detriment of profit. That's a capital crime. It is a crime that may as well be written out boldly in its own name across the statute books. It is not, as we know. But it is written nevertheless in a myriad statutes that serve the same purpose.

At times there is more jailing of workers than at others. When the offensive slackens, it means the machinery for turning out profits runs smoothly and their is little need for the statutes and the frame-up artists. The more alert workers are allowed to agitate and organize among the now complacent masses more or less at will.

The machinery balks. Profits don't come so easily and the masses are not so complacent. Or there is a war. In both cases the more alert workers constitute a danger to capitalism that is met by statutes, if statutes serve the purpose of getting them out of the way, or by frame-up artists if they don't. Sometimes quick and sudden action is needed. Then Frank Little, Wesley Everest, Ed Gregor and scores of miners, lumberjacks, railroaders and cotton-spinners pay quickly with their lives.

WHEN the workers go to jail for committing the unpardonable crime, they have to be defended. If they weren't defended they would go in droves. All the alert ones would be picked off; there would be no workers' movement.

The business of defending workers involves money, protest and demonstration, this in turn demanding organization. It is to be assumed that, for the most part, the money must come from workers themselves. Occassionally a liberal, or even a millionaire will contribute to workers' defense. But this can't be depended upon. Certainly the demonstration and protests must come from the workers.

Workers' defense in America so far has been a hit and miss affair. Defense committees have been built up around labor cases as they arise. When the cases die out so do the defense committees. This method has obvious weaknesses.

The reason for it is that nobody thinks of defense until there is need for it. Until someone goes to jail it is hard to arouse much enthusiasm for getting him out. (And if he stays in a long time, as Mooney and Billings, Ford and Suhr and Rangel and Cline have staid in a long, there is a tendency to forget about him.) The depressing feature is that after one case has been disposed of often as not a whole flock follow and all the defendants are handicapped by not having enough defense. The day of isolated cases seems to have long since passed.

IN the camp of the bosses, centralization and concentration have become the watchwords. They don't allow themselves to do things disconnectedly any more. Thoroness is their motto. When the time is ripe for a wage cut or an open shop compaign or the breaking of a big strike, it is done on a large scale and with completeness. Judge Anderson's injunction, for example, during the railway shopmen's strike of 1922 was no local affair. It applied nationally and workers were arrested under it in all parts of the country. Remember the I. W. W. trial, when 166 indictments were handed down by one court for workers in every state. Remember the Palmer red raids when workers were dragged out of their homes in San Francisco and New York at the same time. Yes indeed, the snipe-shooting stage is over. Large-scale industrial methods have been made to apply to the commerce of jailing workers.

There is a wage-cut offensive in full swing in the spinning industry. Real struggle can be smelled in the air of New England and New Jersey. Those of our minds that remember flit back to "Lawrence" and know what the struggle means in the places where fabrics are made. The central competitive union coal field is at a standstill. The miners are getting desperate. The wage agreement they signed doesn't mean anything because the coal is being dug in the non-union fields. A bitter fight is picking up steam in the old battle ground, West Virginia. At this writing the news comes of two hundred workers arrested under the usual injunction against picketing. One miner just got ten years under W. Virginia's very handy Redmond act.

THE reactionary revival in Europe has made progress. In certain countries, especially the Balkans and the Baltic States, white terror against the workers has become endemic. The rest of the countries in Europe, particularly Italy, are treating their toilers none too tenderly. America has, of necessity, acquired the habit of reflecting things that happen abroad. It is merely a phase of the growing economic interdependence and therefore political affinity that has become a characteristic of imperialist nations like our own. Our own labor-baiters have already developed a sort of American brand of white terror, but foreign influences promise to perfect their handicraft.

The famous Pittsburgh "sedition" trials after being hung up for a couple of years have been taken of the hook again. It happens that the ten defendants who have been "seditious" have also distinguished themselves in the many as yet unsuccessful efforts to unionize western Pennsylvania, the special domain of steel magnates and cossacks. A Rochester grand jury has suddenly discovered that the vice-president of the Street Railway Employes' Union and an A. F. of L. national organizer are responsible for bombing a train of its track near Buffalo in 1922.

ANYONE who thinks the United States supreme court is going to fail to find any criminal syndicalism laws constitutional ought to read Gustavus Meyers. Over a hundred workers are now held under those laws (35 states have them) and supreme court judges, or any other kind for that matter, don't wear robes for the purpose of releasing workers. We can expect the Michigan and all other cases pending an appeal to this illustrious court to re-open for purposes of quick conviction as soon as Taft and his playmates get the high-sign to hand down the kind of decision they have always handed down.

The New York state criminal anarchy law has only lately been upheld as constitutional by the supreme court. It means that Ben Gitlow goes back to Sing Sing and that the criminal syndicalism hoax is sanctioned as a permanent institution.

These are only a few examples to indicate what is coming. It's stormy weather ahead. But for the time being it can be said that the workers are enjoying something of a respite. It seems that this respite ought to be taken advantage of. There is no sense in the workers getting caught off their guard again. Widespread workers' defense will be needed and the best time to organise for workers' defense is not when the cases start to pile up, but when there is a respite.

ON June 28, a national defense conference will be held in Chicago. This conference has been called by the Labor Defense Council to rally the workers behind a movement whose purpose will be to give defense to the largest number of workers in the largest way. The aim is to create a central defense organ that will draw support from all sections of the working class to give aid to all workers attacked legally or otherwise for their activities in the labor movement, regardless of their opinions or affiliations.

This is a wise move. What worker who knows what the struggle against the bosses means will hesitate to support a cause like this?

New Forms of Revolutionary Agitation

By S.

AMONG the many forms of agitation and propaganda work the form of mass agitation may be said to be the most highly developed. The Communist parties of the West have been born upon the waves of the tide of revolution, with revolutionary slogans on their lips.

During the first years of the existence of the party the whole energies of our organizations were devoted solely to agitation among the broad masses, so that we have gained much experience in this line. If we compare our organization of agitatorial campaigns with our organization of propaganda work or party press, it must be acknowledged that we have already achieved much in the sphere of agitation. Every extensive campaign is thoroly prepared.

THESES are proclaimed, appeals and pamphlets published, the press utilized, numerous meetings organized. It must however be admitted that all the measures taken bear a somewhat uniform and monotonous character. There is a danger that these forms of agitation may cease to exercise effect upon the broad masses, especially in periods of revolutionary ebbtide, during which the broad masses of the working class are aroused to action with greater difficulty. For this reason we must endeavor to infuse as much variety as possible into our agitation; we must seek fresh ways and means of expanding our sphere of influence.

Bourgeois ideology percolates thru a thousand holes down into the working class, thru the medium of the shops and markets, the bars and theaters, cinemas and press.

We must endeavor to overstep the confines of agitations as we have hitherto understood it, and to combat the corrupting influence of the bourgeoisie and of Philistine socialism everywhere by our Communist influence.

This is no easy task in face of the constant persecution to which the Communist parties are exposed. It is a task which frequently cannot be accomplished at all by parties obliged to work illegally. Nevertheless, the question is an urgent one for a number of the sections of the Comintern.

The example set us by our Russian comrades shows us many new forms of mass agitaiton, such as may be employed with advantage by our western sections. Our youth organizations have already learnt much from our Russian comrades in this respect. It thus seems very possible to us that many difficulties may be overcome.

WHEREVER it is possible, our organizations should form Workers' clubs, so that premises are provided in which party members and sympathizers may pass an occasional leisure hour, may read a book or newspaper, or exchange ideas with comrades. It is not always possible, or even desirable, to organize a club of this kind expressly as a party club.

The existence of a club is invariably secured if it is made the central point not only of the party organization, but of our youth, and of the revolutionary labor organizations in sympathy with us. (Trade unions, co-operative societies, sport clubs, etc.) The youth in particular must be induced to take part in the organization of such clubs. For the youth is the most active element, and experience shows that the young members play a leading role in all club work. The Russian Workers' clubs have already gathered much experience with respect to the independent work done by their members.

Every club is supplemented by a number of circles of various descriptions, adapted to the various inclinations and mental needs of the club members. There are political and theoretical circles for the study of the practical and theoretical questions of the labor movements. There are sport circles (physical culture). The best attended circles attached to the clubs are those bearing a purely artistic character: choral societies, circles for music and literature, etc. The creative energy of the revolutionary working class is offered opportunity of expression by these circles. They offer at the same time the material and the basis for various outlets of artistic activity: theatrical performances, recitations, etc. These circles furnish the club with extensive possibilities of organizing new forms of mass agitation by the aid of art, and enable them to form centers of attraction irresistible to even the most backward and least developed strata of the working class. The clubs possess cinematograph apparatus, employed from time to time for showing films of revolutionary import. The extensive scale upon which club work is carried on is naturally proportional to the extensive means furnished for this purpose by the managements of the state factories and works, by the trade unions, and by the state itself (thru its education authorities.) Under the conditions imposed on our Communist sections in Western Europe the scope of club work is of course much smaller.

WITH reference to the forms taken by mass agitation, two of these may be dealt with here in detail; propagandist performances of a more or less theatrical nature, and the so-called verbal newspaper. Both of these forms of agitation call for a certain amount of artistic effort, and both require a considerable amount of careful preparation. Our Russian comrades organize both of these forms of work in closest co-operation with the club circles. When the club undertakes some special campaign of agitation, it allots the various circles the tasks falling to their share. The circles decide who is to take part, divide the roles, rehearse the whole, and practically undertake the work.

THE simplest form of performance, and one invariably appealing to the whole public, is the so-called agitation or political trial. Any political question of the day may be made the subject of the trial. For instance, the Ebert lawsuit lately formed a center of public interest. At the time when the trial was proceeding in Magdeburg, and the working class was greatly interested in the issue, an effective agitation could have been carried out by a mock trial at which the workers themselves tried Ebert. Much larger numbers could have been attracted to witness such a performance than to the ordinary meetings with Communist speakers. A similar trial with MacDonald as culprit could also be arranged. Not only individual persons, but whole corporations, may be placed in the prisoner's dock, for instance the social democratic party or the bourgeois government, or "left social democracy," or fascism, etc.; in such cases living persons among the leaders of the organizations concerned must take the place of the accused.

THESE agitation or political mock trials are formed on the model of the revolutionary tribunal; three judges, a chairman, a public prosecutor a barrister for the defense. The whole proceedure and wording of the trial must however be exactly arranged beforehand; the indictment, the hearing of the witnesses, the evidence, the explanations offered by the accused, the speeches for the prosecution and defense, the closing words of the accused. The roles must be carefully allotted, and every role must be learnt by heart. The verdict must be very carefully thot out. It must be remembered that when the performance is well carried out the audience follows with the intensest inner participation, and is roused to a high pitch of excitement, so that the everdict can have a very considerable effect.

A political agitatorial mock trial of this description can be easily developed into a real theatrical performance, with suitable costumes and disguises. Humor and satire may be extensively used. All this of course involves greater difficulties, and is by no means absolutely necessary; it can however be carried out with advantage where sufficient capable actors, and other means are available.

THE organization of such political agitation mock trials is not confined to the resources of any single club. A hall or other building frequented by the workers can be employed for the purpose, or other premises customarily used for meetings or entertainments.

THE organization of a verbal newspaper does not require such complicated preparations. This form of agitation is more mobile in every respect, requires a smaller number of participators, and can be arranged in the factory, restaurant, etc. The object of a verbal newspaper is to impart to the audience, within the shortest possible period of time—say half an hour—everything of improtance for the political situation of the moment, but without degenerating into a wearisome and monotonous meeting. As a rule the verbal newspaper is arranged in the form of an editors' consultation.

Those taking part are allotted roles corresponding to the division ot labor on an editorial staff: leading article, foreign editor, home politics editor, telegrams, factory notes, humorous supplement, scientific review, etc. The editor of the paper, in a few plain words, announces the contents of the newspaper, and calls upon each of the editors to narrate his share, no one person speaking for more than 5 minutes. The "leading article" then speaks, discussing the facts just heard, but no longer than ten minutes.

A SECOND article may follow, etc. A verbal newspaper must not last for longer than 30 to 40 minutes at longest. Preparative work is required if the whole is to be carried out effectively. The articles must not be read from manuscripts, but must be actually narrated, that is, they must be written down and learnt from memory beforehand.

THE experience gained by our Russian comrades, has shown that by means of these verbal newspapers it is possible to arouse the interest of even the most backward workers, those who as a rule read no newspaper whatever, but satisfy their natural political interest by every description of political rumor and gossip. The greater the variety offered by the newspaper, the less it wearies the hearer, and the oftener he comes to hear the paper again. Such verbal newspapers can be organised with a permanent staff, and at regular intervals in the same places. By this means the hearers gain an affection for their newspaper. An "Answers to correspondents" can also be arranged for, and questions from the audience collected. These are then replied to when the next number of the paper appears. The hearers can be induced to give the paper a certain name. A verbal newspaper of this kind gradually loses its atraction for a class conscious workers' audience reading its own daily newspapers. Among our Russian comrades the newspapers has gradually been transformed into a so-called living newspaper, a form requiring a certain amount of artistic organization.

It need not be said that we could obtain the most effective results if we could avail ourselves of the attractions of the "pictures", one of the mightiest means of influencing the masses. But it is exceedingly difficult to do this, especially under European conditions. Much has already been accomplished in this line in the Union of Soviet Socialist Russia. Some few of the films issued by the Soviet cinematography have already been given in Europe.

A more detailed treatment of this subject would go too far. Our aim is to draw the attention of all active workers to this serious question, and to call attention to fresh forms of agitation.

BESCO FORCED TO TALK PEACE BY MASS PIC[illegible]G AND ROUT OF MAINTENA[illegible]EN FROM JOBS

NEW HAVEN CONN
12-17-25

(Special to [illegible]rker)

HALIFAX, Nova Scotia, J[illegible]he British Empire Steel Corporation is reported in new[illegible]e Breton to be willing to talk terms to the 12,000 strik[illegible] of District 26 who ten days ago laid aside their pacifis[illegible] began such effective mass picketing that the white collar scabs were put to rout, even tho company gunmen shot down two pickets and 175 miners are under charges of "rioting and looting."

Labor Minister Murdock, who did nothing much so long as the miners starved to death peaceably, hurried into the district on the heels of about a thousand troops to endeavor to get a compromise between the forces before the withdrawal of maintenance men from the mines and the shutdown of the power pumps would destroy Besco's property permanently.

Referdum on Proposal.

The District 26 executive board is understood to have received Besco's "peace proposals" yesterday and to have asked postponement in order to take them to a referendum vote of the membership.

All maintenance work in District 26 is at a standstill, and the policy of the left wing is confirmed as correct by the results of the reversal of tactics on the part of the district executive.

The official organ of the Communist Party of Canada. The Worker, published at Toronto, has the following to say about the change of policy from class collaboration and pacifism to class struggle and militant mass picketing:

Communist Policy Vindicated.

"After three months of slow starvation the miners' executive have made their final confession of failure of class collaboration by reversing their policy in fevor of mass picketing and a one hundred per cent strike.

AS WE SEE IT.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

HARRY SINCLAIR, secured Teapot Dome legally and in a manner befitting a capitalist gentleman according to a decision handed down by a judge with the Gaelic cognomen of Kennedy. This is just as we expected and the DAILY WORKER would miss its chuckle of satisfaction if the aforesaid Kennedy had ordered that Sinclair be placed in irons and forced to disgorge the gasolene. Coincident with the decision comes a big rise in Sinclair oil stocks. This means more millions for Sinclair and for those who were in the know.

THE government will appeal the case we are told. That is also to be expected. Had Sinclair lost, he would appeal the case, but his stocks would go down instead of up and the little fellows would sell out and the big fellows would buy, knowing that some other court would find the Teapot Dome deal O. K.

• • •

IT is significant tho only a coincidence that Robert M. LaFollette, the political stormy petrel and gadfly of big capital should pass away about the time Judge Kennedy was reading the decision exonerating Sinclair, Albert B. Fall and Denby. LaFollette was the man responsible for digging into the question of the legality of the oil leases. He died at the moment when his futile battle against the big fellows was being liquidated with LaFollette's completely defeated.

• • •

SOME people see in the Sinclair victory a government defeat. It is nothing of the kind. It's a victory for the ways of big business and what else does this government represent? Doheny lost in a similar case to that in which Sinclair won. But another court will right that wrong. In the meantime Doheny is getting along nicely as an honored member of the ruling class. The capitalist machine does not run like a clock. There are mistakes, but the courts are the watchdogs of business and their decisions are calculated to make business bigger, better and busier. If they slip occasionally it is only in the nature of an exception.

• • •

SOME people thought that the Teapot Dome scandal would shake this bourgeois government to its foundations. Even some radicals expected the masses to rise in revolt because Fall sold the naval oil reserves for $135,000 and a herd of cattle. But the great majority of them did not see anything wrong about it. There wasn't, as far as the workers were concerned. To the workers, the more intelligent ones, it was only a case of a capitalist servant misusing the confidence the capitalists placed in him. Had Fall been an official of the Soviet government and illegally turned over the Baku oil fields to some wealthy Nep man, he would be making worms by now, and the Russian workers would consider it their business to see that "finis" was written

WHITE GUARD ARMY OF 10,000 PRIDE OF ILL. BANKERS' ASSOCIATION

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PEORIA, Ill., June 21.—The 10,000 privately maintained gunmen of the Illinois Bankers' Association were one of the principal subects of gratification of the 35th annual convention of the bankers held in Peoria this week. They seemed to think that the quarter of a million dollars they are spending on this army to put down losses by bank robbers of about a third of a million are a good investment. The force is three times the size of the state's national guard and like other investments can be used for many purposes besides the announced object.

CURLEE STRIKE SCENE OF FIGHT FOR UNION SHOP

Mass Picketing Wins Over Mass Arrests

(Special to The Daily Worker)

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 21.—More arrests in the Curlee strike are taking place. Since the beginning of the strike the police have been getting more and more arrogant and brutal.

Instead of this intimidating them, however, the brutal treatment of the police only serves to make the strikers more determined than ever to win the strike. They are now picketing the Curlee plant at 21st and Locust streets en masse.

27 Disturbers—of Profits.

Lately the police have even tried to prevent peaceful picketing. On Thursday night 27 pickets were arrested without the slightest cause and charged with "disturbing the peace." This did not frighten the strikers, however, as was shown when many of those arrested returned to the picket line the next morning.

The police, enraged by the determination of the strikers, proceeded to make wholesale arrests. Fifty-three strikers were hauled in for merely walking the picket line and exercising their supposed "right of free speech."

The arrested strikers sang songs on their way to jail and displayed a splendid mass spirit. As soon as released on bail they returned to the picket line to resume their duties.

It is reported that some of the scabs, ashamed or afraid to face the solid lines of pickets, are staying away from the job.

A committee of strike leaders called on the chief of police Friday to demand that he discontinue the outrageous treatment of the strikers. The chief promised to see that peaceful picketing is permitted in the future, but the strikers have no faith in his promises. All say that they will continue the picketing whether permitted or not.

The Usual Bunk.

Curlee bosses are spreading the usual line of bunk thru the St. Louis capitalist papers—such as that the strikers' jobs are taken and the plant is now running normal, etc. But no one pays any attention to this stuff, as it is plain that the two Curlee shops are badly hit.

The strike is being conducted by the Amalgamated Clothing Workers of America.

Ford Plans Mine Project.

ST. PAUL, Minn., June 21.—The Ford Motor company is considering entering into the business of mining iron ore on a large scale along with the development of power and the acquisition of one of the best harbors on Lake Superior.

Amalgamated Food Workers Win Quick Victory in New York

NEW YORK.—The cooks in the Yates restaurant, at 43rd St. and Broadway, are members of the Amalgamated Food Workers' Union, Hotel Workers' Branch.

Recently a butcher was hired at this restaurant and refused to join the union. He was given two days to join and still refused. Following this, an official of the union went to the restaurant in an effort to convince him that his interests lay with the organized workers. He still refused to join for some unexplained reason. Suddenly the bright lights in the restaurant became dim, going out completely, and plunging it into darkness. The manager became very much excited. Finally the lights were on again. It was called to the attention of the manager that the butcher was not a member of the union. The butcher is now out of a job and a union man is at work.

PARIS BUS MEN FIND NEW WAY OF STRIKING

"Proper Care" and 3 Miles an Hour

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, June 21.—Communist elements among the bus drivers have taught their fellow workers an effective way of striking while getting paid for it and keeping scabs off the job.

The bus drivers' union made demands for a raise in the basic wages, which now is beginning at 450 francs a month. The company refused and the men resorted to the strike on the job.

While the busses usually travel at about twenty miles an hour, the whole flock thruout Paris began to travel no faster than three miles an hour, with the result that traffic in the center of the city is being congested and blocked in the most terrible way imaginable.

The drivers insist that they are merely obeying the law which instructs bus drivers to "use all care in driving to avoid accidents" and which leaves to the driver the definition of what is proper care. There are going to be no accidents if the bus drivers can prevent, so their care to avoid any smashup will continue at the rate of three miles an hour until their wages are raised.

BRITAIN WILL USE MAILED FIST ON CHINA

Labor Party Quiet in Parliamentary Debate

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, June 21—A declaration in the house of commons by Austen Chamberlain on the Chinese question states that the British government will "hold the Chinese government responsible for all injuries to British nationals and British property."

"There can be no weakness or hesitation," declared Chamberlain emphatically. "It is not a remedy for the situation, but it is necessary because of the outrages that have taken place." The honorable secretary of foreign affairs did not mention that the outrages have been all chargeable to British troops as the fact that scores of Chinese are dead and only one Briton killed would clearly indicate.

His remarks were interrupted by Jack Jones, laborite, who had to be "reproved" by the deputy speaker.

The Right Hon. C. P. Trevelyan initiated the debate on the Chinese situation, at the same time repudiating any desire to attack the government, because all parties of the house "were agreed on the gravity of the situation and the duty of the government to take steps to protect the lives of its nationals."

He continued, however, that it was necessary to inquire into the industrial situation, especially the employment of children, and argued that it was not to British interests that larger dividends should accrue by the exploitation of cheap Chinese labor.

ANTI-COMMUNIST DRIVE BEGUN BY FRENCH CABINET

Socialists Vote for Imperialist War

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, June 21—Premier Painleve, whose policy of aggressive warfare against the Riffians was given a blanket indorsement by the chamber of deputies, with the Communists the sole opposition, has asked the chamber to cancel the parliamentary immunity of the Communist deputies. The home of Deputy Doriot has been raided upon Painleve's orders, and his private papers stolen by the government. Doriot has been summoned before the examining magistrate for prosecution.

The vote indorsing Painleve's imperialistic policy in Morocco was 523 to 32, with the socialists joining the right bloc and the center for the continued invasion of North Africa. Doriot's demand for an interpellation was voted down. From now on the French will take the offensive, it was said.

Socialists in Swing to Right.

A general drive against the Communists has been inaugurated by Premier Painleve, who fears their growing influence with the workers, and many arrests of workers are expected.

The vote of the socialist deputies for the imperialistic war against the Riffians shows that they have decided to join with the reformist parties who are lining up behind the attempt of foreign minister Briand and finance minister Caillaux, to give the Painleve government the support of the reactionaries. Caillaux has made an alliance with the bankers in formulating his financial program, and the socialists have indorsed the capitalists' budget.

Krim Confirms Sell-Out.

Abd-el-Krim, in an interview published in the Rome newspaper Il Popolo D'Italia, declared that he did not fear a Spanish-French alliance against him. He declared he could hold out at least three years more. Krim confirmed the statement of the Communist deputy Doriot that Spain had offered to sell the Riff country to France for a million francs.

Word from Madrid reveal that the Spanish workers are so strongly opposed to further action against the Riffians that the conference of Spanish and French delegates to decide on a united war is near a break-up.

The Spanish government knows full well that the French government not only did not aid them in the war against the Riffs, but that the Riffs were supplies with French arms with which to fight the Spaniards.

The socialists were defeated in the French chamber when their motion for the continuance for the use of proportional representation in elections was defeated by a vote of 295 to 265. The radical socialists voted against the socialists, again emphasizing the break-up of the left bloc, and the swing toward a right wing government.

HARRY JENSEN FAILS TO GIVE ELECTION COUNT

Progressives See Plot to Steal Election

Contrary to the usual custom, the results of the voting for district council officers in the carpenters' union were not announced at the meeting of the council held on last Friday evening. In fact the meeting, if such it could be called, lasted only ten minutes. The officers had nothing to report.

Those meetings cost money as the delegates are paid anything from one to five dollars for attending them. But it is apparent that Harry Jensen and his machine care nothing for expense. Jensen's excuse for not announcing the vote was that the tabulation committee was not yet ready to make its report. It should not take the committee longer than a few hours to count the votes cast by 36 or 40 locals in the city.

Postpone Next Meeting.

The progressive carpenters smell a rat. It is also significant that the MINE BLAST TAKES LIVES OF THREE COAL DIGGERS AT WALSENBURG, COLO.

Workers and Students of China Defeat Efforts of Merchants to Surrender

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 21.—The pressure from below of the Chinese masses, unions, students and workers combined, has forced the Chinese chamber of commerce to rescind their order issued Friday for the re-openining of the closed shops and native banks.

The 250,000 or more Chinese on strike are still as determined as ever to effect a satisfactory settlement with the foreign imperialists, especially Britain. The shipping strike is particularly strategic as it ties up all commercial movements.

The shipping strike, also, has been extended to Hong Kong.

Chang's Troops Threaten.

The continued movement of Chang Tso-lin's Manchurian troops, commanded by his son is assuming a threatening aspect. Not, however, against the foreign imperialists, but against the strikers, and the possibility that the strikers will receive military aid from Chinese troops who are loyal to the cause of Chinese liberation. It is know to everyone that Chang Tso-lin represents Japan and probably is acting not only with Japanese backing but with British as well.

The excuse for Chang's troop movement is that General Sun Chuan Fung, governor of the province of Chekiang and friend of Chang's most formidable contestant for military power, General Feng Yu-hsiang, is mobilizing troops in Chekiang to aid the Shanghai strikers oust the imperialists.

General Feng, whose headquarters are at Kalgan, has openly sided with the Chinese liberation movement and declared that his army stood ready to fight for the independence of China from all foreign imperialist oppression.

Chinese Students Killed Outside Foreign Settlement

PEKING, China, June 21.—The murdered Chinese students who were shot down by British Sikh troops were killed outside the foreign settlement in Shanghai, and the fault of the British and the whole international settlement administration is clear, says the note of the Chinese government delivered yesterday to the foreign imperialist powers in reply to the latter's contention that China alone was responsible for everything.

China refused to accept the imperialists' version of the affair, and in laying the responsibility upon the for-

LABOR MEET IN N. D. IGNORES VITAL PROBLEMS

No Mention of Labor Party; Smith Raves

(Special to The Daily Worker)

FARGO, N. D., June 21.—The North Dakota Federation of Labor has adjourned an uneventful three-day convention here. According to the reports from the various officials, representing the principal cities of North Dakota, the trade union movement of the state is not in as flourishing a condition as it should be. It was hoped, however, that a few organizations, such as the miners, could be built up again within the course of the year.

Kate Richard O'Hare made several talks on prison labor.

Fraternal delegate Stephen Ely of Montana did not deliver a tirade against the reds as he did a year ago at the Bismarck convention. But Paul Smith, representing the A. F. of L., more than made up for Ely's desire for peace at any price. It is a question, however, as to whether the delegates understood just what Smith was driving at because he made an impartial attack against the ku klux klan, the open shoppers and the Workers Party.

In one breath he declaimed against the horrors of a dictatorship of the workers and in the next spoke of the plans of the A. F. of L. for putting on a grand membership drive. And if the strengthening of the organization is not to give the workers more power to dictate what is the good of it, anyway?

There was but little mention made of the political situation at the convention. The idea seemed to prevail that about all that could be accomplished along political lines was to keep the present labor laws intact and not try to get more at the present time. The retiring president and secretary of the federation were re-elected. Grand Forks was selected as the next convention city.

EXILE FROM BRITISH INDIA IN AMERICA APPEALS TO SIKHS NOT TO SHOOT CHINESE FOR BRITAIN

NEW YORK, June 21.—(FP)—Sikh soldiers in China are called upon to desist firing on Chinese students and textile mill strikers in a cablegram sent to the China Press and Shan Pao, Shanghai, by Sailendra N. Ghose, revolutionary exile of India, now national director of the Friends of Freedom for India organization in America.

Ghose also wired the Sikh Temple of Stockton, Calif., to use their influence with the Sikh troops employed by the British in Shanghai, to stop the massacre of Chinese workers. Ghose reminded the Sikhs of the terrible Amritsar massacre of 1919 when Sikhs themselves were wantonly fired upon by British soldiers in the heart of the Sikh city Amritsar.

"The Chinese are fighting to assert their own national sovereign rights and to re-assert a few rights stolen from them," Ghose states. "We have called upon our own people to refrain from enslaving the Chinese."

FORWARD STEP IS MARKED BY THE THIRD CONGRESS OF THE UNION OF SOVIET REPUBLICS

By L. F. VINOV

(International Press Correspondence)

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., (By Mail).—The third Soviet congress of the Soviet Union took place at a time which is characterized by the economic and political strengthening of the Soviet power, of the unceasing advance of the economic reconstruction of the country, but on the other hand by the advance of reaction in almost all capitalist countries, of increasing diplomatic and military preparations on the part of world imperialism in order "to settle accounts" with the only workers' state existing today.

The Soviet congress was preceded by a furious campaign against the Soviet Union, not only in the capitalist and social democratic press, but also in capitalist diplomacy.

The recent period of campaign of calumny began with the English "Zinoviev letter," by which MacDonald prepared his own defeat, and reached its highest point, after a real flood of forged "Comintern letters," in the campaign which was conducted against Moscow on the occasion of the Sofia explosion

The recent diplomatic products of this campaign are represented by the assertions of the English home secretary, Sir William Joynson Hicks, and of the faithful Sancho Pansa of the entente imperialists, the Austrian foreign minister Mataja.

This diplomatic and press campaign was accompanied by the building of armament factories along the Soviet frontiers, for the greater part with the participation and under the in-

NEW AGENCY OF DEATH TAKES LIVES OF SEVEN WOMEN RADIO WORKERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 21—Eight investigations were under way today into the sinister, insidious new agency of death held responsible for killing seven employes of the United States Radium Corporation of America. It was believed to be "radium mecrosis."

An autopsy will be performed on the body of Mrs. Sarah T. Maillefer, the last victim to die. The other six victims were women employed in painting luminous watch-dials. Their custom of wetting their brushes with their lips was believed the means the subtile poison was introduced into their systems.

CALLES SELLS MEXICO OUT TO WALL STREET

Accedes to Demands of Kellogg Note

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—The Calles government under cover of its note to Secretary of State Kellogg, declaring that Mexico would not permit foreign interference in internal affairs, has given in to American imperialism, and taken steps to obey the demands of Kellogg's note.

Recalling the statement given out at Kellogg's office, that the Coolidge government was not concerned with what Calles said, but what action he took, Calles has released figures for the 1925 budget, which hets aside 41 million pesos for foreign obligations.

In addition, President Calles signed a decree authorizing the issuance of government bonds to the extent of 50 million pesos, the proceeds to be used in paying foreign capitalists for lands appropriated under the agrarian statutes. This is the first bond issue for the purpose that the government has authorized, and is recognized as the direct result of the Kellogg note.

Luis Morones, minister of commerce and labor, and head of the Federation of Labor, speaking for the Calles government, assured the American chamber of commerce in an address to them that the Calles government would combat the Communists.

REVOLT AGAINST SIGMAN MACHINE IN THE I. L. G. W. U. GROWS AS LOCALS GIVE AID TO LEFT WINGERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 21.—The revolt against the yellow "socialist" Sigman machine in the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union is growing. Local No. 89, of the Italian Dressmakers' Union, has withdrawn its representatives from the committee appointed to "try" the left wingers.

Local No. 41 adopted unanimously a resolution condemning the joint board and upholding the executives of the three suspended locals.

A meeting of the shop chairmen is called for Tuesday evening at the Manhattan Lyceum, which will organize the administration of union affairs in shops, the settlement of grievances, etc., under control of the executives of Locals 2, 9 and 22.

SOCIALIST SLUGGERS BEAT TEN UNION DELEGATES AT SHAM N. Y. FUSION CONFAB; MANY WITHDRAW

By WILLIAM WEINSTONE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 21.—Socialist sluggers, led by chairman Algernon Lee, used violence against labor union delegates at the sham labor fusion conference held here. Ten delegates were badly beaten.

Delegate Lupo, of Local Union No. 38, International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, was kicked and struck in the head and chest. He received ambulance attention.

Nine others were so severely kicked that they required the attention of physicians. Bella Altschuler, of Local Union No. 43, of the Milliners, was thrown down the stairs. One of her fingers was broken.

Union Delegates Expose Fake.

Many socialist delegates protested against these acts of violence. The prominent Brooklyn socialist, Jacques Cornell left the convention in protest against the steam roller violence.

Thirty-five trade union fraternal delegates issued a declaration which said: "The Labor Fusion Conference is a fraud. It is not a labor fusion conference, but a socialist conference. We came because the convention call declared the conference would be held for political unity of labor, but we found that the socialist party officials controlled the conference, unseated ten labor delegates, without cause, and refused to discuss labor unity and a real conference for a labor unity ticket and a labor party."

"Therefore we will not further participate in the convention."

Thirty-five Withdraw.

The statement was signed by eighteen delegates from local unions, including the Furriers' International, four locals, and the Milliners, Food Workers, and Shoe Workers unions, and seventeen delegates representing workmen circles and other fraternal organizations.

The violence arose because the resolutions committee refused to read the resolution proposed by two labor delegates from the Ladies' Garment Workers Local No. 38 and the Milliners Union Local No. 43, calling for a real conference and a united labor ticket. The chairman refused to hear discussion, the delegates protested, and the socialists called in sluggers after refusing to read to the conference the statement referred to above.

Communists Demand United Front.

Workers in the gallery were astounded at the violent methods used by the socialists. The Workers (Communist) Party did not send representatives to the convention, but sent an open letter. The Workers Party has issued a declaration denouncing the violence and fraud of the socialists and supporting the labor candidates in their demands for a united labor ticket.

The convention was packed with socialist party delegates, who were so great in number that the credentials committee did not read the names and organizations of delegates seated, as this would show that the so-called union representation, except those mentioned above, were socialist labor bureaucrats.

Dodge Discussion.

The convention was opened by Lee, who acted as temporary chairman. The chairman appointed the committees, which were composed entirely of socialists, such as Gerber. The resolutions committee reported. The only business until ten o'clock was a resolution introduced by a socialist, supporting Sigman in the needle trades situation. This was not reported out by the committee on the ground that it was not the business of the convention.

The same action was taken on a resolution regarding political prisoners in Soviet Russia. In both cases the socialists feared discussion on the resolutions.

Socialist Pleads for Supreme Court.

The socialist Seidel, former assemblyman, defended the supreme court decision on the Gitlow case on the grounds that the government acted correctly. He said the case was not one of free speech.

A delegate from the Carpenters Union defended Gitlow because Gitlow calls for the rule of the workers. Following his speech the convention adopted a resolution defending free speech and against the supreme court ruling.

The convention will nominate as candidate for mayor Meyer London, or some other reactionary.

SOLDIERS CRUSH CHILEAN REVOLT IN HOT BATTLE

Seized Factories Retaken by Artillery

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SANTIAGO, Chile, June 21.—Angered by the suppression of two Communist newspapers at Iquique, capital of the province of Tarapaca, strikes and factory seizures began among the Chilean workers in the nitrate fields on June 6th. The soldiery went at the workers brutally and a veritable massacre resulted, from 500 to 1,000 killed being given in various unconfirmed reports.

The Chilean government declared martial law on June 5th and dispatched all available troops to the scene. Machine gunners from a Chilean cruiser were landed and artillery sent against the workers. Two provinces, Tarapaca and Antofagasta, were placed under military rule.

Plants seized by the workers comprised the Coruna, Felisa, Gloria, Santa Luisa, Ponte Verdra, Barrenchea, Marouscia and the Argentina.

Revolt Spreads.

The Coruna plant was seized first. A council was established and that night thirty armed men advanced to the Felisa plant, where they surrounded the manager's office and compelled the delivery of all arms, ammunition and horses. Augmenting their strength to 150 men or more, the workers proceeded to the capture of the Santa Luisa and the Ponte Verdra plants.

The troops after a score of pitched battles and scattered actions succeeded in occupying most of the plants, but at the Coruna plant the soldiery brought up heavy artillery and fired it with great destructive results upon the plant before dislodging the workers. The Coruna workers fought to the last.

Troops Massacre Prisoners.

Ugly rumors not permitted to be printed by the Chilean government say that only about thirty workers were killed in action, but that after some 400 were taken prisoner they were butchered by the military. Under the state of siege prevailing, only by some of the workers escaping from the nitrate field region can the truth be found out.

WORKERS AND STUDENTS OF CHINA DEFEAT EFFORTS OF MERCHANTS TO SURRENDER

eign troops demands sharply that prompt settlement be made for the murders of the students shot down on May 30 and since. Only by such prompt and satisfactory action can the present unrest in China be solved, the note states.

The note takes issue with the powers regarding the Hankow trouble, where the British consul had previously assured the foreign commissioner that if it was found necessary to fire on rioters the troops' rifles would be fired into the air. Because of this China insists that the British accept the full responsibility for the sanguinary clash at Hankow.

Had British Consent, Claim.

Regarding the Kiukiang clash, with subsequent damage, the Chinese claim this was incidental to the extinguishing of a fire in the Taiwan bank building.

The Chunkiang clash occurred after students had obtained permission from the British consul to hold a parade, the note says. The consul also agreed to recall the arms issued to the police, it is claimed.

Blame Foreigners.

Except for the MacKenzie killing, which has not been solved, China insists that all the other Shanghai incidents arose from the failure to obtain a prompt settlement of the original clash.

Chinese delegates representing forty-eight colleges Saturday sent a deputation to the minister of war and the foreign office demanding that the Chinese government immediately sever relations with Great Britain.

German mark, no quote. Shanghai, tael, demand, 77.12½c; cable, 78.00c.

THE CHINESE REVOLT WILL BE EXPLAINED AT MASS MEETING

What is happening in China? Why are the Chinese masses in revolt against the British, Japanese and American governments? What is Soviet Russia's attitude towards China? What is the character of the present Chinese rebellion? These and other questions will be answered next Wednesday evening by speakers competent to discuss the Chinese situation at a mass meeting in North West Hall, corner of Western and North avenues, next Wednesday evening, June 24 at 8 p. m.

The speakers will be William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, who is now writing a series of articles entitled, "The Enslavement of China" for that paper; Henry Philips, organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress, and Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League. The meeting will be held under the auspices of the United Front Committee. Admission will be free. Workers are urged to attend this meeting and demonstrate against the oppression of the Chinese by the United States government as well as by those of Britain, France, Italy and Japan.

FOREIGNER DEFENDING CHINESE COOLIE IN SHANGHAI TURNS OUT TO BE MEMBER SOVIET SERVICE

By SINBAD.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, (By Mail.)—The Astor House is a Shanghai hotel and it had the honor of being the scene of a proceeding rarely witnessed here. Yesterday a lady, a foreigner, had witnessed the beating of a ricsha coolie in front of the Astor House by a Sikh. She did not pass by on the other side of the street but she advanced towards the Sikh, took hold of the club he had been using and attempted to wrench it from his grasp.

Her efforts were in vain for the time being but in a few minutes an American was passing by and she ordered to take the club from the Sikh. The American loath to commit such an unforeign act hesitated an instant but at last he acceeded to the only humane demand.

At last the Sikh was disarmed and by this time all the compatriots of the beaten coolie were gathering into a menacing purpose—full crowd.

The coolie who had been mercilessly beaten struck at the Sikh and as a result a red welt appeared across his face. This was too much for the Skih and he beat a hasty retreat.

A word about this promiscous beating of a coolie. There is no reason that warrants this wanton action on the part of the Sikh. The servile attitude of the coolie coupled with the knowledge that all the forces of imperialism are behind him, the Sikh, is the provocation that is acted on. Yesterday's action should go down in the annals of Shanghai history as practically the only time that a foreigner defended the cause of the coolie in the way that that woman did.

Anxious to know who this rare person was I followed her with my eyes and to my surprise I saw her entering the Soviet consulate. I wended my steps there likewise and my inquiries resulted in the fact that she was in the Soviet diplomatic service.

Funeral Today of Paul Bernhard, Victim in Wreck

The funeral of Paul Bernhard and his wife, who were killed in the Lackawanna wreck near Hackettstown, last week, will be held Monday, June 22, from 6904 Roosevelt Road, Oak Park, Ill.

Comrade Bernhard was a member of the Workers Party, his connection with the revolutionary political movement dating back to 1890 when he joined in Germany. He was for many years active in the socialist party, taking part as a left wing delegate up to the time of the split of 1919, and later being involved but not apprehended in the trial against the Communist Labor Party. He was an active member of Machinists' Union No. 266, and of the Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Fund. The later organisation is conducting the funeral and William F. Kruse will speak in English. Speakers in German and Bohemian will represent other working class organizations of which the deceased couple were members.

IRON WORKERS WIN STRIKE ON BIG BRIDGE JOB

Victory to Have Far-Reaching Effect

(Special to the DAILY WORKER.)

BULLETIN.

PHILADELPHIA, June 21. — The Delaware bridge strike was won yesterday afternoon under the leadership of Earl Calvert, organizer of Brooklyn, Local 361. Four hundred iron workers start working today. The victory is expected to affect many jobs under construction by the American Bridge company.

Tie Up Big Job.

PHILADELPHIA, (By Mail.)—Four hundred structural iron workers tied up the great Delaware river bridge when the American Bridge company refused to grant the men an increase of 15 cents per hour. The strikers are holding out solidly and have secured the assistance of an organizer from the Structural Iron Workers' Union to help them conduct the strike.

Most of the men are non-union, but a good bunch of militants who are members of the union have succeeded in convincing the men that they are entitled to union rates.

The American Bridge company, a well-known anti-union corporation, made several offers to the strikers which were unanimously turned down. First they asked the men to go back to work for a week until the company makes a decision on their demands, this not having the desired effect, the company announced a bonus system for the riveters.

Both propositions were tricks on the part of the company first to break the spirit of rebellion by stalling it off for a week or more and the second to divide the riveters from the other men.

Speed-up System.

The riveters laughed at the bonus proposition, the union men among them know its full significance and all the others realize that this is an open speed-up system that can only result in more accidents for the workers. The great bridge has claimed three iron workers as its victims so far, and all the men recall the incidents leading to the deaths of L. Connors, A. Murphy, and J. Veite. There was no discussion on accepting the bonus system. It was turned down unanimously.

The present scale of the iron workers is $1.10 per hour and the demand is $1.25. The strike is in its third day and no scabs have been secured and the strikers realize that no scabs are likely to take their places. The Delaware River bridge will be the world's largest suspension bridge when completed. It is being constructed by the American Bridge company under its usual open shop basis.

Waiting For Opportunity.

There are well over 900 men employed on the great structure all working on the open shop basis, but many carrying union cards and no doubt like the iron workers, just waiting for an opportunity to organize and strike.

Due to the lack of contact between the workers of the various trades employed on the bridge, no sympathetic strike was possible. The result is that about 500 men are working on the bridge while the iron workers are striking and getting their forces organized.

The bridge is due to be completed for July, 1926, which still leaves about a year's work to be completed.

Bad Working Conditions.

The working conditions on the bridge are extremely dangerous and undesirable in many other respects and the company has had great difficulty securing experienced workers.

The strikers point out that the New York union scale is $1.50 and if the American Bridge Co. delays very long in granting $1.25 they will be up against a demand for the New York union scale.

A. Calvert, organizer from Local No. 361, Brooklyn, is giving all the assistance to the strikers at present and arrangements are being made to hold meetings of the strikers.

Harry Collins, the chairman of the strike committee expresses the sentiment of the strikers when he states that not a single man will go back to work until the company grants the full demands.

Middle Class Hopes Are Buried with La Follette; Labor Goes Marching on

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, more than the remains of Senator LaFollette are laid to rest in a Madison, Wis., grave. Middle class hopes for an effective struggle in behalf of its interests, at least for the time being, are also buried.

No one appears to take up LaFollette's mantle. No greater proof of the one-man movement that LaFollette developed, and that he sought to transform into a bourgeois third party. Another apostle of small business, catering to the official fringe of the labor movement, may arise at some time in the future, when the petty bourgeoisie again goes on the warpath. But LaFollette's death now makes it easier for those who followed him, especially the members of the U. S. senate and house of representatives, to desert even the weakened struggle that the Wisconsin senator led during the fading years of his life.

• • • •

There is, for instance, Senator Wheeler, of Montana, vice-presidential candidate on the LaFollette ticket. Wheeler is back safe and comfortable in the democratic party.

Senator Borah, head of the republican committee on foreign relations, is closer to Wall Street than ever. He forgets his campaign for the recognition of the Soviet Union, and joins the whole Coolidge administration in its imperialist attack on Mexico's sovereign rights. Senator Johnson, of California, never recovered from his support of Newberry, the Michigan multi-millionaire, who bought his senate seat.

Senator Brookhart, of Iowa, and the two senators from North Dakota, Ladd and Frazier, are protesting their republican regularity, altho the two latter are supposed to be non-partisan leaguers. Senator Norris, of Nebraska, is not worthy of mention, while in Minnesota, it is declared that Magnus Johnson will try to get back into the senate by running in the republican primaries and capturing the G. O. P. nomination, instead of sticking to the Farmer-Labor Party. Even LaFollette's governor of Wisconsin, Blaine, is flirting with the Coolidge administration. Note his presence at the recent Coolidge love feast at St. Paul.

• • • •

Thus LaFollette's death will accomplish an exposure of all these political careerists who have been riding into power since the war on the discontent of the city workers and poor farmers. The reactionary labor officialdom has kept great masses of the rank and file in line with the promise that LaFollette and his kind would get something for them. Even the "socialist" party took up this siren song in its anti-Communist campaign and as part of its efforts to make itself appear "respectable." It was more than a coincidence that LaFollette's remains should be borne on their way from Washington to Wisconsin while Eugene V. Debs was in Minnesota trying to breathe life into the ashes of the "socialist" party organization in that state. Debs does not yet know that the party he sponsored has passed away.

• • • •

These developments in the American political situation must clarify the struggle for great masses of workers and poor farmers. Labor beholds its "friends" completely desert to the camp of the enemy. The class cleavage becomes more distinct. The battle lines in the class war are clearer. This cannot help but result in the strengthening of the class organizations of the workers and poor farmers; in proving the truth of every declaration made by the Workers (Communist) Party in its efforts to arouse and organize America's workers for class conscious action, politically and industrially.

• • • •

With its "friends" unmasked as allies of its enemies, labor will depend more upon its power, building the trade unions into more effective weapons of combat, creating the Labor Party for the united front political srtuggle. During the closing period of his life LaFollette also turned "red baiter" in his attack on the June 17th, 1924, Farmer-Labor Conference in St. Paul. But LaFollette passes. Others of his kind pass, discredited and forgotten, and labor is won from the fake nostrums they espouse. Only the Communist struggle for power lives and grows and marches forward to the victory.

ARREST 2 MORE COMMUNISTS IN SPEECH FIGHT

Successful Meetings Held Thruout City

The two Workers (Communist) Party speakers, Barney Mass, acting national secretary of the Young Workers League and Karl Reeve, of the editorial staff of the DAILY WORKER, who were arrested Saturday night while conducting an open air meeting on the corner of North Ave. and Orchard St., will appear in the Chicago Avenue police court this morning. They were released after eleven o'clock on $50.00 bond, charged with "speaking on the street without a permit," altho the ordinance under which the arrests were made, No. 3703, was declared unconstitutional by the state supreme court many years ago.

Tomorrow eighteen members of the Workers (Communist) Party, and the Young Workers League arrested in the free speech fight on the same corner last week, will come before Judge Morgan at the Chicago Ave. court under the same charge.

Excellent meetings were conducted by the Workers Party on various corners of the city in spite of the police interference. On the corner of Division St., and Washtenaw Ave., J. Louis Engdahl editor of the DAILY WRKER, spoke to a large crowd. Many copies of the DAILY WORKER were sold. Abe Harris spoke on behalf of the Young Workers League.

On the South Side, at 30th and State St., Robert Minor, noted Communist cartoonist and writer, and E. L. Doty spoke to a large audience of Negroes. All the literature was sold.

William F. Kruse and Sam Hammersmark spoke on the corner of Kedzie Ave. and 22nd St., and D. E. Early spoke at 12th St. and St. Louis Ave.

Karl Reeve had finished his speech, and Barney Mass was talking of the fight of the progressive Illinois miners against their reactionary officials when officer Kelly, of the "flivver squad" at the Hudson Ave., police station, stepped out of his car and tried to stop the meeting. Comrade Mass refused to discontinue his speech, and Kelly took him from the platform and placed him under arrest. Kelly then arrested Reeve who attempted to mount the platform.

With drawn club, Kelly ordered the crowd to disperse "Get away now, or I'll split your heads open," he ordered. The police admitted that it was because of complaints of the business men's association that the arrests were made.

The Workers Party will hold another meeting on the corner of North and Orchard next Saturday night.

Explosion Tears Worker in Bits.

NEW YORK, June 21—Frederick Valderbilt, fireman of the steam lighter Salvager for the Staten Island Shipbuilding Company yards at Mariner's Harbor, Staten Island, was killed by an explosion in the lighter's tanks which blew his body to bits. The force of the explosion was felt by workmen in the vicinity of the lighter and injured other workmen who had to be taken to the hospital.

"Investigation" of R. R.

WASHINGTON, June 21.—The preliminary investigation by the Interstate Commerce Commission of the financing and management of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad prior to its being placed in a receivership will begin within the next ten days, it was learned here.

GERMAN CRISIS OVER FRANCE'S NEWEST CHAINS

Stresemann May Quit Over "Security" Pact

BERLIN, Germany, June 21.—The German cabinet is faced with a crisis over the decision on France's note on the proposed "security pact" between the allies and Germany. The German nationalist party, representing the German capitalists, is opposed to acceptance of the conditions laid down by France's note. Foreign Minister Stresemann, however, has made it known that he will resign unless he is successful in securing a "security pact."

The French note, made public in full here, declares that France will be a party to no treaty with Germany unless the Versailles and other previous treaties are fully observed, and unless the authority of the league of nations is recognized by Germany.

If Germany agrees to a treaty with the allies the government will be forced to join the league, controlled by the allied powers, and submit to further chains imposed by the French and British imperialists.

France Would Use Force.

France and England have come to a private agreement that France will be allowed to make war against Germany if Poland's frontiers are threatened, England agreeing to war only if the Rhineland frontier is threatened by the Germans.

The article of the league of nations to which the nationalists and a portion of the democratic party object—article sixteen—declares that when a member nation goes to war without submitting a dispute to arbitration, it shall be deemed an act of war against all other member nations.

France would have the right to march troops thru Germany to her eastern Polands frontiers, and to this the German bourgeois parties object.

German-French Trade Treaty.

The German and French capitalists, meanwhile, have signed a trade agreement, whereby the German steel trust, including the Krupps, the Phoenix group, and the steel magnate Florian Kloeckner, permits French and Luxembourg iron concerns to import 1,700,000 tons of half ready iron to Germany at 50 per cent of the regular tariff rate.

The contract also provides that the French shall supply German industries with iron at the market price prevailing in the world's chief markets.

The steel and iron industry of Germany is given a monopoly of the manufacture of the imported "half ready" ware.

Harry Jensen Fails to Give Results of Election Count

next regular meeting was postponed. This means that the next meeting of the council will be held a week from next Friday, when, according to the constitution, the elected officers are to be installed. It is expected that Jensen will announce his re-election and that of his machine and it will then be too late for the local unions to protest effectively.

Knifing the Progressives.

It is rumored that one of the outside business agents who ran on the progressive ticket was elected. The Harry Jensen claimed on the evening of the election that he was re-elected by about a 2,000 majority as last year, it is now reported that Frank Stahl is only 400 votes behind Jensen. This, despite Duell's candidacy, who was secretary supported by the Brim's crowd. Brim, a former president of the council was candidate for vice-president on the progressive slate. It is reported that his followers knifed Stahl, who would have been elected by a big majority but for Duell's action in splitting the progressive ticket.

The present warden, a soak by the name of Osterhouse, admitted that Westerberg is 800 votes ahead of him. At the last district council meeting Brims moved that Osterhouse be given a two weeks' vacation with pay in recognition of his services at the district council meetings. Osterhouse is one of Jensen's thugs.

Progressive carpenters point out that the action of the Jensen machine in holding back the vote shows that there is dirty work afoot and that the gang is preparing to count the full reactionary slate into office with the aid of reactionary local union officials. The progressives should be on their guard.

COMMUNISTS MUST NEVER QUIT FIGHT

C. P. of Canada Expels Prominent Member

(Special to The Daily Worker)

TORONTO, Ont., June 21.—The official organ of the Communist Party of Canada—"The Worker"—carries an editorial asserting that for refusing to carry on a policy of class struggle while in a position of influence and power in the miners' union, Alex McKay has been expelled from the Communist Party. The editorial sets forth the reasons for this action as follows:

"No man is greater than the Communist movement. No man who betrayes the principles to which he pledged loyalty when he entered the Communist Party will be allowed to stay there if he is caught selling out.

"The principles of the Communist Party are the principles of the class struggle and the proletarian evolution. All our work in the labor party, in the trade union movement, cooperatives, wherever we are, is to develop the revolutionary movement. Only that is serving the historic interests and mission of the working class. Only that promotes the labor movement to break the yoke of wage slavery and to usher in the socialist order.

"This position of the Communist Party we proclaim in broad daylight day in and day out. Let no fool of a government agent, capitalist editor or labor faker claim to have made a "discovery" of the "secret" aims Communists cherish when they carry on their everyday work as class conscious fighters in the labor movement. We never "conceal" our aims which are the most glorious in history.

"When, therefore, a Communist is supported by his fellow Communists and left wingers into office it is on the definite understanding that any deviation from the policies of the class struggle will mean unmasking and expulsion. We are not a movement to help men into office for their individual glory or ambition.

"Individuals, no matter what their talents or connections with the trade unions may be, must serve the interests of the class struggle or get out. Any other attitude on our part would be a betrayal of the workers to whom we are tryinng to demonstrate the difference between a revolutionist and a faker. A man cannot be a Communist and a faker at one and the same time.

"Alex McKay, Secretary-treasurer of District 26 in Nova Scotia has gone the way of apostacy. McKay was trusted and given an opportunity for leadership. He has betrayed this trust. He has followed the tactics of McLeod.

"The Communist Party has expelled him. The last straw was when McKay refused to speak for the policy of the 100 per cent strike and mass-picketing at the recent convention. The left wingers at the convention and the Communists fought for precisely this policy of mass-picketing that has been adopted three months after it should have been. The left wing has been vindicated.

"McLeod was never a member of the pary and we have no direct responsibility for his actions. The left-wing will have an accounting with him later on. But we refuse to let McKay discredit the Communist Party and weaken the confidence of the rank-and-file in our leadership."

Denny Sullivan Soon to Show What Recent Injunction Law Means

The first test of the injunction limitation bill signed by Gov. Small, almost the sole salvage of Illinois labor's legislative program in the 1925 session, will come July 1. Chicago Cigarmakers' Local 14, enjoined by Denis Sullivan, the injunction kingpin of the Chicago branch, will seek to have the writ modified in accordance with the new law which forbids restaints on peaceful picketing and on quitting of work.

The formerly union cigar factory of Wengler & Mandell, Chicago, has a Sullivan injunction against the local forbidding the union members "from picketing or maintaining any picket or pickets at or near the premises of the complainant, from distributing or displaying any notice, card, design or matter in front of or in the vicinity of the complainant's place of business which tend to cause persons to abstain from entering into the complainant's employment or to abstain from dealing with the complainant or to keep away from the complainant's place of business" and from doing many other peaceful and customary things when a labor dispute is on.

The firm manufactures the Tom Palmer cigar, once a popular union brand, now made by scabs in Florida, but extensively sold in Chicago.

The Leninist Central Party School

By M. J. Lonsky

AFTER the fifth congress, the necessity of a theoretical training for our party functionaries induced various sections of the Comintern to place the problem of the Leninist central party school on their agenda.

For the expansion of agitprop work involved the necessity of beginning and accompanying the education of the masses of the party by the systematic training of propagandist and organizatory cadres in the Communist vanguard. How is this object to be best attained, what type of school should be created? The past has taught us that as far as organization is concerned practically nothing can be accomplished for the schooling of party functionaries by means of short improvised courses of instruction given by visiting teachers. We have been realizing more and more of late that the principle upon which instruction in Bolshevism is carried out must differ essentially from the methods of instruction formerly adopted by the social democratic institutions.

These are however, negative conclusions, and must be supplemented by positive endeavors towards the establishment of a school based on the principle of Leninism. It is to the French Communist Party that the honor falls of being the first of our sections to take the initiative in this matter, and thanks to the efforts of this party we have already valuable data on Bolshevist education at our disposal.

THE object of the following is thus chiefly to inform the international party public on the results of the endeavors of our French comrades. The arising discussion should be made part of a detailed debate on the methodic thematic and organizatory forms of the Leninist central party schools. It need not be emphasized that the questions raised at present can only be those pertaining to the working out of the most important factors of this problem. Special emphasis should be laid on the following factors: 1. The character of the Leninist central party school; 2, its syllabus of instruction; 3, the method of instruction; 4, the organizatory forms of the school.

It should be stated that the French comrades have already accomplished pioneer work with regard to all these points.

THE character of the school is the first point for consideration. There is no doubt that in Bolshevist methods of education the center of gravity lies in the activity of the scholars and in the actuality of the subjects taught, and that it must be the aim of all instruction to keep this fact in view, and to base subjects and methods on practical "experience" and on the solution of the acute and critical problems of the daily proletarian struggle, culminating in the final goal of revolution. This first prerequisite was put into actual practice at once by the Paris school, which proclaimed as its first principle: "Study is not to be academic, but polemic."

This means that in a Bolshevist educational institution, whether intended for the lowest or the highest functionaries, there must not be one moment's interruption in the living association between the scholars and the proletarian masses in their work places, in the shops and factories, and also in the street, where the petty bourgeois atmosphere surrounds and influences the worker at every step.

It is solely in this manner that we can undertake, an effective rupture with the social democratic traditions to which even our own ranks have a tendency to cling, traditions which demand that theory should be kept "clear" of practice within the walls of the school at least, with the alleged object of securing the objectivity of science. The first Leninist central party school outside of Russia led an immediate attack upon this false tradition of social democracy, which loves to drape itself in the cloak of "purity" and of classless scientific investigation, and chose as its motto the unity of theory and practice.

THE theory of Marxism-Leninism is not to be presented to the proletarian students as a finished dogma, as a recipe which they have merely to swallow in order to become omniscient political or trade union leaders. No, the dialectic nature of Marxism-Leninism implies of necessity that it must be experienced and felt by the future leaders of the proletariat as a "guide to action," and the proletarian students must enter upon the complete consciousness that the teachings of our revolutionary pastmaster are based upon entirely concrete economic historical processes in social evolution, and have thus attained universal validity of application, whilst at the same time they are to be verified and preserved by that same revolutionary actuality in which they originated. This confirmation and preservation renders it imperatively necessary that the Bolshevist party itself and its functionaries are becoming familiar with the economic historical circumstances and situations of a social process, down to the smallest detail, in order to exercise effective revolutionary influence.

The general formulas forming the principles of the educational work undertaken by our French comrades have been based approximately upon these views. In order to put these principles into practice, the Paris school states it to be its chief endeavor to avoid the teaching of dead knowledge to its students, and to accomplish the revolutionary orientation of these students, applicable in every emergency and turning point of the present stage of the declining capitalist state of society, with the aid of a minimum of political and economic knowledge. "The attainment of the methods of dialectic materialism has been accorded the first place. The material comprising historical and economic statistical facts has thus had to be deliberationately thrust into the background." Unfortunate it has not been possible for our French comrades to entirely realize these two leading principles, intended to characterize their system of education. The chief cause of this has been the great difficulties encountered in drawing up the syllabus, and in the selection of subjects of instruction and the fixing of the order in which they are to be studied; these are points which can only be settled by experience.

THE character of the Paris school, as exponent of activity, demanded that the instruction should deal with the daily problems encountered by the students. The subject chosen for the preliminary hours of instruction was thus a discussion on the actual nature of imperialism, special reference being made to phenomena closely bound up with party life. These themes had of course to be treated at first descriptively only. As soon as it was desired to explain them it became necessary to trace them to their source, that is, to go back to the general theoretical prerequisites of the Marxist conception of history. Up to this point the order in which the subjects were studied corresponded to the object of the instruction.

Difficulties arose at once on the question of fixing the minimum of political and economic knowledge required for a thoro comprehension of actual problems. As neither the amount of knowledge already acquired by the students nor their abilities were known to the teachers, the endeavor was made to open out as many spheres of knowledge as possible, and to present living ideas and object lessons in place of abstract material. But this again led to the historical facts of the development of society, of the bourgeoisie, of the labor movement, etc., etc., until the question of imperialism once more arose as leading factor, and had of necessity to be split up again into the hundreds of different aspects and various representations of the main characteristics of Leninism, of the role played by the C. I., of the essential character of the Soviet state, and so forth. The result of such a syllabus of instruction has been however, so far as we can judge from observations up to the present: 1. A tremendous overburdening of the scholars with new knowledge and thoughts, and 2, in consequence of this a neglect of the problems of the utmost importance to the French party.

THE French school has thus by no means succeeded in finding the right method with regard to the syllabus of instruction. Here further experience must first be gathered and thoroly dealt with in the discussion anticipated on this matter. One point has however, been ascertained, and that is that the character of our methods of education with regard to actuality and activity can only be fully maintained if the plan of instruction is confined to a certain number of subjects only. This alone would secure that "Attainment of the methods of dialectic materialism" which our French comrades have rightly made the aim of their school.

The main endeavor of the school must thus not be directed towards turning out general theoreticians and practicians moving with equal certainty, or rather with equal uncertainty, in every sphere (the brief duration of the courses of instruction renders this impossible in any case as a rule), but towards the training of specialists for definite departments and functions in propaganda and organization work. Specialization and differentiation of this kind, to the greatest possible degree, among the functionaries of the Bolshevist parties will alone enable us to issue slogans and carry on actions which are not only "general," but which are adapted to the given concrete political and social situation that political and concrete situation "which alters in the most direct and immediate manner the condition of an action, and in consequence the tasks of this action." (Lenin.)

To concentrate the program of instruction for the Bolshevist central school in a brief formula, we may say: The extensive exposition material on the part of the teachers must be replaced by its intensive assimilation on the part of the students.

WE must now turn to the actual methodological and pedagogic problems of the Paris school. Instruction was divided into two parts. The morning was devoted to theory, the afternoon as a rule to the questions of practical party work in France, and the evenings to practical work on the part of the students in the factory cells, public meetings, conferences, etc. This last department of work the "applied" department, as our French comrades have designated it, has proved the most successful. A really fighting character has been imparted to the whole school by its means. The students have proved competent in every respect of carrying out the tasks allotted to them. It is obvious that the road thus pointed out by our French comrades, enabling constant contact to be maintained between the masses of party members and the future party leaders, is the road which must invariably be followed by all central party schools. All that is further required is to secure immediate activity for the students in the special sphere of propaganda or organization for which their special training has prepared them. This is an excellent medium for testing the capabilities of the students. On the other hand, the line drawn by the French school between theoretical questions and questions of practical work appears to us of questionable advisability, and likely to lead to an overgrowth of the former at the expense of the latter. As soon as the syllabus of instruction has been concentrated upon a few definite subjects, and a corresponding specialization and differentiation of instruction has been organized, this dividing line becomes superfluous for the most part.

With regard to the treatment of the various subjects, our comrades report that the employment of the "concrete, actual and known" as starting point has proved excellently adapted to its purpose. The student is gradually introduced to the abstract and theoretical. Thus for instance the exposition of the fundamental conceptions of political economy is commenced by first dealing with the "factory surroundings of the worker" and then passing gradually to the abstract ideas of "labor as commodity," etc. The greatest difficulty arises, however, when the fear of excessive abstractions leads to the excessive use of the object lesson, and thence to the danger of vulgarisation. A similar danger is encountered in the attempt to describe the methods of dialectics by means of certain indications or "rules."

In the French school instruction has been given in the form of question and answer, followed by mutual criticism, thus avoiding long winded lectures on the subjects taught. An excellent explanatory medium for theoretical questions was found in the drawings, diagrams, and maps made by the students themselves in the course of their collective work.

The greatest importance has been attached to collective work, and the replies to questions summing up various subjects have for instance been required to be given as result of a collective consultation among the students. In the sphere of method our French comrades have indeed accomplished wonders in the way of "clarification work," and their success would have perhaps been still greater if their syllabus of instruction had not suffered from overloading with subject material.

In conclusion, a few words must be devoted to the forms of organization of the school. The course of instruction lasted about two months, the number of students was considerable, and the lack of suitable teachers was thus acutely felt.

MUCH caution was exercised in selecting the students. Most of these were of course recruited from the ranks of the industrial workers, especially from the most developed and important districts. The ages of the students varied from 20 to 30 years. For the most part they had joined the French C. P. in the years 1920 and 1921. The conditions imposed for admittance to the school did not include any preliminary theoretical knowledge, but on the other hand a proof of active and capable participation in party life. Valuable information is supplied by the autobiographies written by the students, for the most part statements of the reasons which induced them to join the C. P.; here excellent hints for individual pedagogic treatment may be obtained. The teachers appointed for the school first received full information from the agitprop of the French C. P.; by means of a programmatic letter, on the type, methods, and aims of the school. Co-operation among the teachers was secured by means of common consultations held by the lecturers before commencing instruction. In the course of time, the beginnings of a system of instruction as a complete complex developed, but were not carried thru consistently.

To sum up the results of this endeavor on the part of our French comrades, it may be said that they have not only done pioneer work in this special sphere of carrying on a Leninist central party school, but have contributed to the solution of the general problem of the Bolshevist education of our non-Russian parties. Here we must once more emphasize that the above observations are intended as a basis for a detailed discussion of all the urgent problems thus raised.

WHERE ARE THE SHOP NUCLEI?

By C. E. RUTHENBERG, Executive Secretary, Workers Party

SIX months ago, the Central Executive Committee of the party sent instructions to all district organizers and C. C. C.'s to begin the work of reorganizing our party on the basis of the shop nuclei. A detailed plan for this work was furnished to all party units. Altho six months have elapsed since these instructions were sent out, no section of the party has taken up the work of re-organization in earnest.

This is shown by the reports made to the national office at a recent meeting of district organizers in Chicago and in writing since that time. These reports show the following results for six months of effort to bring into existence shop nuclei:

District	Number of Shop Nuclei Organized	Members
2	25	240
3	7	35
5	3	46
6	4	20
7	2	30
8	18	202
9	5	45
12	0	0
13	0	0

From this table it will be seen that out of a total of approximately 25,000 members on our rolls, of whom approximately 20,000 are in good standing, we have been able to organize in six months of work about three per cent of these members into the basic units recommended by the Communist International. In five of our districts, we have not been able to build up a single shop nucleus. Out of the close to 100 City Central Committees we have in the party at the present time, not more than twenty have shop nuclei organized in their cities.

These results are a discredit to our party. They show that no earnest, systematized effort has been made to begin the work of reorganization of the party members on the basis of the Communist form of organization as against the old socialist form of organization. It proves conclusively that our party members and our responsible party workers do not yet realize the importance of this work of reorganizing the party and that the Central Executive Committee and the Communist International expect us to do something more than to play with the idea of the new form of organization.

Why We Must Reorganize.

Preceding the sessions of the Enlarged Executive Committee of the Communist International last March, there was held in Moscow an organizational conference at which most of the big Communist Parties of Europe were represented. At this conference, the question of the reorganization of the Communist Parties on the basis of shop nuclei was the principle point of discussion. The reports showed that in most of the countries of Europe the work of reorganization was well under way or was practically completed.

No one who listened to the reports of the various delegates showing the results obtained from the reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei could be otherwise than enthusiastic about this reorganization. The Communist International had invited workers from various sections of the European parties who were directly concerned in the reorganization and who were functioning in the work of the shop nuclei to participate in this conference. Without exception, these workers enthusiastically supported the reorganization, showing, by concrete achievements, the advantages for their party accruing from this organization.

The reorganization of the Communist Parties on the basis of shop nuclei is not merely an organizational measure. The results of reorganization are of the highest political importance.

Character of Membership.

Practically every party in Europe which has made substantial progress in the work of reorganizations reported an influx of new members as the result of reorganization on the basis of shop nuclei. The fact that this is a result of the reorganization is of the highest importance. But even of greater importance is the fact that the new members thus secured by the Communist Parties are members drawn from the shops and factories—that is, that element which must be the backbone of the Communist Party.

The reason why this is true is not difficult to explain. At present, our membership in territorial and language branches, think of their work in relation to their branches and their functions and when they are trade union members in relation to the work in the trade unions. When a shop nucleus is organized in a factory, the factory becomes the basis of the work of this unit. The effort and energy of the members are naturally directed toward agitation and propaganda and Communist work of every character among the workers employed in the factories where their nucleus is organized. In other words, the form of organization, the basis of organization, directs the work toward those workers who are most important for us to reach.

The shop nucleus naturally bases its agitation on the concrete experiences of the workers in the factory where they are employed. Thus it is easier to approach and convince workers. The workers see the activities of the members of the nucleus and the most militant are attracted to the organization and thus the party membership is built up.

This is the universal experience of the European parties with the shop nuclei. Once our party undertakes the work of building shop nuclei in earnest we will find what is most important for us, that our membership will begin to increase.

What are the Possibilities?

In view of the poor results obtained thus far, the question may be raised as to what proportions of our party membership can be reorganized on the basis of shop nuclei. It is true that we will be unable to reorganize the whole party, that is, the whole 20,000 members, into shop nuclei immediately. It is, however, possible that 50 per cent of our membership or even 60 per cent can be reorganized into shop nuclei; that is, in place of having 600 members in shop nuclei as at present, we should have 12,000 members at the least thus organised.

The experiences of the European parties also throw light upon how the reorganization must proceed. Most of the European parties set aside a definite period in which the party was to be completely reorganized, as for instance in the French party it was a three months' period, in the German party a six months' period, etc. The European parties were forced to apply these methods because they found that if the shop nuclei were organized only in isolated cases in place of the whole party being reorganized, the tendency was for the shop nuclei to disintegrate and the membreship to drift back into the territorial units. Our party will have the same experience unless the work of reorganization is pressed more aggressively. The sixty-four shop nuclei we now have will tend to disintegrate unless we can quickly push the work of reorganization to such an extent that the majority of the membership will be organized into shop nuclei.

The Immediate Task Before Our Party

The responsible party committees must take up the work of achieving this end earnestly and systematically. District and city organizers must take the work of reorganization the most important task before them.

The Communist International expects us to secure results in the work of reorganization.

If we go ahead at the rate we have been going, it will be another ten years before our party is reorganized. We must complete the work before another six months elapse.

The progress of our party and its Communist tasks depends upon our transforming our organization basis to that of shop nuclei.

Besco Is Forced to Talk Peace by Mass Picketing of Workers

been calling for these last three months. This is what we called for at the very outset of the strike. We claimed that the miners had nothing but treachery to expect from the Armstrongs, the Murdocks and the middle class "relief" crew.

"Public Opinion" Failed to Work.

"Public Opinion did a little sobbing over the miners' hovels while the sensation was new. When the middle class saw that this was an industrial class struggle and that it would be dangerous to go too far in 'sympathy' for the workers, Public Opinion shut up like a clam. It is more interested in the horse races. The miners can be bloodily smashed but Public Opinion won't let out a peep protest.

"Then in response to the growing demand of the men for action, and under pressure of the left wingers on the board, McLeod and McKay finally emitted a feeble notice sanctioning picketing.

"This 'sanction' is the weakest statement we have ever seen! It urged the men to treat Besco's property reverently and it took the whole guts out of the picketing.

"At the convention three weeks ago to discuss future policy, McLeod still argued against mass picketing. He claimed there was a 100 per cent strike even if scab officials were doing the maintenance work.

Three Months Wasted.

"And now McLeod's whole position is reversed—after three months. McLoid admits that it was not a 100 per cent strike while Besco kept its officials doing scab work.

"The situation three months ago was the same as today.

"Three months have been wasted. Besco has been allowed to get more arrogant, to lay open shop plans.

"Militancy has been justified. The workers have nothing but their chains to lose. On with the struggle for bread and against the 10 per cent reduction. OUT WITH THE WHITE-COLLAR SCABS! EVERYTHING TO WIN!"

YALE CONFERS TITLES ON MANY PLUTE SERVANTS

Beefy Bill Taft Totes Nine Degrees

By WILLIAM SIMONS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—Fifteen honorary degrees were awarded by Yale University at the commencement exercises yesterday to "national celebrities" for loyal service to the Wall Street gang. Among those who secured the degrees were: Master of arts, Francis Cole Pratt and Edward Stephen Harkness; Litt. D.: John Mattews Manly; Doctor of Science: Robert Andrews Millikan; Doctor of Laws (LL. D.) Ernest Martin Hopkins, John Hays Hammond, Gifford Pinchot, Owen D. Young, James Rockwell Sheffield.

Here is the List

Pratt is vice president of the General Electric Co. at Schenectady, in charge of engineering and manufacture; Harkness is a director in many important railroad companies, who has donated millions for college buildings out of the fortune robbed from workers. Manly, a professor of English, enlisted during the war for five years as captain, decoding cipher messages and other documents. Millikan was chief of the science and research division of the signal corps.

Hopkins was in charge of the industrial relations in the quartermasters department, was assistant to the secretary of war, the representative of the war department on war labor policies which tied the hands of labor, he is also a director of the Boston and Maine R. R. Hammond is well known as the mining engineer who helped open South Africa to foreign exploitation, and as the chairman of the anti-labor U. S. Coal Commission of 1922 appointed by Harding. Pinchot is of course the politician, governor of Pennsylvania, the fake reformer.

Owen D. Young has been chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric company, and organized and he is chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America. Young, as member of the Dawes commission and reparations agent, earned Dawes' praise for his efficient help in putting the plan over on the oppressed German workers.

The Hounder of Mexico

Last and not least is Sheffield, the ambassador to Mexico, who recently reported to the state department on conditions in Mexico, followed by a declaration from the state department that Mexico must defend the property rights of Americans. The Mexican government is warned that she must take further steps against the oil workers in Tampico and the peasants who desire land for themselves. The threat of intervention is dangled before the eyes of Mexico. The degree awarded to Sheffield is a fitting reward for his imperialist activities.

Famous Degree Holders

Before you bow down to a handle after one's name, think of how many degrees some men have whom we all despise. William Howard Taft (Injunction Bill) has nine, Charles E. Hughes eleven, Woodrow Wilson, ten, Leonard Wood, czar of the Phillipines, nine, Henry Cabot Lodge nine, Robert Lansing, six, Elihu Root, sixteen, Herbert Hoover, twenty-four, Frank O. Lowden got a degree from four colleges, Steel Judge Gary, three, A. Mitchell Raids Palmer, three. Outside of the statesmen, college presidents scratch one' another's backs...

Wheeler of California was honored twelve times, Scab Defender Eliot of Harvard, eleven, Shanklin of Wesleyan, eleven, Smith of Pennsylvania, twenty, Butler of Columbia, twenty-five. Angell of Yale nine, Schurman of Cornell eight (now Minister to China). Almost every little college president is so favored. As to college presidents, it means that they are fed with honors for goose step teaching.

Whom do our capitalist colleges honor? The Yale commencements exercises answer: "Those who serve American imperialism."

Bronx to Celebrate Opening of Workers' Party Library, June 27

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 21.—All get ready for a grand and glorious time. We're giving you something for nothing, and this is on the level.

The Bronx Library Committee is arranging a social and housewarming to celebrate the opening of the Bronx Library at 1347 Boston Road. A good musical program has been arranged—games, dancing, prizes for the best man and the worst man, plenty of fun and good cheer. Absolutely free. All you need to bring along is your best smile and your best girl or beau, and if you haven't any, you won't feel lonesome either. Go where the crowd goes. Be there if you want to meet all your best friends and comrades. Refreshments will be served—ice cream, sodas, candies, sandwiches.

The Young Workers of the Bronx are actively participating and are promising to make this affair a record of hilarity and fun to be long remembered by everyone who attends. Don't forget the date, Saturday, June 27th, at 1347 Boston Road. The Bronx Library Committee invites you all.

Communists, Socialists and Colonial Peoples

It is a nasty mess that French imperialism has got into in northern Africa. Not only have French troops been defeated with heavy casualties, but military operations of major proportions are necessary if France is to save, not her face, but a portion of her anatomy situated much lower and to the rear.

The African tribes under French rule have received the news of the defeat of their masters with much rejoicing. The victory of Abd-el-Krim's forces may be followed by a series of uprisings in French West Africa and in the northern section bordering on Riffian territory. Painleve himself admits as much in his report to the foreign affairs committee:

> I must say to you openly that the situation in Morocco is bad. Abd-el-Krim's victories have caused a tremendous impression thruout France's North African possessions. For the first time our armies there have suffered serious setbacks. In order to prevent the downfall of our colonial empire we must act and act quickly.

The Communists alone in the chamber of deputies are demanding the withdrawal of all French troops from Africa and recognition of their independence. The socialists have been advised by their party leaders "not to raise the question of socialist principles during the debate in order to split the chamber."

In other words, "socialist principles" are something to talk about only when there is no danger of embarrassing the capitalist state. The Communists believe differently and attack French capitalism shoulder with the peasants and herdsmen of northern Africa.

But the Milwaukee Leader, official organ of the socialist party, has the gall to say that "the French socialists will not follow Painleve in anay plan to prolong the war in Morocco . . . ."

The Leader may mean that the socialists in the French chamber will do everything possible to see that the Riffians are crushed with all possible speed.

What the agents of French capitalism think of the socialists is shown by the exclusion of Communists from the foreign affairs committee while the socialists were welcomed.

What the colonial peoples think of the Communists is shown by the attack of the capitalist press and military upon the Communists in Morocco, Egypt, India and China.

Sigman's Desperate Tactics

Typical of the tactics used by the officialdom of the International Ladies' Garment Workers against the membership of Locals 2, 9 and 22, is the publication of the flimsy charges against the officers of these unions in the capitalist press before they were received by them. On the same day that the charges appeared in the New York papers the left wingers issued a statement saying that they had received no notification of the proceedings.

The charges themselves, reciting such misdeeds as the holding of a May Day meeting at which Communists were allowed to speak, are only an excuse for the raid on these militant locals by the officials and their gangsters. Despairing of securing the endorsement fo the membership for their crooked schemes, the bureaucrats resorted to the most desperate tactics ever used on a large scale in the American labor movement.

Much to their surprise the membership has rallied almost to a man to the left wing. The protection given to the headquarters of Local 22 is mass action on a large scale while the left wing is taking the offensive in other large garment centers, carrying the fight to the Sigman machine.

The membership of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union has been very patient under the provocations of the crooks who head the organization. They have lost patience now, but they refuse to be provoked into doing what the reactionaries would like them to do—leave the union.

The Sigman machine is not fighting any feeble handful of left wingers. It is confronted by a membership that knows the full measure of its rottenness and intends to clean house. This house cleaning may take a long time, but the left wing has been schooled in struggle. More and more such actions as those of the Sigman machine develop in the membership the ability to stick and win.

300,000 Bayonets

In a statement written for the American newspapers, Benito Mussolini, fascist dictator of Italy, openly boasts that he holds power with the aid of 300,000 bayonets. He throws all discretion to the winds in showing his contempt for parliamentary government, tho his words are intended for American ears. And the general impression is that the United States government considers parliamentary government the hall mark of democracy and a form to be conjured with. Mussolini evidently knows better.

It is commonly believed in the United States that recognition of the Soviet Union is withheld by the Washington administration because Russia is not a democracy, but a dictatorship. At least this was the excuse often given by Charles Evans Hughes, former secretary of state.

But Mussolini takes pride in the fascist dictatorship and spits on the Italian parliament; nay, even murders those who defend it energetically as Matteotti did. Yet he is recognized, and American bankers grant him huge loans while the dictator himself is held up as a model for the rest of the world.

It is evident that recognition of the Soviet Union is not withheld because there is a dictatorship there, but simply because the dictatorship is a working class one. That makes all the difference in the world.

British tories pleaded eloquently in the house of commons for the application of the cruelty to animals act to fleas. At the same time British machine guns were stinging Chinese workers. But the Chinese are learning to bite, the British: This will insure them at least as much consideration as the fleas.

The bus drivers of Paris demanded a wage increase and didn't get it. Instead of quitting work they decided to obey the rules against speeding. The result was that traffic was blocked. Now, the bosses are complaining that the drivers are obeying the law at the instigation of the Communists. What next?

The Enslavement of China

By Wm. F. Du

ARTICLE XI.

BRITISH policy in Asia centers around India. Every move of Great Britain on the Asiatic continent, diplomatic and military, has as its basic motive, the strengthening of the British Indian frontiers. This in no way is in contradiction to attempts to extend those frontiers as far to the north and east as the Yangtsze river—the great artery of China.

Great Britain encouraged Japan to seize German leaseholds in Shangtung and thereby increase Japanese domination in north-eastern China. She demanded assistance from her Japanese ally in the war on Germany in China with the full knowledge that China would suffer more than Germany.

GREAT BRITAIN had a game of her own to play.

The twenty-one points, containing Japanese demands on China which if agreed to destroyed Chinese sovereignty, made in 1915, have been widely discussed and were the cause of world-wide protest.

But the twelve demands relating to Tibet, made on China by Great Britain in March 1917, have received little publicity and, as a matter of fact, first came to public attention, significantly enough, by publication in the Japanese press.

Tibet was needed to further bulwark British control in India and Great Britain simply took advantage of the dissensions fomented by the allied government in China to attempt this extortion.

THE twelve demands were as follows:

1. Great Britain shall have the right to construct railways between India and Tibet.
2. The Chinese government shall contract loans from the British government for the improvement of the administration of Tibet.
3. The treaty obligations between Tibet and Great Britain shall be considered valid as heretofore.
4. British experts shall be engaged for the industrial enterprises of Tibet.
5. China shall secure the redemption of loans contracted from the British people by Tibetans.
6. Neither China nor Great Britain shall send troops to Tibet without reason.
7. The Chinese government shall not appoint or dismiss officials in Tibet ON ITS OWN RESPONSIBILITY. (Emphasis mine.)
8. The British government shall be allowed to establish telegraph lines in Lhassa, Chianghu, Chamutao, etc.
9. British postal service shall be introduced in Lhassa and other places.
10. CHINA SHALL NOT INTERFERE WITH THE ACTIONS OF THE BRITISH GOVERNMENT IN TIBET. (Emphasis mine.)
11. No privileges or interests in Tibet shall be granted to other nations.
12. All mines in Tibet shall be jointly worked by the British and Chinese governments.

POINTS 7 and 10 (on which we have laid emphasis) show clearly that Great Britain was entering into no lease agreement but intended to make of Tibet a British protectorate just as Japan had seized and established her rule over Korea.

Japan, while not openly opposing this aggression on the part of her rival-ally, nevertheless conducted a quiet opposition propaganda and the twelve demands were pigeon-holed for the time being. Great Britain, however, went ahead with the measures proposed in the document. Tibet today is in British control.

MUCH of the hostility to Great Britain now being shown by the Chinese can be traced to this grab made by Great Britain at a time when China was unable to make effective resistance to her except by surrendering completely to Japan.

The Chinese had discovered that while Great Britain was protecting the interests of European nations like Belgium, in China she was just as wolfish as Japan.

One Chinese protest written by C. C. Wu shortly after the twelve demands were made public, reads:

> China want nothing more than the re-establishment of Chinese suvereignty over Tibet, with recognition of the autonomy of the territory immediately under the control of the Lhassa government, she is agreeable to the British idea of forming an effective buffer territory in so far as it is consistent with equity and justice; she is anxious that her trade interest should be looked after by her trade agents as do the British, a point which is agreeable even to the Tibetans, though apparently not to the British; in other words she expects that Great Britain would at least make her an arrangement regarding Tibet which should not be more disadvantageous to her than that made with Russia respecting outer Mongolia. (Quoted by Putnam Weale, "Fight for the Republic in China," Page 479.)

SLOWLY but surely China was finding out that all the imperialist nation were her enemies no matter what their pretenses might be.

Two powers, Russia and Germany, had been eliminated in the race for control of China and the Chinese masses. France had been reduced to a subordinate position but the rivalry between Great Britain and Japan became more intense as the number of rivals decreased.

The United States had looked on and aided in the weakening of the Chinese nation. She had even ratified the aggressions of the Japanese by the following note sent by secretary of state Lansing in 1917.

> The governments of the United States and Japan recognize that territorial propinquity creates special relations between countries, and, consequently, the government of the United States recognizes that JAPAN HAS SPECIAL INTERESTS IN CHINA, PARTICULARLY FOR THE PART TO WHICH HER POSSESSIONS ARE CONTIGUOUS. (Emphasis mine.)

THE exigencies of the European war, the critical situation of American investments of billions in allied war bonds, had forced American imperialism to abandon for the time being the "open door" policy and give Japan a free hand in China.

Another "christian nation" had justified its professions of friendship for China and the Chinese began to revise their estimates of American democracy.

More disillusionment was in store for the Chinese when the peace conference met. There the cap stone was laid on the structure of lies, intrigue, robbery and intimidation that the imperialists had been erecting in China for half a century.

What happened at the peace conference and its effect on the Chinese liberation movement will be told in the final article of this series.

The Peasant Movement in Germany - -

By Edwin Hornle

A STRONG differentiation is perceptible between the movements of the small and the middle peasantry. The so-called "German Peasant Associations" (clerical) as well as the "Bavarian Peasants' Union," the free peasantry (especially in Rhenish Hesse) and the "German Peasants' Union" have made a visible move towards the right. At the same time the whole of the small peasantry, under the pressure of economic conditions, is moving obviously, tho with vacillations, towards the left.

The clerical peasant associations have never distinguished themselves essentially either in their program or in their tactics from the "landbund." As early as in the autumn and before the "reichstag" election in December, leaders of the clerical peasant movement, above all of the "Rhenish Peasant Association" pronounced themselves politically in favor of an outspoken government of the right, of a bourgeois block and a break with the S. P. of Germany. Their spokesman is Freiherr v. Loe. The crisis in the Prussian parliament led to an intensification of this tendency towards the right. The Rhenish and Westphalian Peasant Associations have taken up an oppositional attitude to Marx and in favor of the obstructing deputies of the center, Lonartz v. Papen and Roeingh. The Crefeld Niederrheinsche Bauernzeitung wrote on Feb. 22:

"Agriculture welcomes the defeat of the Prussian Weimar coalition. It is extremely grateful to the four deputies of the center who contributed to this defeat by their absence. It will defend these deputies against any arbitrary action of their party."

THE clerical peasant associations in southern Germany still pretend to a certain amount of democracy out of consideration for their masses of small peasantry.

As early as in October, the "German Peasant Union" swung over from the democratic camp to the camp of the German people's party, of heavy industry, alleging as their reason that the democrats had no firm policy in the tariff question and further that they had lost their significance as a party. Today the leader, Westermann, sits in the same fraction as Hepp, the president of the "landbund."

The "Bavarian Peasant Union" published at the time of the May elections, 1924, a program which contains a pronounced reactionary middle-class policy and which, in the question of protective tariffs, conforms with the "landbund." At the Bavarian municipal elections, negotiations as to common action were entered into between the "Bavarian Peasant Union," the "Clerical Peasant Association" and the "Bavarian National Union." At the time of the Bavarian election of the chamber of agriculture this alliance was completed.

The "United Free Peasantry of Rhenish Hesse" has also entirely swung over into the camp of those in favor of high protective tariffs. Here the pressure of the vine-growers has been particularly noticeable.

In organizations which were originally pronouncedly those of the small peasantry, a certain leaning towards the right on the part of the leaders can be observed. The cause of this is to be sought in the financial distress under which the associations of small peasants suffer chronically. They therefore make advances to circles which are in a better financial position. It is no coincidence that the National Association of Agricultural Smallholders of Germany which up to the present was almost entirely under social democratic influence, has at the moment only one representative of the S. P. of Germany and two democrats left in the reichstag. The National Union for Settlements and Tenancy also, which used to be affiliated to the Co-operative Union of Working Landowners, Settlers and Tenants is now desirous of getting in touch not only with the S. P. of Germany but also with the democrats. The Silesian Peasants' Union and the East Prussian Peasants' Union are already practically completely reactionary.

The Co-operative Union of Working Landowners, Settlers and Tenants, which is associated with the International Peasant Council in Moscow, comprises the most advanced elements of the small peasants' movements. Their actual recruiting ground is among the masses of those small peasants, tenants or settlers who either at one time worked in industry or who are permanently dependent on industry as an additional means for earning money. The individual associations which are affiliated vary greatly as regards the degree to which they are converted to radicalism. The organization most to the left which is also developing the best powers of agitation and organization, is the "Union of Working Landowners" with its strictly centralized organization. The president of the union was elected to the "reichstag" on December 7, on the Communist ticket. This union was really responsible for the great campaign on the occasion of the failure of crops in the autumn of 1924. It already has a number of parliamentary representatives in the various provincial parliaments and has taken root especially in Thuringia, Saxony, East Prussia, Schleswig-Holstein, Hesse. The Prussian coalition government of the social democrats Braun and Severing and the Bavarian government are trying with all means of force and petty chicanery to combat both the Cooperative Union and the Union of Working Landowners. Not even have they shrunk from means of illegal interference and terrorist intimidation. In Bavaria the organization was forbidden during the state of siege. Demonstrations were dispersed. In East Prussia the government refused for months to negotiate with the union regarding the position of the state tenants on lease in the settlements of the so-called Gross-Moosbruch, and tried to intimidate the colonists by rigorous attachments. Nevertheless it is just here that the union can boast of considerable success. Quite recently a brochure published by the publishers of Neues Dorf in celebration of the 400th anniversary of the great German peasant war, was confiscated by the public prosecutor.

THRU the whole country attempts are made to make the small peasants afraid of the Cooperative Union of Working Landowners and the associations affiliated to it, by using the word "Communist." In this connection the S. P. of Germany proves again to be the faithful servant of extreme counter-revolution. The "landbund" has repeatedly called up its fascist organiaztions to disperse meetings of small peasants, but has in many cases got the worst of it. The fact that the "landbund" newspapers inveigh with acrimony against the Union of Working Landowners, proves that they are afraid of its work. Unfortunately the union still sadly lacks practiced organizers and agitators. The co-operative union is steadily gaining the confidence of the small tenants and peasants, by affiliating to itself the associations of small peasants, by arranging consultation hours, by representing its members before the authorities and in court.

It is one of the important tasks of the C. P. of Germany to win the support and interest of the industrial proletariat and the organizations of the working class for the radical small peasants' movement. Without the help of the industrial proletariat, the radical small peasants' associations will never be able to hold their own against the economic and political development in Germany, accelerated by the Dawes plan, is leading to the inevitable ruin of the small-holders and to intensified class differentiation in rural districts. The ruling classes cannot arrest this process either by fair means or foul. They may curb the revolutionizing of the mass of small peasants, but they cannot suppress it altogether. The Communist Party on the other hand, as leader of the revolutionary proletariat, can, by tenacious work and clever Bolshevist tactics, considerably accelerate the detachment of the small peasants from their counter-revolutionary leadership, and the creation of an alliance between workers and peasants, which will moreover be organized.

THE awakening of the small peasants and their alliance with the revolutionary proletariat implies a serious threat to the bouregoisie just in those spheres of power which have up to now been undisputedly theirs. The agricultural districts have up to the present been the preserves of counter-revolution. The radicalization of the small peasants and tenant farmers will facilitate the revolutionary struggle of the proletariat to a considerable degree.

EASTERN PEOPLES HAVE GREAT FUTURE SAYS CHITCHERIN IN SPEECH BEFORE SOVIET CONGRESS

MOSCOW.—(By Mail).—In his speech on the foreign policy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics before the Third Congress of Soviet Foreign Minister Chicherin emphasized that the position of the Soviet government toward the foreign countries ought to be considered only in connection with the entire policy of the U. S. S. R., whose chief points were a profound tendency for international peace and the recovery of sound economic conditions.

The basic nature of the foreign policy of the Union of S. S. R. is its defensive character. In this reference, the speaker emphatically denies the accusations which recently appeared in the foreign press against the U. S. S. R., which was charged with aggressive tendencies, in connection, more especially, with its refusal to participate in the arms trade conference, which—in the opinion of the Soviet government—is directed solely towards strengthening the hegemony of the more powerful countries over the feeble ones.

Refuse To Attack Weak Nations.

In such a conference the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics could not take part, tho it does not mean that the Union is always boycotting the league of nations, since it did sometimes join such discussions as were convoked for purely technical or humanitarian objects or the purpose of diminishing armaments.

The speaker further scores as contrary to the true sense of the facts the assertions made that the creation of new national republics in Soviet Central Asia would serve as a starting point for annexionist tendencies with regard to neighboring states. Just the reverse is true, declares Chicherin. The creation of the said republics is but an act that will consolidate peaceful relations between Asiatic neighbors.

For Self Determination.

Touching on the question of charges referred against the union in connection with the conditions prevailing in the Balkan peninsula, the people's commissary of foreign affairs states that the Soviet government does not take more interest in the Balkan states than in any other country, and that while they sympathize with the consolidation of political relations and the principle of national self-determination the Soviet government has no aggressive designs nor any intention to incite trouble or mix in the internal affairs of the Balkan or, for that matter, any other country.

As regards Poland, the Soviet government is doing its best to meet the tendency which has recently become more apparent and stronger in Poland, namely, the current against the influence of military elements in Polish policy and in favor of a true understanding with the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

At the same time, the Soviet government intends to further economic ties with Poland. The relations with Poland, Chicherin declares, is a question that occupies one of principal places among the general combinations of the Soviet world policy.

Faces United Anti-Soviet Front.

Replying to those who criticised the foreign policy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, the people's commissary pointed out that the less would Poland violate her obligations ensuing from the treaty of Riga, the less strained would be her relations with the union.

In fact, remarks the speaker, the Soviet government actually has to face two categories of international combinations: One is a united anti-Soviet front, while the other is a system of utilization of the Union of Soviet Republics by foreign countries. In recent times, it is the first of these two combinations that has been predominating.

Far East Has Great Future.

Contrasting the hesitating and unstable policy of the European powers with the conditions in the Asiatic countries, Chicherin compares the former with persons stricken with malaria, while the ancient nations of Asia are now appearing as young peoples endowed with a psychology of young men with a great future lying in store for them.

"The peoples of the East" declares the Soviet people's commissary of foreign affairs, "well know that we do not aim at any supremacy or any special influence either open or secret, in the political or economic field, or at any exploitation of the eastern peoples. The real essence of what may be termed as our influence in the east has nothing to do indeed with what is known as the influence of capitalistic countries, since our influence is nothing else than a recognition of the community of interests."

Chicherin further draws attention to the existing tendencies on the part of imperialist countries, with Great Britain paramount among them, to adapt themselves to the changed and changing conditions of the east. The speaker points out, in particular, to the fact of the English press supported Britain's recent enemy, Marshall Chang Tso-lin, because they regarded him as an eventual dictator of China, with whom the British diplomacy would wish to entertain good relations.

In Persia, the British were trying to abandon their former methods of oppression, supplanting them by a policy of adaptation to the aims of the Persian national government to modernize and centralize their country and then of pulling over that modernized Persia to their side.

As this proves, remarks the speaker, what a change has been undergone in the relations between the awakened east and the imperialistic powers. On the other hand, concludes Chicherin, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics stands as a staunch and immutably true friend of the peoples of the east, with a policy toward these peoples that has nothing to conceal and has no unpleasant surprises eventually in store for them.

MARKO FRIEDMAN

Soldier of the Communist International

SOFIA, May 27. (Bulgarian Telegraph Agency.)—The public execution of the alleged perpetrators of the Sofia cathedral outrage Friedman, Koev and Zadgorski took place today.

ONE of the best of the Communist Party of Bulgaria, Comrade MARKO FRIEDMAN, who was charged with having participated in the preparation of the outrage in the Sofia cathedral, has been executed. He was hung in the cathedral square, and even his last request, that his death sentence be carried out by his being shot, was refused by the bestial hangmen.

In his final speech at the mock trial he proclaimed in proud, noble and burning words his political belief:

> "What I have done I have done out of love for the people, as a true fighter of the Communist International. I also love my country, but in a different way from you. In this solemn moment I swear once again that I had nothing to do with the outrage in the cathedral and that I condemn this act. I have no fear. In the war I often stood face to face with death. Should you, however, condemn me to death, then I request that you do not hang me but shoot me. I wish to fall by the bullets in the face of your soldiers with open, not bandaged eyes, as an honest soldier, for I stood in the war for my country as a soldier of the Communist International."

Our brave Comrade Marko Friedman, and the innumerable known and unknown heroes of the proletarian fight for emancipation in Bulgaria and in the Balkans, will find revengers who will carry out their will, which was expressed by Comrade Marko Friedman in his last speech with the words:

> "Only Communism, which has given to the Russian people a new life aim, life force and power, can and will also save Bulgaria and the whole Balkans by the creation of a free Federation of all the Balkan peoples; that is the aim for which I and my comrades are fighting."

MAN AN WAR LORD, ALLY OF JA   THREATENS ATTACK ON M NT LABOR IN SHANGHAI

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 22.—Indications of the reactionary character of the movement of troops by General Chang Tso-lin, the Manchurian war lord, into Shanghai, were made plain today when manifestoes were posted thruout the Chinese city announcing that the Manchurian troops would execute strike leaders and all who agitated for the expulsion of foreign imperialism and the liberation of China from foreign domination.

This brazen betrayal by the Manchurian militarists of the interests of the Chinese people seems, however, to be completely ignored, student agitators continuing their mass meetings, demonstrations and striking workmen paying no heed. Feeling against the murderers of the Chinese students on May 30 is as hot as ever.

Will Face Mass Protest.

However, there is no doubt but that if General Chang's troops begin to do the dirty work of the foreign imperialists, a storm of mass protest which may lead to civil war will burst upon China like a cyclone.

Proof of the nature of the expected clash which is likley soon to lead to civil war is seen, is the report from Tientsin that about 1,000 Feng Tien troops commanded by General Chang have mutinied at Chenghsien and wrecked the Peking-Mukden railway station there in an hour's pitched battle with their officers, and then fled toward Mukden.

In Shanghai, in spite of the Manchurian troops, the strike keeps the foreign employers guessing. The strikers in many foreign enterprises work and strike intermittently, earning enough to keep going and kepeing out unpracticed scabs.

State of "Emergency" in Hong Kong.

HONG KONG, June 22.— State of emergency was declared by the Hong Kong government today in view of the spread of the anti-foreign strike to the south China cities of Hong Kong and Canton. Export of flour from this city is forbidden.

The strike continues with banks and shops closed and with public utilities paralyzed.

An unconfirmed rumor was current here that Japan had declared war on south China following failure of the Canton government to produce the murderers of the Japanese slain in yesterday's Canton disorders.

Canton reports at the time indicated the slaying was not political, but was due to robbers. The Japanese may use the killing as an excuse, however, for trying to destroy the radical Kuo Min Tang Canton government.

General Strike in Canton.

CANTON, June 22. — A general strike, which was decided upon last Friday by a great meeting of students, workers and other Chinese citizens at Kwangtung university, was declared effective here yesterday.

All servants and clerks and workers left the foreign quarter, Shameen. Boycott is declared against British, Japanese and American goods.

Powers Trying New Tricks.

PEKING, June 22. — The foreign powers suggested to the Chinese government Friday the undertaking simultaneously of negotiations to settle the questions arising from recent disturbances in Shanghai and also to discuss the broad aspect of conditions in China generally.

The Italian minister, representing the ministries of all the foreign powers interested in the Chinese situation, made this suggestion personally to the Chinese foreign office.

It was understood the diplomatic corps will propose that a delegation representing the United States, Italy and France discuss questions of the administration of their foreign concessions in Shanghai with a view of meeting the Chinese desires.

Find Original Manuscript.

LONDON, June 22.— The Russian national museum is preparing to exhibit the original manuscript of the "Thousand and one nights" following its discovery in the archives of the Leningrad public library, according to dispatches here. The manuscript is in Persian and was recognized as the original by Professor Marr.

AS WE SEE IT.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

DESPITE the subserviency of the reactionary labor leaders to the employing class, the capitalist judges continue to hand out injunctions with remarkable celerity. The latest use of this judicial weapon against the workers in Chicago, is in the case of the cigarmakers employed by a local firm which formerly recognized the right of its employes to organize into a labor union. The old heads of the firm having quit, their successors did not want to be bothered with a union so they declared the business would be run open shop in the future.

THE employes struck and got circulars printed to acquaint their fellow workers with the facts. They picketed the factory and then the notorious injunction judge, Dennis E. Sullivan got busy. He issued another of his infamous decrees and the cigar makers may now picket at the risk, nay, the certainty, of going to jail. There is one very effective way to deal with the injunction menace and that is to mass-picket against it. The labor leaders will spend the rest of their natural lives bellycrawling to political "friends of labor" in order to win a modification of the injunction evil, but the bosses will always find legal means to prevent the workers from picketing as long as they own and control the government.

THE Workers Party has on many occasions urged the labor leaders to go on the picket line and defy the injunction. They have not done this and they will not do it. In the current issue of the United Mine Workers' journal, there is an editorial on injunctions but most of it is taken up with a condemnation of violence and lawbreaking evidently hitting at those militant miners who mass-picketed in defiance of the injunction. If the labor leaders gave a real lead to the workers and went out on the picket line, injunction or no injunction, Dennis E. Sullivan and his kind could use their injunctions for scratch paper for all the good they would do the bosses.

THE socialists profess to be great admirers of peace and the use of "civilized" methods in bringing about social change. But the story of the so-called labor party convention held in New York, told in yesterday's DAILY WORKER, does not indicate that the socialists practice what they preach. Like the labor fakers the socialists are in deadly fear of the rank and file. Therefore, when representatives from local unions not controlled by the yellow socialists appeared at this sham convention, they were thrown out on their ears and some of them beaten by thugs. This is all to the good. It took a long time for the Communists to convince the workers that the socialists were no different from other parties of capitalism. The socialists are proving that we were correct.

IT is no accident that a prominent speaker at the socialist party convention, a former S. L. P. man, took the position that the supreme court decided correctly in the Gitlow case. It was not a free speech question, he

AMERICAN BANKERS FORCE EUROPE TO AGREE TO SETTLE

WASHINGTON, June 22.—Recent diplomatic exchanges between the United States and France leads officials here to the belief that negotiations for the funding of the $4,000,000,000 French debt soon will get under way, it was learned officially here.

The settlement was forced when the bankers threatened to withhold credits to Europe.

EIGHT DEATHS DISCLOSED IN DU PONT PLANT

Three Hundred Badly Ill from Poison

NEW YORK, June 22—Eight employes of the E. I. Du Pont de Nemours plant at Deep Water, N. J., have been killed of lead poisoning while making tetraethyl lead gasoline, it has just been disclosed here, following the exposure of the death of five employes of the United States Radium corporation at Orange, N. J. There were numerous cases of illness and insanity disclosed in both plants.

Within the last year 300 employes working with the lead compound have been made seriously ill. The plant is now temporarily closed, pending an investigation by the government into the deaths. The investigation has been lost sight of, no announcement having been made by the surgeon general as tl its results.

The investigation however, is not concerned with the Du Pont plant, where lead compound is made, but only with the Standard Oil plant which makes the leaded gasoline.

The deaths in the radium plant occurred among employes who painted watch dials with radium paint.

DENVER'S DAILY WORKER PICNIC HUGE SUCCESS

Take in 45 Subs, Car Is Raffled Out

By ELLA REEVE BLOOR

DENVER, Colo., June 22.—The DAILY WORKER picnic today netted 45 subscriptions and approximately $50 in donations. All present agreed it was one of the best picnics ever held in Denver.

At the Labor Centennial Saturday, Comrade Helen Lowy Dietrich won a twelve hundred dollars Cleveland Six in a raffle distribution of DAILY WORKER which continued at the DAILY WORKER booth there every evening until the close tonight. I am leaving Tuesday for Kansas City. Will arrive in Chicago on July 3rd.

SOCIALISTS AID PAINLEVE DRIVE ON COMMUNISTS

Over 200 Workers Are Arrested in France

PARIS, June 22.—Over two hundred workers, including many Communists, are now in jails thruout France, following their arrest by the Painleve government, which is supported by the socialist party in silencing opponents of the Moroccan war. Painleve is in communication with the British government, it is admitted here, arranging for a combined drive against Communists and workers who oppose the imperialist wars of the Europeans in Morocco.

Those arrested are charged with "inciting soldiers to revolt, carrying on propaganda in Morocco against the French invasion," and numerous other charges of "sedition."

Steal Deputies Papers

Deputy Marty, who won his seat in the chamber while under sentence for refusing to aid the French fleet against Russia at Odessa in 1919, when he was an officer of the fleet, is expected to be arrested after Tuesday, when Painleve will ask that parliamentary immunity for the Communist deputies be revoked. Marty is charged by Painleve with "writing an article in l'Humanitè urging soldiers to disobedience."

Deputy Doriot's private papers, which were stolen from him by the Painleve government, which conducted a raid on his home, have been sent to the war office.

Deputy Marty has addressed huge meetings of workers at Bordeaux and other cities thruout France, called to protest against the war against the Riffians on their native soil, which has slaughtered hundreds of French soldiers. Marty exposed the war as the attempt of bankers and French capitalists to exploit the Riffian natural resources and their labor.

At Macon, Albi, and Lyons, Communist printing offices were raided by the Painleve government and much property destroyed. Parades of workers, and the public singing of the International have been prohibited.

Krim Begins Offensive

Meanwhile, word comes from Rabat that Abd-el-Krim has begun a strong offensive movement against the French troops north of Quezzan. Several advance posts of the French have been captured, and the French have been pushed back.

Tribes Against French

The important Bena Mesguilda group of Moroccans, northest of Fez, hitherto held in check by the French troops, are going over to the Riffians, it was admitted by the war office.

The Beni Fichtala, their neighbors on the south side of the Ouergha river, are prevented from enlisting with the Riffians only by the treat of the French bayonets.

MacMillan Leaves For Pole.

WOSCASSET, Me., June 22.—Donald B. MacMillan sailed from here for Etah, Greenland, on the first leg of his expedition to search for land in the region surrounding the north pole.

BRITISH MINERS WILL GO TO BAT FOR THEIR NATIONALIZATION PLAN

LONDON, June 22.—Nationalization of mines again has come to the front in the platform of the Miners' Federation and a committee has been appointed to draft a bill which would form the official policy.

CONGRESS OF WORLD'S BUSINESS MEN HAS POWER TO FORCE CHANGES IN GOVERNMENT'S PLUNDER PLANS

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 22.—The session of the international chamber of commerce, which has opened here, is packed with American delegates, there being 250 American representatives out of a total of 700 delegates.

The gathering of capitalists from all the world's dominating nations, will discuss the Dawes plan of war payments from Germany to the allies. It was the last congress of the business men which advocated a "reparations" plunder plan. The present convention has the power to force the governments to make any changes the kings of business see fit in the workings of the plan. Many are in favor of making the payment term more drastic.

The power of the businessmen's conference is seen in the fact that Seymour Parker Gilbert, general agent for reparations under the Dawes plan, is to preside over the transfer committee of the congress. Gilbert released his report covering the first eight months of operations of the Dawes plan, just before the congress, in order to oblige the delegates,

EXCELLENT PICTURE OF CAPITAL IN IMPERIALIST-MONOPOLY AGE GIVEN BY SHOE MAKING INDUSTRY

By H. SYDNEY BLOOMFIELD.

WORCESTER, Mass., June 22.—Every shoe manufacturer in Massachusetts and elsewhere in the country has been sent a questionaire asking him to report in "confidence" a long list of questions, among which he is asked what was his average daily output during 1924; the average daily output for the first quarter of this year; average daily output if factory is operating at maximum capacity; whether daily average of 1925 is regarded as normal or what is so regarded; whether factory expansion is contemplated for 1925, and if so, what will be the additional capacity provided, etc.

This survey is conducted by the U. S. department of commerce under the direction of Arthur B. Butman, chief of the shoe and leather manufactures

New York I. L. G. W. Locals, Unjustly Suspended, in Appeal to All Members

JUN 29 1925

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 22.—The storm of protest against the autocratic suspension of the three largest locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union by the yellow socialist gang which follows the Cahan-Forwards-Hillquit leadership headed by Sigman, Peristein and Feinberg, is rising not only in the three big suspended locals, but also in the other locals of the I. L. G. W. in New York City and other centers.

The following is the text of a circular sent out to all locals in the country by the executive boards of Locals 2, 9 and 22:

AN APPEAL TO ALL MEMBERS OF THE I. L. G. W. U.

"SISTERS and brothers: The joint board together with the officialdom of the International have started a vicious pogrom against the majority of the membership of the joint board.

"An unheard of campaign of terrorism, which has never been equaled in any labor organization is now going on in the International. Without any warning or even a pretense of a trial, three executives boards ane managers representing 30,000 members have been suspended from the joint board.

"Like bandits they broke into the offices of Locals 2 and 9 during the dead of the night and forcively took possession of them. A vigorous attack was also made on the office of Local 22, but there 200 men and women had barricaded themselves against these hirelings of the joint board. This iron wall of resistance prevented the forceful seizure of Local 22.

"What has really happened? What terrible crimes have the suspended executive boards and managers committed? The official charges are so ridiculous that even a casual observer can readilly see that they were merely intended to gain favor with the police and the bosses.

The First of May Question

"We have celebrated the First of May and invited Communist speakers. This is what we are charged with. For many years past, the locals of the international had been celebrating the First of May and Judge Pankin, a socialist, was the main speaker.

"Even this flimsy charge made by the joint board does not hold good against Local 22. Local 22 invited Morris Sigman, Scott Nearing (who

DEATH LIST IN TRAIN SMASH-UP STILL GROWING

Railroad to Blame Investigation Shows

DOVER, N. J., June 22—The death list in the German excursion wreck at the Lackawanna railroad rose to 49 when Miss Catherine Wilgermein, 2956 North Race Avenue, Chicago, died in the hospital.

Three others are in a critical condition, Mrs. Louise Kaufman, 1511 Laurel avenue, Chicago; Mrs. Catherine Weise, 1719 Laurel avenue, Chicago, and John Nieman, 1555 Tourney avenue, Evanston.

Investigation into the wreck, being conducted by the state board of utilities commissioners and the interstate commerce commission, had proceeded where it was said the railroad probably will be required to drain the long hill adjacent to the right of way. Sand washing down this hill on the tracks is blamed for the wreck.

Blame It on "God."

No further investigation will be made by either state or federal authorities into the wreck on the Lackawanna railroad at Rockport, N. J., June 17, which claimed 49 lives.

After hearing several witnesses, the conclusion was reached that the accident was an "act of providence."

BIG FRENCH LINER IS STRUCK BY TWO CREWS AT HAVRE AND TIED UP

HAVRE, June 22.—The French liner La Savoie, which was to have left for New York at 9 o'clock Saturday night, was prevented from sailing by the desertion of about 200 members of the crew.

A composite crew sent aboard later also deserted.

HYMAN, SPEAKING FOR I. L. G. W. MEMBERSHIP, WARNS BOSSES NOT TO SIGN UP WITH JOINT BOARD

By EARL R. BROWDER.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 22.—"Any agreement signed with the Joint Board of the International Ladies' Garment Workers in New York as at present constituted will be nothing but a scrap of paper. The people who are negotiating at present do not represent the workers and they have no power to bind the workers."

These words from Louis Hyman, manager of Local 9, and spokesman for the Joint Committee of Action of Locals 2, 9, and 22, the body which is directing the fight against the illegal suspensions of the officials of the three unions, threw a bomb into the camp of the employers and their agents in the administration of the union.

Consternation reigns in the camp of the union smashers and red baiters, because everyone knows well that when Hyman speaks he voices the sentiments and forecasts the actions of 60 per cent of the membership of the International in New York City. This fact was dramatically expressed on Tuesday night when, at the call of the joint committee of action, members of the three locals met in the number of 10,000 at Cooper Union, Webster Hall, and Manhattan Lyceum, packing the three large halls and turning several thousand away for lack of room, in a monster series of demonstrations against the Sigman-Peristein-Feinberg machine and solidarity with the executive boards of the locals which had been ordered suspended. So when Hyman issues an ultimatum to the employers everybody listens and the employers' press shivers and whines.

The Issues Behind the Struggle.

In the foreground of the struggle now going on are many issues which, important as some of them are, would not explain the depth, breadth, and intensity of the fight if taken alone. Some of the issues, such as that raised by the reactionaries in their charges against the local executives (upon which the suspension order is based) of the workers accept the leadership of the left wing.

COMMITTEE OF ACTION IN NEW YORK GARMENT WORKERS' LOCALS ISSUES SHOP ORDERS TO I. L. G. W.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 22.—The following is the text of the special bulletin to the cloak and dressmakers of New York issued by the Joint Committee of Action of the suspended Locals No. 2, 9 and 22 of the International Ladies' Garment Workers. This is evidently issued in the interest of preserving the solidarity of the union membership in their daily struggle with the boss, not permitting the autocratic Sigman-Perlstein-Forwards machine to divide the workers and wreck the union's fighting power:

OFFICIAL INSTRUCTIONS AND INFORMATION TO ALL CLOAK AND DRESS MAKERS OF NEW YORK

Issued by the Joint Action Committee of Locals 2, 9 and 22

FELLOW WORKERS:—You are urged not to be mislead by the many unfounded rumors and misrepresentations by the Joint Board and International machine.

Be on your guard and carry out the instructions that you will get thru our Special Bulletins and thru the columns of the workers' press.

Carry on your work in the shops as union workers should, and take no orders from the machine and its many agents of the Joint Board whose object it is to pit worker against worker and thus throw some of you out of your jobs. Refuse to carry out such orders.

Chairmen, together with committees of all branches of the shop of all cloak and dress houses, are requested to settle all disputes until further notice thru our Special Bulletins.

The Joint Action Committee is working on a plan to protect the workers in the shops from attacks by the agents of the machine. This plan will be announced in a few days.

Do not pay any dues in the offices of the Joint Board or in any of the seized offices of our locals, because this money will be used to carry on this fight against you.

Refuse to give up your union books to the agents of the machine because the books belong to you. Ignore their threats.

All members of other locals, such as Pressers, Cutters, Sample Makers, etc., who are against this outrage by the machine, are urged to help us carry on the fight.

Do not sign any papers of the machine agents that are designed to trick you into a trap under the guise of loyalty.

Do not permit them to twist the facts and have you believe that this is a fight of Communists only. This is a struggle for rank and file control in our union.

Carry out these instructions and the fight of many years for a real workers' organization will be won.

JOINT ACTION COMMITTEE, of Locals 2, 9 and 22.

BRITISH MINE OWNERS ATTEMPT TO CUT WAGES 14 PER CENT AND ADD 4 HOURS TO WORKING WEEK

LONDON, June 22.—A possible general strike in the coal mining industry in Great Britain is being considered.

SCORE OF COMMUNISTS IN COURT TODAY TO DEFEND FREE SPEECH

A score of Communists will appear this morning before Judge Allegretti at the Chicago avenue police station, Chicago avenue, and Clark street, to defend their right to address open air meetings on the streets of Chicago.

The cases of Barney Mass, acting national secretary of the Young Workers League, and Karl Reeve, of the editorial staff of the DAILY WORKER, who were arrested last Saturday night on the corner of North avenue and Orchard street, were continued until this morning.

They will be heard together with the cases of seventeen other Communists arrested on the same corner the previous week. The prosecutor asked for a continuance on the ground that the city attorney was not present.

The Communiss are charged with violating ordinance 3703, which requires a permit to speak on the streets. However, the ordinance has been declared unconstitutional.

PROGRESSIVES FORCE LEE TO CALL OFF MEET

Class Collaboration Feast "Postponed"

By ALFRED WAGENKNECHT

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAND, June 22.—"Bill" Lee's white flag of surrender is already down to half mast. It may be completely out of sight with the passage of a few more days. We now learn that the recent Brotherhood of Trainmen's convention, held in Cleveland, gave Lee and his brother reactionaries a few jobs, the carrying out of which will not be conductive to a closer friendship with the railroad magnates.

The Lee class peace plan meeting has been postponed. As will be remembered, Lee went all class collaborationists one hundred points better in proposing a plan for permanent rail peace at the convention of the B. R. T. All railroad executive and Railway Union heads were to gather in solemn conclave to abolish the class struggle. The initial meeting of the cats and mice was to have occurred in this city on June 29. It is not going to be held so soon if at all.

"Hot Weather" for Bill Lee

One excuse given is the hot weather. Another is that many railway experts are going to London to the international railway congress. But these are just excuses. Every sane worker knows that neither weather nor London would keep either railway executives or such a first class bosses' lackey as Lee away from a nice conference held for the purpose of abolishing strikes, wage demands and general opposition to the gang of coupon clippers.

The underlying reason for cancelling the class peace meeting is because the delegates refused to behave Lee—like at the B. R. T. convention. The wonderful scheme of Lee's for truce and peace must not have been acceptable serum for inoculation to the delegates. The convention was a closed door affair. The several progressive delegates on the inside were eventually discovered and thrown out. Everything was done to give Lee smooth sailing. However, big things seem to have happened inside.

Something Busted Inside

The world now learns that the convention delegates demanded a nationwide movement for wage increases. The chairmen's association of the B. R. T. were instructed to take up with the general chairman of the Order of Railway Conductors' Union in meetings beginning November 1. Present agreements expire December 31. The wages increase to be demanded is 12 per cent. So now Lee's harmony meeting has been delayed, because of hot weather says Lee.

What we hope is that the rank and file in the B. R. T. will continue to make it ever hotter for Lee by continuous demands of better working conditions, more wages, amalgamation, international trade union unity, so that the white flag of Lee will never again float over the union's front, but instead the red flag of struggle.

SECOND 'PROGRESSIVE' SENATOR DIES AS LA FOLLETTE IS BURIED

MADISON, Wis., June 22.—While Senator LaFollette was being buried here at Forest Hills cemetery, word came that another senate "progressive," Edwin F. Ladd of North Dakota, had died in Baltimore, Md., of kidney trouble and neuritis.

LaFollette's coffin, as it stood in the capitol rotunda, was draped in the flag that had flown from the battleship Wisconsin, his associates seeming to find it consistent to add this military touch to his services. The public was not admitted to the funeral services.

PARIS CHINESE GIVE SLEEPY ENVOY A PUSH

"Sign on Dotted Line", Say Students

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PARIS, June 22.—Carrying banners saying "Hands Off China!" and "Down with British-American Intervention" over 100 Chinese students in Paris picketed the Chinese embassy here yesterday and twenty of them conducted an unwelcome interview with Ambassador Tchin Lu.

Time To Protest Is Now

"It is no good," said the leader of the party, "to try to telephone. We have cut the wires of your office phone and the phone in your private apartment is well guarded by members of our party. The janitor and other European servants are our prisoners for the time being. Let us waste no time.

"You have never protested the sending of French warships to China. You had better do it now."

The puzzled minister was presented with four documents which he was compelled to sign. One was a note of protest to the French government asserting in undiplomatic language China's right to live as an independent country and peremptorily demanding the withdrawal of the French warships from Chinese waters.

Nudge Negligent Ambassador

The second was a cable message to a Shanghai republican paper, expressing unequivocal approval of the revolutionary deeds there and urging the students, working men and other patriots to fight to the bitter end.

The third was a proclamation to the Chinese people urging them not to give up the fight against the European capitalist. It said: "To the Chinese people: Present events in China prove our people are now entirely awakened and have decided unreservedly to combat imperialism."

A Letter to the Cops

The fourth document was a letter to the French police, informing them that all who had come to visit the minister in the delegation were most welcome guests and asking the authorities not to bother them.

When these various documents had been signed, the leader of the visiting delegation bowed deeply and followed his fellows out of the building.

The Puzzled Police

At the gates the intruders were met by a large force of French police, who, of course, could not enter the legation grounds. When the inspector of police wanted to investigate what had been doing the leader of the delegation presented him with Minister Tcheng Loh's safe conduct. The party was then permitted to withdraw without interference.

The police were greatly puzzled. They had been informed by passers-by that there was a riot in the Chinese embassy.

One of the Chinese patriots, who had been posted as a sentry in the janitor's room was forgotten when the other members of the party left. He was arrested.

British Mine Owners Attempt to Cut Wages and Lengthen Workday proposals for a new wage agreement next Tuesday and the Miners' Executive committee will debate it next day.

The basis of the proposed settlement is five days of eight hours, with six hours on Saturday, making a total of forty-six hours weekly, instead of forty-two as at present.

In addition the mine owners propose a wage cut, giving as one excuse that the 14 per cent increase granted in the past was granted only on the basis of making up the wages for a shorted work day. Now that they propose lengthening the work week by four hours, they also want to cut the 14 per cent off the wages.

The old agreement expires on June 30. The mine owners, as usual, plead that they are all going in rags and tatters, making no money at all, in fact, losing money, and that the wages at present keeps the prices of coal too high.

Defense Lawyers Confer on Scopes Trial at Dayton

DAYTON, Tenn., June 22.—The defense attorneys in the trial of John R. Scopes, to take place here July 10, were in conference here today, headed by Clarence Darrow. Scopes will be tried for teaching evolution in the Rhea county high school, in violation of the state's recently passed anti-evolution law.

The trial of William D. Shepherd for the alleged murder of William Nelson McClintock, his foster-son, wound its way toward its final chapters as the defense prepared to present its closing witnesses including the defendant himself.

FASCIST DICTATORSHIP COMPLETED BY PASSING OF DECREE MEASURES

Exellent Picture of Capital in the Age of Imperialist Monopoly

division, in co-operation with the domestic commerce division of the department and with the shoe industry itself.

The normal and maximum capacity of the country's shoe industry is not definitely known today and definite figures as to consumption in this country are also lacking. It is generally assumed that the per capita consumption of leather boots and shoes in this country is about three pairs a year. The retail shoe trade is preparing to assemble statistics which will indicate consumption.

Export Trade Falling Off.

Many countries that formerly imported American shoes have practically ceased buying here. Government export gures point to the fact that these countries have been importing shoe machinery and are now producing practically all their shoe supply.

It is the general belief in shoe circles that with the compilation of the necessary statistical data and with the aid of the various governmetal departments, a general amalgamation campaign will be carried on in the entire industry from tanning factories to retail shoe stores.

Such phenomenon is manifest at the present time, but slowly and without much noise. Retail dealers will be pushed out of business by hook or crook. The same will apply to tanning factories and shoe shops either by merging or by being forced out of business thru other competitive methods. In this war of big fish eat little fish the government is at the service of the big fish.

Centralizing and Combining.

The Dunn Green Tanneries of Hudson, Mass, and the R. H. Long Shoe Co., of Framingham, Mass., both old established firms that employed many workeres have been sold at auction the early part of this month. Many more shoe and leather establishments are either merged with a stronger one or forced out of business. In the meantime the profits of the combine are increasing. An example of this phenomena may be seen in the expansion of the G. R. Kinney Co., Inc.

This company operates one of the largest chains of general shoe stores. Its 222 stores are located in 84 cities and 31 states. This company also owns or controls the majority stock of the following factories: Goodyear Shoe Co., Bedford Shoe Co., Johnson-Baillie Shoe Co., J. Landis Shoe Co., and the Perry-Norvell Co.

A little history of this company will prove to the most ignorant person how the working class is being robbed incessantly while the profits are piling up and up.

Pouring In the Water.

In January, 1917, the business was incorporated in New York state with an authorized capitalization consisting of $1,500,000 of 8 per cent cumulative preferred stock and 30,000 shares comon stock without par value. In the following year the authorized preferred stock was increased to $2,500,000 and in November, 1919, the capitalization was increased by another million dollars. This latter increase of stock was used for the purchase of the Johnson-Baillie, J. Landis, Perry-Norvell and Bedford Shoe Companies, for which an aggregate of $2,014,000 in stock, not cash, were paid.

In December, 1921, the authorized preferred stock was increased to $8,000,000, and an issue of two and one half million dollars in seven and one-half per cent notes was sold to provide funds for an extensive expansion program. Up to December 31, 1924, the company had squeezed out shareholders by either cancelling or repurchasing notes to the tune of $669,500. In October, 1923, the first Goodyear factory was acquired and in 1924 a second factory was erected, both operations being financed out of earnings, in other words, out of the profits, and not by putting up a single cent.

The Triumph of Monopoly.

In 1921, the G. R. Kinney Co., had 102 stores; in 1924, it had 207 stores. In 1921, profits amounted to $588,257; in 1924, profits amounted to $1,229,-719. The merging of factories, addition of stores and the rise of profits, is the history of this company which is typical of what is at present taking place in the shoe industry. The results of the government's action in this industry will be felt by the tannery workers, shoe workers, and even by the shoe salesmen and the "two by four" shoe dealers, whether they be jobbers or retailers. The leveling of the masses goes on by this process of capitalist development on the basis of big fish eat little fish.

Socialists Also Join in Effort to Make "Great Man" of Sen. La Follette

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, strenuous efforts are being made by the friends of Senator LaFollette to lift him to the pedestal of "a great man." The noisiest among these LaFollette boosters include many "socialists," altho the "socialist" party at its last convention resolved to break with the LaFollette third party movement, some belligerent delegates even denouncing the treason to the class struggle committed by crawling unreservedly aboard the presidential bandwagon of the late Wisconsin senator.

• • • •

Human "greatness" depends on who writes history. It is sure that the histories written by the capitalist writers of today, who will give LaFollette honorable mention, will be scrapped on the morrow when labor comes into power.

The czars, the grand dukes and the grand duchesses thought they were "great" in their day in Russia. But Soviet Rule has finally placed upon them their true value. Capitalism today lauds its military heroes as much as any ruling class in the past. But workers will live to learn that Spartacus, the rebellious slave, is more to be honored than the Roman Caesars; that all down the pages of history there are hidden away obscure mention of lowly agitators, propagandists of and fighters for the new day to come, whose names will loom big as the Napoleons, Bismarcks, Wellingtons and their whole breed, to the present day, are forgotten, or remembered only as hideous offspring of a barbarous age that is gone.

• • • •

LaFollette was not a "leader" in the sense that he was the standard bearer of some new cause. The agitator, who is hounded and jailed by the rulers of today, is he who educates and organizes the workers for the overthrow of the capitalist system.

Walter Thomas Mills, the "socialist" who secured some prominence as the author of "The Struggle for Existence," in the days before the war, rids himself of some super-buncombe when he declares:

> "The country has lost the greatest man in its history. LaFollette was the leader of the masses, and history will place his name along with that of Lincoln and Washington."

Altho Lincoln led in the fight for the overthrow of chattel slavery, there came before him John Brown, martyred in the cause of the black slave's emancipation. Washington led in the war against England, but it was a war of the property owners of the colonies, who had slaves both white and black, and who worried little about the human rights of oppressed mankind.

• • • •

But LaFollette has led no fight. He showed himself a clever politician to be sure. He sided with labor sufficiently to get the support of the trade union aristocracy. He lifted his voice for the farmers, but only loud enough to get some of their votes. When he developed presidential aspirations he disowned the Negroes, fearing it might hurt him among those who really cast the ballots in the South, the whites. LaFollette definitely and decisively showed where he stood in the present class war when he denounced the Farmer-Labor Conference, of June 17, 1924, in St. Paul. When workers and farmers rise to power they will not forget. The historic retrospect of the years to come will show little difference between Coolidge and LaFollette. Both champion the system of private ownership, Coolidge for the big owners, LaFollette for the little owners of private property. All that divided them was the fact that Coolidge ruled for capitalism in the White House, while LaFollette was trying to patch it up in the senate, instead of seeking to destroy it. There are whole flocks of LaFollettes on top, in many nations today, and they are among the worst oppressors of labor. Take Millerand, Briand and Viviani in France, who were even "socialists" in their earlier days.

• • • •

In the Chicago Federation of Labor, the "socialist," Christian M. Madsen, former member of the state legislature, introduces a resolution declaring LaFollette "a champion of human freedom." Many there are who have uttered words for human freedom. But LaFollette and his following in congress wouldn't even make a fight for free speech during the war. American labor has been smothered with political platitudes, and still staggers under this narcotic influence. LaFollette was an excellent utterer of phrases. But every call for action found him wanting, even for his own middle class; once when he failed to join the Roosevelt break with the republican party in 1912, and again after the war when he delayed the organization of his so-called "progressive" forces into a third party movement because he thought, "the people are not yet ready for it."

• • • •

When the Communists in the New York Conference of the American Labor Party last Saturday refused to stand in tribute to the memory of LaFollette, they were bitterly assailed by the "socialists," who revel in their idolatry for this middle class hero. If homage must be bludgeoned on behalf of LaFollette in the days that his corpse is being buried, small chance that he will long hold a niche in the memory of today's rising working class, that will win power in spite of such misleaders as he.

GROUP LEADERS, ATTENTION!

Today, June 23, Comrade Barney Mass, acting national secretary of the Young Workers' League, will address the Chicago group leaders. The subject of Comrade Mass' lecture is, "The Chinese Situation and Its Relation to the World Labor Movement." Place: 2613 Hirsch Blvd.

All group leaders must attend this lecture, as the Chinese question is one of the most important today, and the group leaders must know how to bring this question before the eyes of the children. The lecture will start at eight o'clock sharp and all those that are not there at that time will miss part of a very interesting talk. All group leaders should attend, and all outside comrades that are interested in this subject are invited to come, listen, and partake in the discussion.

DETROIT LABOR FEDERATION FOR UNITED DEFENSE

Send Delegate to the June 28 Conference

By CYRIL LAMSKIN

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

DETROIT, Mich., June 22—Imbued with a spirit of class consciousness such as has seldon been evident in the Detroit Federation of Labor since the late Sam Gompers handed them his ultimatum two years ago the Detroit Federation of Labor at their last meeting took favorable action on the call issued by the Labor Defense Council for a National Conference to be held in Chicago Sunday, June 28. They elected Wm. Mollenhauer, delegate from the Musicians' Union, as their representative to this conference. Mollenhauer won over John T. Taylor, former president of the Detroit Federation by a vote of 27 to 26.

The delegates also declared themselves vigorously against the imperialist depredations in China, and against the conviction of Pablo Manlapit the leader of the striking canefield workers in Hawaii.

The following resolutions were adopted unanimously and ordered sent to the president of the United States.

Resolution introduced by delegate Mollenhauer:

WHEREAS, Pablo Manlapit, leader of the striking canefield workers in Hawaii has been convicted and sentenced to from two to ten years at hard labor for his activities in the strike, and

WHEREAS, Manlapit is a man of slight physique and such a sentence is equivalent to a death sentence and has been imposed because of his standing in the strike of the cane workers, therefore

Be It Resolved, That the Detroit Federation of Labor demands the unconditional pardon of Pablo Manlapit at once.

Moved and supported that the resolution be adopted and a copy be sent to the president of the United States. Carried.

Resolution introduced by Delegate Mollenhauer:

Recall U. S. Troops!

WHEREAS, The cotton mill workers of Shanghai, China, struck for higher wages, better conditions and the right to organize, and

WHEREAS, Chinese students were ruthlessly shot down by police under the control of the so-called foreign concessionaries, ten being killed and many wounded, and

WHEREAS, The government of the United States has been a party to this by virtue of its having a part in the Shanghai municipal council and so being partly responsible for the actions of the Sikh police who are under the control of the council, and

WHEREAS, The above and the sending of gunboats to Chinese waters to aid in suppressing the strike are threats to the workers thruout the world, therefore,

Be It Resolved, That the Detroit Federation of Labor demands the immediate recall of American warships from Chinese waters and the renunciation of the extra territorial rights in China now held by America which were forced from the Chinese people against their will.

Moved and supported the resolution be adopted and a copy sent to the president of the United States. Carried.

Letter From Workers Party.

The following letter from the Workers Party calling for a united front campaign in the municipal elections which take place in the fall was read and referred to the Political Committee of the Federation.

June 9th, 1925.

Detroit Federation of Labor, Frank X. Martel, Pres., Detroit, Mich.

Brothers: The municipal elections at which a mayor will be elected for four years and a city council for two years are rapidly approaching. The working class of Detroit is and must be vitally interested in the elections of the officials of a city in which it constitutes a majority of the population.

The Workers Party, while it realizes that the problems confronting us as workers cannot be solved in a system based upon the exploitation of the working class, it nevertheless considers the elections of great importance as they offer the opportunity of mobilizing working class strength for safeguarding the gains already made and for making further gains.

Call for United Front.

The Workers Party which is a political party of the working class intends to enter the campaign. It has no faith in politicians of either of the old parties because the old parties are parties of the employing class. It believes that the interests of our class can best be served if all working class organizations, labor unions, political, and others, will join in united front for the purposes of the campaign and will put forth a joint program.

The Workers Party of Detroit fraternally requests you to communicate with us by the 20th of this month.

Fraternally yours, Workers Party of Detroit, Edgar Owens, Sec'y.

Its Purpose is to Strengthen the Labor Unions by Amalgamation of Existing Unions, Organization of the Unorganized, and by Replacing Reactionary and Class Collaboration Policies with a Unified Program for the Transformation of the Unions into Organs of Revolutionary Class Struggle for the Overthrowal of Capitalism and the Establishment of a Workers' and Farmers' Government.

SHOE STRIKE SHOWS BEST UNION POLICY

Fighting Wins; Yellow Socialists Exposed

By DAVID ENGEL.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 22—The Shoe Workers' Protective Union of Philadelphia has scored its first victory in the fight against the open shop when the Culton Manies shop settled agreeing to all union conditions.

The fight started four weeks ago when the union declared a strike in two factories which refused to recognize the union working permits. The bosses at this time attempted to fire a number of union workers and replace them with non-union men and establish their absolute right to hire and fire workers when they pleased as the first step to establish the open shop with all its miserable conditions.

The organized shoe workers of Philadelphia gathered at their union meeting and unanimously decided to go out on strike in these two shops.

As soon as the strike began two workers were arrested and one was beaten up for demanding their pay from the boss who fired them. They were, however, immediately released and the boss was compelled to pay them off.

Scabs Wear Masks!

During the same week the bosses started to bring scabs into the struck shops late at night with masks on their faces so that strikers would not recognize them. At first with the help of the police the scabs continued to work for a while, but our strikers had some previous experiences and knew how to handle the situation with the result that the scabs did not last more than a couple of days to the great satisfaction and encouragement of all strikers and union men.

During the early days of the strike a petty boss by the name of Goodman, who only became a boss a few months ago, went to work in one of the struck shops to prove his solidarity to the bosses. Before going to scab he told the pickets that he would see to it that the strikers would starve on the street, which only gave more courage to the strikers who replied that his day will come yet.

At the next local meeting it was unanimously decided to support the strike by having every union member who was working pay five per cent of his wages to the strike as long as it lasts. A request was made from the general office of the Shoe Workers' Protective Union to send a special organizer to help to conduct the strike. Brother De Liberty was sent here and has helped considerably in the strike.

Fighting Policy Wins.

With the first victory in their hands the union is conducting the strike with renewed energy and the strikers are showing a spirit that will win this strike against the open shop within a very short time.

The Shoe Workers' Protective Union has demonstrated that a successful fight can be made against the open shop and this victory will surely lead them to further aggressive steps to organize all the shops in this city.

It is interesting to note here the attitude of the labor press towards this strike. The DAILY WORKER, the Freiheit and the Jewish Forward were notified of the strike and asked to give it publicity.

Yellow Socialist Paper Exposed.

The DAILY WORKER and the Freiheit gave ample space to the news of the strike but no news of the strike could be found in the Forward tho many of the workers were searching for it between the bed room stories of millionaire love affairs.

The supporters of the DAILY WORKER and the Freiheit and members of the Trade Union Educational League did not have to use any lengthy arguments to convince the strikers and the union members which of these are real labor papers and fight for the cause of labor.

NEW YORK, June 22—Henry Ford put his flag in the trans-Atlantic freight service today.

Milwaukee Plumbers Accept a Compromise

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 22.—After two weeks' strike for the $10 day the 250 union plumbers in Milwaukee accepted the compromise offer of $9.50, an increase of 50 cents over the scale that expired June 1. While a number of cities pay more, others pay less, notably St. Paul where the union scale is $8.

JOINT MEETINGS DATES GIVEN OF RAIL MEN

Prepare for Contract Expirations

CLEVELAND, Ohio, June 22—Chairmen's associations of the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainment and the Order of Railway Conductors will hold joint divisional meetings in November to consider the proposition of seeking a wage increase from approximately 200 railroads in the United States for trainmen and conductors.

The dates of the joint meetings follow:

Chicago local Chairmen's association, Chicago, Nov. 1.

Western general Chairmen's association, Chicago, Nov. 3.

Southern general Chairmen's association, Washington, Nov. 10.

Eastern general Chairmen's association, Cleveland, Nov. 17.

If the Chairmen's associations decide to request a wage increase the proposal will be put up to a referendum vote of the members of the brotherhoods for approval. If approved the Chairmen's associations will present it to the railroads in their respective territories. Contracts of the trainment and conductors' brotherhoods with a large number of railroads expire at the end of this year.

6 Per Cent Democracy Puts Faker in Again

SEATTLE, June 22—Absence of contesting candidates resulted in bringing out only 6 per cent of the vote of the Washington State Federation of Labor. William Short was re-elected president.

Scab Baker Busts.

DUBUQUE, June 21. — Boss Baker Remsley who boasted that he would put the Dubuque local of the Bakery & Confectionery Workers Intl. out of business, has disappeared, his bakery closed down by his creditors, while the local continues to gain members and consolidate its power.

TREACHERY OF HILLMAN MACHINE SEEN IN COMBINE WITH FASCIST GROUP IN LITHUANIAN LOCAL 54

NEW YORK CITY, June 22.—Lithuanian fascisti, with the assistance of the joint board are feverishly organizing corporations, which are purported to have been legalized by the union, President Hillman and Manager Wolff, of the New York joint board.

The Lithuanian Local No. 54, for several years past, had come into prominence by reason of its struggles for strengthening the union as well as on account of its relentless fight against unorganized shops; the local had also to carry on struggle within, against promoters and organizers of corporations as such.

The fascisti, socialists, and nationalists, naturally, were displeased with those Communist activities and consequently decided to do away with them in order to clear the way for the corporations to be organized at liberty.

The conflict between the radicals, on the one hand, and reactionaries, on the other, continued for several years, and the radicals (Communists) had successfully held their own against all onslaughts of their adversaries. And it was only thanks to the present manager of the New York joint board and all the rest of mensheviks that they, with the help of gangsters, on February 19, succeeded in beating up the radicals and suspending a number of active members for five years. This is the means by which they are today keeping themselves in power.

There has been nothing obstreperous in the conduct of the Communists and their sympathizers after the suspensions; they had decided to act within the limits of the constitution. On March 15, they appealed to the board of directors, asking that their case be reconsidered; but the mensheviks have not as yet given any consideration to the matter of suspension. Which should serve to indicate that the joint board is deliberately upholding the corporationists among the Lithuanians.

Turn From Class Struggle.

Under such tutelage there have been already organized 13 corporations, and the corporationists are determined to proceed in this direction with an ever-increasing tempo.

The present local committee, with the exception of one member of the joint board and the delegate, is composed of anti-Semites and corporationists. Financial Secretary A. Bubnys at the union office takes it to be his duty to inform the members that Hillman and Wolff have told him that there was no other way to bring back the industry to New York but organize corporations which would do the work cheaper, and so it would prove unprofitable for the firms to give their orders out to the non-union shops because the work could be done just as cheaply by "union" shops.

Secretary Bubnys' statements are borne out by Vaitukaitis, member of the joint board. All of which goes to show that class struggle is losing its last foothold in our union.

Hillman's Betrayal.

If Hillman and Wolff see the only salvation in organizing corporations as the means of bringing the market back to New York, there must be something wrong in the Amalgamated. And all of those in whom there is still lingering a least spark of class consciousness should unite and show the door to the leaders of this species, if we do not want to degenerate into an association of corporations and wish to remain a working class union.

While the very local committee and union officials are urging or agitating to organize corporations, the labors of Communists would be of little avail.

Besides the thirteen newly organized corporations mentioned before, there are half a dozen more in the process of organization. Thus we shall shortly have nineteen corporation shops among the Lithuanians. Which is to say that the militant Lithuanian local is changing into a "business men's" local. The responsibility for this situation, of course, should be assumed by union officials, especially by Wolff, Miller, and Hillman, who supported the fascist alliance against the Communists in Local No. 54.

Like a Chamber of Commerce.

The Amalgamated Building itself (Arion Place) has become a central station for organizing corporations. Greenberg is quite willingly renting the hall to fascisti for their fractional meetings where plans for organizing corporations and assaulting radicals, with the assistance of thugs in pay of the joint board, are being hatched.

Such are the policies tolerated, even sponsored by the joint board menshevik machine; and they mean disaster, nay, a death blow to the entire union and especially to the Lithuanian local.

The joint board is siding with the strike breaker chairman of the local and does not even stop to inquire into the reasons for which nine members of the local were suspended. For the chairman is a socialist.

It is a well-known and established fact that he with three others of his kind remained to scab in the S. Ackerman factory while all the rest went on strike. Nevertheless he is being justified and protected by the joint board manager Wolff and other board members. On the other hand, however, the joint board is turning a deaf ear to the appeal of those active union members who were on February 19 slugged by the gangsters and suspended, in addition.

The appeal which was submitted more than three months so far has failed to get any consideration whatever, while the joint board is too busy protecting the scabs against honest union members.

Clash Soon to Come Between Open Shop and Biulding Trades

The Chicago building trades council's determination to hold contractors to their agreement and stop placing nonunion men on the same job with unionists will come to an early issue. As soon as work begins on a contract let since June 1 the employers will have the chance to honor their word or face complete sympathetic strikes.

GOOLIDGE GOOD TIMES GETTING HARD IN SPOTS

Government Hope Artists Working Hard

WASHINGTON, June 22—Bituminous mining was "further curtailed" during May, says the industrial employment information bulletin issued by the U. S. employment service. "A number of mines were entirely closed and many of those still open are on a two or three day a week basis. . . . The iron and steel industry slightly curtailed operations in some plants."

On the other hand, the service asserts that "The upward trend in employment noted in April was sustained in May."

Textile towns in New England report the majority of mills running only part time or with reduced forces.

New York state reports are in general unchanged, but Rochester's manufacturing plants are, "with but few exceptions, still operating below normal and a surplus of labor obtains in several important industries."

Pennsylvania reports that "Employment declined in several lines, particularly the bituminous coal industry, the iron and steel and allied industries, textile mills and railroads, while it is holding up fairly well in the anthracite fields and the automotive and electrical industries."

Illinois "continues in a state of depression," with 3 per cent reduction in employment since February.

Strike the Only Way to Settle Complains Despite Cappellini

WILKESBARRE, Pa., June 22—Twelve hundred miners, employed by the Lehigh and Wilkesbarre Coal Co. conducted a four-day strike till the management promised to adjust their grievance by providing additional help for runners and patchers. This was the second strike and came when the management failed to make an expected adjustment.

LEWIS SEEKS TO BAR LEFT WING FIGHTERS

Don't Want Any at Convention

By ALEX REID.

(Secretary, Progressive Miners' International Committee of the United Mine Workers of America.)

TAYLORVILLE, ILL., June 22.—The attempted postponement of the international convention of the miners by the Lewis machine because of fear of losing their positions thru such a convention, is seen in the latest instructions sent out to bar the militant membership from the convention.

The militant opposition to Lewis in the 1924 convention in Indianapolis must not be allowed to recur again, and the memory of that militant, defiant group of 1,000 left wingers which defeated him, standing shouting in the Tomlinson Hall, accusing him of treason to the coal diggers, must be destroyed at all cost. So thinks Lewis.

One Crook Writes to Another.

Dominick Teneski, an erstwhile friend and confident of Farrington, who today is making little rocks out of big ones for robbing dead miners of death insurance paid by the U. M. W. of A., received the following statement from Lewis in reference to a convention report made by one left wing miner who very severely criticised Lewis' treachery to Howat, Myerscough, and McLachlan, "In the future such men must not be permitted to attend our conventions. We must have harmony. Their opposition is a disgrace to our union. I cannot expel him without proper charges being preferred against him, etc., etc."

Haunting fear from this memory of that outraged delegation shaking their fists and threatening him with bodily injury, coupled with the flagrant treason he has committed since and the knowledge that the miners are awaiting the convention to deal judgment to him in a manner fitting to all traitors of the working class, is responsible to a large extent for the attempt to postpone the convention.

Harmony on the Basis of a Fighting Union.

We must have harmony. But harmony can never be achieved in the U. M. W. of A., as long as Lewis remains its president. As long as the militant miners are denied expression in the union. As long as progressives are expelled for resisting the fakers' class collaboration policies, their desertion of the class struggle, and their complete surrender to the coal barons.

It is noticeable that our Uncle Samuel's guest received a veiled invitation to prefer charges against the militant left winger, and no doubt, if Dominick had done so, Lewis would have found ample precedence to crucify the militant as in the Howat, McLachlan, and other cases, and only Dominicks unwilling absence prevented another expulsion.

The statement from Lewis to Teneski was in reply to Teneski's information to Lewis, and the local union demanded a copy of the Teneski letter from Lewis, who replied that the matter was closed and no copy would be sent.

Fight Against Expulsions.

The Progressive Miners will be on their guard thruout the union. A desperate effort is being made to destroy them, in the name of "harmony." The harmony resulting from the meeting between a hungry lion with a lamb. Harmony in the ranks of the miners is necessary and the Progressive Miners will accomplish it. Their fighting union will be rebuilt in spite of Lewis, and with militant leadership thruout the country the Progressive Miners will lead to harmony and victory with the elimination of the Lewis gang.

GIRLS! ASK THE WISE COMMISSIONERS IF THEY LIVE ON $13 PER WEEK

BOSTON, June 22—Women and girls millinery workers must contrive to live on $13 a week in Boston the minimum wage commission has decided. The ruling takes effect July 1 and affects girls who are 19 and have been employed at least four seasons of 16 weeks each, including two spring and two fall seasons. Learners and apprentices get special minimum rates of $6 to $12 a week, accordnig to age. The minimum wage commission made out a budget showing how girl workers can live (if they can) on $13 a week but no budget has yet been contrived to show how girls can live on $6 a week—without other assistance.

PAINTERS OF LOS ANGELES BATTLE C. L. C. REACTION

Locals and District Council Protest

LOS ANGELES, Calif., June 22—The following resolution, adopted by Painters' Union Local 1348, protesting against the expulsion of Fred Kaplan from his union, was also adopted by Local No. 511 and by the Painters' District Council.

The Painters' District Council sent a resolution of protest to the Central Labor Council agains this autocratic expulsion. The T. U. E. L. of Los Angeles is circularizing the local unions with a statement on the unjust and illegal expulsion of Brother Kaplan. The resolution follows:

Resolution.

"Whereas, The Central Labor Council has expelled Delegate Fred Kaplan merely because he is a member of the Workers Party, and

"Whereas, No such discrimination has ever been made by the council against members of any other political parties, and

"Whereas, No charges were ever preferred against said delegate and no trial given the accused, and

"Whereas, Such discrimination may divert the attention and energies of organized labor from their struggle against exploitation to jurisdictional fights and political favoritism, and

"Whereas, Such action invites the formation of an autocratic clique with full power to terrorize any constructive opposition into submission, and

"Whereas, We never noticed such quick and energetic action on the part of the Central Labor Council to help us fight our real and only enemy, during the painters' strike of last year, which was endorsed by your honorable body, therefore be it

"Resolved, That we the Painters Local Union 1348 vigorously protest the action of the Central Labor Council, and demand that the Council permit the local unions to choose their own representatives and cease to expel delegates because they hold certain political opinions, and be it further

"Resolved, That this resolution be sent to all Painters' Local Unions of the district and to the labor press.

"Adopted unanimously at the meeting of the Painters Local Union 1348, May 26, 1925, H. FISH, Secretary."

YELLOW FAKERS' ATTACK SETS N. Y. UNIONS ON FIRE

Socialist Autocracy Fought by 30,000

By ERNEST ETTLINGER.

NEW YORK CITY—With a unanimity seen only in great mass strikes, thousands of garment workers at their various mass meetings have unequivocably condemned the attempt of the officials of the International Ladies Garment Workers Union to disrupt their organization and make it a pliable tool of the Forward gang and the socialist party.

The reaction of the rank and file against the terrorist policy of the union officialdom reached its climax and thousands of workers loyally pledged their support to their duly elected executive boards to fight and resist any attempt to tamper with the organization and so break down the standards attained by years of struggle.

Suspended Executives Take Offensive.

The executive boards of the respective locals of the Garment Workers, Local 22, Local 2 and 9, illegally suspended by the autocrats of the International, Messrs, Sigman Feinberg & Company outlined the causes of the attack on the union and pointed out that the union machine being bankrupt and unable to gain for the workers union conditions and unwilling to make a militant fight against the employers had resorted to this latest tactic and in true autocratic style had attempted to intimidate the union by the suspension of the executive board.

This outrage should be sufficient to point out to the workers that the officialdom were interested in nothing but to perpetuate their control and were willing to sell the union hand and foot to the employers if by so doing they could retain control of the organization.

Machine Is Desperate.

Menaced by the growing protest of the rank and file against their treacherous policy of collaboration with the bosses, the union machine in one last desperate attempt endeavored to split the organization and weaken the fighting power of the union.

It was pointed out that, whereas the joint board has an income of over five hundred thousand dollars a year, with no legitimate expenses, yet their voracious appetites were never satisfied and in spite of the protests of the local unions they forced thru a raise in the dues which would further enable them to live off the backs of the rank and file.

It also was pointed out by the various speakers that whereas the suspended locals had in their ranks forty thousand workers which is sixty per cent of the total union membership, yet their representation on the joint board was only twenty per cent. And it was only by means of this "rotten borough" system that the machine retained its control in spite of the fact that the overwhelming majority of the membership was opposed to them.

At all of these meetings the rank and file unanimously adopted resolutions of condemnation against the tactics and policies of the joint board and the International, and pledged their full support to carry on the fight to the finish, forming for that purpose a joint council of the three suspended locals and attempting to win to their support the rank and file of the other locals of the International.

No Dual Movement!

That the International and the joint board will by every means seek to throw dust into the eyes of the workers and to brand this revolt as "dual unionism," the work of reds, etc., is obvious, but the leaders of this movement recognize full well the dangers of secession and dual unionism and are appealing to the rank and file of all of the unions of the International.

They point out that it is the union machine that is the wrecker and betrayer of the International Garment Workers Union and that unless the mass of the workers rises up in revolt against the treachery and class collaboration policy of the International all that the thousands of workers have struggled for in so many years of bitter battle will be lost.

The Garment Workers everywhere must unite their ranks and struggle to preserve their organization and working standards in the face of the offensive of the employers and their henchmen the officials of the International.

Government Will Hold Unions Accountable; But Won't Aid T.U.E.L.

WASHINGTON, June 22—Efforts of the department of labor to settle the jurisdictional dispute between the plasterers' and bricklayers' unions failed Saturday.

Secretary of Labor Davis announced that the unions would be held strictly accountable for stopping construction work and that the government expected them to adjust their differences without delay.

What he is going to do if the unions don't settle, Davis doesn't say—but left wingers state that there is no chance for Secretary Jimmy insisting on the amalgamation program of the T. U. E. L.

CHILDREN FED BIBLE, WAR DOPE IN MANY STATES

Truth Prohibited by 21 Laws

WASHINGTON, June 22.—(FP)—State laws regulating the subject-matter of instruction in American public schools, enacted in 1922-23, have been compiled and published, along with other school laws, by the U. S. bureau of education as Bulletin No. 2, series of 1925. Teaching of the federal constitution is required in 21 states and is recommended in Texas, while teaching of the declaration of independence is required only in Minnesota.

Florida, in 1923, enacted: "That it is the sense of the legislature of the state of Florida that it is improper and subversive of the best interests of the people of this state for any professor, teacher or instructor in the public schools and colleges of this state, supported in whole or in part by public taxation, to teach or permit to be taught atheism, or agnosticism, or to teach as true Darwinism, or any other hypothesis that links man in blood relationship to any other form of life."

Kluxers Pass Bible Bill

Delaware, in 1923, prescribed by law that "At least 5 verses from the holy bible shall be read each school day at opening of school"; also that the lord's prayer shall be repeated, but no other religious services or exercises be permitted.

Maine, under ku klux guidance, also required daily bible reading in the common schools. Mississippi ordained that the ten commandments should be included in a compulsory course in "the principles of morality and good manners." Arkansas went farther, with requirement that school children be trained in "morals, manners, patriotism and business and professional integrity."

North Carolina provides compulsory teaching of "Americanism," which is defined as including respect for law and order, the character and ideals of the founders of our country, duties of citizenship, respect for the national anthem and the flag, a standard of good government, and study of the state and federal constitutions.

Oregon "makes it a duty of every board... charged with the duty of selecting textbooks for the public schools to select and install textbooks on American history and civil government which adequately stress the services rendered by the men who achieved our national independence, established our form of constitutional government, and preserved our federal union. No textbook shall be used which speaks slightingly of the founders of our republic or of the men who preserved the union, or which belittles or undervalues their work."

The Compilation of Experiences Gained by the Parties

By RICHARD DORNBUSCH.

ONE of the fundamental principles distinguishing the Communist International from the social democratic international is the question of the relations maintained between the Communist Parties of the different countries. It is the endeavor of the Communist International to become a really Communist world party, that is, it strives to pursue one uniform political line, a line tested and approved by the world congress.

This aim can, however, only be attained if the various sections do not remain isolated from one another, but make use of the experiences gained in the party work of all the other sections. To lead means at times adapting experience to the given moment. Hence the necessity and importance of an international exchange of the experiences gained in general political work, and especially in the agitprop work done by the parties.

This necessity having been recognized, the agitprop department of the executive committee of the Communist International organized, after the fifth congress, a special working department for the compilation of the experiences gained in agitprop work in the various sections.

THE collection and generalization of experiences on an international scale is of the utmost importance, for it transforms the formal relations existing among the parties into a real contact originating in the actual import of party work. It will thus be seen that what is required is not a mechanical and uniform transference of delineations of experiences from one party to another, but a differentiation according to the economic and political structure of the different countries, and a corresponding adaptation to the political tasks and stages of development of the separate sections.

The generalization of experiences implies the necessity of its detailed study from definite points of view.

The rapid dispatch of all material relating to agitprop work is naturally the fundamental prerequisite for a successful study and exchange of experiences. Unless we receive exhaustive and detailed information on the agitprop work being carried on we can form no clear general survey of it. Fruitful criticism cannot be made on the basis of defective reports. The main subject of study is the periodical reports sent in by the agitprop departments of the different sections. But apart from the fact that this drawing up of reports has not by any means been thoroly organized as yet, it does not form an adequate foundation for the drawing of the necessary conclusions. The parties, especially the large parties, must draw up special reports on every campaign or propagandist action (founding of party schools, organization of students' circles, party libraries, press publishing, etc.), as soon as the work has been set going, and send these to the agitprop department of the executive committee of the Communist International.

When the material thus compiled is studied, attention must chiefly be given to the following points:

1. If and to what extent the total agitprop work carried on by the party follows the principles laid down by the Communist International, and supports in agitation and propaganda the political action of the party.

2. What methods are being employed for this purpose.

3. Ascertainment of the actual initiative exercised by the party in question.

4. Ascertainment of the fundamental political and methodological errors committed by the party in question in the course of its activity.

5. Ascertainment of the objective obstacles in the way of any given necessary measures.

6. Ascertainment of the measures to be taken by the agitprop department of the C. I. in support of the agitprop work of the parties.

ALL these factors can only be satisfactorily ascertained if we have the most carefully drawn up reports to go by; most reports, however, contain only a part of the exhaustive material imperatively required for an adequate examination.

The compilation of experiences in the agitprop department of the Communist International is being carried on along normal lines to the extent that communication with the parties is established. But altho a certain amount of progress may be observed in the development of this communication, there still remains much to be desired. Some of the larger and politically decisive parties are still not fully conscious of the importance and necessity of regular communication, to say nothing of the smaller parties.

Reports sent by the agitprop organs of our sections are of course not the sole means of keeping up this communication they are not even the most successful means. The experience gained up to now has proved that even the best of reports cannot give a concretely true picture of the work being done, and especially of the conditions under which it is done. The indispensable statements of the report are lacking in life and color until we hear the personal report of a representative of the party. The agitprop department of the C. I. seizes every opportunity of receiving such personal reports, and does its utmost to encourage detailed consultation in agitprop work, with the representatives of the different sections, both in the sessions of the department and in separate consultations with the functionaries of the department. And we must admit that we have only been able to form a really concrete idea of the work being done by those parties with which we have come into personal communication.

A further measure which has aided us to gain a general conception of the agitprop work of the parties has been the distribution of question forms to the centrals, with the request for exhaustive replies. Such question forms were twice distributed to the parties. The first was sent in on the occasion of the fifth congress; the second, the improved edition so to speak, some months later. Only very few of the parties (and strangely enough the smaller parties, and even the illegal ones) filled out the question forms in a manner enabling them to be used for a future control of work. The majority of the answers received were entirely vague and nebulous.

It thus becomes evident that the success of the second and most important fundamental task, the generalization of the experiences gained, the conversion of the raw materials sent to us into the common property of the international, is entirely dependent on our obtaining exhaustive material and dealing with it efficiently. The gaps in communication above described show why the agitprop department of the C. I. during the comparatively brief period which has elapsed since the fifth world congress, has been able to occupy itself with the accumulation of material, but has not yet enough at its disposal for purposes of generalization. What are the initial methods of generalization now being taken up? Various instructions have been given out with reference to the agitprop work of the parties. After large international campaigns critical descriptions of the campaign as carried out in the various countries have been sent to the parties (for instance after the anti-war week). It need not be said that the methods of generalizing experience must be systematized and perfected. Here the international party press is our most effectual instrument. A permanent column in the Imprecorr, or better still a periodical supplement dealing with questions of agitation and propaganda, would be the best method towards the systematic generalization of experiences, until such time as it will be possible to publish a special international periodical devoted to questions of agitation and educational work in the parties.

THIS task of compiling and generalizing our experiences is not only part of agitprop work internationally, as well nationally. In the central committees of at least the large parties a comrade must be specially commissioned with the task of studying the agitprop work of the whole of the party organizations, down to the nuclei, and generalizing it within the frame of the party.

The agitprop department of the E. C. C. I. will make use of the opportunity offered by the impending agitprop conference to be held by the representatives of the parties for the purpose of explaining all questions connected with the compilation and generalization of experience, and for laying down definite rules of work. Various types of reports, corresponding to the conditions under which work has to be done in the different countries, will be drawn up, and even realizable method of communication discussed in detail. There is no doubt whatever that the development of this field of activity signifies a mighty stride forward towards a systematic organization of the agitprop work of our parties.

WORKERS' SCHOOL TO GIVE 2-WEEK SUMMER COURSE

NEW YORK, June 22.—New York comrades who are desirous of getting some intensive educational work this summer will be glad to know that a two-weeks full time summer school will be held from August 17th to the 29th under the auspices of the Workers School.

Bolshevization, as the task of the hour for our Party and League, demands that our educational work be given greater prominence than ever before. The proposed two-weeks course will serve as a beginning for the work to be done. It will be known as an Introductory Course in Marxism-Leninism.

Moderate Cost.

Only those who have had some experience in educational work will be eligible. However, every comrade who can do so should apply for admission (which will be limited to 35 students) by communicating with the Secretary or Director of the Workers School, 108 E. 14th St.

The cost to the students for board, room and school supplies, exclusive of text books, will be $15 per week. Every applicant must make a $5 deposit with the Workers School.

Arrangements have already been made to conduct the summer school in one of the finest locations possible—near Bethel, Conn.

No member should neglect this opportunity to register for the full-time course in Marxism-Leninism.

THERE IS MORE IN A CHINAMAN'S HEAD THAN THE ROOTS OF A PIGTAIL

The anti-foreign movementin China still continues with unabated intensity. What is the meaning of this rumpus in "peaceful" China? What do the Chinese want anyhow? If you want to know—and we don't mean to reflect on your intelligence by even thinking that you don't—you will come to the mass meeting tomorrow night at Northwest Hall, corner of Western and North Aves., where William F. Dunne, Henry Phillips, Manuel Gomez and other speakers will give the inside "dope" on the Chinese situation. The meeting starts at 8 p. m.

Perhaps you are not interested. But you may be later on, if your masters want you to defend their investments in China. So you had better be prepared.

PHILLIPS, ORGANIZER OF NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS SPEAKS TONIGHT

Henry Phillips, organizer of the American Negro Labor Congress will speak tonight at 2733 Hirsch Boulevard at the open branch meeting of the North West Side English branch of the Workers Party. Every member of the branch and their working class associates should come to hear what Comrade Phillips has to say on the very important task of organizing the Negroes. The meeting will be held in the rear of the hall, one flight up. It starts at 8 p. m. Admission is free.

GREAT SIGNIFICANCE ATRIBUTED TO PARTICIPATION BY THE ENGLISH TRADE UNIONS IN W. I. R. MEET

The British "Workers International Relief" Conference, which was held in London in the middle of April has a significance reaching beyond its nationally limited character because of the numerous and lively participation of the representatives of trade union organizations.

The endeavors and interests of the trade unions meet those of the Workers' International Relief on the basis of the slogan of international unity.

What the English trade unions are for the labor movement in England, a uniform organization, embracing various parties, a, so to speak, neutral territory on which general proletarian class interests are represented and corresponding demands made, that is the W. I. R. as a proletarian relief organization on a world-wide scale.

For this reason the W. I. R. may, in carrying out its duties as a preparatory, neutral, super-party ground on which workers of all shades of opinion and from all countries can meet in joint activity, become the base for the preparation of a united front of trade unionism on an international scale.

Thus it is no coincidence that just the English trade unions, both their individual associations and their leaders show a growing sympathy with the W. I. R. and are becoming members of it.

How strong this growing interest is, has been shown by the English W. I. R. Conference, and may be proved by the following facts:

Trade union, co-operative and party organizations to the number of 165, representing the most important trade unions of England, took part in the Conference. Among them were the unions of engine-drivers and stokers, of the united electricty workers, of the united workers in the building trade, the transport workers, the railwaymen, town and municipal employes, clerks, further representatives of the workers' defense council and the tenants' defense league; finally representatives of the labor party and the independent labor party and of the Communist Party of England, of the General Trade Union Council (also of the London Trade Union Council) as well as of the minority movement, numerous women's organizations, etc.

In the executive of the W. I. R. the following trade union and co-operative associations are represented: The Miners' Union of Great Britain by its general secretary A. J. Cook, the National United Woodworkers' Association by its general secretary Alexander Gossip, the National Amalgamated Unions of Building Trade Workers A. U. B. T. W. by its general secretary George Hicks, the Amalgamated Engineers Union by Frank Smith, the National Union of Women's Co-operative Guilds by Miss Honora Enfield, and A. A. Purcell, at present president of the Amsterdam Trade Union International.

The mixed commission of the labor party and of the Trade Union Congress will at its next meeting discuss the conditions under which every leading political and industrial organization of the English working class will send a representative to the executive of the W. I. R.

The Conference passed resolutions in which was demanded the co-operation of the trade unions with the co-operative societies as a preliminary to a comprehensive assistance on the part of the W. I. R.

The prime minister of the labor government in West Australia promised that all the labor organizations and the government of the country would give their fullest support to the W. I. R. At the same time he condemned all reactionary attacks on the W. I. R.

The trade union movement for unity was described and demanded as a fact of the greatest significance for the well-being of the proletariat of the whole world. The English trade union report on Russia is published for Germany by the "Neur Deutscher Verlag" which is in close touch with the W. I. R., on the basis of the agreement between the Russian and English trade unions.

Owing to the recognition of the necessity of creating an international united front for the trade unions, it is possible in England that leading members of the social democratic party support the W. I. R., that for instance, Lansbury was at the Conference, elected chairman of the Central Committee of the W. I. R., and that Purcell, the English president of the Amsterdam trade unions, took part in the Congress. Altho there was no such intention, the conference of the British W. I. R., which met to solve questions of organization and to prepare the ground for a campaign of relief for the straving people of Ireland, turned into a demonstration in favor of intrenational alliance of the working masses, not only in the organization of the proletarian self-help but also in the trade union movement.

In Japan also the W. I. R. and the trade unions joined in their efforts for the solidarity and a homogenous alliance of all working and exploited people under the slogan Amsterdam and Moscow. In Germany, France and, in the last weeks, in Czecho-Slovakia, the affiliation of trade union organizations to the W. I. R. is steadily making great progress. In Germany almost all the organizations of the excluded trade unions have joined the W. I. R., but only a few of those of the German General Federaiton of Labor.

In its capacity as an international, super-party organization, the W. I. R. can work in the spirit of the proletarian united front. It can help to unmask the treachery of the reactionary trade union leaders who no longer represent the interests of their members but, in every economic struggle are found wanting and take sides with the employers.

Just from this point of view it is necessary to work more than ever in all countries for the affiliation of all trade unions and take sides with the employers.

Should it be impossible for that which is already taking place in England to become a reality in the labor movement thruout the world?

To work, Comrades!

Getting on New York News Stands

THE DAILY WORKER is slowly but surely establishing itself on the New York news stands. Every week additional stands are added to the list, and nursed along until they form the DAILY WORKER habit. A goodly group of comrades have devoted themselves regularly to this work, which is as much worth while for the ultimate success of the New York movement as anything that can be done at present. The city has been divided into routes, and each one of the following is looking after the news stands in a certain section systematically every week:

B. Braden, L. Cooper, W. Chambers, A. Gusakoff, Irvin Grabelsky, Max Hagen, Sam Halpern, M. Horwitz, N. Liebowitz, H. F. Mins, J. Newman, H. Osol, C. O. Peterson, S. Pollack, J. Pasternak, M. Rappaport, A. Riemer, S. Siegal, S. Surtshin.

This work can be developed as additional comrades volunteer for it. There is immediate need of several more. Apply to the DAILY WORKER New York office, 108 East 14th street.

SOVIET UNION ECONOMICALLY AND POLITICALLY CONSOLIDATED, SAYS RYKOV REPORT TO 3RD CONGRESS

MOSCOW, (By Mail).—In the report he read to the Third Congress of Soviets of the U. S. S R. on behalf of the Union Government, Rikov, President of the Council of People's Commissaries of the Union, pointed out that the fundamental feature of the present situation of the Union was the latter's political and economic consolidation, while, at the same time, there were signs of a certain stabilization of conditions in capitalist countries, which had partly overcome the after-war crisis.

However, the incessant evoluton of conflicting interest of the greatest powers of the world and, in particular, the situation created in the East thru the application of absolete methods of colonial policy determined, so to say, a return to pre-war traditions and prepared the way for new crisis and conflicts.

Foreign Treaties

Reiterating the immutability of the Soviet government's fundamental position in the question of Czarist debts, Rykov declared: "We are ready to negotiate and compromise on mutually advantageous principles, and we are ready to make certain sacrifices, should we be convinced of receiving definite advantages in return and if we can asume that certain obligations are practically executable and would not hamper the normal development of our economic situation."

The speaker remarked in this reference that the treaty with Japan proves the possibility of reaching an agreement with the U. S. S. R., which can be of mutual advantages to the parties concerned.

American Relation

The Soviet Government, further stated the President of the council of People's Commissaries, is ready to give full attention to the proposition which the American government will make: the present phase of development of Soviet-American trade promises its further still greater development should the existing artificial obstacles be removed.

No Concessions to Britain

Touching on the future of the treaty with Britain, Rykov declares that the attempts to delay negotiations with the purpose by way of pressure to compel the Soviet Government to make concessions can't have any positive results.

Claims Against French

The Soviet Government is ready immediately to start the discussion of French claims, but it will simultaneously present counter-claims. "Despite all the difficulties in the way, we are sure that the interests of both countries will help find a mutually advantageous principle of agreement. There are signs lately that there exists a more concrete possibility of solutioning the disputable questions and thus expediting negotiations with France."

Friendly Relations with Germany

Referring to the Soviet-German relations, the speaker points out that the principles embodied in the Rapallo Treaty still determine, as heretofore, the friendly relations with Germany. He remarks at the same time, that the present negotiations between Germany and the Entente may influence the inter-relations between U. S. S. R. and Germany.

Mr. Rykov further emphasized the successful rapproachment with Italy and the consolidation of economic ties between the two countries.

Poland Plots Against Soviets

Such ties are also being strengthened with Poland, where, however, certain reactionary groups are constantly plotting against the consolidation of normal relations with the Union. The participation of Poland in the recent Riga conference of General Staffs of the Baltic states reveals the hostile character against the Union of Soviet Republics of that conference.

Manufactured "Red Plots"

Stating the dismall failure of numerous attempts to charge the Union with taking a hand in various kinds of difficulties being gone through by foreign countries, the speaker scouted as ridiculous and monstrous the accusations that the Soviet Government participated in the Sophia catasthrope, as well as the assertions of mythical aspirations of the U. S. S. R. to dominate the Balkans, adding that the Union has no special interests in that part of Europe and does not interfere with the home affairs of the Balkan states.

National Rights in East.

Turning to the East, Rykov pointed out that the progress and consolidation of friendship with the Eastern countries is based on an immutable policy of recognition of their national rights and the renouncement on the part of the Soviet Republics of any hostile designs.

Touching, in connection with the adherence to the Soviet Union of the Republics of Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan, upon the question of national policy of the Soviet government, the President of the Council of People's Commissaries declared emphatically that everything will be done for the purpose of strengthening economically the more backward nationalities of the Union and for the development of their national culture.

Self Determination

The principle of self-determination of nations, the speaker stated, proclaimed in 1917, including secession from the Union—as the case with Latvia, Lithuania, Estonia and other countries—remains in the future as the immutable fundamental principle of the Soviet Government.

RAILROADS OWN OR CONTROL BIG COAL MINES; HALF PRODUCTION TOTAL MINED BY DIRECT USERS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

The problem of the consumer-owned coal mine is stressed by commissioner of labor statistics Ethelbert Stewart in an article on the coal situation in Illinois. He shows that failure to take this development into account leads to the false impression that there is a regular yearly market for 500,000,000 tons of coal. The consequent increase in the number of coal mines has brought the industry to its present crisis. He asserts that considerably over half of this demand is supplied by mines controlled by the consumers.

"The railroads," says Stewart, "are the greatest consumers of bituminous coal; the iron and steel industry is probably the next greatest, and yet the extent to which these two principal consumers replenish their stocks from mines uncontrolled or uninfluenced by them is very small. Of the coal produced in the shipping mines of Illinois in 1924, 32,402,214 tons or 51.9 per cent went to railroad companies direct from the mine, and if we take the mines that operated the greatest number of days we find their output going exclusively to railroads."

He shows the per cent sold to railroads by the 27 mines in Illinois operating 200 days and over as follows:

Days operating	Employes	To R. R.
280 and over	420	100.0
260 and under 270	48	100.0
	51	100.0
	480	37.2
	559	64.8
250 and under 260	143	98.6
	150	52.1
240 and under 250	163	49.2
	182	55.2
	399	92.4
230 and under 240	52	46.6
	306	41.9
	488	78.4
	792	58.2
220 and under 230	578	95.0
	406	46.5
210 and under 220	217	87.9
	496	76.2
	594	38.1
	418	78.9
	816	97.1
	106	64.5
200 and under 210	184	47.5
	72	62.2
	72	62.2
	565	86.5
	262	95.1
	571	96.6
Total	9,498	73.8

Thus the 9,498 miners who had a hance to work as much as 200 days n 1924 were dependent for about hree quarters of their market on the ailroads.

"As consumers' mines increase, ither in number or capacity," says itewart, "the outlet for truly comnercial coal is restricted."

The increase in the number of conumers' mines is to a growing extent onnected with the development of ublic utilities. The greater use of as and electricity in industrial plants nd homes means that the consumpion of coal will be largely centralized giant gas and electric plants. These lants are today co-ordinated by a w big public utility trusts which re buying and operating their own ines.

The tendency shown by Stewart ggests, therefore, that the stabilizaon of the industry may come thru consolidation under the public tility combines, to the practical exusion of all but a few operators for e open market.

EXAMPLE OF "CHINESE ATROCITY" SHOWS BRITISH BROKE LAWS

SHANGHAI, China, (By Mail.)—The consular body of Shanghai has ain felt the necessity for the sending of an urgent telegram to the diploatic body of Peking informing it that "lives and property of foreigners" Shanghai have again been endangered. The cause of this action according the local newspapers is as follows:

A customs launch was proceeding up the river, which was incidentally ry dark. One of the Chinese gunats challenged it thinking it to be opium runner. The customs boat nored the command and attempted proceed on its way.

Customs Boat in Wrong.

The crew of the gunboat convinced its suspicions opened fire immeately with the result that the cusms boat was well riddled with bul s and one of the party on board, a itisher, was wounded.

This was the incident which occaned the alarm on the part of the al consular body.

There are several aspects of the e which it would be in order to ntion here. In the first place, it is rious even to the novice in the estion of military or naval law that customs boat was in the wrong. ce the Whangpoo river is at least ninally, Chinese territory, the Chin gunboat had full jurisdiction over area; hence, the customs boat uld have arrested its course and lared its identity. Failing in this ortant measure the customs boat , naturally, fired on with the reing injury to one of the passen s.

Eighteen Foreign Warships.

nother interesting fact is that e are no less than eighteen battle s, British, American, Japanese, lan and French strewe dup and n the river, the presence of which es any apprehension for the ety of foreign lives and property" ird.

Do British Dirty Work.

itish imperialism in one of its at forms, the Shanghai municipal ncil, employs Indian sikhs to do policing of the settlement. Time time again acts of brutal beating and mauling of the Chinese coolies are perpetrated.

These columns have contained facts of the inhuman treatment accorded the Chinese laboring class by the foreigner be he a Britisher, Japanese or American, but there exists also another situation.

Beat Chinese Coolies.

The Indian sikh is brought from his exploited land, is paid a trifle more than a coolie and a club is placed in his hand. "Keep the slaves down at any cost and champion the cause of the foreigner" are his orders and as a result we have primitive savagery with the blameless Chinese coolie as the victim.

There hasn't been a day that in passing along the street I haven't been witness to several atrocious punishments inflicted on Chinese by these sikh policemen.

I have seen a coolie at the head of a group of human horses who were straining and sweating in the vain attempt at pulling what would be a motor truck load of wooden boards over Chapoo Road bridge, beaten into insensibility by a sikh.

Paid for Violence.

Another time I have seen a wheelbarrow coolie who had his ear half twisted off and his bare foot broken by the hand and heel of the sikh who is as I have said sometime ago, the very embodiment of British imperialism in one of its more concrete forms.

The sikh, a member of an exploited race himself, is taken from his native land, and is paid a little more than a coolie to beat that coolie.

CHINESE SEAMEN READY TO FIGHT BRUTAL CAPTAIN

Steward Beaten Brutally; His Comrades Strike

CANTON (By Mail)—An outrageous act took place in the S. S. "Honam" in Canton May 21 when the chief officer, Carpenter, rough-handled a Chinese steward, Tsen Wong. It appears that a dinner was given by the chief engineer in the ship that night, lasting till 2 a. m., in the midst of which the chief officer, Carpenter, returned and retired to his room. Then he took his supper and particularly his drinks. The steward as usual began the process of putting him to bed, unshoeing him, and undressing him. Whether dissatisfied with the process that night, or with his pastime that evening, or over-drunk, he began to practice his pugilistic feats upon the Chinese seaman and kicking him. This aroused the indignation of the whole crew, and if chief officer Carpenter had not fled in time, he would have gotten his due. Being unable to report the matter to the Chinese Seamen's Union in Canton late in the night, the insulted seaman returned with the ship to Hongkong, with the intention to report it to the union there.

Dismissed Steward.

Contrary to all expectation, Captain Thompson sumarily dismissed the steward on the way and upon arrival in Hongkong ordered him to leave the ship immediately, paying no heed to his request that he be carried back to Canton, his native place. He was even threatened with imprisonment, and the only course left for him was to report to the Chinese Seamen's Union in Hongkong.

Upon receipt of the report and after subsequent investigation, the union sent its representative to the captain of the ship and the manager of the Hongkong, Canton and Macao Steamboat company, to inquire why the men should work after twelve o'clock, why the chief officer Carpeter could beat a seaman, and how could the latter be dismissed without 24 hours' notice. All the questions were ignored, and the only retort was: "Can the steward produce injury marks?" Oh! you honorable capitalist, let me beat you and kick you, and if there be no evident marks, will you consider that I have not beaten you or kicked you?

Ready to Fight.

The S. S. "Honam" has returned to Canton, and the whole crew is prepared to fight. A conference of all seamen will be held this afternoon in Canton, where measures will be taken. The whole body of Chinese seamen is showing sympathy to their fellow workers of the S. S. "Honam."

Fellow seamen of the world! You are likewise oppressed and exploited by the capitalists. Our enemy is one. Let us, seamen of China and of all countries, join ever closer in our struggle for freedom—freedom from exploitation by capitalist factories and banks, freedom from oppression by capitalist police and jails.

Brother seamen of the world! We know no distinction of nationality or race. We know only the distinction between the capitalist class and the working class. All workers, white, black, yellow, red and brown, are brothers and comrades. All capitalists are our enemies.

Brother workers of the world! Let us unite and form a world family of workers! Injury to one is injury to all! Three cheers for our unity!

Cut Service on "Milwaukee."

WASHINGTON, June 22.—The Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railroad, now in the hands of receivers, was authorized by the interstate commerce commission today to abandon a part of a branch line extending from Wausaukee to Girard Junction, Wis. Continuance of this branch, the commission said, would be a burden on the revenues of the railroad.

Reserve Officers Out.

In a letter to the Milwaukee chapter of the federal reserve officers' association, Maj. Gen. Hale instructed his officers to carry out no plans for defense day.

FINAL ACT OF ILL. SENATE KILLS COPS', FIREMEN'S, PAY RAISE

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 22.—One of the final acts of Illinois legislature, which has ended its sessions, was to kill the bill which would have increased the pay of firemen and policemen $3,000.00 a year. The senate tabled the bill.

The assembly appropriatde $280,000,000 and passed 302 bills.

BUILDERS AT WORK

ONLY ONE MORE WEEK LEFT!

The Zero Hour Approaches

Only those subs will be counted in the totals in the Second Annual Sub Campaign which have arrived in the office of the DAILY WORKER no later than Tuesday, June 30.

The final results will be tabulated and the winners announced in the Saturday issue of July 4. That means that only one more week is left. And that means that all subs secured during and as a result of RED WEEK and all other subs as well must be sent in as soon as possible.

You still have THIS WEEK LEFT to make a final drive to push your local up in the standing of the Communist building locals who have helped to make the Second Annual Sub Campaign a success. The whole movement will get the chance to see how much each local has contributed to this most important work. Just where will your local be?

RUSH IN YOUR SUBS—THE ZERO HOUR APPROACHES.

said. Even the reactionary Chicago Tribune admitted that the decision curtails "free" speech, but holds that any speech that would favor the overthrow of capitalism is unhealthy, and every economic system is justified in taking measures to safeguard itself. This is a straightforward statement of the capitalist position.

AN American socialist defends the capitalist supreme court against a Communist. In Bulgaria the socialists defend the butcher Zankov against the peasants and workers and even against the attacks of such moderate socialists as Wedgewood of Great Britain. And James Ramsay MacDonald, fearing that the report of Wedgewood and Malone would embarrass the Bulgarian fascist regime, wrote a letter to a Zankov paper, repudiating the Wedgewood report, and advising Zankov that the delegation which drew it up did not represent the British labor party. Thus it can be seen that socialists are the same all the world over.

CONSIDERABLE entertainment can be had for little or nothing, by listening to the preachers who fish for souls along Madison street. One fellow was trying to explain what Jesus said to Nicodemus, with great difficutly. That is, the preacher was in trouble. While he was reading from his bible an automobile was backfiring in a most un-christly way, and I could see the lips of the holy man twisting on an old fashioned oath. However, he managed to keep a hold on his patience until the gasoline wagon stopper barking.

"NICODEMUS," he said, "was a pretty good guy, had lots of money and all that. He thought he was all right. But Jesus said to him: 'You must be born all over again.'" Why he picked on Nic was a mystery that the preacher did not explain. Nic also seemed to be sore, so he said to Jesus: "How can I be born again? I am old and it seems impossible for me to go back into my mother's womb, seeing that I am several inches taller than she is and weigh much more."

• • •

IF Nic thought he had Jesus cornered, this is where he got left. And so did the audience. The preacher took a long breath and said, "Now I will skip three verses," and proceeded to show that Jesus was very much like a shyster lawyer with a bad case. He proceeded to abuse Nicodemus, told him that he was full of figs and all that kind of thing. The audience was getting restless; a hot dog peddler began to shout his wares, and Jesus, frankfurters, oaths from members of the audience and quotations from the bible got inextricably mixed. Some remained to see the mulligan thru to the end.

Sentencing of Communists Postponed

NEW YORK, June 22.— J. Brand and Sol Friedman, two members of the Young Workers' League who were arrested for distributing the May Day leaflets, appeared in the special sessions court in Brooklyn yesterday for sentence, but the judge postponed sentence for one week. Both are out on bail in the meantime.

TECHNICAL AID TO SEND COTTON GROWERS TO USSR

Also Organize Moscow Wet Wash Laundry

NEW YORK, June 22.—A group of American cotton growers made an inquiry in the Central Bureau Society Technical Aid of the United States to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics whether their experience in growing cotton could be of any value to Soviet Russia and, if so, whether they could apply it on Russian land. The answer to this inquiry was that such groups are greatly desirable and that their group will be given a tract of fertile land in Mugan (the Republic of Azerbeidjan), but at the beginning only a group of not more than one hundred families will be admitted. The cotton growers of the United States and Canada may apply for information to the Society for Technical Aid, 799 Broadway, room 402.

The Central Bureau has organised for Moscow a wet wash laundry co-operative, which has already over twelve members, fo rthe purpose of going to the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. This co-operative will be settled around Moscow and will serve Moscow with an American laundry. This laundry needs more members. Anyone who has laundry experience may apply to the following address: Mr. Wiesser, 86 Strenton St., New Haven, Conn., or Central Bureau S. T. A. S. R., 799 Broadway, room 402, New York.

Judge to Rule on Constitutionality of Evolution Law

WINCHESTER, Tenn., June 22.—The question of whether or not the Tennessee anti-evolution law is unconstitutional can and will be decided in the circuit court at Dayton, provided the attorneys in the case of John T. Scopes, who will go on trial there July 10, for violation of this law, ask for a decision on that legal point.

This was the declaration made here by Judge John Tate Raulston, who will preside over the Scopes trial.

The judge said, "If the court should rule that the law is unconstitutional, the case then would be finished insofar as the circuit court is concerned, and the next step would be for the attorneys to appeal to the supreme court."

WHATEV[illegible] in the art of fight[illegible] the world war came to an e[illegible] is being supplied by the hitherto peaceful Chinese. There is novelty in the way the Chinese students in Paris stormed their ambassador's office and compelled him to sign several documents, already typewritten by his countrymen. The Chinese minister's negligence in not having taken a more active interest in affairs in his native land was commented on by the students in no musical lingo and his important decision to sign on the dotted line showed that he possessed more discretion than zeal.

THINGS are going from bad to better in the celestial republic. A hungry longshoremen would not tackle a dinner of spare ribs and cabbage with greater evidity than the Chinese masses are undertaking the task of ridding their country of imperialist domination. It is charactereristic that the Chinese business elements are trying to sabotage the national struggle in the interests of their own particular business. The chambers of commerce tried to call off the strike but the workers gave the capitalist sucklings of China to understand that they had better bow to the popular will if they wanted to remain animated chunks of protoplasm.

FOUR HUNDRED million Chinamen cannot be fooled forever. With Soviet Russia as a friend at their back, they have everything in their favor. The capitalist governments are laying the blame for the giant strike on Soviet Russia. What liars they are? Not that Russia objects. The Soviet Union, from the start has made known its friendly intentions and its disinterestedness. But with children of six years working in British and Japanese-owned factories and adults working sixteen hours a day, did the bourgeois gentlemen expect the Chinese to be patient forever? Well, the worm has turned.

ALL is not well in Italy between the vatican and Mussolini. Originally the pope was the fascist dictator's strongest backer, and several important concessions were made to the church in return for it's valuable support. The crucifixes were returned to the schools and laws were passed making the masonic organization illegal. In return, the pope used his influence with the ignorant peasantry in behalf of the renegade Mussolini, and Father Sturzo, leader of the catholic popular party and foe of the fascisti was squelched.

WHETHER his cutthroats have gotten out of hand or not is not yet clear, but Mussolini's followers have recently attacked catholic groups, one of those attacks taking place in the University of Rome. The pope, who remained silent while the workers were getting murdered has now come out in the open and denounced the fascisti for committing acts of violence that are "neither human, nor christian, nor Italian." It will be interesting to watch the relations between the vatican and Mussolini in the near future. There is a strong anti-catholic sentiment in Rome, and Mussolini would have no hesitation in exploiting it, if it suited his purpose.

DUBBLER IN STEEL MILLS MUST NOW TURN LABORER OR LOSE JOB

(By WORKER CORRESPONDENT)

MONESSEN, Pa., June 2[illegible].—The steel trust is always looking for something that will save them money. The local tin mill is going to put mechanical dubblers in all its hot mills here.

This new device will save the steel trust many dollars a day. Before the mechanical dubbler was invented they had to pay the dubbler from $8.00 to $10.00 a day, but when this new device is put into effect they can hire a man or a boy ot run it for labor wages, which is about 45c an hour.

Another new device that the trust is putting into their mills is a new box shear. Instead of cutting two bars at one time this new shear will be able to cut 8 bars at one time.

So the dubbler will have to look for another job or else run this mechanical dubbler for less pay.

CONVENTION OF WORLD'S BOSSES WARS ON LABOR

Delegates Would Like to Amend Dawes Plan

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, June 23—A war against labor was indicated as one of the most important functions of the international chamber of commerce in a speech of the retiring president, Willis H. Booth, at its third congress which is now taking place here at the Palias des Academies. Booth advocated the speeding up of the workers to make them produce more goods per hour. At one point in his address Booth said, "It is hoped that the rehabilitation of the wealth destroyed by the war can be obtained without excessive working hours of labor, providing every industrialist adjusts himself to the best modern methods of production.

Class Collaboration.

"Our entire ingenuity must be directed to increasing the value of production per labor hour without placing unreasonable burden on the employes."

Then, evidently referring to the class collaboration moves of the trade union officials and social democrats, Booth added, "There are healthy signs of increased co-operation between capital and labor in this direction."

Would Amend Reparations.

The speeches of the two Belgians, Maurice Desprets, president of the congress, the richest banker in Belgium, and Albert Jansen, minister of finance, showed that attempts will be made to force an amendment to the Dawes plan.

"Is it really possible to pay and receive thousands of millions," Despret asked. He declared that the payment of reparations by Germany the same as the payment of Europe's war debts, brings up many difficulties to the capitalists. "If the debtor country pay in goods, to what extent can it do so without harming the creditor nation, which doubtless produces the very goods it must accept"?, Despret added. "Will there not be disastrous consequences to him who pays and him who receives, and failing in cash, how can he get paid"?

Dictate to Governments.

Sir J. C. Stamp, one of the concocters of the Dawes plan, will speak to the congress on the subject.

The special committee of the international chamber, which investigated the Dawes plan in Paris in May will report. This committee decided that, "the allotment of consumable merchandise in payment of reparations is illogical, and the flow of merchandise must proceed thru regular channels."

Whatever the congress decides will be practically an order to the various governments, as they are controlled by the capitalists present.

SOVIET ENVOYS MEET TO DISCUSS SECURITY PACT

German Cabinet Faces Serious Crisis

BERLIN, June 23.—The German cabinet is facing a serious crisis over the question of the security pact under which admission into the league of nations is granted Germany by the allies, provided she complies with certain conditions. One of those conditions is that Germany enter a west European bloc against Soviet Russia.

The hostility of Soviet Russia to this pact has thrown the German government into panic. The nationalists and democrats are against the pact, declaring that Germany cannot afford to antagonize Soviet Russia. The socialists are for it. The Communists are carrying on a vigorous campaign against it, pointing out that it is aimed primarily at Soviet Russia.

It was rumored last week that G. Chichrein, foreign minister of Soviet Russia was in Berlin and held conferences with Stresemann. The Soviet Representative Litvinov asked the foreign office how far Germany will commit herself by entry into the league of nations.

That Soviet Russia considers the question of the security pact one of paramount importance is shown by the calling in of all European ambassadors to Moscow. Ambassador Kreskinski has left Berlin in an airplane, while Krassin, ambassador to Paris, and Rakovsky, envoy to Britain, have already arrived.

French Diplomatic Move.

PARIS, June 23.—The French government today officially announced that the evacuation of the Ruhr would begin within a short time. This was understood to be a diplomatic move for the purpose of helping the security pact go over in Germany. RUSSIAN WHITE GUARD ENLISTS BOYS IN CHINA WITH THE HELP OF CHINESE REACTIONARY OFFICIALS

(ROSTA NEWS SERVICE)

PEKING, May 26—(By Mail.)—In reference to the enlistment at Harbin of Russian youths under 17 years of age and even younger secretly from their parents, by agents of Netchayeff's white guardist detachment, an operation encouraged by local Chinese military authorities,—the following memorandum has been handed by the Soviet embassy to the ministry of foreign affairs:

"The embassy of the Soviet Union in China has pointed out on repeated occasions that the existence in Chinese territory of an armed detachment of avowedly hostile white bandits was a direct violation of Article VI of the agreement on general principles concluded between the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics and the republic of China, on May 31, 1924, and the set of notes exchanged upon this agreement. Now, the enrollment of recruits to this detachment, effected by the chief's agents under a counter-revolutionary monarchist flag, is another proof of the nature of such a violation and the grave responsibility which is assured by the Chinese government supporting the movement contrary to its treaty obligations.

SHOE WORKERS MEET JUNE 28 AT BOSTON

Lynn Stitchers Vote Down "B. and S."

By TOM BELL

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LYNN, Mass., June 23.—The stitchers' local of the Amalgamated Shoe Workers' Union of Lynn voted nearly four to one against joining the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union in the referendum last Thursday. The question on the ballots was: "Do you want the Boot and Shoe? Vote Yes or No." The vote against the Boot and Shoe was 410 and for it 115.

This is the only local of the Amalgamated here which has refused to go into the Boot and Shoe. The other locals of lasters, edgemakers, and cutters have already decided to leave the Amalgamated and join the Boot and Shoe.

The business agents of the stitchers' local have issued the following challenge to the cutters' local which has applied for a Boot and Shoe charter: "In 1903, when the cutters did not want the Boot and Shoe, the stitchers stood by them and won a victory against it. The stitchers at present do not want the Boot and Shoe. What are the cutters going to do about it? Will they stand by us now?"

"Co-operate" to Cut Wages

The Boot and Shoe is organizing a council in Lynn composed of delegates from the various locals which have joined that "union" during the last two weeks. The bosses still continue to demand of the workers that they make application to the Boot and Shoe before getting jobs.

The T. J. Sullivan Shoe Co., which is now under the Boot and Shoe, has decided to run a "cooperative" plant. All workers have to buy $100 shares in the company. The Creighton plant is now working with workers who have made application to the Boot and Shoe.

Wage cuts have been put into effect in some plants, and in other plants the question of wage cuts have been put up to the state board of arbitration. This means that wage cuts will be put into effect.

T. U. E. L. Shoe Workers Meet June 28

The conference organized by the Trade Union Educational League to be held in Boston on June 28th will rally the militant elements among the shoe workers for the struggle against wage cuts. The great task is to organize the militant elements among the shoe workers so that leadership can be supplied to the workers in their struggle to preserve their standard of living.

PARIS, France, June 23. — The French preparation for the evacuation of the Ruhr will begin within a short time, it was officially announced here today. Under previous agreement, the Ruhr must be evacuated by August 16.

Great Britain and United States in Secret Move to Combat Rising China

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, June 23.—Grave concern over the situation in China is pressing upon the British foreign office, and in fact the whole cabinet is astounded at news from China. In an effort to find a solution for the peril to western imperialism which is threatened with the national liberation movement in China, secret negotiations are going on between diplomatic representatives of England and the United States.

Some method of common action against the Chinese independence movement is being attempted as the highest officials of both imperialist powers are frightened at the new developments in China.

First, the spread to Hong Kong of the general strike and the effectiveness of the strike there and in Canton. Then, the continuance of the strike at Shanghai, which both Britain and Japan had fervently hoped would be ended by the reactionary troops of Chang Tso-lin's son recently sent there. But, thirdly, and worse than all is the defection of Chang's troops in Manchuria.

Manchuria, under the military rule of the Chang Tso lin, hsa been regarded as the stronghold of reaction, but it is now aflame with riots and strikes, mutinies of troops and agitation for Chinese liberation from all foreign domination.

This, of course, strikes most directly at Japan, who has long subsidized Chang and used him and his troops at will. Chang is still the tool of Japan, but his troops and the population seem to be falling away from him.

Manchuria is a most delicate subject in international diplomacy, yet here come student agitators and throw all the plans of Japan, not to say other foreign imperialists overboard by bringing the word of the great movement to free all China from every alien exploiting interests.

Japan Realizes Chang's Plight.

Chang's unhappy situation is recognized in Japan, which does not want to force him into open and perilous conflict with the student-worker liberation movement if it can help it, yet

COLLECTION POOR AT S. P. CIRCUS IN MINNEAPOLIS

"It's a Financial Bloom," Moaned One Faker

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

MINNEAPOLIS, June 23.—After six weeks of intensive advertising, including the posting of large bills all over the town, seven hundred people gathered to hear the erstwhile high priest of socialism. The managers of the enterprise confidentially expected no less than ten thousand, as in former days.

A large section of this crowd was comprised of Wobblies; another section of Communists, and the rest were the usual non-descript elements that attend out of curiosity.

Lynn Thompson, who in the past was connected with several co-operative enterprises that blew up; and who as a candidate for sheriff in 1918, carried banners with the following revolutionary inscription "Stand Behind the President and Vote for Lynn Thompson for Sheriff," was the chairman of the meeting. This is the same Lynn Thompson, who as a member of the board of county commissioners, voted the contract for the building of the Mendota Bridge, to a scab contractor. This contractor, as the building trade unions of this city know is a bitter enemy of organized labor.

When Thompson mounted the platform, many workers were heard to say: "What About the Mendota Bridge?"

William Henry, the national organizer of the defunct socialist party, was the first speaker. He said these great words: "It is time for the common people of the great state of Minnesota to get together. The socialist party is in many European countries the first party in parliament, and in

CROWDS OF LOCAL 22 MEMBERS GUARD UNION AGAINST SIGMAN BETRAYERS OF WORKERS' WAGES

(By a Member of Local 22.)

NEW YORK CITY, June 23.—Yes, we are holding the fort—hundreds of us—morning, noon and night. We sleep in relays or we don't sleep at all. But all the time the headquarters of Local 22, International Ladies' Garment Workers, is filled with members of the local—tired, hungry, fatigued, but all of good cheer—all determined to fight with the last drop of blood in their veins to retain what is theirs; guarding the headquarters against possible raids by hired thugs, keeping awake all night; filling the air with their revolutionary songs and then going to work again in the morning.

I took my turn on Sunday, thinking that on Sunday the tired workers would retire to their homes for a day of rest, and that on that day a strict guard would be most needed.

Going on Night Shift.

When I entered the headquarters of Local 22 at 5 o'clock in the evening, prepared to spend the night there, several hundred union men and women were already inside the headquarters, prepared to do likewise. I found that I was not alone; that I was one of a large throng, playing games and engaging in all kinds of foolishment to pass the time away, but alert for any unwelcome sounds and ready at a moment's notice to muster soda bottles and other missiles to defend their home—the union headquarters, and the local itself, which had been built up with so much sacrifice of their energy and blood, to the last man and woman.

There they lay stretched out on chairs and benches trying to snatch a moment's sleep; or sitting in groups discussing the next move to be made, the topics of the day, the world economic situation, or mingling with the Internationale the folk songs and nursery rhymes they used to sing when they were children way back in the old country.

We had several interesting experiences. Once during the wee small hours of the morning, when all was still, very dark and very still, one of the boys thought he saw a shadow thrown on the wall of unwelcome visitors in the yard.

But a False One.

Immediately all songs stopped, all laughing and shouting stopped, all games stopped, all noises of whatsoever kind or nature ceased. All was absolute quiet from top to bottom of the four-story building, with its sev-

BUSINESSMEN SAY 'BUY HERE'; BUT THEY DON'T

They Live Far Away from Dirt and Noise

By K., Worker Correspondent.

MONESSEN, Pa., June 23—The Board of Trade of Monessen insists on loyalty to Monessen; they want it taught in schools, so our merchants can prosper. Most of these merchants do their buying out of town, but they are always yelping "buy in Monessen."

They want the worker's money to stay in Monessen, but most of our business men own their property in some other town, and pay taxes to help keep it.

Sure, help them out now, and when the next strike comes they will be there 100 per cent to fight against you as they did in the last strike we had.

Wonder why these business men don't want to live in Monessen? Well it's too dirty to suit them, too much smoke, and that ore dust is awful, and how do you expect a business man to rest in all the noise, and racket that's in town? Nope, it's better to own a home out in another town where it's nice and quiet.

But let the workers live in Mones-

RIFFIANS MASS TROOPS FOR NEW TANOUT ATTACK

Socialists Withdraw Support of Cabinet

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, France, June 23.—Disorders and fist fighting broke out on the floor of the chamber of deputies this afternoon, following a speech by Premier Painleve wherein he declared. "French Communists are working in co-operation with Russian Communists to aid the Moors in their war against Spain and France."

The sitting was immediately suspended by President Herriot. The session was marked with disorder thruout.

M. Franklin Bollion attacked the Communist leader Clamamus, who defended himself. Twenty deputies milled around this pair, engaged in the fighting.

FEZ, French Morocco, June 23.—The Moroccans fighting the French invaders, having recaptured the Bibane fortifications, after wiping out the entire French garrison of 1,000, and capturing the largest French outpost, Ain Medouina, are concentrating troop against Tanout. If the Riffians capture Tanout, they will force the French to retreat across the Ouergha river, and will be within striking distance of Fez, the capital of French Morocco.

The socialist party, in a caucus today, voted 111 to 13 to withdraw its formal promise to support the Painleve ministry. The socialist however, may continue to support Painleve as an independent party. Painleve, to prevent a crisis, must now look to the center parties, and a part of the right wing of the chamber for support if he is to stave off a crisis.

PARIS CHINESE STUDENTS FACE DEPORTATION

PARIS, June 22—Chinese Communist students may face deportation as a result of the raid on the Chinese legation, the French foreign office indicated today.

"The French government cannot tolerate such incidents as yesterday's," the foreign office states.

"Altho the Chinese legation has not complained and altho the French government will respect the principles of China's territorial rights in its legation, the French government will make a complete investigation of the Chinese Commun[illegible] activites in France."

One Chinese was arrested when police interrupted the disturbance at the legation. A hundred of the students had raided the place, imprisoned the jaitor and forced the Chinese minister to sign documents affirming sympathy for the strikers in China, favoring Chinese freedom from foreign rule and objecting to the use of French armed forces in China.

See Danger to Trade Monopoly.

MOSCOW.—The "Torgovo-Promjshlannaia Gazeta" (Commercial and Industrial Journal") has raised the question of drawing private capital to take part in the exportation work. The paper is combating the opinion of some state organs, which find that the admission of private capital to the exportation work is dangerous to the monopoly of foreign trade.

GET PRESBYTERIANS OUT OF DANGER OF GOING TO HEAVEN

NEW YORK, June 23—All Americans have been ordered to leave Canton, because of the strong anti-imperialist feeling, according to a dispatch received today by the board of foreign missions of the Presbyterian church. The message was sent by its secretary in China, O. W. McMillon.

MUSSOLINI GETS POWER TO FIRE NON-FASCISTS

Fascist Secretary Is for Exiling Aventines

ROME, June 23—Whatever shred of independence the fascisti felt like allowing the representatives of the Italian factions opposed to fascism was torn away, when Mussolini, pushed thru two bills; one giving him power to discharge all state employes whose ideas ran counter to those of fascism and another giving the government the right to enact by decree, jurisdictional regulations affecting the courts of justice without the consent of parliament.

Even judges are not immune from discharge provided some fascist tuchun comes to the conclusion that his mind is not fit for the blackshirt straightjacket, or provided some fascist assassin needs a snap job.

Kicked Over Murder.

The laws were passed with the aid of a little more than half the votes in the chamber. The Aventine opposition was absent and a few former fascists spoke in opposition. Mussolini had sent out urgent calls to all his supporters demanding their presence in the chamber to cast their votes for his decrees.

Mussolini explained that the opposition to the murder of Matteotti rendered the laws necessary. Several fascisti deputies resigned rather than approve the laws and one voted under protest. The law gagging the newspapers remains as at present.

The fascist newspaper Cremona Nuova, organ of Roberto Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, demands the exile of the leaders of the Aventine opposition. They should be given the same treatment as was meted out to Sig. Donati, the editor of the Catholic paper, Il Popolo. The fascists quit behaving like Fransiscian monks and act like real tigers, Farinacci said. They must put fear into the hearts of their enemies.

Fascist Secretary Urges Exile of Opposition Leaders

ROME, Italy, June 23—The financial difficulties and the wheat crops are the two most important internal problems and the foreign debts, and the "security" pact with Germany are the most important foreign matters to be considered, Premier Mussolini declared following the adjournment of parliament until autumn.

In his newspaper, Cremona Nuova, Roberto Farinacci, secretary of the fascist party, demands that the leaders of the Aventine opposition be exiled. He urges more violence against the fascistis.

To Murder Bulgarian Students.

SOFIA, Bulgaria, June 23. — The military prosecutor at the opening of the "trial" of Communists here, asked the death penalty for 27 university students. Both men and women are among those accused.

Protest Lisbon Deportations.

LISBON, June 23.—The Portuguese labor party has protested to the prime minister against the deportation of thirty alleged revolutionists.

THE THEORY AND PRACTICE OF LENINISM

By I. STALIN.

An important work on Communist theory and practice during the period that Lenin lived and led—the period of Capitalist Imperialism.

This book issued for the first time in this country, is written by a close co-worker of Lenin, at present secretary of the Russian Communist Party and a figure in the International Communist Movement.

which must do something of the sort if it hopes to halt the uprising with force.

Yet any alienation of the Chinese masses in the north from Chang Tso-lin, would leave the student leaders and workers, to be championed by General Feng Yu-hsiang, the military leader who recently declared that his army was ready to sacrifice for national liberation.

Canton General Strike on Tight.

CANTON, June 23.—Shameen, the artificial island which is the Canton foreign settlement, to day was in a state of siege. Two gunboats, one British and one French, held commanding positions in the creek separating Shameen from the city. All approaches to the island were fortified with piled up sandbags and quick firing guns.

A fresh contingent of French sailors arrived this morning and took up quarters in Shameen.

The general strike is continuing, under the Kuo Min Tang (people's party), the present ruling faction in Canton. Anti-imperialist feeling is especially strong against Japanese and British nationals and interests. The Americans are reported receiving better treatment.

Crisis Acute at Hong Kong.

HONG KONG, June 23.—The strike situation became more effective here today when delivery workers of the dairy farms joined the walkout, endangering fresh food supplies for the foreign settlement and native quarter.

Government control of food and fuel, as well as vehicles for distribution of supplies, was inuagurated when the authorities issued a proclamation today placing emergency regulations in effect. All mails, telegrams and cables are censored, both English and Chinese.

The Chinese staff of the Metilda hospital struck this morning.

British Crews Quit.

Crews of several British vessels walked out today. Street car motormen and conductors were lined up with the strikers almost to a man.

Coolies at the newspaper plants here quit work and the printing staffs were expected to follow them.

Volunteer white guards were mobilizeh at the foreign colony to protect the settlement against attacks of strikers.

Chang Tries Martial Law.

SHANGHAI, China, June 23.—Before proclaiming martial law in Shanghai, General Chang Hsueh-liang, son of the Manchurian militarist Chang Tso-lin, left the city "rapidly and secretly," leaving no public explanation of his going.

His martial law proclamations forbid public meetings, printing of propaganda literature favoring the liberation of China from foreign imperialism, forbids cartoons and posters on such subjects, provides for the confiscation of all arms and ammunition the censoring of letters, telegrams and cables and inspection of ships arriving and leaving. It threatens the execution of any violator of the decree.

Yet it is being violated wholesale, and it is a question whether his troops can enforce the edict against the angry masses. The strike still is most effective.

A local comprador, hired bl foreign interests to dicker with strikers trying to get them to break the strike, was chased into the river and drowned. A white guard Britisher in the machine gun corps was mussed up with a meat chopper yesterday and sent to the hospital.

China's Foreign Office Spunky.

PEKING, China, June 23.—Following the return of the diplomatic delegation from Shanghai and its report to the diplomatic corps, the Chinese foreign office awaits the return of the minister of foreign affairs with the findings of the Chinese delegation regarding the Shanghai incidents. It will then issue a further statement.

The Chinese foreign office, altho virtually unsupported by the present Tuan Chi-jui government, is staunchly upholding the demands of the Chinese delegation that future negotiations cover the question of the "rendition" of the mixed court, Chinese representation in the municipal administration of the foreign settlement in Shanghai, amelioration of labor conditions and the dismissal of the secretary of the municipal council, who is responsible for the activities of the Shanghai police.

Guard Union Against Sigman Betrayers

eral hundreds of night inhabitants.

Immediately everyone stood his ground ready to counter the attack, waiting for the alarm to be sounded. Without previous discipline, every member was in his place, a disciplined level-headed soldier; faces were tense and bodies alert and ready to spring into action. Then the word was passed around that it was a false alarm. The tension relaxed; the silence was broken, and laughter and merriment again resumed their sway over the gathering.

Once a woman screamed; and at the weird note, again everybody sprang to their feet, and each one grabbed a chair, a bottle or whatever missile or utensil happened to be nearest him or her. Then we were told it was simply a case of nerves and the boys and girls again resumed their play.

Outside Patrol—And Inside Sentries.

And let me not forget to mention the brave guard who patrolled in relays in front of the union headquarters, in the night, all night long on the watch for unwelcome gangsters. And those who were down in the cellar, with all doors and windows barred, sweltering in the heat and with the unwholesome air of many persons breathing in unventilated places.

These brave soldiers, with the first faint glimmerings of dawn, when relief came, were pale and fagged, but the spirit of hope and courage and inspiration was with them all. After a night so spent they were ready for a hard day's toil, and on the morrow again the night watch. And so it goes.

Some work by day and watch our headquarters by night; and those who are unemployed, stand guard all day, and oftimes all night too. Some of our members have not seen the inside of their homes for a week; others who live in furnished rooms, have given up their rooms and stay at the headquarters all the time. Some of them have come specially from out of town— from the Catskills and camps, where they have been spending a short vacation, or recuperating health, to guard what is theirs—what is so dear to them, the home of the union, and see that gangsters do not route them out.

Gangsters Steer Clear.

With such a spirit, we cannot lose, we cannot fail to win our fight with the joint board. The rank and file is with us 100 per cent. And the gangsters dare not come within a mile of us, fearing or rather surmising the fate that would surely be theirs if they ever attempted to rush us, as they did Locals 2 and 9.

The joint board can take whatever action they may see fit, they will not have the support of the members; for that we already have. The headquarters is ours, and we intend to keep it, and we hereby serve notice on the joint board, that they cannot override the will of the membership and suspend the executive board of our local, without rhyme or reason. We will not stand for it.

Passing Workers Cheer.

Even the passing crowd is sympathetic, when we explain to them what has happened; and urge us to put up a good fight; and not to "lay down" or "give up" the laurels we have won, at the behest of corrupt union officials.

Members of Local 22, help in this fight! Do not take the orders of the joint board, nor recognize the officials whom they have placed in charge of the local, against your wishes. Do not give them any moneys, and thereby help to strengthen them in their fight against us, which is a fight against you personally, against your local, against the executive board you have elected; against all you stand for in the labor movement.

Be on your guard against the corrupt officialdom and their hirelings. This is your fight. No sacrifice on your part is too great. We must win. Victory is ours, if you but determine to do your share to make it ours.

New Power Battle Near.

WASHINGTON, June 23.— For a prize as great as the $57,000,000 power development at Niagara Falls, N. Y., says the Journal of Electrical Workers and Operators, two groups of super-capital—Morgan & Co. and Dillon, Read & Co., who recently bought the Dodge Motor Co., are struggling. This prize is the Conowingo dam on the Susquehanna river, near the Pennsylvania-Maryland line, where power possibilities rival those at Boulder Canyon or Muscle Shoals.

Operate on Sheffield.

NEW YORK, June 23—James R. Sheffield, ambassador to Mexico, will enter St. Luke's Hospital tomorrow to undergo a minor operation. Hospital officials declined to duscuss the nature of the operation.

School Sheet Poisons Children's Minds With Its Lies About China

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the Chinese situation is being seized upon by the forces of reaction as an excellent opportunity to spread more propaganda poison against the Union of Soviet Republics.

There is nothing unusual about this. That is their task. It is the task of the workers to see that they do not succeed.

• • • •

Every worker, therefore, is interested in knowing the kind of capitalist dope that is being injected into the minds of his children in school, seeking to prejudice them against the triumphs of labor in Russia.

How this is done becomes very evident in reading "Current Events," which claims a larger circulation than any other school paper in the world." It is not only used by the teachers as a text, but is widely read and studied by the children themselves, who are urged to subscribe to it.

• • • •

This sheet devotes nearly a column in its June 15-19 issue to developments in China, putting into its headline the following: "Russian Bolsheviks Are Stirring Up Feeling Against Foreigners in China," and then in the text, "The Russian Bolsheviks seem to be responsible for much of the present unrest in China."

Thus the capitalist rulers of the nation's educational system seek to blind the children to the horrors of the foreign industrial system imposed on the Chinese, against which the workers of China are now revolting.

• • • •

It would not do to tell American school children that boys and girls, in China, even at six years of age, are sent into the mills, owned by foreign capital, where the bosses have the right to "beat up" the workers.

The strikers demand that corporal punishment be abolished and that their wages be increased. The child workers now get as little as $3 per month, working 12 hours per day, with hardly ever a holiday and no Sundays off. The mill owners, who reap huge profits, do not deny these conditions. An investigating commission, half of which consisted of spokesmen for the employers, admitted the truth of these charges. Yet the bosses rejected the demands of the workers. When the strike resulted, the police and foreign troops, joined by U. S. marines, came in to shoot down the workers, on the usual pretext of "restoring order." The warships of foreign powers, from all parts of the orient, have been rushed to Chinese ports. Among these are many American warships flying the stars and stripes, to which American school children are forced to pledge allegiance.

• • • •

None of these simple truths, showing that the present growing struggle in China, developed directly out of the economic conditions against which the workers rebelled, found their way into "Current Events," the poisoner of the minds of America's school children. It is world imperialism that creates these conditions. Communism offers the cure for and the escape from them.

This propaganda sheet of the barbarous profit system, that feeds on children, here in the United States as well as in China, will only succeed in discrediting itself thru its rank perversion of facts. The students in China are among the best fighters for the workers. There is slowly and painfully springing up in America's schools, from the bottom to the top, a similar revolutionary body of students, who will develop their fight side by side with labor, whose numbers must rapidly grow.

• • • •

The only truth that appears in "Current Events" is that the Russian Bolsheviks, "Would like to see all nations under the same form of government as that in Soviet Russia."

But this wish is not confined to Russia. It is the wish of militant labor everywhere. So the school children of today, as they grow up, especially the boys, will refuse to become cannon fodder to help keep the Chinese workers, men, women and children, in slavery to foreign capital. Rather they will extend their fraternal hand of comradeship across the broad Pacific with the earnest hope that the children in both countries will strive to throw off the chains of capitalist oppression in both countries. That is what the sheet, "Current Events" fears. But even its fears will come true, in spite of its efforts to spread misinformation in the schools of today. The victory of the workers will prove the futility of this malicious capitalist propaganda.

White Guards Enlist Mere Boys

ergetically the viewpoint exposed in the note of the ambassador of the union to his excellency the Chinese foreign minister, on February 25, and more particularly to lay stress on the fact that the unhampered enlisting activities in Chinese territory on the part of agents of Netchayeff's force working under the patronizing attitude and with the support of Chinese authorities, is altogether inadmissible and is in flagrant contradiction with the mentioned Article VI of the agreement of May 31, 1924, and the set of notes, as well as all the conventional status which was established thereafter and, obviously, with the existing friendly relations between the Union and China.

Children Enlisted in White Guard

"However, apart from this question of a general nature, this embassy may be permitted to call the attention to the peculiar aspect of the case under consideration which renders the matter particularly odious. Indeed, those enlisted were youths under age, who were lured by false promises and had no clear idea of what they were doing; these youngsters were torn away from their families and left to themselves at an age when they should have found themselves under the direction of their parents' authority.

"In any civilised state such enrolling activities are liable to be punished as a criminal offense. In the given case, however, it was effected thru the participation of Chinese agents and patronized by military authorities, who gave the youngsters thus lured to enlist corresponding documents preventing the parents' efforts to find their children.

Soviet Ambassador Asks Return of Children.

"Naturally, such acts cannot be tolerated quite apart from the question as to the army and the purposes for which the enrollment was carried thru. Consequently, whereas all the demands stated in the above mentioned note of February 25, regarding the enlistment and maintenance of white guards in the Chinese territory remain valid, the embassy of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics feels it its duty to insist that in the particular case treated above there will be adopted urgent measures, namely that the military authorities be enjoined to immediately return to the parents all their enlisted children regardless of the latter's wishes, that all further enlistment be ceased and all persons implicated in these unlawful activities be legally prosecuted.

"This embassy would appreciate an early reply on the part of the ministry of foreign affairs to the matter dealt with above."

The above memorandum was sent on the 22nd of May.

Rules of Worker Correspondent's Contest.

Every two weeks the DAILY WORKER will give a prise of $5.00 worth of literature to the worker who sends in the best Worker Correspondent story during that period. This prise may be selected from any books or pamphlets in the catalogue of the Daily Worker Publishing company or may be applied to DAILY WORKER or Workers Monthly subscriptions.

1. The first contest commenced June 15 and ends June 27. New contests will be closed every second Saturday thereafter.

2. The contest is open to everyone with the exception of paid employes of the DAILY WORKER and of the Workers Party and its sections.

3. Manuscripts received up until June 27 will be entered in the first contest. Stories received subsequently will be considered during the next contest.

4. The stories must deal with actual events affecting workers.

5. Manuscripts must be written legibly on one side of paper, with one-half inch between lines if in handwriting. Type written copy is preferred but not essential.

6. Stories are not limited as to length but those of 500 words or less will receive preference.

7. Only news stories, that is those dealing with what has happened or what is about to happen will be considered.

8. Subject matter is limited only to that of a working class nature, but stories dealing with events and struggles of workers in places of employment and in and by labor unions will be given preference.

9. While literary merit in the stories is of course desirable, it will not be considered in determination of the best story. Those who have had little school education or no experience in writing will thus have an equal chance with experienced writers. The story which best meets the following requirements will be declared the winner:

(a) Is the story of interest to the working class, either locally or nationally or both?

(b) Has the writer done a good job in gathering the essential facts?

(c) Will the printing of the story secure benefit to the working class?

(d) Has he shown ability to estimate and emphasize the most important facts?

(e) Will the printing of the story increase the effectiveness of the DAILY WORKER or the Workers Party or the left wing in general?

10. All stories submitted for the contests must be addressed: "Worker Correspondents Editor, the DAILY WORKER.

11. The name and address of the writer must be sent with each story. If the writers do not want their names printed in the DAILY WORKER they should write at the beginning of their story: "Do not use my name."

SHAM CONFAB OF SOCIALISTS HAS FAKE PROGRAM

By WILLIAM WEINSTONE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 22.—Norman Thomas was nominated for mayor, Harriet Stanton Blatch for controller and Joseph Beardsley for Boro president by the sham fusion conference of the socialists late Saturday night upon a platform of the usual reform socialist and class collaborationist demands.

In their traction program, the socialists adopted the plank of municipal ownership of traction with control in the hands of a board composed representatives of the chief political parties. This means that the socialists propose the management shall be in the hands of representatives of the capitalist parties with the socialists sitting in the board. The slogan of the socialists in this proposal is typical of the middle class ideology "keep the traction out of politics."

The rest of the program consists of similar effete reformistic demands. The whole platform breathes the spirit of conciliation and collaborationism.

Change Rules of Labor Exchanges.

MOSCOW.—A regulation has been issued, revoking the former practice of compulsory hiring of labor force thru labor exchanges. The hiring may be made thru the labor exchanges as well as without them. In order to register the number of workmen employed, the employer must give necessary statistical information.

WORKERS RALLY AGAINST WALL STREET EXPLOITATION IN WEEK'S WAR ON IMPERIALISM

Anti-imperialism week begins Saturday with the threatening shadows of American battleships extending from the peasants and workers of Mexico, to the striking textile workers of China.

Anti-imperialist week finds the workers of America mobilizing to defend their class war fighters such as Benjamin Gitlow, from the onslaughts of the big business controlled supreme court and protesting against the recent threat of the imperialistic Coolidge government against the growing power of the militant workers of Mexico.

In Chicago, Anti-Imperialist week witnesses the gathering of the national conference, called by the Labor Defense Council, to work out a united front against the renewed attempts of the ruling class to jail those workers who are fighting for more power for their class.

Labor in Protest.

Such important organizations as the Detroit Federation of Labor have indorsed the conference and the protest against the supreme court decision which, if carried out, would send Gitlow back to Sing Sing, and formally over-rule the free speech clause of the federal constitution.

Obeying the orders of the Standard Oil company, Secretary of State Kellogg, in his note to the Calles government, indicates that Calles must intensify his drive against the militant agrarians, the Communists, and the radical oil workers, or the support of the imperialistic government will be withdrawn.

So crude and obvious was the move taken against the Mexican workers by American capital and so strong is the opposition in Mexico to American imperialism, that in order to save his support, Calles was forced to reply defiantly, altho he has since quietly tried to make good to the Standard Oil supporters.

U. S. Warships in China.

In Chinese water, American warships are hovering, ready to take part with the British and Japanese imperialistic vultures, in picking the bones of the Chinese workers.

And at home, fearing the rising tide of revolt among the world's colonial possessions, and among the subject races and weaker nations, the Coolidge government, always the servant of American imperialism, has called a mobilization day for July 4, to train cannon fodder for future imperialistic wars.

The American imperialists, and their tools, the Coolidge government, are preparing new chains whereby to exploit the subject Filipino peasants and the Haitian and Santo Domingo darker races.

Raids Against Communists.

Just as the Painleve government of France and the Baldwin government of England have organised raids at home against the Communists while they continue their war against the colonials, so the Coolidge imperialist government is robbing the peoples of its colonies and dominated nations, while it pursues the open shop, wage cutting drives at home, and prosecutes workers under espionage laws.

Demand Rule of Workers.

Against this oppression of workers of this country, and of the exploited colonial countries, rally on anti-imperialist week to demand self determination for the colonial peoples, freedom of the workers to strengthen their ranks in their militant organisations, and the overthrow of American imperialism to be replaced by a workers' and farmers' government.

Another new Sub—Makes another Communist.

ST. LOUIS CLOTHING STRIKERS EAT UP AN ISSUE OF THE DAILY

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 23.—The 500 copies of the DAILY WORKER telling the story of the Curlee strike were given away free to the strikers, and in not one case were the papers thrown away after the first look at them.

It was gratifying to see how nearly all the strikers were glad to get the DAILY WORKER, and how they read it, at first looking over the article on their strike. In every case the paper was put carefully into their pockets for future and more extensive reading.

Jacob Reichert, 1922 A. C. W. Strike Victim, Is Pardoned in Ohio

NEW YORK CITY, June 23.—Good news reported at Amalgamated Clothing Workers' headquarters is the opening of Ohio prison doors to Jacob Reichert, former Cincinnati business agent, serving a 15-year sentence for his part in the 1922 strike.

Reichert was committed to prison three months ago after losing an appeal to the Ohio supreme court from a conviction in a lower court on the charge of inciting an attack on a strikebreaker.

His fellow unionists say he was framed up at the behest of clothing manufacturers. Governor Donahey pardoned Reichert.

144 Dead Workers in Month of May Is Toll of N. Y. Capitalism

ALBANY, N. Y., June 23.—(FP)—Falls caused 36 of the 144 deaths due to May industrial accidents in New York state, according to the claims filed in the workmen's compensation bureau. Vehicles killed 18; 16 died from handling objects and 11 from being struck by falling objects. Transpotration industries employed 26 of the dead workers; 24 were in constru tion work; 8 in chemical industries. New York City had 94 of the deaths; Buffalo, 21; Albany, 14; Syracuse, 14; Rochester, 1.

Striking Felt Hat Makers Go Back to Work On a Promise

NEW YORK, June 23.—(FP)—Striking men's felt hat workers are returning to work with the stipulation that their grievance committee work with employers' representatives toward correcting abusive conditions in the trade. The workers want better materials furnished them for working; less loss of time in getting materials; removal of industrial hazards making them susceptible to hernia and tuberculosis.

COOLIDGE STAND ON TAXES DICTATED BY BANKERS AND BOSSES

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 22.—The members of the United States chamber of commerce, comprising all of the big business interests of the country, have urged the government that federal taxes on estates and inheritances by abolished.

It is noticeable that President Coolidge, as usual, has taken exactly the same stand on taxation as that taken by the chamber of commerce and by the American bankers association.

Another Fake Move to "Stop Child Slavery" Like Previous Talk

HARRISBURG, June 23.—Padrones who recruit 3,000 Pennsylvania school children annually for work in New Jersey truck farms and cranberry bogs are supposedly threatened with jailing by secretary of labor R. H. Lansburgh. Padrones get $1 a head from farm owners for each child worker supplied thru.

Pennsylvania employment agencies operating without the required license. A ne of $500 is provided for such cases. Recent investigations by Jersey and Pennsylvania authorities show that the child workers are forced to toil in the elds for 10 to 13 hours a day at very low pay and are poorly housed and fed. However such threats of jail have been made before and nothing ever happened.

Lower Wage for the Workers, More Profit for Boss, Is B. & S. Aim

BROCKTON, Mass., June 23.—Brockton shoe workers under the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union will work at a lower wage scale for Hall, Doyle and Daly Shoe Co., and Joseph F. Corcoran Shoe Co., to enable these manufacturers to compete in the chain store trade, John M. Long, secretary Joint Shoe Council announces. The lower scale is supposed to bring greater annual return because of expected greater production in the new market. The B. and S. is notorious as a company union.

One Dead in Freight Wreck

BUTLER, N. J., June 23.—One man was killed and several injured in a freight train wreck at Smith's Mills, near here, today. Four members of the train crew were taken to the Paterson, N. J., hospital.

James Dies on Coast.

COVINA, Calif., June 23.—Edmund Janes James, honorary president of the University of Illinois and well known professor of capitalist political economy died here today.

SOVIET UNIONS AID CHINESE IN FREEDOM FIGHT

Call for World Trade Union Solidarity

(By Imprecor Cable)

MOSCOW, June 23.—The All-Russian Central Trade Union council issued the following manifesto to the Chinese workers:

"The workers of the U. S. S. R. are pursuing your heroic struggle of liberation with the keenesat attention and sympathy. Your fight once more proves to the world proletariat the nesessity of uniting all forces against the imperialist oppressors and the urgent need of a United International Trade Union movement."

Watch Amalgamated Negotiations in N. Y. for Wage Cut Tricks

NEW YORK, June 23.—Negotiations between the Amalgamated Clothing Workers' Union and the New York Clothing Manufacturers' Association for the purpose of working out a new agreement for the men's garment industry in New York are keenly watched in labor circles because of the issues involved.

Employers' demands, boiled down, call for lower wages and less union control in the shops.

Boston Builders Tell Council They Intend to Use Scab Laborers

BOSTON, June 23.—Flat refusal to grant the wage increases sought by Boston building laborers is the answer of the Building Trades Employers Association to the United Building Trades Council attempt to end the laborers' strike. Employers claim that they have plenty of non-union workers and will maintain the old wage scale until April 1, 1926 when the agreement with the building laborers' union expires.

Paterson Weavers of Fancy Silks Prepare Demands for Increase

PATERSON, N. J., June 23.—Jacquard weavers, composing one-third of the broad silk weavers of Paterson, are preparing demands for increased wages and more uniform enforcement of union conditions under guidance of The silk workers' union won increases Jacquard weavers make fancy goods. The silk workers' uinon won increases for workers in the Hatband industry recently.

WILL BILL GREEN KINDLY STEP FORWARD AND GIVE US A TALK ON "OUR WONDERFUL DEMOCRACY"

SAGINAW, Mich., June 23.—As a sacrifice to federal Judge Tuttle's enmity to organized labor, The Workers' Voice of Saginaw is compelled to suspend publication. It had been published weekly for 12 years.

The editor, Edwin R. Cornish, has been hounded and persecuted by Tuttle who holds court in Detroit, ever since the railroad shopmen's strike began in 1922.

Tuttle charged Cornish with contempt during that strike, and acting as prosecutor, witness, judge and jury found him guilty and sentenced him to prison.

The federal appellate court reversed this czar-like procedure, but Tuttle insisted on a new trial instead of dropping the case as is usual when a higher court sits down hard on a lower one.

The trials and appeals have taken Cornish's last cent and he has had to give up the Workers' Voice, which is probably what Tuttle had in mind when he told Cornish three years ago, "We'll get you yet."

THE ENDLESS FLOW OF PROFITS!

By LELAND OLDS

THE tens of billions of dollars taken from the public in profits since 1914 are reflected in Dow, Jones & Co. figures showing total profits of 30 corporations from 1914 to 1924. After paying hundreds of millions as interest on their bonds these 20 companies reported profits of $3,167,674,935 remaining.

Cash dividends of $676,494,184 went to the owners of preferred stocks leaving $2,491,080,751 for common stockholders. These received cash dividends of $1,249,122,407.

The following figures from the Dow, Jones table tell the story. A number of the companies appear for only part of the 10-year period.

Montgomery Ward	1914-24	25,155,473

The first three are great Morgan corporations. The profits of U. S. Steel amounts to more than 136 per cent on the entire capital stock over half of which represents no original investment.

Such profits go far to explain the unstable condition in industry where employment is far from satisfactory while excessive profits continue. Profits greatly in excess of the sums needed by the country for new capital result in a continuous overdevelopment of producing power.

In the first place these companies reserved $1,241,122,407 out of the profits for reinvestment in improving and expanding their plants. This sum, approximately equal to the cash dividends paid on common stock, would alone have taken care of the country's expansion.

The job of the investment bankers is to manufacture new securities to absorb these funds which are literally crying for investment. Otherwise they would glut the money market and bring down the return on capital. The new securities mean the erection of additional productive plant. The result is that production tends always to run away from the ability of the public to buy the products. This means chronic unemployment for labor.

HEARST AMONG "THE WEALTHIEST MEN; BRISBANE OWNS $9,000,000 IN REAL ESTATE," SAY BANKERS

NEW YORK, June 23.—William Randolph Hearst's bankers, S. W. Strauss & Co., tell the world that he is one of the wealthiest men of the country and that his star editor Arthur Brisbane, holds nine million dollars' worth of New York real estate.

This interesting information of the profits of yellow capitalist journalism are contained in display advertisements that seek to sell $7,000,000 first mortgage bonds for Hearst-Brisbane real estate in the metropolis. The properties include one 18 and two 20-story apartment houses; the new Ziegfield Theater and two completed business buildings.

Assuring prospective buyers that the investment is perfectly safe the Strauss company reminds readers that "Mr. Hearst is one of the wealthiest men in the country. He is the publisher and sole owner of the most valuable group of newspapers and magazines in the world doing a business in excess of $120,000,000 annually."

And of Brisbane, president of the borrowing corporation involved, we are told that while best known as an editor he is also great as a real estator, holding nine millions in New York property and that: "We have had many satisfactory dealings, aggregating millions of dollars, with Mr. Brisbane, covering a period of ten years."

One thing the Hearst bankers did not tell, and that is that he is at present engaged in fighting union labor in the mechanical department of his Seattle Post-Intelligencer, where the printers are now in their second year of strike against a proposed reduction in wages and shop control.

5,000 MORE MINERS WALK THE STREETS IN SEARCH FOR LOST JOBS

NEW YORK, June 23.—More than 5,000 coal diggers of the Pennsylvania Coal Co. are unemployed thru the total closing of the companies mines in central Pennsylvania, A. K. Morris, vice-president and general manager, admitted. Unemployment in central Pennsylvania, District No. 2, United Mine Workers, has brought great suffering to the workers.

A CORRECTION

We got our Brims badly mixed last Monday in a story on the carpenters' union. The Brims who was a former president o fthe district council was not a candidate for the vice-presidency on the progressive ticket. The progressive candidate was John Brims. William Brims was former president of the council. It was William Brims who supported Duell, the missing link candidate against Jensen. John Brims supported Stahl, the progressive standard bearer against Jensen.

To Destroy Invention Models.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 23.—Models of history-making inventions dating back to the time of Abraham Lincoln and even to the early days of the republic, along with thousands of others of every type and description, must be disposed of before the middle of July, according to an announcement today from Commissioner of Patents Robertson of the commerce department. Those considered of historical or other value will be selected and preserved. The others unless applied for by July 15 may be destroyed or sold, as authorized by a recent act of congress.

From the first days of the patent office up to 1880 the law required that all applicants for patents must submit a model of the invention with the application. As a result the patent office acquired over 155,000 models, including such outstanding inventions as the Bell telephone, the Howe sewing machine, Abraham Lincoln's devise for lifting vessels over shoals in the Mississippi and many others.

EAST SIDE (A Story of the Working Class) - By JOHN LASSEN

(Translated by Simon Felshin)

IT is well known that a messenger boy does not earn any too much. He makes ten to twelve dollars a week provided that he works every day. Such being the case it is no easy matter for him to find the proper lodging.

With a good bit of perseverance he may find a room that he can afford, where he can live in an emergency, or which is presumably a place where he can at least sleep.

When my legs were already fagged out from walking I thought that I had at last discovered the very room in question. It faced on the street. It was a bright room, and the woman didn't ask for too much. Twelve dollars for the whole month. I would have preferred to pay rent by the week, but her principal condition was payment for the whole month. As I am a very thrifty person I thought that I could make ends meet somehow the first week. Maybe I'll have good luck with the telegrams, maybe there will be a wedding, or something of the sort, that will fetch more tips—you never can tell. One grasps fortune by the hair in the form of a cheap room—if there is a chance to do so.

THE moving was not an elaborate affair.

When I had moved in I noticed that my room had no "separate entrance."

In the room next to the kitchen slept a boy of about ten. He had no bed, but six chairs standing in a row. On the chairs there was a blanket, on the blanket a pillow. A torn sheet served as o cover. In the next room there was a wide bed. The mother lay on it, and near her a grown up girl. Between the two slept a tiny child. At the foot of the bed, along the back slept a boy of about three. In an alcove leading into my room a man and a little boy of five lay on a wide bed.

A heavy, unpleasant human smell hovered in the room. The oil lamp burning in the middle of the room veiled all in a mysterious half darkness.

My room had no door, and the windows could not be opened. I went to bed. But the exhalation hung before my nose and did not let me fall asleep. And suddenly I was overcome by an unpleasant sensation. Something crawled over my face. I felt a painful moistness, and right after that an unbearable smell that instanly revealed the cause.

I turned on the gaslight. And I began my campaign. The bed-bugs—for that's what really they were—having swarmed out for the attack, wanted to take the position by storm. They charged forward in close ranks. Whole pyramids were already piled up before my bed, and so I thought that I must have succeeded at last in completery rousing the enemy. I turned off the gas, but the very next moment I again felt sharp bites. I dozed off for a few moments from fatigue, but I could not sleep. I had to fight. To the point of complete exhaustion. I could hardly wait for morning to come; I longed for some air.

I hoped that the woman would return my rent so that I could with joy look for a new room. But I was mistaken. After a stormy scene the woman, instead of returning the twelve dollars promised to undertake a "grand cleaning."

• • • •

AS a messenger boy I worked nights. I went to bed between two and three o'clock. And early in the morning I was up again. That proved to be the best method to get some sleep, indeed. I was always tired. In the morning I busied myself with my books. I studied, wrote, read.

The woman asked me whether the bed-bugs still tormented me even after the big cleaning. What could I have said? I assured her that I could sleep now.

Thereupon she suddenly broke into tears. I don't like to see women crying. . .

"I was afraid already that you should go away. And I needed to have the money so much. I don't know if my husband will send me some money."

"Isn't that your husband, that man who sleeps with the little boy?" I asked in amazement.

"My husband? No, that is a cousin who helps me out. . . My husband? He has deserted me together with all the children."

She spoke in a sing-song voice, with the typical east-side Russian-Jewish tone. Her eyes blazed, every muscle of her face twitched violently.

"Rachel brings home ten dollars, Morris shines shoes after school, but what is that? Five dollars a week? Such a big loafer! In a few days he will be ten years old, and makes five dollar a week! Please, mister"—and now she spoke in a confidential tone—"can't my boy get a job in the Western Union? There is a lot of small boys there. Maybe they'll take him in. And he'll make more over there."

I gave her the address, where the boy would have to apply for work.

A terrific uproar.

The mother had discovered that the five year old Lesly was sucking candy. A big investigation. Blows, cross-questioning. And it turned out that the candy came from Morris. Brandishing desperately the remains of the candy the woman came into my room.

"Look here! That's what kind of children I have! They take the bread from my mouth. For such things they spend good, precious money".

Morris, returning from school, had no idea of the danger threatening him in the form of a strap.

Two minutes of wild howling.

A piercing, savage, terrible voice repeating:

"So for this you spend precious money? So for this you spend precious money?"

• • •

DOWNSTAIRS I met Morris in the street. His face was blotched. His eyes were swollen. "Lesly gets no more candy from me"—he said. At his side he carried his "business". And he called out: "Shoe shine . . . shoe shine . . . " He would cast such a look of reproach upon those shoes that didn't gleam that if I has worn those shoes I would surely let Morris shine them.

• • •

SATURDAY morning I was awakened by the shouts of joy of the children. Little Lesly cried: "Papa is here, papa is here!"

The children put on the least torn clothes. There was a festive look on their faces. They were being taken out for a walk. To celebrate the day Morris did not go out to shine shoes. Only Rachel's face remained gloomy. She went to work.

After the children had gone out with the father, the mother came into my room. "How much does a man need, to be able to live?"—she asked. I did not exactly understand the question. Finally I gathred that the husband wanted to keep for himself thirteen dollars out of his week's wages, and to give ten dollars for the family. But the wife wanted thirteen dollars—"because a man can get along with ten dollars too".

I said that at any rate a man could get along more easily with ten dollars than a woman and five children. When I made that statement the woman almost fell on my neck for joy.

About noon the husband came home with the children.

RIGHT then the debate commenced. Desperate, passionate, horrible. The rapid, drumming rattle of words made it impossible to make out anything. Yet I knew what it was about: About the three dollars.

I heard a new voice. Rachel had come home. She sided with the mother. The women stamped with their feet. Suddenly a man's laughter broke out.

The woman came rushing into my room—she would like me to tell her husband what I had told her. And she ran right back again.

The man's laughter rang still louder.

I went slowly toward the kitchen.

Cries. Children's sobbing. A confusion of voices.

The man's laughing suddenly broke off.

The woman was standing in the kitchen, a knife in her hand. The man held her arm tightly. He took her knife away. Scuffling.

Shrill cries.

Then the knife fell to the ground, and the man took his hat. He went.

The woman sobbing: "He wants to give us only ten dollars!"

AT the Western Union they were of the opinion that the boy was too young, and too weak. The woman asked me to eat with them.

At the table slaps rained down on Morris's face.

It was this way—there were noodles and potatoes, with roast onions. The boy didn't want any noodles and fished for the potatoes.

"Take noodles too."

"I don't like it."

"Then no potatoes for you."

But the boy keeps right on eating.

"I said you should take noodles, and if not, you shouldn't eat potatoes!"

Slaps, uproar; the boy wouldn't eat at all.

A good deal of the noodles were left over.—"That will be for supper"—and she threw them into a pot.

"Please tell me only how to make a living? The woman next door said she'll give me an address where they make roses. Then we could all of us work."

Little Lesly clasps his hands:

"Me too? Me too?"

And the three year old child sitting on the ground, repeated after him while clapping his hands: "Me too? Me too?"

Morris, deliberating:

"I guess I'am going to stick to the shop-shine business . . ."

IRISH FAMINE GROWING WORSE, RELIEF NEEDED

New York Workers to Hold Tag Day June 27

NEW YORK, June 23.—The famine which has held Ireland in its grip for more than 8 months has spread. At first it was confined to the western coast, but now it has struck inland and all Ireland faces hunger.

750,000 workers and peasants were first affected. Now the situation is far worse. Continual rain, the ruination of the crops, the lack of fuel have placed the whole country before famine.

The capitalist press denies these facts—even tho the Evening World of New York admits that "virtually the whole country faces hunger." The Irish workers and peasants have nothing to eat and appeal to their brothers and sisters in the United States for help.

The Irish Workers and Peasants Famine Relief Committee has arranged a Tag Day, on June 27 and 28. Several organizations, like the Waterproof Garment Workers Union, have agreed to furnish collectors. All workers of New York must support this Tag Day. Make the Relief Fund a big one every workers must and will do his share.

500 Workers Attend Bernhardt Funeral

The funeral of Paul Bernhardt and his wife, who were killed in the Lackawanna wreck recently was attended by five hundred workers, and dozens of floral pieces from organizations and friends banked high over the caskets. The pallbearers included members of Workmen's Sick and Death Benefit Society, No. 229, Workers (Communist) Party Forest Park Branch, and Machinists Union German Local, in all of wheih he was active. One of the floral pieces was in the form of the Soviet Star, and red flowers predominated. The bodies were taken to the Bohemian-American Cemetary Crematorium.

Services were conducted by the Bohemian Womens Society and by the W. S. D. B. F. Otto Wolf and the chairman of the lodge spoke in German, and Wm. F. Kruse spoke in English.

TUBERCULOSIS FROM WORKING AT DUSTY TRADES KILLS HUNDREDS, WHILE SPEED MACHINES CRIPLE

By ART SHIELDS,
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK, June 23.—Awake to the fact that the tuberculosis death rate in their trade is several times that of the general population, local unions of the Journeymen's Stone Cutters' Association in the metropolitan district are making a scientific survey of health hazards with the technical assistance of the Workers' Health Bureau, 799 Broadway, New York, to which they are affiliated. The survey takes up, among other things, the relative dangers of grinding wheels, pneumatic drills and hammers, wet and dry grinding, and goes thoroly into systems of ventilation and exhaust devices.

Government Never Did Anything.

This is the first thoro survey labor itself has undertaken of the hazards of this dusty trade, and the results, say union representatives, will not be lost in mothy pigeon holes, but will be used as a basis for counteracting dangerous conditions in the trade. Heretofore, there have been occasional investigations by government bureaus, but they have not led to any action for cleaning up the trade.

Government reports have at times shown up appalling comparative mortality figures, as the report of Dr. W. H. Drury to the U. S. Public Health Service, showing how polishers and grinders in a certain Connecticut ax factory died ten times as rapidly as other persons employed in the factory, from tuberculosis. But the problem of eliminating such industrial tuberculosis was never satisfactorily dealt with.

Wet Grinding no Safety Measure.

One of the measures in which faith used to be placed, on the basis of older studies, was the wet grinding process. This was believed to be comparatively harmless. But, according to Drury's study, when wet grinding was done on natural sandstone the tuberculosis rate was very high—19 per 1000 as compared with 1.6 per thousand for the rest of the workers.

Peril in Pneumatic Hammers.

The pneumatic air hammer is one of the high speed devices on trial before the union's health experts. This tool delivers 3000 to 3400 strokes a minute, but the price for increased production is increased dust, and consequently increased silicosis and tuberculosis.

Permanently numb hands are another penalty for the use of the new hammer. The New York unions at present allow its use only four hours per worker per day. What later restrictions will be placed on the pneumatic air hammer depend on the findings of the survey.

Silicosis, the diseased lung condition, caused by inhalation of quartz (silica) dust, is not considered an occupational disease by the republican made statutes of New York state. Yet it is so common among the workers in the dusty trades, and leads to such high tuberculosis records, that its abolition by protection on the job, if not by legislation, is one of the imperative duties of the labor movement.

Many Unions Should be Interested.

Many international unions will gain from the pioneer work the stone cutters are now undertaking. Among the workers who daily breathe the destructive dust from grinding and buffing wheels, pneumatic drills, and hammers, are members of the granite cutters', marble cutters', masons', machinists', bricklayers', metal polishers' and sand blasters' unions.

The tuberculosis records of the Connecticut ax factory workers represent a peak but in all these trades they are above the general average. At Barret, Vermont, among the marble workers, the tuberculosis death rate is five times that of normal.

Jobs Affect Workers' Teeth

BERLIN, Germany, June 23.—An article published here on the workers teeth shows that occupational diseases often settle in the workers' mouths. Copper workers find their teeth turning green. The teeth of leather workers turn brown in color, and the molars of silver and lead workers turn blue.

START PROBE OF MANY DEATHS BY RADIUM POISON

Doctors Answer Alibi of the Bosses

NEW YORK CITY, June 23. — The recent death of Mrs. Sarah T. Maillefer of Orange, N. J., an employe of the United States Radium Corporation, who died from radium poisoning and a $75,000 damage suit by her sister Marguerite Carlough, now ill in St. Mary's Hospital, Orange, brot against the company, together with other damage suits now pending is responsible for the company's demand that the federal authorities start investigation of the new occupational disease called "radium necrosis." Seven employes of the company have died within a year from this disease.

The United States department of labor ordered a general survey of all radium plants in the country for information about this disease. The object is to determine whether "radium necrosis" or whatever it is, that causes the death and illness of radium workers in this company, is an occupational disease and should be bro under the compensation laws.

Dr. Andrew S. McBride, New Jersey state labor commissioner, and physicians employed by the company have worked out a theory that the disease is caused thru wetting paint brushes with the tongue and lips when painting watch dials with luminous paint. Physicians not employed by the company, among whom is Dr. Harrison Martland of Essex county, say the disease is caused thru inhalation of the fumes of the luminous paint. To prove their contention they point out the case of Dr. Edwin D. Lemon, who was exposed to radium in experiments and, also of women workers in the luminous paint department who died from the disease. The investigation which the federal authorities will conduct must determine exactly how the disease is caused.

Inquiry into similar plants in Brooklyn and of the middlewest has brot the surprising information that the disease does not exist in those plants.

While the investigation is going on the company is not abandoning the use of radium solution and more employes are daily being exposed to the disease.

Negro Workers Are Taking Interest in Workers Party Meetings

Two very successful open air meetings were held at the corners of 30th and 32nd and State last Saturday night. Comrades Zokaitis, Kaplan, Cline and Maylor, were the speakers. Every one of the 50 copies of the DAILY WORKER which had been brot were sold long before the meeting was over. Twenty copies of the Young Worker were also sold.

The South Side branch of the party has already taken in several members this year as a result of its open air meetings, and if all indications do not fail many more will yet be taken in. At the meetings Saturday two young workers expressed a desire to join the League. One of them subscribed to the Young Worker. The names of more than 15 interested workers were obtained, and they will be sent literature and invited to come to the meetings of the party.

It is noticeable that the Workers Party is winning a real support among the negro workers who attend its open air meetings. The DAILY WORKER greatly outsells the Negro World, organ of the Universal Negro Improvement Association which also holds meetings every Saturday night at 30th and State. Considerable competition is developing between the Workers Party and the U. N. I. A. to hold the crowds.

In view of the fine results obtained at these meetings the South Side branch plans to extend its open air work still further. Efforts will be made to hold four open air meetings weekly in the future.

CAMPAIGN IN HOT FINISH

Buffalo Leads in Last Week

By a sudden spurt and the splendid co-operation of the Finnish Branch, local Buffalo jumped into the lead and still holds it in the Second Annual Sub Campaign. San Francisco held the lead for one week and is still right on the heels of Buffalo, together with Minneapolis and Philadelphia. These are the leaders (and Detroit is stealing right up to them) of those locals having a quota of 100 subs or over and a hot fight is promised during the rest of this week.

Only those subs will be included in the total, which will be received in the office no later than Tuesday, June 30, in

Monessen, Pa. Keeps Leading

Pottsville Second by Narrow Margin

The one outstanding campaign performance of all locals has been that of Monessen, Pa. where Leo Kauppila, and the Young Workers League branch of only eight members have succeeded in going over the campaign quota set for them by an additional 140 per cent. Any local that attempts to beat these busy young Builders will have to hustle in the one week remaining.

Beside the splendid showing of Pottsville, Pa., Pittsburg, Kan., West Allis and Frankfort Heights have all done well reaching the full quota set or much better.

DAVIS TELLS SOLDIERS OF MINERS' FIX

Hoover Helps Organize Coal Trust

PHILADELPHIA, June 23.— Coal miners should be employed 300 days a year and fewer mines operated to overcome the chaotic condition in the industry due to overdevelopment, Secretary of Labor Davis told the graduating class of Pennsylvania military college.

Davis said that some one—he did not indicate who—must come into the coal business and "stabilize" it; that all the coal in the country is being produced by men who work two and a half days a week.

Secretary of Commerce Hoover, with the bureau of mines under his control now, is supposed to be assisting in the anthracite merger of coal mining and selling companies.

Pasquale Russo in Favor of Uniting All Defense Bodies

The DAILY WORKER is in receipt of the following letter from the well known radical writer and speaker, Pasquale Russo. It is one of the many letters endorsing the idea of a united front in defense of all class war prisoners received by this paper:

833 Sedgwick St.,
Chicago, Illinois,
June 19, 1925.

DAILY WORKER: Hearty congratulations for the very splendid work of Comrade George Maurer in calling a national conference for the purpose of instituting a National Labor Defense Council.

This is timely as the American bourgeoisie are now making ready for another attack upon the workers of this country. We must prepare for the event, and deliver blow for blow. In fact we must be prepared to defend the future victims of American terrorism. This can be best accomplished by uniting all defense committees into one body.

Edward A. Filene, referring to the international chamber of commerce, said: "The business men of the world are united." To this we should answer by saying: "We, the workers of the United States are now prepared to defend all victims of international capitalistic terrorism."

All workers should support the movement, or be adjudged as favoring the master class.

With very best wishes for the success of the plan, I am,

Fraternally,
(Signed) Pasquale Russo

Little Fish Object to Being Swallowed by the Big Fellows

NEW YORK, June 23.—About 1,500 hat and capmakers are idle due to the refusal of contractors to accept work from jobbers at present rates.

The Wholesale Hat and Cap Manufacturers' Association is virtually on strike against the jobbers, claiming that their expenses are often greater than what the jobbers pay for the product.

Workers employed in hat and capmaking directly for dealers are not affected by the contractor-jobber strike.

"The contractors want a 7½ per cent increase in profits in order to get along," says Isidor M. Jaffe, president of their association. The $3 a dozen price would give them 15 cents a dozen profit.

'Why the Capitalist State?' Answered by State Police of Pa.

SCRANTON, Pa., June 23.— State police and sheriffs' deputies were called to Blakely to disperse a crowd of striking silk workers, mostly women and girls, who had marched from Dickson City mills to the Amalgamated Silk So., endeavoring to get more silk workers to join their ranks.

Employes of the Frisbee Throwing plant, Bliss Silk Mill and other mills are striking for a $3 weekly increase, bringing their wages to $15. Three strikers were injured when state police broke up their ranks.

Left Wing Statement in I. L. G. W. U.

The statement issued to all locals of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union by the executive boards of Locals 2, 9 and 22, has put the officialdom and its gangsters on the defensive.

It is the statement of men and women who are fighting for their union against one of the most corrupt and brazen conspiracies ever engineered by a desperate faker in the American labor movement. The questions at issue are seen to be matters of record, a long list of indefensible acts against the interests of the union membership culminating in the betrayal of the whole union in New York state to the governor's commission and the bosses, are cited.

The statement proves that the elementary trade demands of the workers have been disregarded, the membership and the union treasury plundered to support the administration court and courtesans and that this treason and corruption has masked itself behind a campaign to purge the union of "reds."

In other words the Sigman machine has taken a leaf out of the well-known book by the late United States attorney general, Harry Daugherty, entitled "Saving the Country for Fall and His Friends."

The Sigman machine is out to save the union for themselves—so they raid the local treasuries first.

The left wing, in bringing the issues directly to the membership, has broadened the struggle and defeated the plan of the Sigmanites to establish a wall around New York and isolate Locals 2, 9 and 22 from the rest of the union.

The machine must either accept the challenge of the three locals as the major issue on which the election of delegates to the next national convention will be based or admit its crookedness.

Like all the reactionary groups in the American labor movement the Sigman machine will continue its disruptive tactics and try to seat only its sworn servants in the convention. But the membership is going to have its say and from present indications the Sigmanites cannot count on the support of more than 25 per cent of the rank and file.

Imperialism's Internal Weaknesses

Yesterday the news was that Chang Tso Lin, military chieftain in the pay of Japan, had threatened to make war on the Chinese workers and students in Shanghai.

Today, the news is that serious mutinies have broken out among Chang Tso Lin's troops—cause and effect are plainly seen in this incident.

Such is the power developed by the national liberation movement that Japan can no longer rely on her mercenaries. In the face of the common enemy, imperialism, personified in the minds of Chinese masses by Japan and Great Britain, particularly, with France and America taking second place in the list of foes, the old methods of dividing and conquering the Chinese nation are not workable.

After all, the troops that the tuchuns use are Chinese and the activity of the Kuo Min Tang and the Communists is bringing into being a sense of national, racial and class solidarity formerly lacking.

The great thing that is taking place in China is not the drive against imperialism in the form of strikes and boycotts, but the rise of a sense of power among the workers, peasants and students of which these actions are the expression.

China is not a cowed and beaten nation any more. Dissension still exists between the republican south and the militarist north, but the imperialist powers are themselves applying the pressure that is welding the factions into one solid resistant mass.

Japan is faced with a difficult choice. If she insists that Chang Tso Lin proceed with his attack on the Chinese masses the leadership in the north will automatically pass into the hands of General Feng. If on the other hand, she decides not to use Chang the liberation movement will soon be of such proportions that it will dictate its own terms to Japan.

It is because of this difficult position, complicated by a rising and restless labor and revolutionary movement at home, that Japan has not as yet joined in the attack with the rest of the imperialist powers in a wholehearted manner.

The entire Chinese situation as it affects Japan is enlightening in its demonstration of the internal weakness of the imperialist policies of the great powers.

Debs in Minneapolis

It is reported that Eugene V. Debs, speaking in Minneapolis at one of those ludicrous mass conventions of the moribund socialist party declared for industrial unionism and praised Soviet Russia. This is all well and good. But—

Eugene V. Debs is lending the lustre of an honored name to a party that never misses an opportunity to stab Soviet Russia in the back; to a party that once paid lip service to industrial unionism but now makes common cause with the most reactionary wing of the American labor movement in brutally persecuting the Communists, the only element in the trade union movement that has a program for the industrialization of the craft unions thru amalgamation; the only element that is working to transform the unions into fighting organs of the class struggle.

This is not the first time Debs championed industrial unionism. As far back as 1905 he exposed the weaknesses of the craft union form of organization. He showed that it was out of date and should be discarded for the more modern form of organization. But the socialist party, even in its palmiest days raised the cry of "no interference with the labor unions" which meant no interference by the radicals. This slogan did not prevent the unions being made the tools of capitalist politicians. This is the cry raised by the reactionary Sigman today as an excuse for his campaign to drive the left wing members out of the I. L. G. W. U.

If Eugene V. Debs is seriously desirous of advancing the cause of industrial unionism, there is a way in which he can be of great service. He can support the program of the Trade Union Eudcational League which is the organ of the left wing elements in the trade unions movement in the United States. Debs cannot serve industrial unionism or aid Soviet Russia, by allowing himself to be used as a come-on by the discredited cast-offs of the moribund socialist party.

Snap out of it "Gene!"

UNCLE SAM, BILL COLLECTOR

By C. E. Ruthenberg

THE advertisement reproduced from the New York Times, which appears herewith, is a striking illustration of the role played by the capitalist government in the present imperialist era of capitalism.

The "Imperial Russian Government" in other words, the bloody autocracy of the czar, floated a loan for fifty million dollars thru certain New York banking houses in 1916. These banking houses handled the loan because they made a profit out of it. The investors who put their money into the loan did so because they wanted the 6½ per cent interest which the czar's autocratic government offered in order to secure the money. These investors knew what the czar's government was. They knew that it maintained itself on the backs of the Russian workers and peasants thru the knout, exile, imprisonment, and execution. Still they were willing to loan their money to this czarist autocracy in order to get 6½ per cent interest.

Since this loan was made to the imperial Russian government, this "Imperial Russian government" has disappeared from the face of the earth under the blows of the workers and peasants whom it oppressed and exploited. In its place the workers have created the Soviet government and the dictatorship of the proletariat.

Naturally, the proletarian dictatorship is not particularly interested in repaying the loan made to the "Imperial Russian government" in order to help that government maintain its system of exploitation and oppression. They have repudiated the debts of the bloody czar government, refused ther the product of their toil in order to pay up the debts of this gov- capitalist investments, the American ernment.

The Bankers at Work.

THE advertisement in the New York Times shows that a committee has been formed in which the big banking houses of New York city are represented, for the purpose of collecting the debt of the "Imperial Russian government" from the Soviet government of Russia. All who invested are urged to participate in the committee and turn their claim over to it. As an encouragement to the holders of the certificates of the imperial Russian government, the bank representatives who sign their names to the advertisement declare:

"So far as has been announced, the position of our government remains unchanged in its refusal to recognize the Soviet government without some satisfactory adjustment of the obligation of the former Russian government to the citizens of this country."

Here we have frankly and boldly stated the real reason why the United States government has refused to recognize the union of Socialist Soviet Republics. The bankers blandly tell us it's all a matter of dollars and cents. If the Soviet government will promise to pay the debts of the bloody imperialist Russian government, then the United States government will change its attitude.

Altho Mr. Hughes in his announcements has on numerous occasions given high-sounding moral reasons why the government of the United States does not recognise the Soviet government of Russia, the bankers tell the truth about it. The proletarian dictatorship in Russia can buy the recognition of the United States government if it will agree to pay the American capitalists the loans they made to the bloody czarist regime.

The Role of the Government.

THE role which the United States is playing in relation to Russia as evidenced by this incident is the general role which capitalist governments are playing. They are the bill collectors of the capitalists—the guarantors of the capitalist investments, the collectors of the capitalist profits.

What the American government is doing for the Wall Street banking houses in relation to Russia, it is also doing in relation to Mexico, Nicaragua, in Haiti, in Santo Domingo, and everywhere else where the American capitalists have made their investments or desire to make their investments.

In order that it may act as the bill collector and guarantor of the to suffer further, refused to give fur- government is spending hundreds of millions of dollars a year to maintain an army and navy ready and fit to enter into the struggle to collect for the big American banking houses.

It was to collect and guarantee the investments of the American capitalists, particularly Morgan & Co., to the allied countries, that the United States government entered the world war with its sacrifice of the lives of American youth and the destruction of billions of wealth produced by the American workers.

It will be to collect and guarantee the investments of the American financiers that the United States will enter into the next world war toward which imperialist capitalist nations are drifting.

Fight Imperialism.

IT is to rouse the workers to the dangers for them in this policy of the United States government that the Workers Party has set aside June 29 to July 4, as Anti-Imperialist Week.

It has called upon all units of the party to arrange mass meetings and mass demonstrations against the government as the collecting agency of the capitalists. It has urged the workers to demonstrate their opposition to the policy which leads to the sacrifice of lives and wealth involved in war.

There is only one way in which the dangers of destruction of lives of the working class, the destruction of the wealth they produce, the consequent destruction of their standard of life which spring from imperialism can be avoided.

The Russian workers' and peasants' government which is refusing to pay the debts of the bloody imperialist Russian government has shown the way. The Russian workers and peasants have ended imperialism and the consequent oppression, exploitation and sacrifice of the workers' lives by putting out of existence the imperial Russian government and establishing the proletarian dictatorship.

The answer to capitalist imperialism is the proletarian dictatorship.

The answer to a bill collecting and investment guaranteeing government is to wipe it out and build in its place a government which has as its first and fundamental aim to improve the standard of life of those who produce the wealth of the country.

The Russian workers and peasants have shown the way to the workers of the world.

IMPERIAL RUSSIAN GOVERNMENT

$50,000,000 6½% Three Year Credit

Dated July 10, 1916

To Holders of Certificates of Deposit and Participation Certificates:

As you have heretofore been informed, the Committee duly filed with the Department of State in Washington the claims of holders of the above Certificates of Deposit.

The present Government in Russia has been recognized de jure by Great Britain, France, Germany, Italy, Sweden, China, Japan, and several other countries. An agreement in regard to the settlement of debts due to nationals of Great Britain by the Russian Government was signed by the plenipotentiaries at the Anglo-Soviet Conference in London. This Agreement, however, was not submitted to the House of Commons for ratification, one of the reasons being that the payment of any obligation was made contingent upon the granting of a further loan to Russia.

There are some indications of a disposition on the part of the Soviet Republic to conform to the well recognized practice of all great nations to the effect that recognition of external obligations is a fundamental requirement of sound government; and this leads us to hope tha there may ultimately be an adjustment by the Soviet Republic of all its external obligations.

So far as has been announced, the position of our Government remains unchanged in its refusal to recognize the Soviet Government without some satisfactory adjustment of the obligations of the former Russian Governments to citizens of this country.

Although this Committee already represents substantially $40,000,000 of the above $50,000,000 it has no authority to act on behalf of holders who do not deposit. Therefore, it has been decided to extend the opportunity to those who have not deposited their Participation Certificates to make such deposit now under the terms of the original Agreement. Deposits may be made by sending Certificates to one of the Depositaries, either The National City Bank of New York, 55 Wall Street, New York City, or the Old Colony Trust Company, 17 Court Street, Boston, Massachusetts. Certificates must be endorsed in blank by the registered holders and the signature guaranteed by a bank with a correspondent in New York City, or by a member of the New York or Boston Stock Exchange, or acknowledged before a Notary Public with a County Clerk's certificate attached, showing the authority of the Notary.

Holders of Participation Certificates, whose claims are not filed with the State Department at Washington, may be seriously prejudiced, since it is believed that any adjustment of this debt can be made to the best advantage through the Committee.

As the Committee has heretofore announced, the members are serving without compensation and the total disbursements of the Committee to date are nominal.

In order to be in a position to take advantage of any favorable developments that may ensue, it is essential that the Protective Agreement be further extended. A formal consent to the extension will be mailed to all depositors, who are requested to sign and return it, without delay, to the Secretary of the Committee.

concessions given them by Governor Small in return for the votes they were able to swing to him in the last election. The most important were the passage of the injunction limitations bill and the killing of the state police bills. The workers should not rejoice too soon, or imagine that their troubles can be solved in a capitalist legislature or any other like institution under capitalism. Strikes will take place in the future and it is more than likely that the bosses will find ways and means of getting around the anti-injunction bill. The only worth while insurance against the bosses in their own organized might.

SHORTLY after John L. Lewis told the Hocking Valley (Ohio) miners that he would stand on the Jacksonville pact as bravely as the boy who "stood on the burning deck," sheriff's deputies were patrolling the coal mining district in Pomeroy, where the mines are being cleared preparatory to operating them on a non-union basis. This is what is happening all over the country, while Lewis blatantly boasts that he will not consent to a modification of the wage agreement in favor of the bosses. The miners would like to modify it in their own favor but Lewis refuses to let them even fight against wage cuts. The operators are allowing Lewis to get all the comfort he can out of an agreement that exists only on paper, except in a few sections of the country.

WHILE Lewis plays the role of operator's lieutenant, the British miners under the leadership of A. J. Cook, come out with a stiff demand for the nationalization of the mines. Cook, is secretary of the British Miners' Federation which has a membership of about one million. He calls himself "a humble disciple of Lenin." Lewis is a subservant disciple of Morgan.

SMALL HAS NO DEFENSE AGAINST CHARGES OF GRAFT, COURT TOLD

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., June 23—The defense in the state's civil proceedings against Governor Small for an accounting of money in his control during his term as state treasurer has "assumed as facts" everything it wants the courts to believe.

Such was a blanket statement contained in a reply brief filed in the state supreme court today by special state's attorney, Charles W. Hadley, in reply to a brief previously filed by the attorneys.

"The defense in its statement of facts, ignores the evidence in the case and has failed to discuss the "big five" packers' notes and the Grant Park bank deals. In fact, the defense assumes as true everything it wishes the court to believe and, completely ignores the issues of the case," Hadley's brief declared.

YOUNG COMMUNIST INTERNATIONAL CALLS ON WORLD'S YOUTH TO END CRIMES OF IMPERIALISM IN CHINA

MOSCOW.—An appeal issued by the executive of the Communist Youth International to the young workers, peasants and students of the world, protesting against imperialist atrocities in China, reads as follows:

"On May 30, British gendarmes in Shanghai instituted a bloodbath among demonstrating students. It was as representatives of the idea of the liberation of China from the yoke of imperialism, and because of their solidarity with the striking workers of Tsingtau that these victims were murdered.

China's Strike Wave.

"For the past half year China has been the scene of an enormous strike wave. The Chinese worker is the most oppressed and exploited proletarian in the whole world. He is taking up the fight for the most elementary rights. The British, French, Japanese and American imperialists are fighting among themselves for the division of the loot, but they unite as soon as the toiling masses rise for the struggle.

"Chinese workers are shot by Japanese in Tsingtau. The students of Shanghai raise their protest against the Japanese massacre. British police in turn shoot upon these students.

Such bestialities, such outrages on the Chinese people can be put an end to only by a victorious national revolution, which would, with the aid of the proletariat, the revolutionary peasantry and the progressive intelligentsia of the whole world liberate China from the imperialist yoke.

Fight Against Capitalists.

"Young workers, peasants, sailors, soldiers and students!

"Fight against the barbarities of British and Japanese imperialism!

"Demand the evacuation of China by the foreign troops!

"Demand the due punishment of those guilty of the massacre—thru the tribunal of the Chinese people!

"Demand the liberation of the arrested students and trade union leaders!

"Support the Chinese liberation movement—just as you have supported Soviet Russia!

"Demand the annulment of the robber treaties against China!

"Soldiers and sailors! Do not shoot upon the Chinese workers, peasants and students, but turn your weapons against the oppressors of your Chinese brothers!

"Hands off China! Long live the liberation of China! Fraternal greetings to the Chinese workers, peasants and students! Honor to the martyrs of imperialism! Disgrace and curse upon the British and Japanese hangmen!"

1,000 SILK WORKERS STRIKE FOR RAISE AND MEET WITH VIOLENCE

SCRANTON, Pa. June 23.—(FP)—Nearly 1000 silk workers employed at Dickson City mills are striking for a $3 weekly wage increase, bringing their rate to $15. Three factories are affected.

Striking girls went to Blakely to persuade employes of the Amalgamated Silk Co., to join the strike. Several girl strikers were injured when Burgess Jack Davis threw a mine sprag into their midst in an effort to disperse them.

Young Workers to Hold Educational Talks in New York

NEW YORK, June 23.—In order to carry out effectively the summer program outlined by the N. E. C. subcommittee on education for the Young Workers League in the New York district the following lectures on timely subjects have been arranged.

The exact aate for the lectures will be published in a few days. The lectures are the following:

1. Militarism, Pacifism and the Role of the Young Communist League.
2. Content and Method of Communist Education.
3. Fundamentals of Communist Organization.
4. Economic Struggles of the American Working Class Youth.
5. The Role and Relationship of the Party and the League to One Another.

These lectures will be given not only in English but also in Jewish, Hungarian and Russian. An extensive outline to be used by the speakers has been prepared by the committee.

Hot weather must not stop this important work of Communist education. Every member and sympathizers is expected to attend the lectures and patricipate in the discussion that will follow.

Our Readers' Views

Liked "The Outcast."

To the DAILY WORKER:—Just read Liam O'Flahertyt's story, "The Outcast," and wish to congratulate Comrade O'Flaherty for such a splendid piece of work. However, Mishawaka and South Bend are infested with other equality notorious white elephants, that I am in hopes the workers will rid themselves of. "And they will" as the capitalists themselves are teaching them to keep their eyes on the ground and not on the skies, as unemplyoment is increasing and wage cuts are the order of the day.—Earl Kirk, Mishawaka, Ind.

To the DAILY WORKER:—In your Centralia editorial, in which you say, "Surely there is some way," etc.—I think the next state election campaign in both Washington and Califronia should be centered around the slogans, "Release Class War Prisoners" and "Repeal Criminal Syndicalism Law," to the exclusion of all other slogans and the subordination of all other immediate demands.

Such a campaign would certainly cause the labor fakers, liberals, socialists and anarcho syndicalists to do some tall maneuvering or to fall into line. What do you think?—Jimmie Jaraw.

STRANGE ACTION OF PRESIDENT AWES POOR FISH

But Cal Makes Good with His Notebook

By THE POOR FISH

En Route With Economy Cal.—(Special)—I almost fainted when president Coolidge tossed out a handful of cigars to a bunch of cops who were standing on the platform as the presidential train passed thru Norwich, Conn., on the way to Swampscott. The cops were about to pull their guns thinking that somebody was impersonating the president, but on second thot they decided to use the cigars for the fourth of July celebrations instead of poison gas.

They might come in handy when on criminal hunts, in case the gunmen barricaded themselves in cellars and there was no mustard gas available. Half dozen cops smoking Cal's gift cigars would make the outlaws wish they were defending Verdun against the German army or furnishing a target for Abd-el-Krim's sharpshooters in the Riff. Of course, there is the danger that the cops might succumb sooner than the bandits, but some device could be invented that would blow the fumes in the right direction.

Cal Was Himself

The president took out his notebook, after he dropped the cigars and marked down: "Expenses Norwich, Conn., 5 cents. Charge to campaign." We all felt better after this as we knew that our president was himself and that he were not traveling with Dan Cassell the spendthrift boy millionaire or somebody who does not take his money seriously.

We arrived at Swampscott this morning. The village babbits were on the job to meet us. Frank Stearns and William M. Butler are there. What their business is will be dealt with in a special article. I expect to go swimming with the president this afternoon.

in Europe, with a few exceptions. Yet we hear no loud outcry raised by the professional pacifists of the United States against the brutal persecution of the workers. But the yellow socialists miss no opportunity to attack Soviet Russia simply because some enemies of the revolution are still in Soviet jails. They gloss over the fact that Russia is a workers' republic and condone the action of the traitors who would turn that country back again into the hands of the czarists, who have trampled on the Russian workers and peasants for centuries.

ONE of the Most ignominious spectacles that Negroes are treated to in the United States, is the side show at circuses and amusement places where the public is invited to throw tennis balls at Negroes at so much per shot. A similar side show was closed up in Paris on the ground that a French citizen of no matter what color could not be treated in such an ignominious manner. American Negroes could do worse than protest against these performances in America.

THE Christian missionaries in China, who are supposed to be so anxious to go to heaven, are showing a decided aversion to remaining in the vicinity of the theater of war. A stray bullet might send one of them to make his final report to his heavenly master, and it appears that our missionaries, like some war time patriots we know, prefer ot worship their god at a distance rather than at close range.

ABOUT one hundred and fifty employes of The Fair, a large Chicago department store will share a gift of $200,000 from the Lehmann estate family, formerly owners of the store. Only those who have served the family for over fifteen years are to participate in the gift. Several of the "lucky ones" have slaved for the company for over forty years. Divided equally among the 150 deserving ones, the $200,000 which sounds so big will give each one a little over $130. Not so much as a bonus for a life time of toil is it? Had those slaves had a union, they would have compelled their benevolent masters to cough up that much extra every year.

SOCIALISM has better luck in Europe than socialist parties, says Emil Vandervelde, one of Belgium's "King's socialists." What Vandervelde actually means is that company unionism and the trustification of industry, brings employer and employe together making for better understanding, etc. Shades of Marx!

Floods Sweep Australian Town

SYDNEY, N. S. W.—Nearly half the inhabitants of Forbes, a small Australian town 287 miles west of here, were homeless today as the result of floods which swept the place. Dispatches said that 1,500 were driven from their homes by high water.

ELLA REEVE BLOOR AIDS DENVER GO OVER TOP WITH 51 SUBS FOR DAILY WORKER; OMAHA NEXT STOP

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DENVER, Colo., June 24.—At the meeting addressed by "Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor on the left wing in the labor movement, Denver filled its quota of subscriptions in the second annual DAILY WORKER subscription campaign, going over the top with 51 subscriptions. Denver's quota was 50.

When "Mother" Bloor reached Denver, nine subscriptions for the DAILY WORKER had been secured. "Mother" Bloor spoke at the DAILY WORKER picnic, and gave talks at the labor centennial booth rented by the DAILY WORKER.

Comrade Bloor is now enroute to Omaha, Neb., and Kansas City, on a hitch-hiking trip for the DAILY WORKER from Los Angeles to New York. Comrade Bloor is due to arrive in Chicago on July 3.

Jack Wilson, formerly of Seattle, was chairman of the meeting on the labor movement addressed by Comrade Bloor. When she arrived at Denver only 18 per cent of the quota had been filled.

Now, stimulated by Mother Bloor's visit, the DAILY WORKER picnic and the labor centennial, Denver passes all the other large cities in the contest in percentage of subs secured. In the actual number of subscriptions, Denver, with 51, is ahead of St. Louis, with 23, Kansas City, with 20, Los Angeles, 43, and Toledo, 45.

GERMAN COAL AND FRENCH IRON UNITE

Agreement May Scrap Versailles Treaty

her most dangerous military and commercial rival. Until the world war crushed Germany, England was the ally of France. Now the tables are turned and since the end of the war the old rivaly between Britain and France has increased with intensity. England has posed as Germany's friend and made every effort to isolate France.

If the proposed agreement is consummated, it will mean the victory of the old Caillaux policy of a rapproachment with Germany. It is significant that Premier Painleve should have held out the olive branch to Germany a few weeks ago and that during the discussions on Morocco he repudiated the suggestion that German officers were aiding the Riffians against France.

What will happen to Britain's security pact which provided for a West European bloc composed of Britain, France, Belgium and Germany is doubtful. It is certain that Britain will fight desperately against the proposed Franco-German union and will exert pressure in both countries to prevent ratification of the pact.

The agreement shows very clearly that the powers of government in capitalist countries are in the hands of the great industrial magnates. Workers who fought in the world war for "democracy" and "civilization" whether in the German armies or in those of the allies now see the capitalist enemies uniting over the graves of the millions who laid down their lives on the gory battlefields of Europe, in a struggle between rival groups of exploiters for the spoils of industry.

The importance of the proposed "business marriage" cannot be easily over-estimated, and considerable diplomatic shuffling is on the cards. It can reasonably be expected that Britain and the United States, the two main rivals for world supremacy, will arrive at a common understanding against the merger of French iron and German coal.

Macedono-Bulgarian Workers' Picnic Comes Off Sunday, June 28

GARY, Ind., June 24.—The Macedono-Bulgarian Workers' picnic given by the newly organized Bulgarian branch of the Workers (Communist) Party, will be held on Sunday, June 28, at 47th and Madison street. This is the first picnic given by the branch and no effort has been spared to make it full of interest and entertainment. There will be plays, games, songs, dancing and plenty of refreshments and good things to eat. Speakers will address the picnic in Bulgarian and English. If you are Bulgarian, come to the picnic and if you are not, come too—you will enjoy yourself and you will help make this first affair given by our Bulgarian comrades a success.

Something Went Wrong

WASHINGTON — (FP) — Political Washington is trying to guess what went wrong in the editorial office of Ned McLean's Washington post, when its issue of Sunday, June 21, went to press with an editorial demanding justice and liberation for Haiti, sandwiched in between an editorial denouncing Mexican labor as Communistic and a cartoon representing Secretary Kellogg driving a huge truck, loaded high with "American Interests in Mexico," rapidly across the Rio Grande bridge, while a dog, "Calles," barks impotent protest.

Just why the organ of Fall and Doheny and Sinclair and of American propaganda for "firmness" with Latin America should enter a protest against the crushing of Haitian freedom is a mystery unsolved.

ANOTHER SHORT STORY BY LIAM O'FLAHERTY IN NEXT SATURDAY'S ISSUE

Next Saturday's supplement to the DAILY WORKER will contain another short story by Liam O'Flaherty, whose latest novel "The Black Soul" published by Boni & Liveright has been highly praised by some of the leading writers in Europe and the United States. "The Outcast" which appeared in last week's supplement was favorably recevied. The coming story is called "The Discarded Soldier" and is a graphic description of a worker shattered in health in the world war dying in a garret, deserted by those for whose interests he fought. The story will surely make a hit with ex-soldiers who have experienced the cold shoulder of the capitalists for whom they risked their lives.

Police License for N. Y. Taxi Drivers Aid to Yellow Scab Outfit

lucky to have made $40.

Fines of All Kinds.

All that the driver takes in is not clear money. If he is fined for speeding—and the nature of his work, catching trains and so forth, compels him to speed—he has to pay his own fines, and these may amount to one or two weeks' pay. And what amounts to a company fining system prevails with the Yellow company thru the merit system.

Each month a driver is credited with 50 merits and, if he still retains his 50, 30 days later he bocomes one of the beneficiaries in the much advertisde profit sharing system. His share runs to about $6, and of course this sum is already part of his wages.

Ten Cent "Merits."

But if he has lost any merits under the system of discipline the company enforces, he loses a proportionate share of this $6. If he is fined 50 merits it means losing his job. On the other hand for scoring the highest bookings, and thus making a lot of money for the company, he is awarded 30 merits, or slightly more than $3.

Stock in the company is sold to drivers at so much a week, this is a poor investment for the driver. A friend of the writer holds Yellow stock he bought at $85 a share, while in the employ of the company two years ago. It is now worth about $10 a share. The old game of financial juggling to freeze out small stockholders.

Minimum Needs of Workers.

Taxi work is injurious to the health, leading to nervous disorders and the complications that grow out of kidney, bladder and intestinal troubles. The union sentiment that is growing among the taxi chauffeurs is linked up with the need for a shorter working week and the better wages that will enable better care of their bodies and families.

Official union demands await further organization effort but a polling sentiment shows the individual chauffeur's demands to average about as follows: A guaranteed six-day week, with a limited number of hours daily, and a wage guarantee of four dollars a day, with 40 per cent of takings above $50 weekly, in place of the sheer piece work system prevailing at present.

are those of the suspended locals, further declares that this is not a struggle of Communists, but of the entire membership against a group of parasites assuming right to raise dues, levy assessments, call and settle strikes on their own terms, without consulting the membership.

Pledge to Prevent Official Terror.

The resolution further declares, "As chairmen of shops we will not allow the machine to terrorize workers. We pledge ourselves to use all strength and finances to assist the three locals to win the struggle and to follow decisions of the joint action committee."

Mass demonstrations were held yesterday at the shop of Wittenberg and Sheinberg, also the shop of Fredericks on 39th street, against the removal of active members from shops by joint board.

Other shops where the joint board made the same attempt, the action was successfully resisted.

Every day witnesses greater solidarity and enthusiasm of the membership in support of the suspended officials of Locals 2, 9 and 22. This is a true mass revolt with the membership determined to rid themselves of the reactionary machine.

Need of Amalgamation for Railroad Labor Is Shown on Northwestern

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, "Amalgamation Planned" appears as one of the subheads in a news story about changes made in the conduct of the Chicago & Northwestern Railroad, one of the most powerful transportation systems in the land. But it is not the officials of the trade unions who are planning amalgamation as a weapon to wrest better working conditions, increased wages and the shorter workday from this great employer of railroad labor. It is the usual story of the bosses amalgamating their forces to enhance their profits.

• • • •

The amalgamation process on the "Northwestern," which recently laid off thousands of workers in its carshops, is the same process that is being carried out on the other large railroad systems under the direction of the Wall Street financiers. Little railroads are being absorbed and control is centralized; all with a keen eye for "prosperity" and profits for the stockholders, in this case on the 8,402 miles of road operated by the "Northwestern," with a property value of half a billion.

• • • •

Petty jealousies between the reigning officials of rival trade unions constitute one of the obstacles to the amalgamation of trade unions. Some of the union officials fear the loss of their meal ticket. Therefore they continue the divisions among the workers in order to hold their own jobs.

Wall Street, in its amalgamation plans, to safeguard its profits, sweeps aside such obstacles as part of the day's work. The Vanderbilt interests and the First National Bank groups in New York, that control the "Northwestern" railroad, quickly put aside Marvin Hughitt, chairman of the board of directors, and W. H Finley, president, when it was decided that other managers could increase the flow of gold on "dividend day."

Hughitt and Finley suddenly discover they are incapacitated by "age" and "ill health," and need a rest, and F. W. Sargent, vice-president and general counsel, is given both their jobs, becoming president of both the "Northwestern," and its big subsidiary, the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha railroad, in spite of the fact that the Interstate Commerce Commission has not yet given the two roads the requested privilege to complete their financial consolidation. Sargent is looked upon as a "financier" who will cut down wages and shove up freight rates, affecting the city worker at one end and the poor farmer at the other. The "increase in wages" won during the war is listed as the first reason for the failure of the "Northwestern" to live up to the expectations of its private owners.

• • • •

If the officials of the trade unions in the railroad industry cannot take a lesson from these developments on the "Northwestern," and on other railroads, and it seems they cannot, then the workers must awaken to this developing threat to their working and living standards. The nation's transportation system, under the guidance of the most ruthless "open shop" Wall Street financiers, is going thru a process of amalgamation, with the aid of the Interstate Commerce Commission, that will solidify railroad capital into a stonewall united front against railroad labor, which is now divided into many craft unions, with large masses not even organized.

"Amalgamation of craft unions!" is one of the slogans of the Workers (Communist) Party that must be accepted by the workers, in the railroad as in all industries, if they would not see their forces annihilated in the struggle with capital.

CAL STRIPS U. S. SHIPPING BOARD OF ALL POWER

Palmer to Dictate on Merchant Marine

WASHINGTON, June 24.—The U. S. Emergency Fleet corporation today was vested with complete administrative control of the government's merchant ships. The United States shipping board will continue to operate, but largely as a regulatory body in giving formal approval to the actions and policies of the fleet corporation.

The change thus effected is in accordance with the demands of President Coolidge for the re-organization of the Merchant Marine under the direction of Admiral Leigh Palmer, president of the fleet corporation.

Under the new operating plan, all ship sales will be handled solely by the fleet corporation and after bids are received and action taken upon them, the shipping board will have the power only to approve or reject the contracts.

Coolidge will be unable, under the present Merchant Marine act, to divest the shipping board of any of the powers conferred by congress, but will, so far as it is possible, leave the management and operation of the Merchant Fleet to the Fleet corporation.

COMMONS HEARS CHAMBERLAIN ON SECURITY PACT

Foreign Minister Faces Strong Opposition

LONDON, June 24.—Austen Chamberlain, foreign minister, defended the proposed Anglo-French security pact in the house of commons tonight.

Confronted with the open hostility of the liberals, the laborites and part of the conservatives, the foreign minister defended the pact as a great forward step in preserving the peace of Europe. Chamberlain seemed to be on the defensive.

"I can assure the house," he said "there has been nothing in private conversations regarding the pact which impairs the fullness of the information given in the commons.

"The suggestion has been made that I have been pursuing a [illegible] policy and that I have fallen a victim to the seductive wiles of M. Briand. Such ideas are purest moonshine.

"Our policy toward the pact," Chamberlain continued, "is the policy of a united cabinet. We have only one object. That is to make peace secure and war impossible—at least make war as remote as possible. The British government cannot consider any unilateral pact nor any alliance against a third party."

Great Britain is not obligated to assist the Franco-Polish military alliance in the event of war between Poland and Germany over their eastern boundary, foreign minister Austen Chamberlain said.

While admitting that a Polish-German war would embroil France, if Germany was the aggressor, Chamberlain assured parliament that Britain's obligations would be limited to her obligations as a member of the league of nations.

Doriot, Communist, Demands an End of North Africa War

another "Moscow plot," charging that the Communist International was aiding Krim, and that "Krim is surrounded by a group of German and Russian adventurers."

Painleve told the chamber that his government would keep the French troops on African soil, in an attempt to conquer the Riff country.

Socialists For War.

In spite of the fact that the socialists have withdrawn their formal promise to support the Painleve government, only one socialist joined the 29 Communists in voting against Painleve's imperialistic war policy. Painleve was given a vote of confidence, 510 to 30.

Painleve's Drivel.

Painleve silenced the socialists by telling them that the war against Morocco "is no longer a colonial war, but a war by European civilization against the Moscow utopia and the dark ideas of the Orient."

Painleve's speech showed that the government supported by the same elements which less than a year ago approved Herriot's recognition of the Soviet Union, and the signing of a treaty promising mutual friendly relations, has taken a definitely hostile attitude toward the Soviet government.

Goaded on by zeal of the French imperialists to conquer the rich natural resources of Morocco and yoke the Riffians to the wheel of French capitalism, Painleve made a hysterical anti-Communist speech.

Painleve Represents Bankers.

"It was not Abd-el-Krim who began the offensive against us," said the premier. "Abd-el-Krim merely acted as the tool of the plotters who rule Moscow and the Communist International."

Painleve added that, "such are the fruits France has reaped from the recognition of the Soviet government."

The Communist deputies replied, showing that the Painleve government is guarding the interests, not of the workers, but of the French bankers. The French workers have nothing but poverty and death to expect from a continuation of the invasion of the Riffians' country.

Tangier Near Revolt.

TANGIER, June 24—A general uprising of the natives of this city threatens, and the Spanish Directory has asked that five hundred Spanish troops be permitted to land. Great Britain has refused to allow the landing of more troops, however. Tangier is ruled by the Spanish, French and English governments under an international agreement.

The peasants have protested against raids on their homes by Spanish soldiers stationed along the international borders. They also protest against the heavy taxes levied by the international government.

MANY "LOONEY GAS" VICTIMS ARE INSANE, DIE IN STRAITJACKETS— DU PONTS SUPPRESSED ALL NEWS

NEW YORK CITY, June 24.—Following the disclosure that at least eight persons were killed of tetraethyl lead poisoning in the du Pont plant at Deep Water, new details are disclosed which reveal that the du Pont company surpressed news of the deaths and spirited insane workers to hospitals maintained by the du Ponts.

The du Pont company owns the newspapers of Wilmington, Del., and news of injuries from the deadly poison were kept out of the papers. There were 300 injured at the du Pont plant at Deep Water, most of whom were made insane by the "looney gas". Eighty per cent of all workers at the tetraethyl manufacturing plant became horribly ill.

That others died of the poison, the cause of whose deaths were not recorded, is indicated by the facts regarding the case of John Domesse, a plumber, who died on September 11, at Delaware hospital, Wilmington, after working at the plant. Altho Domesse's death was recorded as "typhoid," Dr. Lowrence J. Rigney, who treated him admitted that the patient had tetraethyl lead poisoning, "which did not help him much," he added.

Records "Disappear"

The death certicate of Domesse was signed by Dr. John Russo, of the hospital staff. It was claimed at the Delaware hospital that "no records of the symptoms of Domesse's case can be found."

Harry A. Zanes, who contracted the poisoning on Sept. 9, 1923, was sent to the emergency hospital owned by the du Ponts on their powder works, six miles from Wilmington. He suffered horrible nightmares, could not eat or sleep, and on Sept. 19 became violently insane.

After three months, Zanes was sent back to work in the plant and on September of last year was again poisoned, for the third time, "The last time he didn't know he was working with lead," Mrs. Zanes declared.

Dies in Straitjacket

The death of Frank W. Durr, who expired in a straitjacket on Sept. 23, 1923, violently insane, illustrates to what lengths the du Pont company went to escape publicity of the deaths. There was no story about Durr's death in the Penn's Grove paper, his home, at which he died, altho the Penn's Grove Record displayed a half column account on the first page two days afterward of the death by electricity of Otto J. Barkdull.

Barkdull had worked for the company for twenty five years, since he was twelve years old.

Kept from Papers

Thomas C. Summerill, editor of the paper, said, "They surpress things at the plant. Whatever we print we pick up from the workmen."

All the men who died were classified in the death certificates as "dye-workers," altho that was not their work.

The du Pont company made arrangements with the Salem Memorial Hospital, to which the du Ponts give annual contributions, to care for the poisoned workers from the Deep Water plant. These cases have been the hospital's chief source of revenue. An executive of the "dye works" is on the hospital's board of directors. All the men who died were under treatment at this hospital. The du Ponts supplied male "nurses" to restrain the violently insane workers.

"Cancer of Stomach"

At the hospital it was reported that Frank Hanley, 23 years old, who died there on August 12, 1924, had died of "cancer of the stomach," but it later leaked out that he had been killed of the tetraethyl lead poisoning.

When asked if any inquest would be held over the death of Robert Huntsinger, who was violently insane previous to his death, Dr. Lyon, who attended him, said, "No, it was not an accident but an occupational disease, and there is no occasion to call in the coroner."

Spirit Victim Away.

When Harry Baker, who was taken to the Salem hospital after the poison made him insane, jumped from his window and tried to escape, the incident became public. Baker was immediately spirited away to a private sanitarium at Gladwyn, Pa., where he is still under treatment.

DEATH LIST OF THOSE KILLED IN DU PONT'S POISON LEAD FACTORY

The following is a list of those who are known to have died in the Deep Water plant of the du Pont company where tetraethyl lead was manufactured for high power gasoline. The du Ponts own one-third, 7,000,000 shares, of the General Motors company, a Morgan concern, which together with the standard Oil company had founded the Ethyl Gasoline corporation to sell the poison gas.

Others are thot to have been killed by the gas, as the du Ponts went to great lengths to suppress the news of the deaths. Eighty per cent of all those working at the du Pont plant went insane from the tetraethyl lead poisoning.

The death list follows:

Sept 21, 1923—Frank W. Durr, 37 years old, died at Penns Grove, N. J. in straitjacket; attended by Dr. Raymond B. Jarratt.

July 30, 1924—Joseph Cianci, 24 years old, died at Salem (N. J.) Memorial Hospital; attended by Dr. Harry W. Lee.

Aug. 12, 1924—Frank Hanley, 23 years old, received at Salem Hospital with gastric ulcer and underwent operation, but went insane subsequently from tetraetyl lead poisoning; attended by Dr. F. H. Church.

Oct. 20, 1924—Sim Jones, 47 years old, negro janitor at plant; died in Salem Hospital; attended by Dr. Lee.

Feb. 13, 1925—Frederick W. De-Fiebre, 21 years old, died at Salem Hospital; attended by Dr. Lee.

Feb. 16, 1925—Robert F. Huntginger, 35 years old, died at Cumberland County Hospital for the Insane at Bridgeton, N. J.; attended by Dr. E. C. Lyon.

Feb. 28, 1925—Loring M. Boody, 52 years old, carpenter; died at Carney's Point, N. J.; attended by Dr. Lee.

Mar. 27, 1925—James Connell, 40 years old, millwright, died at home in Wilmington, Del.; attended by Dr. James A. Draper.

WORKERS' AID TO GIVE PLAY BY JOHN LASSEN, WANT 250 VOLUNTEERS

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 24.—The International Workers' Aid and the Labor Defense Council have arranged an outing together with a performance of a pageant, which will take place on August 23, at Pleasant Bay Park. The pageant "Victory" was written by Comrade John Lassen, the well-known Hungarian writer, and depicts the victorious struggle of the workers.

This pageant will require the cooperation of about 250 comrades for the mass scenes and 15 comrades for the main parts. Rehearsals will begin at once—and the comrades must respond. The first rehearsal will take place at 35 E. 2nd Ave., entrance on 2nd St., on Friday, June 26, at 8 p. m. This pageant will be a grand affair and will be a new step in the production of proletarian plays in this country. Do not forget the date and the place.

SOVIET PROGRAM IN OIL INDUSTRY IS CARRIED OUT

Plans Made to Increase Big Production

MOSCOW, —(By Mail).—The total amout of the exploitation and the realization of oil and oil products on the home, as well as on the foreign, markets for the first six months of the current working year, October-March is as follows:

3,301,333 tons of oil were produced which is 48 per cent of the annual plan.

The naphta-fuel amounted to 1,731,667 tons—44 per cent of the annual plan. On the home market, there were sold 114,500 tons of oil, on the foreign market—103,167 tons, forming 17 per cent of the annual exportation. 457,167 tons of oil products have been realized on the home market and 375,835 on the foreign market, or 47 per cent of the year's plan of oil products exportation. In the second half year, it is expected to produce 3,840,333 tons of oil. The exploitation of oil-fuel will probably amount to 1,977,167 tons; 421,834 tons of the latter quantity are for sale on the foreign market, forming 71 per cent of the oil-export plan.

In the second half year, 316,166 tons of oil products will be realized on the home market, and 624,266 tons on the foreign market, making 77 per cent of the total exportation plan.

In the beginning of the year 1925-26, the stock of oil fuel will probably be about 1,921,000 tons, or somewhat lower than the tentative program, whilst the sale of naphta fuel will, to all appearances, exceed the quantity obtained by 250,000 tons. For the same reason, the stock of oil products will be somewhat lower than provided for in the program.

In the year 1925-26, it is proposed to obtain 7,355,000 tons of oil. This quantity may be even increased by 832,350 tons, if the number of pit holes is larger. The Naphta Syndicate is taking urgent measures, at present, for developing the boring.

Soviet Films in Orient.

MOSCOW.— The Russo-Oriental chamber of commerce proposes to organize an industrial exhibition in Harbin, in which the Soviet film industry will be represented, about 55 Soviet released films are to be sent. The main object of this exhibition of Soviet films is to take up relations with the Japanese and Chinese film hiring firms, which up to this day have been supplied with films by American production only.

WORKER URGES UNITED FRONT IN SHOP STRUGGLES

Relates Daily Grind in Morey Company Plant

(This article is the first of a series that I will send weekly to the DAILY WORKER. These articles will deal exclusively with the workers employed in Morey Company and conditions under which they earn their daily bread.)

ASTORIA, L. I., June 24.—Morey company employs from 40 to 50 men, most of whom are ex-socialists, ex-I. W. W., ex-social revolutionaries, ex-monarchists and all ex-members and ex-leaders of some political activity. But at present outside of the daily routine of eat, work and sleep, they do little. The result: Conditions in this shop are worse than I have seen them anywhere.

How They Work.

Hours of labor daily are 8 and 45 minutes. Starting at 7:45, we work continuously until 12. Then comes lunch. They eat their dry lunch in 30 minutes. The shop tools, machinery and surroundings are so dirty and the washing facilities are so poor that much of this 30 minutes is wasted in washing up. For instance there is one sink with six faucets for all the men. The water comes in so slowly that it is a disgrace for the firm to be so cheap. That half-hour lunch time does not leave a breath of space in which workers could get together to discuss shop matters or any other matters.

Boss Keeps Constant Watch.

Then from 12:30 to 5 the grind is continued with Mr. Himoff, the boss, keeping close watch of all of them. What he misses—a few of his loyal "slaves" some of them working for as little as 63 cents an hour, report to him. (In this first article I will not give their names, hoping they will become real men. But if they do not change, I will not hesitate to expose them in my next article.)

The grind is kept until 5 p. m., which is unjust because no time is allowed for washing up and so much must be wasted due to the washing facilities I have already described.

In case of injuries received on the job there is iodine and dirty bandages, which is kept in a tool crib where dirt and grease are plentiful and workers, who at times injure themselves, risk getting blood poison.

The system employed in this shop makes every order a "rush order" and as soon as orders are completed there is alull in work and the men are layed off. Sometimes they are not sent for when the next order comes in—that is the way our boss gets rid of the "undesirable" workers.

Rush One Day; Nothing Next.

Relations among the workers are to a great extent unfriendly on account of political differences. However, they should realize that without unity our boss will keep on getting richer and we will keep on being driven—in ignorance.

Let us for the present put aside political differences, and begin working together to improve our shop conditions. It will give us a chance to understand our struggle and also solidify us for the future when the working class will rule and there will be no privileged few.

Greetings to all workers in the Morey Company plant. Let us stand for unity of all workers in our plant.

Your Shop Correspondent.

Mr. Geo. Wishnak,
"Freiheit"
47 Chrystie St.
New York City.

My dear Wishnak:

I am sending you a corrected copy of the statement you intend to print. Look it over again and please try to be as careful as possible not to make the impression that you favor me. At the same time, it is ~~accordingly~~ to my opinion, essential that the cloakmakers should begin to talk about the differences of opinion which exists about the entire situation.

Sooner or later I will have to come out in the open, although in many cases I did, but that was not far enough for at least the intelligent members to realize what is really to be done to put the Industry on a higher plane and assure the cloak-makers with a better living.

We expect to have a meeting of the General Executive Board in January. Something may develop at that meeting. If not, I intend to write a few articles for the press anyhow. The trouble begins in having these articles printed. To go to the Freiheit under the present circumstances, that that would not help the cause; on the contrary, that would give them a good chance for a good come-back at me where the issues involved will be substituted by "rechte and linke" and will give them a chance to be triumphant..

The trade is in a terrible plight and every person who would really want to see conditions of the workers improved, realizes that we are driffting with no policy, with no destination, but driffting with the winds and it seems that I am the only one to make that necessary move to make our members see things that they may not see at present, but they surely feel it because it is in their bones, because after all, they are the ones who are suffering.

The most important question for me now is to decide how the move should be made whereby it should bring the desired results.

In the meantime print the statement and let us see further developments.

Drop a few lines.

Fraternally yours

M. Perlstein

P. S. Enclosed you will also find a statement given by Schlesinger to the Cleveland Plain Dealer.

PERLSTEIN LETTER EXPOSES HIM AS INTRIGUER FOR SELFISH END IN 1922 WHEN HE SOUGHT SPLIT

fended the left program in the unions.

They Know Him.

The "Freiheit" at that time was already wise to Perlstein, however, and did not print the article, it knowing that the article was "favoring" the left wing only just to the degree Perlstein thought necessary to curry favor with the cloakmakers.

Also, in the article Perlstein tried to attack Schlessinger for the latter's opposition to standards of production, which Perlstein had advocated and installed in Cleveland. Perlstein defended the standards of production, and for such things the "Freiheit" had no space.

Perlstein Wanted a Split.

But there was still another reason why the "Freiheit" the fighting paper of the Jewish workers in America, did not publish Perlstein's article. It knew Perlstein. It knew that to attain his end, to become president of the cloakmakers, he was then planning to split the western office from the I. L. G. W. and make of it a separate union. The "Freiheit" knew Perlstein and did not print his article in 1922.

By reading Perlstein's letter, printed with this article in today's DAILY WORKER, the Perlstein of 1922 can be compared with the Perlstein of 1925. "What did he mean by the letter? Let him explain to the membership." So demands the left wing.

In the letter he covers up his plan for splitting the I. L. G. W. with sanctified words about accomplishing something for the cloakmakers. But what do those words mean in the letter, "Not to make the impression that you favor me"?

He Came Out in the Open.

What did Perlstein mean when said, "Sooner or later, I will have come out in the open"? What we the "further developments" which was then seeking?

The left wing and the "Freihe knew even then what Perlstein mea by the intrigue, the sign of those w seek personal advance at the sake the movement. So the left wing avoi ed him as if he were a pestilence

The Perlstein Flop.

As soon as he found this out, soon as he saw the left wing woul not allow itself to be used by him, switched around and began to trigue from the other side. He ga up the split plan and sought to gratiate himself with the machine, joined with them and began attac ing the left wing. In that way hopes to become chief of the Inte national Ladies' Garment Worke Then he can double cross the oth fakers who are today fighting wi him against the revolt of the betra ed rank and file membership.

The Case of Dominick Venturato

By Max Salzman

LOST in the whirlpool of events, has been the case of Dominick Venturato. The frame-ups workers who have been active in the interests of their class have not all been brought to light. Mooney and Billings, Sacco and Vanzetti, and the cases of countless others are well known to the workers of this country.

The case of Dominick Venturato was just a bit different. Venturato is one of the many valiant fighters for the working class, who is a prisoner in the hands of the enemy. He was arrested and charged with murder in greatest strikes that this country has ever known.

Venturato, was a militant member of the United Mine Workers of America. His record of activity was one that any worker could be proud of. At the time of his arrest he was for 3 years the President of Local 3953, of the United Mine Workers of America at Oco, Ohio.

ONE of his duties as president was to settle the grievances of the men in his local. His determined stand for the rights of the men won him the hatred of the mine owners. A man with a record like that of Dominick Venturato was a danger to the coal operators, so Venturato had to be done away with.

Venturato, to-day is serving a life sentence on the Ohio State Penitentiary—a price which he is paying for his loyalty to the workers.

John I. Major, part owner of a scab mine at Lafferty, Ohio was killed on the morning of June 27, 1922. Shortly after this, Venturato, Agosti, and 11 others among whom were Robert Farmer at that time Vice President of Sub-District 5 of District of the United Mine Workers of America were arrested and charged with murder.

OHIO is the birth place of the United Mine Workers. It is natural that when the men were out on strike that they would urge the men in the scab mines not to work until the strike was settled. The miners use every peaceful means to have these men strike with them. The answer of the companies was to import an army of gunmen who did everything in their power to terrorize the union miners. Men who wanted to go to their homes had to get passes from the company. While walking to their homes these gangsters and gunmen thrust their revolvers in the faces of the strikers, attempting to intimidate them. The miners grew indignant and reported their grievances to their officials who called a meeting of the men of all the miners locals to be held at the miners Hall at New Lafferty, Ohio. At this meeting the men were going to discuss the situation.

DOMINICK VENTURATO was at the meeting early. He heard that Robert Farmer was coming to the meeting and he got into a car driven by a miner and met Farmer more than two miles from the hall. He saw Farmer talking to a number of men in autos. Farmer was asking them not to work in the scab mines under armed gunmen. Seeing that Farmer was busy, Venturato turned around and went back to the meeting.

It was necessary for any one going to the scab mine to pass the Miners Hall. A large crowd had gathered there, awaiting the opening of the meeting. As the machines carrying John I. Major and his party came up, the men who were striking asked them not to scab on them. They told them not to take their bread and butter away, that their children were starving and that if they would not go to work the strike would be over in a very short time.

As they were talking someone fired a shot and John I. Major passed out of existence. Besides, a number of others who were going to work in the scab mine wounded.

NATURALLY as the shots were fired every one scattered, among them Dominick Venturato. He left in an automobile, which he would not have been able to reach so soon if he had been in the place from which the shot was fired.

When Venturato's case came to trial chief witness against him was a 17 year old boy named Stanley Kubiack, who it is reported now enlisted in the marines shortly after the trials were over.

Kubiack was a miner for 18 months. At that time he had been released from the Boys' Industrial School at Lancaster, Ohio, where he had been sent for stealing money. He is supposed to have been released on parole. Kubiack was arrested on July 8, 1922, 11 days after the shooting took place. He was questioned in the office of the Prosecuting Attorney. Here he stated he had no knowledge of the affair. After he insisted on this, he was taken on the third floor of the jail and kept there alone for two days until he "decided" to tell the "truth." An indication of the extent to which he was scared into testifying against Venturato can be seen from the following testimony of Kubiack given at the trial.

"THERE is another thing I want to say that I was locked up over there by myself and I was so scared and everything, and begin to cry so I thought I might as well tell the story and might go quicker out home and that's why I told the story too."

While Kubiack was in jail he was visited by his step-father, Mike Kubiack and a friend of his family, Mike Ogesick. Ogesick, on the witness stand testified that Young Kubiack told him the following:—

"That if he did not say that Venturato did the shooting he would be sent to penintentiary."

Anyone could readilly see that this boy had been threatened and that he was forced to make these statements against Venturato.

KUBIACK in his testimony said that Venturato showed him a gun and said it would do the work. He then said he began running away, but peculiary enough he began runnig toward the miners meeting. He then testified that he saw Venturato shoot first in the air and then into one of the machines. It is peculiar also that out of the entire crowd all those Kubiack could recognize was Venturato and Dominick Arsena, in spite of the fact that he lived there long enough to know every miner present.

The testimony of this terrorized child was refuted by three women witnesses, who lived on farms near the scene of the shooting. They all agreed that the man who did the shooting had on a dark cap and coat. Dominick Venturato at the time had on a light shirt and a panama hat.

BESIDES, Daniel McNoble testified that he met Venturato the morning of the shooting and walked with him toward the meeting and were taken to New Lafferty by an auto driven by Joe Walchi, and that they never saw young Kubiack that day.

At another time Kubiack testified that Venturato was a few feet behind the first auto, while three other witnesses testified that Venturato was about 250 feet from any of the machines.

AND it was on this kind of testimony that Dominick Venturato, militant proletarian fighter, was railroaded to prison for the rest of his life. So for his loyalty and devotion to the working class, for his support of militant policies in his union, for his leadership of his fellow workers in strikes, Dominick Venturato, must pay the price that so many militant workers have paid before.

Besides Dominick Venturato two other workers were tried, Dan Agosti and Robert Farmer. Agosti, who like Venturato is an Italian was at first tried before a jury which disagreed. The second time he was tried he was found guilty and likewise sentenced for life. Farmer was later tried and acquited. After this the cases against all the others were dropped. It might be mentioned that Farmer is an American and that the prosecution was not able to raise the cry of foreigner against him as they did against Venturato and Agosti.

AT the present time, Venturato alo remains in prison, Agosti havi been pardoned, when it was claim he was sick. One of the conditi of the pardon is that he return Italy. But Dominick Venturato is st in jail.

It should be remembered that t men who were first arrested w charged with joint conspiracy. N one of them were individually charg with the shooting. And yet Dominick Venturato alone remains in prison.

It might also be interesting to that Mrs. Major, the widow of the ceased individual has recently su the United Mine Workers for $250,0 and the judge ruled the case out court, thereby showing that the char of conspiracy was completely founded.

WHY Dominick Venturato alone r mains in jail is no mystery to t militant workers of this country. T case of Dominick Venturato is not case of the United Mine Work alone. It is a case of the entire wo ing class, and the whole Americ working class must take up his stru gle.

Comrades and fellow worker Dominick Venturato is rotting his li away in the state penitentiary at C lumbus, Ohio. We must free hi A storm of protest must be raised th will force the capitalists into free this militant fighter.

NUMEROUS LABOR BODIES INDORSE JUNE 28 MEET

Defense Conference to Aid Class Fighters

Letters from dozens of local, state and national labor and fraternal bodies endorsing the national conference for labor defense, continue to pour into the office of the Labor Defense Council, the initiator of the conference. Many local unions and fraternal organizations especially in the vicinity of Chicago have given assurance that they will have delegates at the conference which is to be held in Ashland Auditorium, June 28th.

The recent decision of the U. S. supreme court, upholding the validity of "criminal syndicalist" laws on the books of thirty-five states and the wholesale jailing of striking miners in West Virginia have called forth letters and telegrams of commendation for the timeliness and necessity for the conference for wide-spread activity in workers' defense.

One of the features of the conference is that it proposes to set on foot a movement that will be prepared to defend all workers, regardless of political opinion or industrial affiliation, who are attacked legally or otherwise for activity in the labor movement of for expression of opinion.

Picnic of Workers Party in New York Pronounced Success

NEW YORK, June 24.—Three thousand comrades and sympathizers gathered at Pleasant Bay Park at the Workers Party picnic, where every man, woman and child enjoyed himself to the limit. There was pastime for everybody; games, sporting events—races, etc., and a wild ball game between a team of the Workers Party and the Y. W. L. The ball game resulted disastrously for the Y. W. L., who were defeated by a score of 25 to 14.

The Juniors were there in full force and paraded about the grounds singing their revolutionary songs—until a storm broke and everybody had to seek shelter. This, however, did not dissipate the good humor of the picnickers. They stuck, and when the sun came out again, the fun went on.

From 10 a. m. till late in the night, the crowd stayed and danced. They sung songs in all languages—and everybody pronounced this picnic one of the most enjoyable that has been held in this city.

Egypt Is Anxious to Develop Relations with Soviet Union

MOSCOW, (By Mail.)—Egypt is very much interested in the development of trade relations with the Union of Soviet Republics, a representative of a big Egyptian commercial firm told Odessa newspapermen in a recent interview, he also stated that it proposed to create a mixed Soviet-Egyptian trading company.

The Egyptian firm wishes to purchase railway sleepers, Portland cement, coal and kerosene in the U. S. S. R. As for the union, the People's Commissariat of Foreign Trade is actually engaged in negotiating the purchase of big consignments of cotton and jade directly in Egypt, without Liverpool's medium.

Dawes Meets Young at Boston

KENNEBUNKPORT, Maine, June 24.—Vice-President Dawes invaded the Bailiwick of U. S. Senator George H. Moses, one of the most pronounced opponents of any chance in the senate rules. The vice-president on Friday in Boston will meet Owen D. Young, his American collaborator in drafting the Dawes plan for German reparations payments.

CONFERENCE OF N. Y. WORKERS' SCHOOL ON THIS FRIDAY NIGHT

NEW YORK, June 24.—A conference of all workers' school students will be held Friday evening, June 26, at school headquarters, 108 East Fourteenth St. The purpose is to review school work, discuss educational achievements and problems of future activities. Members of the district educational committee and instructors will be present.

OUR PUBLICATIONS - On the Periodical "Die Internationale" (Communist Party of Germany)

(CRITICAL BIBLIOGRAPHY)

Extract from a Letter Sent by the Agitprop Department of the Executive Committee Communist International to the Central of the German Communist Party.

• • •

IN the first place a few words on the good points of the Internationale. These are as follows:

1. The urgent question of the experts' report and the Dawes plan is dealt with in detail.

2. The German C. P. is kept thoroly informed both as to the preparations for and the results of the fifth world congress.

3. Good supplements (such as Der Parteiarbeiter) and excellent complementary pamphlets on up to date questions are issued with the paper.

The Faults of the Internationale.

1. The Internationale follows no consistent revolutionary Marxist (Leninist) line. A few examples may be adduced in proof of this:

a) Whilst number 19-20 contains a good article by Comrade Maslow on Trotzky's Lenin book, the next number publishes another discussion of the same book (why a double review?) by A. Emel.

With respect to this latter review we should like to make the following observations:

Comrade A. Emel's discussion of the book contains a number of errors and shows that the reviewer is very inadequately informed on the subject of which he treats. Comrade Emel counts Trotzky to the "old guard." Trotzky never belonged to the "old guard" of the Russian C. P., and the reviewer of a Trotzky book published in 1924 should be aware that one of the main points of contention during the last great discussion in the winter, 1923-24, was precisely the estimate made of the old Leninist guard attacked so severely by Comrade Trotzky. Further: Comrade Emel sees in Trotzky's pamphlet "a treasure for the biography and history of Lenin," whilst in the previous number Comrade Maslow had rightly maintained precisely the contrary. (Which of these opinions is shared by the editors?)

Comrade Emel censure's Trotzky's zky's criticism of the C. C. of the Bolsheviki during the Kerensky period, as also with Trotzky's arguments in his comparison or October, 1917, with October, 1923. He would have done better to first inform himself as to the soundness of these arguments, before carrying—doubtless unconsciously—grist to Trotzky's mill.

Comrade Emel censurs Trotzky's "many omissions," but does not state the nature of these omissions, nor does he expose the "one-sided" and "misleading" statements which he admits Trotzky to have made. Comrade Emel should know that the resolution adopted by the XIII party conference of the Russian C. P. against petty bourgeois tendencies in the party (this resolution was published in the German language, and is known to the German C. P.) requires these tendencies to be energetically combatted. The central of the German C. P. is fully conscious of the international importance of combatting Trotzkyism, and is an energetic supporter of the Russian C. P. in this combat. The exposure of the "one-sided" and "misleading" statements in Trotzky's pamphlet is an urgent necessity, and at the present juncture (number 19-20 was published at the end of the summer of 1924, after the XIII party conference) Comrade Emel should not have "reported on the positive purport of the booklet only," but should rather have laid all emphasis on the negative import.

b) A further example:

In a review on Comrade Maslow's pamphlet: "The new era of pacifism," Comrade Fogarasi treats us to the following nonsense, for which Comrade Maslov's pamphlet offers him no justification whatever:

"The labor government in England is the parliamentary ideological form of transition from the rule of industrial capital to that of financial capital. This is a phenomenon taking place on an international scale. It is likely to be of decisive significance for the immediate future."

COMRADE FOGARASI seems to believe that the "transition from the rule of industrial capital to that of financial capital" has only taken place quite recently in England. It is true that in England financial capital entered on its rule later than for instance in the United States or in Germany. But the transition had already taken place before the war, so that it is absurd in the year 1924, to assume abruptly that the labor government is the "parliamentary ideological form" of this transition.

Further: The rule of financial capital means the rule of imperialism. But the English labor government, tho representing a government of bourgeois influenced trade union bureaucracy and labor aristocracy, and tho pursuing an imperialist policy, is not an example of an expressly imperialist policy of financial capital. The fact that imperialism, that is, financial capital, employs the services of the corrupt leaders of the labor party, does not by any means signify that these willing servants are better able to reproduce the ideology of their masters than these masters themselves. Lenin has expressly emphasised that imperialism can assume the most varied forms of rule. That British imperialism is willing to put up with the hypocritical pacifism of the labor men at times, under certain circumstances, is no proof that it considers precisely these labor men to be its most suitable and best representatives.

If Comrade Fogarasi's new theory were right, it would signify nothing more nor less than the actual capitulation of financial capital to trade union bureaucracy and labor aristocracy. The history of class warfare shows that an ideological capitulation must be preceded by an economic capitulation. If we follow Comrade Fogarasi, we must thus arrive at the conclusion that in England the rule of financial capital has actually ceased to exist. Besides this, Comrade Fogarasi's "theory" implies of necessity the continuation of the "democratic pacifist era" (thus a super-Trotzkyism!) until the social revolution, since the labor government is an important constituent of this "era," representing in Fogarasi's opinion the parliamentary ideological form of the rule of financial capitalism, and up to now no one has prophesied a further stage beyond that of financial capital.

THE application of the English form of labor government to the whole world is again Marxist, for Marxism has to discover and make allowance for the various specific forms in which the "democratic pacifist era" makes itself felt in the different countries.

And finally, the sentence stating that this "parliamentary ideological form" is a phenomenon "likely to be of decisive significance for the immediate future" is in direct opposition to the views held by the Comintern, which characterized the "democratic pacifist era," at the fifth world congress, as a mere phase, and not by any means as an epoch or era likely to be of long duration.

WHILST the Comintern conceives the proletarian revolution in Europe, as everywhere else, as the culmination of the acutest aggravation of the those class antagonisms arising out of increased imperialist reaction (fresh wars and the like), Comrade Fogarasi assumes that the labor government is going to provide the conditions for the dictatorship of the proletariat and the social revolution. He thus believes that a pacifist phase endeavoring to smooth away class antagonism (even if the pacifism involved is a mere pseudo pacifism, inconsistent and incomplete) creates the best preliminary conditions for the proletarian revolution. This is a purely menshevist view, imagining that the transition to seizure of power by the proletariat can be carried out by passing from stage to stage, without a revolutionary rupture of ruling class conditions.

Comrade Maslov's pamphlet deserved a better review. Comrade Fogarasi would have done better to report on Comrade Maslov's argumentation, and on the valuable data supplied by the pamphlet, than to present us with his own false theory.

c) Further examples of lack of the consistent pursuance of the line of revolutionary Marxism are furnished by the whole of the reviews written by Comrade Lukacs. These are perfect models of dead and abstract criticism, based on purely literal Marxism. Lukacs' criticism of the articles written in celebration of Kautsky's 70th birthday, in number 21-22, contains a purely formalistic criticism of Kautsky, instead of a clear exposition of the ideological collapse of the "Marxism" of Kautsky's followers, that is, of the ideology of the second international. Lukacs employs the same methods of criticism as Fogarasi, leaving the reader in the dark as to the actual purport of the book reviewed. A proper criticism of the quoted, and subjected to a thoroly and birthday celebration writings required that striking passages should be concrete analysis.

THE "Internationale" publishes nothing referring to important new publications in the spheres of bourgeois political economy, philosophy, sociology, history, natural science, and religion. Nothing, or at least nothing of value, in the way of enlightening criticism of that prostitution of Marxism which flourishes today more arrogantly than ever before. Bourgeois philosophy, natural science, and religion are today more prone than ever to mysticism. The belles letters and art of the bourgeois, its most powerful weapons for the corruption of the mental powers of the working masses, are scarcely accorded any notice whatever in the "Internationale."

Last but not least, it must be counted to be one of the greatest faults of the "Internationale" that it preserves silence on the subject of the many so-called "Communist" pseudo Marxist publications sailing under the flag of proletarian revolution. Such scandalous productions as Wittvogel's writings should be subjected to annihilating criticism in the "Internationale," if this really wants to be considered as a periodical working for the Bolshevization of the German C. P. This is literature of the worst possible character! A periodical cannot agitate for Stalin's book on "Lenin and Leninism" on the one hand, and on the other hand for such un-Marxist publications as Korsch's "Quintessence of Marxism"; Lukacs' works, or Wittvogel's elaborations. And it does not suffice to preserve silence on the subject. One path or the other must be taken. The Herculean tasks confronting the revolutionary proletarian vanguard demands the best, the very best only with regard to theory!

2. The "Internationale" is further lacking in a systematic campaign of protest against German social democracy. It devotes too little attention to the international problem of imperialism as expressed in its concrete successive stages, not only on the continent of Europe, but all over the world.

3. The space devoted to reviews does not mirror the publications playing the most conspicuous roles in the political and intellectual life of Germany. Reviews of periodical literature are entirely neglected.

4. There is an entire lack of system in the selection of the subjects, length of articles, and choice of literature to be reviewed. Whilst one and the same question is dealt with in three or four articles (without any essentially new point of view being discussed), other equally urgent matters are not dealt with at all. Thus the "Internationale" has for instance not published one single article on the fundamentals of the Bolshevization of the German C. P. in theory and practice since the fifth world congress, altho Comrade Ruth Fischer's detailed reports suggested ample material.

5. The print is too small, quite unbearably so in the literature column, especially for workers.

Suggestions for the Reform of the "Internationale."

1. The periodical should be converted into a weekly of the same size as the numbers now being published. The print should be improved.

2. The central should better control the paper.

3. When Russian questions are dealt with the editor of the "Internationale" should in every case secure the collaboration of leading Russian Bolsheviki.

4. The central of the German C. P. should urge that the "Internationale" should be written in a more vivid, energetic, and careful style, and the dogmatic, abstract, and formalist treatment of subjects be avoided. The periodical should be made accessible to the advanced worker.

5. The "Internationale" must arrange for a disposition of material permitting the application of revolutionary Marxism to every sphere of human interest, to political economy, philosophy, sociology, history, natural science, religion, literature and art. The theory and practice of German social democracy must be combatted much more energetically, thoroly, and comprehensively than has hitherto been the case. Above all the concrete requirements of propaganda work for the Bolshevization of the German C. P. should invariably be kept in view.

6. The "Internationale" should have correspondents in the different brother parties, enabling the periodical to be kept au courant with regard to the development of these brother parties.

7. The "Internationale" should follow the example of the old "Neue Zeit" in publishing supplementary numbers dealing with the latest problems in politics and science, or even of literature and art. It would perhaps be possible to enclose a supplement in every fourth number (that is, once monthly), again following the example of the old "Neue Zeit," devoted especially to philosophy, problems of general interest in natural science, belles letters, and art.

8. The "Internationale" must maintain the closest contact with the agitation and propaganda department of the central of the German C. P.

WORKERS NEED 50,000 HOUSES IN PA., REPORT

Not Told, However, How to Get Them Built

HARRISBURG, June 24.—Pennsylvania needs at least 50,000 more houses for workers, the state department of health announces after a housing survey. "The people who lack homes are living with other families in overcrowded sections. They are creating even in the smaller towns the disgraceful slums where disease and crime breed," the department relates.

The result of living in quarters "distasteful to them and beneath their previous standards of living, the health of the children in these families is menaced and the industrial efficiency of the wage earners is being impaired."

City planning and zoning to eliminate overcrowding and lack of sanitation is urged by the department in addition to the immediate construction of houses to overcome the shortage. The department does not suggest who shall build the necessary houses nor that landlords bring rents down in vacant but more expensive residences.

Financial Statement As Issued by Labor Defense Council

Along with the following financial statement the Labor Defense Council wishes to call attention to the large sum required for legal and defense expenses for a period of a little over 4 months ($9,561.96) and to call for generous contributions toward meeting expenses in connection with the June 28th conference, the Pittsburgh cases which come up again in about three months from now, and the various deportation and other cases. The Defense Council is left at the present time with only a few hundred dollars on hand, having had to pay out over $4,000.00 in June, as indicated in the footnote. This was, mainly, an advance for the Pittsburgh cases that will apply for the trials in October.

Soviets Co-Operate with Persia.

MOSCOW—The Central Geographical Observatory of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics has drawn up a plan for the erection of eight metereological stations in Persia with Soviet-Persian capital.

CENTRAL ASIA EXPORTS COTTON, WOOL, SILK, FRUITS, LIQUORICE

MOSCOW, (By Mail.)—The characteristic feature of the economy in the Soviet Republics of Central Asia is the increase in their production of goods, most and sometimes all of which are used for exportation abroad or to the industrial regions of the U. S. S. R.

The Cotton Culture.

The cotton culture having reached a considerable development in Central Asia has the greatest importance as a production destined for exportation; only 5.7 per cent of this production is employed for satisfying the demand of the local peasantry. The cotton oil cakes are exported abroad.

In 1924-25, according to the plan for the exportation of raw material of the Central Asia Republics, the amount of the products of cotton culture is about 76 per cent of the total export from Central Asia. It may be noticed that Central Asian cotton oil was exported in fairly large quantities abroad in the pre-war period.

The Karakul Sheep-breeding.

Among other branches of production of Central Asia, the breeding of Karakul sheep is a branch of the greatest importance. The principal regions of this sort of sheep breeding are Bukhara, two Turcoman areas, formerly called Horeama (Khiva), the southwestern part of Turkmenistan, etc., the best sheep are the Bukhara sheep, their high quality being above competition.

In the year 1923-24, 600,000 pieces of Karakul were obtained in Bukhara, 80,000 pieces of which were sent to Persia and Arghanistan. In the year 1924-25, it is planned to collect 800,000 pieces of Karakul, 600,000 of which are intended for exportation abroad thru the central board of the people's commissariat of foreign trade.

Wool.

In 1924-25, it is estimated that in the territory of the republics of Central Asia there will be produced about 8,000 tons of wool. The largest quantity of wool is to be had in Bukhara; in the pre-war period, more than 4,000 tons of wool were collected there. However, the Bukhara wool is coarse and its quality is lower than that of Horesma and Kashgar.

Silkworm Breeding.

The exportation of silk cocoons from Central Asia amounted, before the war, to six million rubles. At present, the silk cocoons exported from Central Asia aggregate some 50 per cent of the pre-war quantity. The silk cocoons are to be exported to Persia, Afghanistan, western China and to central regions of the Soviet Union.

Liquorice.

Liquorice has always been exported from Central Asia mostly to America. The supplies of liquorice used for preparation of liquorice medicinal stuffs amount to thousands of tons and are found on the banks of Amou-Daria.

In 1924-25, the crop is estimated above 10,000 tons, the greater part of this quantity being intended for exportation.

Wine and Fruits.

In 1925, the area occupied by orchards amounts to 15,112 dessiatinos in Central Asia, or 67 per cent of the pre-war area. The vineyards occupy 16,502 des. or 66 per cent of the pre-war area. In 1925, about 400,000 barrels of wine and 40,000 of alcohol will be produced. Part of this quantity is intended for exportation.

It is intended to produce this year 2,110,000 poods (about 35,166 tons) of dried fruit. Of this quantity, 5,000 tons dried fruit of the so-called Californian system of drying will be specially prepared for exportation.

Russia Sells Much Oil.

MOSCOW.—The "Azneft" has sold to the Anglo-American Society 158,335 tons of petroleum to be delivered in October. Further negotiations are under way with the same company about the sale of 576,670 tons of petroleum to be delivered in the year 1926-1927.

PROGRESSIVE BARBERS PLAN PICNIC SUNDAY AT MILWAUKEE WOODS

Every militant trade unionist in Chicago is invited to come out to the Progressive Barbers' picnic next Sunday at Milwaukee Woods.

The program provides for one continuous round of fun, and unless you are unable to forget the labor fakers in your union, we promise to keep your hilarity at high pitch the whole afternoon.

There is going to be wrestling, racing, pie-eating contest, and many other games. Two well-known Progressive barbers have challenged each other to a shingling contest. The subjects will be picked from two girls in the crowd.

Take a Milwaukee Ave., street car to the end of the line and a committee will take you to the picnic grounds. Come early!

SOCIALISTS OF ESTHONIA STAY IN GOVERNMENT

Aided Fascisti Crush Workers Revolt

BERLIN, June 24.—Esthonian socialist papers report that the social democratic party at its recent convention voted to approve the participation of the socialists in the fascist government that carried out a wholesale execution of Communists recently.

The two socialist ministers who accepted government portfolios after the workers' revolt, were permited to hold on to their jobs, but were asked to urge the conservatives not to use the defense of the republic act which was passed after the uprising, against other than Communists. The government is suppressing all labor organizations and political parties of the workers. The socialists are treated with special favors.

A letter was read from the labor and socialist International congratulating the Esthonian social democrats on their support of the government and stating that the authorities were justified in proceeding against the Communists with severity.

The Estonian deficit this year will be 240,000 marks. This deficit is expected to be met by a contribution from the British treasury.

Chicago Labor Defense Meets Friday, June 26

The last meeting of the Chicago Conference for Labor Defense and Relief prior to the National Conference, will be held at Greek Workers Hall, 722 Blue Island Ave., on Friday, June 26, at 8 p. m. sharp. These meetings begin on time, are conducted with snap and get over in time to enable delegates to attend other meetings if necessary.

The meeting, at which preptrations for the National Conference and the big mass meeting at Temple Hall, will be of utmost importance.

Leningrad Mint Busy.

MOSCOW—The Leningrad mint has received an order for coining four million golden chervonetz of 10 rubles each; this coining operation will be started July 1st.

"RALLY AGAINST REACTION" WILL WIND UP NATIONAL DEFENSE MEET

The wind up of the national conference of working class defense and relief organizations, held in Chicago next Sunday, June 28, will fittingly take the form of a great "Rally against Reaction" at Temple Hall, headquarters of the Plasterers' Union, located at Van Buren street and Marshfield Ave. A long list of splendid speakers, including Bishop William Montgomery Brown, will address the meeting.

There is much interest in this meeting even in conservative local labor circles, the Hodcarriers, Stationery Firemen and others purchasing tickets in addition to the Machinists, Bakers and Garment workers who always come to the aid of such causes. No other affairs are permitted on that day and picnics will be closed in time to enable the crowds to reach the mass meeting by eight o'clock.

WORKERS!

RALLY AGAINST REACTION!

Unite against criminal syndicalism laws, against deportation of foreign-born workers, prison sentences for labor leaders on trumped up "sedition" charges, frame-ups of strike leaders, and all other phases of the American capitalist terror.

Come in masses to the great

FREE STATER IN UNITED STATES IGNORES FAMINE

Senator Moran Boosts Ireland's Scenery

world, but they are particularly painstaking in their efforts to conceal the real state of affairs here, and of course no mention of the extreme poverty all over the country, and the state of real famine which actually exists all along the Western Seaboard, is made.

Mr. Senator Moran, who incidentally owns a hotel here in Dublin, is one of these gentlemen visiting America on behalf of the See Ireland First Campaign, and in an interview given to one of the American papers, denies the fact that there is any distress or famine in Ireland, and his outpourings on this "Heaven on Earth" are played up to a considerable extent in the "Irish Independent," that journal which is noted thruout the length and breadth of the land, for its impartiality, truth, and honesty, as any of the friends of the late James Connolly will testify.

Milk and Honey for Plutes.

Of course Senator Moran does not know anything of the poverty and starvation in this country, and as far as he is concerned it certainly is a land of milk and honey, he can travel all over the United States of America, and stop in the best hotels and "eat drink and be merry" at the expense of the people, and quite naturally does not see or know anything of the famine conditions, under circumstances; but if he wants to know, we would urge him to take a trip this time thru the west of Ireland and visit such places as Carriatigue, Portacloy, Ballyglass, and around that way in Mayo, or Teelin, Killybegs, Ardara, Kilcar, Dungloe, in Donegal, or perhaps he could induce some of the American tourists to visit these districts, where they could spend some of their superfluous dollars to the great advantage of people in these districts, they will hear a very different story from that alleged to have been given to the American press by Senator Moran.

The Workers International Relief know something of the real conditions and are doing everything possible to alleviate the terrible sufferings of these poor people, and every day are receiving letters telling some harrowing tales of sickness and starvation, while Senator Moran tells of the beautiful scenery and lives on the "fat of the land."

On Verge of Starvation.

"Many families are on the verge of starvation here, and are simply living on black tea and dry bread, potatoes would be very necessary just now, the turf is as dry today as it was in January, the potatoes are easiest cooked for them. The number of cases of fever are increasing, also there are cases of consumption, the doctor has prescribed cod-liver oil, again, do you think you could supply a little of this? I trust you will do your best and let me have some potatoes. Life is very hard here for the poor folk. Until the end of last month the Free State authorities were supplying bread and cocoa in the School, but this is all ended.

"The wretched and starving children would be extremely grateful for bread and margarine if funds do not permit the luxury cocoa.

"No words of mine can express to you how much appreciated your kindness was with the poor semi-starving peasants, I had to turn scores away without anything for them, their sad, sorrowful tales of poverty is heartrending. Poor creatures! Poor creatures! They try to conceal their extreme state of misery to the last. I have visited little thatched cottages where families live to the number of ten and twelve, huddled together in a place unfit for human beings to dwell in."

The above are a few extracts from letters which are received daily at the office of the Workers International Relief, 47 Parnell Square, Dublin, and as the American say "sort of give the lie" to the alleged statements of Senator Moran on the great prosperity in Ireland. We could quote from hundreds of letters to the same effect.

Fortunately the Workers International Relief has, thru its efforts been able to relieve hundreds of families in Mayo and Donegal by supplying food and clothing, and also seed corn and seed potatoes in order to try and prevent a recurrence of the same famine conditions next year, and are at present providing for the school children in at least two of the schools in Mayo, we are not doing near as much as we would like, but are doing all we can as funds permit, and have certainly brot a little hope and comfort to many families in Mayo and Donegal.

Half the cost of a trip to America would keep a number of families in comparative comfort for a considerable time, and we respectfully suggest that at least some of the money squandered in advertising the beautiful scenery and wonderful hotel accommodations be spent in saving the lives of the innocent victims of natural calamity and government incapacity.

"The question of the State is acquiring at the present a particular importance both theoretical and practical"

Says Lenin, the great Communist teacher and leader in the preface to his famous book

THE STATE AND REVOLUTION

By V. I. Ulianov (Lenin).

Today this question is of even greater importance—a sufficient reason why every worker (and every Communist surely!) should have a thorough knowledge of it.

RED ARMY GUARDS SOVIET UNION AGAINST PLOTS OF CAPITALIST STATES, COMMISSAR FRUNZE SAYS

MOSCOW, (By Mail)—In his report on the present condition of the Red Army, delivered to the Soviet Congress, Frunze, People's Commissary of War and Navy, reviewed the gradual reduction of the Red Army from 5,000,000 to the present 562,000.

The Union of Soviet Socialist Republics, Frunze declared, had, comparatively speaking, the smallest army in the world: 41 soldiers to every 10,000 inhabitants, against Rumania and Poland's one hundred each, and France's two hundred (not including the colonial troops).

To every one thousand square kilometers there were 27 soldiers in the U. S. S. R., which compared with 560 in Rumania, 700 in Poland, etc. The cost per head of population for the maintenance of the army was less than 3 rubles in the U. S. S. R. as against 11 rubles in Poland, 13.5 r. in France, etc.

Prepare New Anti-Soviet War.

Dealing with the failure of the proposals the Soviet government made to foreign countries relative to disarmament, and referring to the increase of armaments of the great powers, Frunze declares that the false charges launched against the union for its alleged participation in the events in Esthonia and Bulgaria, as well as the latest preachings of general moral and financial boycott of the Union of Soviet Republics, ought to be regarded as tentative psychological preparation of foreign public opinion on the occasion of organizing a new intervention against the union.

Such facts as the Helsingfors and the Riga Conferences or the resolutions adopted at the conference of the Little Entente at Bucharest, the military union between Poland and Rumania, are attempts at practical realisation of the idea of an anti-Soviet block.

Develop Defense Forces.

This situation, stresses the People's War Commissary, dictates the necessity of further improving the quality of the Red Army and a corresponding progress of military industry, which, without hampering the normal development of the economic situation of the country, would at the same time create a solid base of national defense. The development of the air fleet is also necessary.

Then the speaker asked the congress' approval of measures directed towards the gradual passage of the Red Army to a territorial system as one which corresponded in the most adequate manner to the interests of the population, tending to bring down the military expenses. Territorial troops actually constituted over one-half of all the system of the armed forces of the union, according to Frunze's statement.

Naval Expenditures Low.

The speaker finally pointed out the necessity of further development of national formations of the Red Army as a factor of national cultural progress of the various nationalities peopling the Soviet Union.

In presenting the navy estimates, Frunze pointed out that these estimates provided for 32 million rubles only, as compared with 260 million rubles in the former czarist budgets. He remarked, however, that such estimates were inadequately low compared with the naval expenditure of foreign countries.

St. Louis Workers in Firm Stand with the Curlee Strikers

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 24.—Enclosed is a resolution regarding the circle strikers which was passed at the T. U. E. L. meeting at the Labor Lyceum.

John Braun was chairman of the meeting and addressed the workers, outlining the league's program and its policy in this strike. After his opening speech, this resolution was adopted:

Whereas, Members of the Trade Unions of St. Louis Workers Party and Young Workers' League in mass meeting assembled hereby express our hearty support of the members of the Amalgamated Clothing Wrkers of America in their strike at the Curlee Clothing Co., and

Whereas, We feel that this strike is a just one and that the workers in order to better their conditions, are forced to battle with their organized force against the bosses and their tools, the police press and etc., and that we condemn the actions of the police in slugging the strikers, and

Whereas, It is the duty of all workers to belong to trade unions and work for the emancipation of the working class from wage slavery.

Therefore, be it resolved that this body of workers pledge all support to the strikers and win as many workers to their support as possible.

The Size of Moscow.

MOSCOW.— According to recent date, Moscow is occupying a territory of 289 square kilometres. As compared with the largest towns in Europe, Moscow stands in the fifth place. As to the area of its interior town line (without the suburbs) Moscow, as to its territory occupies the third place, giving precedence to Leningrad (300 square kilometers) and to London, which in its town line has 303 square kilometers.

Build Ice Breaker for Esthonia.

MOSCOW.—With the sanction of the board of state industry of the supreme council, of national economy, the Ijora works have accepted an order from the Esthonian government for the construction of an ice breaker for the Esthonian merchant fleet.

SOCIALISTS CAME TO SHED A TEAR OVER S. P'S BIER

The Corpse Did Not Even Wriggle

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MINNEAPOLIS, June 22—(By Mail) After several weeks of advertising and beating of drums, announcing the coming of the socialist Messiah who would lead the faithful into the promised land of socialism, the "all-day conference" of the socialists of Minneapolis was about as dead a proposition as was ever seen outside a graveyard.

One dozen persons, that is the count, I swear it by my father's beard, appeared to pick up their rusty swords and resume the adjourned battle with the forces of evil. And a more discredited collection of fakers never gathered under one roof.

Van Lear Crowned King.

There was Murray King for instance, the champion red-baiter of the "Star" in whose breast the divine fires of revolt did not kindle until Van Lear gave him the toe of his boot and jerked him off the payroll. There was the red-baiter Albert G. Bastis from the sixth ward, the meter expert, and Lynn Thompson, county commissioner. Instead of being a conference to rejuvenate a sickly party it turned out to be a funeral ceremony. It was generally admitted that the group of renegade socialists that gathered there qualified for the role of pallbearers.

The only workers visible around the place, outside of a few Communists who managed to get in, were the workers who were repairing the car tracks near the building in which the conference was held.

Debs was disgusted with the crowd or rather with its smallness. He dwelt reminiscently on the glorious past of the socialist party when crowds cheered his words. "It is a strange thing that has happened to the socialist movement "here" said Debs. "Only a few years ago I spoke to cheering thousands in the armory."

They Need the Money.

Most of the local social partyites did not want the socialist party to enter politics, but it should have a paper and carry on educational work. The main merit of this plan would be that it would provide a few very necessary jobs for deserving socialists.

Gabriel Soltis, spoke during the open discussion. He reminded Debs that when he was here in 1923 his parting advice to the socialists was to enter a socialist candidate for mayor in the elections. Soltis charged the socialists with having betrayed the workers and selling them to Leach, the republican candidate for mayor. He pointed out that they prevented Debs from holding a meeting in Minneapolis during the farmer-labor campaign of last year, for fear his prison record might hurt the "cause." Debs in reply said, "If what you say is true comrade, it is no wonder the socialist party is dead here."

The Flowerpot Scene.

The fakers were very much excited over this bombshell of Soltis, and resorted to many tricks. One genius by the name of Dave Shier, seized a flower pot and rushing up to Debs embraced him vigoruosly and stuck the flower pot under his nose, hoping that it would prevent him from seeing Soltis. As Shier had already spoken to Debs the sudden uncontrollable gust of affection caused some surprise, until its object was learned.

During the afternoon session, while discussing the policy of the promised "American Appeal," the national weekly which is scheduled to appear next year, Soltis declared that any paper that would not stand for the united front of labor against capitalism, would not receive the support of the American working class. This drove William Henry into a frenzy. He said it would follow the policy of the S. P. and would support internationally, the McDonalds, Vanderveldes and the other traitors that Soltis denounced. Debs agreed with Soltis, but showed that he did not understand the united front by making a bitter attack on the Communists, bringing up the old gag that they sabotaged his release from prison and that they were too cowardly ot defend armed insurrection during the Michigan trials.

After Debs wound up his attack on the Workers Party, the meeting adjourned, having accomplished nothing except the official burial of the socialist party of Minneapolis.

Several of the socialists laughed as one of them was heard to remark: "Well, this is how Abe Cahan's money is going."

BUILDERS AT WORK

Red Week Saw Real Communist Building

Kansas City Communists Admit They Learned Something.

During RED WEEK hundreds of new subs were received. More subs than usual are now coming from those Builders who were on the job. But subs secured were not the only thing that Red Week did to Communist Builders.

E. Hugo Oehler, acting city agent of Kansas City, Mo., advising us of the successful organization of their campaign and pointing out their experiences says:

> "The comrades have themselves changed their opinions regarding drives. Formerly not very enthusiastic about DAILY WORKER drives, they now realize a feeling of revolt among workers that economic conditions bring to the fore.
>
> They did not believe that workers not previously knowing of Communism would meet us with such friendliness.
> Enclosed find fourteen dollars and five cards to be included with that which Comrade Buehler sent in for our quota. Some more subs will follow in a few days and others will send in cards directly."

These Kansas City Builders went to the workers in their homes and learned that the DAILY WORKER is welcome—because the DAILY WORKER is voicing their demands and their aspirations.

It is ALWAYS welcome—in the shop and the trade union and wherever workers gather. Go there with bundles of the DAILY WORKER and get subs as other Builders hove done in

Copper Mines of Soviet Union Are Rapidly Restored

MOSCOW, (By Mail.)—It is learned that the copper works of Kyshtym and Tanalyk in the Oural, the Ridder zinc and lead enterprise, the mine areas of the Kirghis steppe, which were the object of concession negotiations with Urqhardt, are now in the following state.

The Kyshtym copper business is being rapidly restored. The works of Bogomilovo and Dektiarino, with their annual production of 600 to 700 thous. tons have such considerable stocks of prepared and explored copper that, working at a normal rate, they could in a year and a half yield the above-mentioned amount of products, whilst in the course of the above mentioned preliminary negotiations the concessionnaires had maintained that it was impossible to complete the work of restoration before six years or so. The Karabash works will soon be restored and may eventually be put into operation even during the current year.

The Soviet government has decided to proceed immediately with the organisation of the Ridder business with the help of state means, establishing this enterprise as the principal basis for the development of the zinc and lead production of the country and for the general exploitation of polimetal Altai ore. The sums assigned for the two year's plan of work amount to five million rubles, out of which 1.5 million rubles are to be delivered this year before October. The preparatory work is already going on. The program provides for the organization of a primary production amounting to 6,000 tons of metal yearly, guaranteeing the independent growth of the business in future. Considering its high rentability, the Ridder enterprise is expected to yield about 40 per cent on the capital.

Business and War

American businessmen make up more than a third of the delegates to the convention of the International Chamber of Commerce now in session in Brussels.

Seymour Gilbert, agent-general of reparations under the Dawes plan, and an important cog in the House of Morgan machinery, holds the chairmanship of the transfer committee—the most important body at the gathering having as its function the recommendation of measures for the control of commodity exchange between the various countries.

The premier position of American imperialism in world affairs is typified by the numerical strength of the American delegation. In 10 years—from 1914 to 1925—the United States has changed from a position of semi-isolation and non-participation in European affairs to that of military adventure in the world war and domination thru international loans which is expressed by the Dawes plan.

All over Europe are American financial advisers whispering in the ears of and giving orders to rulers. When persuation fails there is always the threat of a stoppage of credit—enough to bring the most recalcitrant ruler into line at present. Some day the threat of denial of credit and the foreclosures of House of Morgan mortgages will be challenged by some desperate ruling class and then the war drums will begin to boom.

Businessmen are businessmen when the normal measures of capitalist production and exchange prevail. But we have passed thru the period of peaceful development of capitalism, the struggle is for the re-division of the world and the businessmen of yesterday are the militarists of today.

American capitalism can no more colonize Europe by peaceful methods than it could take the land from the Indians without war. It is of no importance that American financiers appear as advocates of peace at such conferences as we mention. Their policy is one of financial conquest, the American government is their government and will either make war for the finance-capitalists or be replaced by a government which will. Far from being an era of peaceful readjustment the present period is one of preparation for slaughter on a scale hitherto unknown.

Imperialist war is business competition carried to its logical conclusion.

The Employers' International

King Albert of Belgium yesterday opened the third congress of the International Chamber of Commerce in Brussels. This congress is attended by 780 delegates, all leading figures in the various capitalist countries and persons whose views are listened to with attention by their governments.

Whatever decisions this conference arrives at, will become the written or unwritten laws of the governments to which they owe allegiance. The delegates aim to bring about international harmony in business and to reach agreements that will contribute to the stabilization of business and the increasing of profits. These profits must be made at the expense of the working class who produce all wealth.

The International Chamber of Commerce of the capitalists corresponds to the trade union international of the workers. But whereas the bosses have unity, the workers have not. The employers are joined together in a mighty organization to solve their mutual problems and fight the working class. The workers are disunited and the reactionary leaders fight unity as vigorously as do the capitalists.

The present meeting of the employers' congress in Brussels should give added impetus to the movement for international trade union unity sponsored by the Russian and British trade unions. The Dawes plan for Germany was sponsored at the Rome meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce. The workers of all lands must meet and adopt their plans to bring the world under the rule of labor and abolish the kind of business which is only legalized robbery.

French Communists Write Revolutionary History

It is very unpleasant for the 200 members of the French Communist Party who are in jail following raids made on their homes by the Painleve government in its efforts to stop resistance to the war of conquest in Morocco, but the French government by this action has centered the attention of the working class and the peasantry on the war—exactly what the Communists were trying to do.

Painleve is going to demand that parliamentary immunity be taken from the Communist members of the chamber of deputies and in all probability his demand will be acceded to by the servile agents of French imperialism in the chamber, including those disguised as socialists.

In the meantime the French army meets defeat after defeat and the spirit of rebellion grows in the French colonies.

The French Communist Party is writing a glorious page in working class history. It is giving to the workers of all the world a brilliant example of the Communist application of the principle of solidarity with the oppressed masses in the colonial countries.

"Scabby Bill" Lee's conference between railroad capital and labor is indefinitely postponed. He blames the hot weather for the postponement. The fact is, that Bill smells so badly to the brotherhood membership that any one of their officers attending the conference would have thereby signed a warrant for this political execution.

American business has 250 delegates at the International Chamber of Commerce meeting in Brussels, yet there is no outcry against internationalism on the part of our patriots. But if the American workers had 250 delegates to the Communist International what a nightmare our 100 per cent Americans would have!

The Soviet government is floating an internal loan of 300,000,000 rubles. It's own banks will subscribe the entire amount without any trouble. The international bankers who thought they could starve Russia financially did not think straight.

The Enslavement of China

By Wm. F. Dunne

ARTICLE XII.

WE have traced the development of foreign intrigue in China from the 40's to the period of the world war. We have seen that all the great powers pursued the same course in China—that of weakening and dividing the Chinese nation, of insisting on the right of foreign missionaries and businessmen to privileges far in excess of those enjoyed by the Chinese themselves; when outbreaks occurred after the patience of the extremely patient Chinese had been exhausted, the foreign powers used these outbreaks as an excuse to increase their military forces and for additional demands upon the Chinese nation.

The Boxer indemnity forced from China by united action of all the great powers in 1900, and guaranteed by foreign control of the customs revenues, was the first great blow struck at Chinese sovereignty by the imperialist nations acting as a bloc. From this period on the rise of Japan, with the increasing influence of Great Britain becomes the factor of chief importance in China.

WE have seen that Japan and Great Britain succeeded in eliminating czarist Russia and Germany and that as a result of the these adventures Japan has become the foremost imperialist power in China with Great Britain as her principal imperialist rival and the United States acting as runner-up because of her increasing interest in the Pacific.

China was brought into the world war by promises made by the allied nations; these promises were to the effect that all the grievances of the Chinese would be heard and adjusted at the peace conference. In this intrigue the United States played a leading role.

BUT imperialist promises are made to be broken and having been led into the world war with the result that the Chinese militarists at home gained the upper hand over the Chinese republican movement and civil war tore the nation to bits, the Chinese found that the peace conference was not for supplicants but for aggressors. Japan, not China, was the oriental power to whom the western imperialists catered.

Japan received from the peace conference an endorsement of all her acts of robbery in China. Under the Versailles treaty, without consultation with China, Japan received the spoils of war in Shangtung. In other words, the territory that Germany had held only by lease, became by this treaty the possession of Japan with the peace conference acting as the procurer.

THE portion of treaty dealing with this question is in articles 156, 157, 158. In reading these sections legalizing the most brazen robbery of all those bloody thefts perpetrated in the name of "democracy" during the world war, it should be kept in mind that the territory and properties mentioned belonged, not to Germany, but to China. The agreement, as tho no such country as China existed, is made between Germany and Japan. Article 156 read in part as follows:

> Germany renounces in favor of Japan all her rights, titles and privileges . . . . All German rights in the Tsingtao-Tsinan-fu railway, including its branch lines . . . . its subsidiary stock . . . . . mines, plant and material for the exploitation of the mines, are to remain acquired by Japan . . . . .
>
> The German state submarine cables from Tsingtao to Shanghai and from Tsing Tsao to Chefoo . . . are similarly acquired by Japan . . .

Article 157 says in part:

> The movable and immovable property owned by the German state in the territory of Kiaochow as well as the rights that Germany might claim . . . . . are and REMAIN acquired by Japan . . . . (Emphasis mine.)

ARTICLE 158 is the most amazing of all. It is an admission of the utter illegality of the whole proceeding but takes the necessary steps to make appeal against it on this ground impossible. The situation was exactly the same as if a landlord, having occupied the premises of a rival, had then demanded and received all deeds to the property which the rival in turn had forced a third person to give him. The article reads:

> Germany shall hand over to Japan, within three months from the coming into force of the present treaty, the archives, registers, plans, title deeds and documents of every kind, wherever they may be, relating to the administration, whether civil, military, financial, judicial or other, of the territory of Kiaochow.
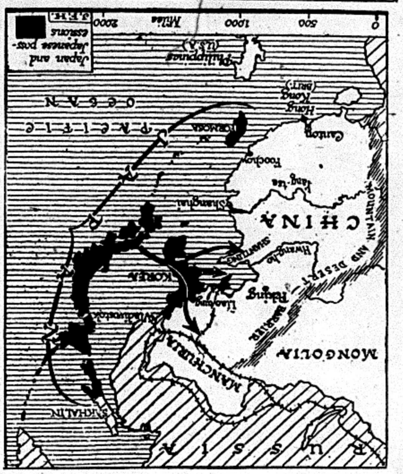
> Within the same period Germany shall give particulars to Japan of all treaties, arrangements or agreements relating to the rights, title or privileges referred to in the two preceding articles.

It will be noticed that China is not even mentioned in these three articles.

THE demands made in these three articles had all been conceded to Japan by Great Britain, France and Italy in secret agreements made in 1917. The decision to legalize these secret agreements was made by Lloyd George, Clemenceau—and Woodrow Wilson.

Japan's Powerful Position in China



(From Lansbury's Weekly, London.)

The Chinese delegates made desperate efforts to secure a modification of these articles. According to Thomas F. Millard they made the following proposals:

> China would assent to have the German concessions in Shangtung veded directly to Japan in the treaty of peace, thus saving Japan's "face" in the matter.
>
> Japan to promise, same also to be written in the treaty, to restore Shangtung and Tsingtao to China in two years.
>
> China would agree to repay Japan for all expenses incurred by Japan in the military operations required to take Tsingtao from Germany. (New York Times, July 25, 1919.)

The Japanese and their supporters gave these concessions no consideration.

THE Chinese learned their lesson. They had received blow after blow from the democratic nations allied with autocratic Japan, they had been given complete proof of the hollowness of imperialist promises and concrete demonstrations of the determination of all the powers to take their pound of flesh from bleeding China.

In a speech delivered in New York City on July 25, 1919, a representative of the Chinese republican government in Canton said:

> We hope our defeat will serve to arouse the sentiment of all China, to the end that she will depend upon herself and that her sorrow will be her national salvation. The war started as a conflict of right with might, but I do not see that the end of the war justifies that idea. Germany is crushed, but there is another Germany in the Far East, and perhaps this will not be the last war, for there will surely be another if justice is not done now.

THE president of China also voiced the new spirit in an interview published in the New York Times, Jan. 17, 1919:

> Some western people hold the view that it would be a great benefit to China if the railroads, present and prospective, could be internationalized until such time as China could take full control of all the leased zones and concessions, and likewise be internationalized as a temporary measure. From the point of view of China, however, A VERY DIFFERENT POLICY RECEIVES GENERAL ENDORSEMENT, namely that, with the view of preserving her territorial integrity, all railroads, leased zones and concessions should revert to her ABSOLUTE AND COMPLETE CONTROL, INTERNATIONALIZATION BEING UNTHOUGHT OF.

It is this spirit that is finding expression in the strikes and demonstrations against foreign control of China, today, actions participated in by all sections of the Chinese population.

AMERICAN imperialism seems to prefer to fight Japan and Great Britain after they have secured control of China rather than to enter into active competition with them for territorial concessions. This is the only theory that explains the manner in which American diplomacy became an instrument of British and Japanese domination in China during the world war. That it was dictated by the most powerful interests in America is shown by the interesting revelations made by Paul S. Reinsch concerning his visit to the United States while minister to China under the Wilson administration:

"Among great private organizations I conferred with members of the National City Bank; J. P. Morgan and company; the Guaranty Trust company of New York; Kuhn, Loeb and company; the General Electric and American Locomotive companies; the Standard Oil company of New York; the International Banking corparation and the American International corporation; the Chase National Bank; the Siems-Carey company; Pacific Development corporation, and the Continental and Commercial bank of Chicago."

TODAY the Chinese masses are in revolt but they are hemmed in by the imperialist web woven during the last 75 years and strengthened during the world war. Only on the west and north has a breach been made in it where Soviet Russia appears, more powerful than czarist Russia ever was, but playing a different role—that of a militant champion of the oppressed Chinese masses, an enemy of world imperialism.

The map appearing with this article shows the dominant position of Japan since her acquisition of the territories formerly held by czarist Russia and Germany. It will be noticed that she controls the entire sea-coast of China with the exception of the port of Hong Kong which is a British sphere of influence. North-eastern China is under her control but the Chinese Eastern railway with its terminus at Vladivostok is operated jointly by the Chinese and Soviet governments. Mongolia and the more northern section of Manchuria have very friendly relations with Soviet Russia.

THE valley of the Yang-tze is a scene of rival operations for British and Japanese imperialism and it is at Shanghai, at the mouth of this great navigable river that the center of the present movement against the foreign powers is located. Canton is the stronghold of the Kuo Min Tang.

With the explanations given the map makes it easy to understand why the Chinese liberation movement is directing its energies first against Japan and second against Great Britain.

The map also shows the extremely tough job that American imperialism has on hand in attempting to dislodge Japan from her pre-eminent position in the Far East.

It will also be seen that could the imperialist powers come to an agreement and make Japan their agent, the task of subjugating the Chinese nation, for a time at least, would not be so very hard. But Japan is already too powerful to suit Great Britain and the United States. Neither is Japan willing to fight the battles of her two principal rivals.

Meanwhile the Chinese liberation movement and, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics grow in power.

IN the Far East there are many conflicts in progress:

First, the drive against China by the imperialist nations opposed by the Chinese liberationists and Soviet Russia.

Second, the conflict between Great Britain and Japan, Japan and America, America and Great Britain for control of China and the pacific.

Third, the conflict between Soviet Russia as the representative of the workers and peasants of all the world, and world imperialism.

None of these conflicts follow a straight line. There are advances and retreats, temporary alliances and breaking of alliances, minor and major alignments and a play of forces that at times makes understanding difficult.

But under all the intrigue and maneuvering is the clash of the two great forces in this imperialist era—that of a ruling class striving to hold its privileged position and that of the oppressed masses, yellow, white and black, fighting for power to determine their own destiny in a world where the dictatorship of the working class in Russia points the way out for the masses of all the world.

(This is the last of this series of articles. The next series will be called: "China's Fight for Freedom" and will deal with the rise of the Chinese liberation movement and its meaning for the working class.)

MELLON PLAN TO REDUCE TAX ON RICH ANNOUNCED

Saves Millionaires Over $300,000,000 a Year

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—The United States surtax on high incomes is certain to be cut drastically in the next session of Congress, chairman Green, of the house ways and means committee announced here. The tax will be cut $300,000,000. Green who is following out the wishes of secretary of the treasury Mellon and President Coolidge, said. The surtax maximum will be cut to 25 per cent.

Mellon does not desire to send his plan for reduction of taxes on high incomes directly to Congress, since it is known that Mellon is head of the aluminum trust and a multi-millionaire and will profit by the cut, but Mellon has conferred with Green. Senator Smoot, another wealthy man, who was involved in the Teapot Dome oil scandal, also conferred with Green.

The bill reducing the millionaire's taxes will be known as the Green-Smoot bill. At a hearing of the ways and means committee, Mellon will advocate the passage of this bill.

Finance Committee Tables McAndrew's Teachers' Wage Cut

The finance comittee of the board of education voted to table Superintendent McAndrews' revised teachers' salary schedule which came up before them. Action was postponed until next fall.

McAndrew appeared before the committee with an accountant and argued that the school funds showed a surplus of $17,000,000.

Miss Haley of the Teachers' Federation fought the schedule on the grounds that the large bulk of the teaching force of Chicago would be given a cut in wages whereas the principals would receive so large an increase as to make it impossible for the board's funds to cope with the increased cost. The schedule has so many loopholes there is no telling who will be made to suffer to make up the deficit. Favoritism under the new schedule is not an improbability.

Furriers in New York Hold Big, Wonderful Union Demonstration

the call of the new joint board to cease work at four o'clock and come to Cooper Union. Such mass gatherings were never before known in the history of the union. Under Kaufmann rule meetings were held only when necessary to deceive the membership or collect money.

Forward Attacks the Union.

But the new administration represents the masses who, within fifteen minutes, surrounded Cooper Union from all sides, immediately packed Webster Hall in an overflow meeting, then Astoria Hall, then—unable to obtain other halls, turned away in many hundreds, disappointed in failing to get in.

Yesterday's Forward attacked the union for calling the meeting, saying, "Why was it necessary to break agreement, strain relations with the bosses, give up several hours work just now?"

But, inside the halls, the question became clear: "We wanted to prove whether we have with us workers of the trade," declared B. Gold, manager of the joint board. "We wanted to test the strength of our organization. We are surrounded on all sides. On one side is the infamous Kaufmann organization committee, from whom we took their fat jobs and stopped their graft; on the other side is the yellow Forwards, and on the third side is the Manufacturers' Association, which wrote us a few hours after the Forward's article appeared, declaring that we broke the agreement by calling this meeting at four o'clock, but since this is the first time, they forgive us for the crime."

And It Showed Them!

"We say to all enemies of the Furriers' Union, we do not break the agreement; but remember that the furriers are united and powerful enuf to meet all attacks and battle for better conditions. We called this meeting to show you the strength and power of the union membership."

Other speakers were Fanny Warshafsky, Sorkin, Wexler and Elleston. Several agents of Kaufmann tried to obstruct the meeting by heckling, but when the speaker called out to them: "Howl louder, brothers, you have to show Kaufmann you are earning your few dollars," the hecklers were hooted out of the hall.

Two Resolutions.

Two resolutions were adopted: First, demanding a special convention, with new elections in order to eliminate the destructive consitutional amendments which the Kaufmann machine smuggled thru the last convention. Second, a pledge on the part of every member to stand by the new administration for a clean union and protection of the interests of the workers.

The meeting ended with a tremendous demonstration of complete solidarity of all the workers with the new joint board.

CLASH OF RADIO INTERESTS HITS McMILLAN TRIP

Wilbur Calls Halt to Low Wave Equipment

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24.—Secretary of the navy Wilbur has confirmed reports that he ordered the U. S. naval officers with the MacMillan artic expedition, now at Sydney, Nova Scotia, to abandon the trip unless Donald B. MacMillan, the commander, agrees to use the navy's radio equipment.

Second to MacMillan in command is E. F. MacDonald of Chicago, multi-millionaire who owns a radio corporation in Chicago. This radio company manufactures low wave length radio sets and it was these which MacMillan had intended using.

Wilbur ordered the destroyer Putnam to Sydney to deliver the navy's radio equipment, which is of standard wave length, to MacMillan.

It is thot that clashing interests of radio manufacturing companies, anxious to secure the advertisement of having their equipment used on the expedition to the north pole, form the basis for the disagreement.

In a later statement Wilbur said he had no objection to the short wave radio equipment being taken along, but thot that both should be carried on the expedition.

Italy to Bargain with U. S.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 24—On Thursday negotiations begin between representatives of the Italian government, and secretaries Kellogg and Mellon, and Senator Smoot with regard to the settlement of Italy's debt to hte United States.

The Mussolini representatives will plead for more lenient terms on the ground that Italy's financial condition is bad, and the Coolidge government will bring the threat of withdrawal of private credits to bear to force payment from Italy.

Portugal Also Has "Interests."

LISBON, June 24.—Measures looking to the safety of the Portuguese community at Macao, China, to which the general strikes of Shanghai, Canton and Hong Kong have spread, were under way today.

The ministerial council approved the sending of the cruiser Carval Hoaraujo to protect Portuguese interests.

PE[illegible]'S ARTICLE OF 1922 RIS[illegible] DAMN HIM AS SECRET UNI[illegible]ECKER AND INTRIGUER

NEW YORK CITY, June 25.—Yesterday the DAILY WORKER published the letter written by Meyer Perlstein to the Jewish daily paper "Freiheit" in 1922. With his letter he sent an article, mentioned yesterday, which he suggested to be published, but not in his name, in the "Freiheit."

At that time, Perlstein was manager of the Cleveland, Ohio, joint board, and wished to attain the presidency of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union. Kept away from power by Schlessinger, he planned to split the International in order to become president of the western locals.

Because of these plans and Perlstein's defense of the standards of production, the "Freiheit" refused to print Perlstein's article. It has made the article public now to expose Perlstein to the membership for what he is, an unscrupulous pretender capable of any shady intrigue to gain personal power.

What Perlstein Wrote in 1922.

"The present period must be truly bad that even some high officials got to know that there are problems of unemployment, etc. That unemployment is not new, and that it has existed for the last two or three years, and that the working mass has suffered very much from it—the workers know for a long time. Previously when there would come a period of unemployment, the progressive element of the labor movement used it as a demonstration. Today even that

AS WE SEE IT.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

SOVIET Russia bought 30 per cent more cotton in the United States this year than last. $36,340,000 is the sum of money the workers' republic left in this country in return for 263,098 bales of old emperor cotton. Strange how the inefficient, crazy, godless, Russian government can dig up so much money? And stranger still that an efficient, sane and godly people like the American business men would exchange their cotton for the rubles of the Russian Bolsheviks? Very queer indeed.

* * *

AS a matter of fact it is very doubtful if the Christian god is on the job these days. The preachers told us that Soviet Russia would go to the bow wows because its leaders did not believe in the Christian religion or the rights of property or anything else that we have been so accustomed to. A drought of unusual severity came along as if to bear out the predictions of the prophets and in addition to the capitalist blockade and the civil war, it was sufficient to bring about the death of thousands thru famine. But Soviet Russia got over that hurdle.

* * *

NOW, actual prosperity exists in Russia. Not that the government [illegible]. The Soviet government is not the kind to place a limit to the onward march of the working class. The workers of Russia know that prosperity in their own country does not mean plenty for one class and a bare existence for another, the producing class. So they work and plan to produce more, knowing that the more they produce the more they will have to consume. This is not the case in countries governed by the capitalists.

* * *

HERE, we are told to speed up and increase production and if we do this, business will boom and everybody will have plenty. But it does not work that way. If a factory employs 200 workers and the boss succeeds in convincing the workers that they should increase their efficiency ten per cent, he can turn around and lay off twenty men and without paying the remaining 180 another nickel more than they had been receiving, he can produce just as much as formerly. Who gains by the speeding up of production? Not the workers but the boss.

* * *

WHAT would happen in Russia if a similar number of workers increased their average output ten per cent? The shop chairman would call the workers together and discuss whether they should reduce their working hours or take ten per cent more in salary. They might decide to work one hour and twenty minutes less per day or they might decide to take the profits and start a fund to add a new battleship to their Red Navy or purchase a few machines for he Red Flying Fleet. The point is that they can do very much as they damn please. That is the difference between slavery under capitalism and freedom under Soviet rule.

AMERICAN ARMY OFFICERS AID WAR ON MOROCCO

Spain Soon to Break Off Negotiations

PARIS, France, June 25.—The Spanish government has refused to allow French troops to cross the Spanish Moroccan boundary line and invade the Riff territory, fearing that if the French succeed in defeating Abd-el-Krim, Moroccan leader, they will extend their colonial possessions in North Africa at the expense of Spain. Despite optimistic announcements of the French government that "an accord will soon be reached," it is learned here that negotiations between the French and Spanish government are about to be broken off. The Algeciras convention of 1912, signed by Great Britain, France and Spain may be violated by France.

The Spanish government refuses to allow "foreign troops" to enter Spanish Morocco, it is learned. The French, as a last alternative, declared that a new treaty regarding control of Northern Africa may be asked for. If this is done, Italy, which is demanding a slice of African territory, will demand to enter the negotiations, and Great Britain and the United States will also keep in close touch with de-

American Profiteers Urge Armed Intervention By United States in China

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SHANGHAI, China, June 25.—The American Association of China, an organization representing the American business interests of all kinds engaged in profit getting in China, yesterday cabled to the United States state department at Washington urging armed intervention by America in China to stop the liberation movement of the Chinese people.

Deciding that the sympathetic and truthful statements by an occasional American missionary were having too much effect on American opinion, the "agents-on-the-ground" of American imperialism used no circumlocution in openly advocating intervention by American arms to suppress the movement of 443,000,000 Chinese people to be masters in their own house.

"The United States should energetically co-operate with other powers and adopt the strongest attitude in order to suppress the present state of lawlessness directed against foreigners," the cablegram recited.

The Association urged that China be held "strictly responsible" for loss of life (foreigners' lives), property (foreign owned property), and business (foreigners' business).

Would Force China to Her Knees.

The Association counseled the American government to force China to the absolute obedience of the unjust treaties forced upon her in the past, until at least the present upheaval can be suppressed, and in the absence of any resistance on the part of China, things can be "modified by strictly orderly processes," as before—at the end of foreign bayonets.

Shanghai is still strictly guarded, a search of all persons and vehicles entering the foreign settlement being made by foreign troops. An armed ring was placed around the settlement.

Festival Passes Quietly.

The Dragon Boat festival passed quietly, tho the strike continues to tie up shipping completely. The Chinese chamber of commerce decided to open shops tomorrow, and the workers in the mills owned by Chinese capital have gone to work, but those of the British and Japanese are still firmly on strike.

Martial law, declared by Chang Tso-lin's Manchurian troops and their threat to execute all agitators for Chinese liberation, has caused a temporary lull in the meetings and demonstrations, but hard work is being done to convince the troops that they are playing the part of traitors to the national cause and rally them, too, to the strike movement.

CONFERENCE OF SHOE WORKERS AT BOSTON SUNDAY, JUNE 28TH, TO RALLY FIGHT ON WAGE CUTS

By TOM BELL.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, Mass., June 25.— The National Committee of the Trade Union Educational League has raised the slogan of "Fight Against Wage Cuts!" in the boot and shoe industry at a most opportune time. The manufacturers have initiated a campaign of wage cutting similar to that in the textile industry last fall.

In every shoe town in New England wages have been reduced. Factories have been shut down on the pretext that labor costs are too high to make it profitable for the manufacturer to continue production. The workers are being asked to accept

GREEK OFFICERS SET UP MILITARY DICTATORSHIP UNDER PANGALOS

LONDON, June 25.—All Greece is in the throes of a revolution, a dispatch from Salonika via Paris said today.

The revolutionaries, headed by army officers, the Salonika dispatch added, were in complete control.

Officers of the garrison under General Pangalos established a military government and occupied all civil and military institutions.

The Creek navy, the dispatch further stated, joined in the revolt.

No reports of fighting was given in the dispatch, giving rise to the belief that the coup was bloodless.

Military leaders of the revolt issued a communique in which it was announced that the revolutionists control the situation thruout Greece and that no resistance is being encountered.

The navy contingent, which joined the movement, was led by Admiral Hadjikiriakos. The Admiral addressed the following telegram to the president of the republic:

"We proclaim that your government has fallen. We consider the council of ministers responsible for the spilling of fraternal blood."

KELLOGG NOTE TO CALLES IS CALLED FRAMEUP

U. S. Bankers Exploit Mexico as Usual

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 25.—Another reason for the officially unexplained threat of the United States in Secretary of State Kellogg's note to Mexico is suggested in Commerce and Finance: "From Mexico City comes the suggestion that the fulmination was intended as an aid to President Calles, nothing better calculated to win him the united support of the country than a quarrel with the united support of the country than a quarrel with the northern colossus. Former President Obregon rallies to his support, saying Mexico can function normally without support from Washington."

Mexican radicals, particularly the syndicalsit unions, have not submitted harmoniously to the Calles government, tho the present president went into office with what he termed a labor government. Syndicalist unions striking against the Calles government have caused internal disturbances which may justify the financial magazine's suggestion from Mexico.

"Business as Usual"

Commerce and Finance notes that Samuel Vauclain of Baldwin Locomotive Works says his company is on good terms with Mexico, doing business there and expects to continue to do so; that Trade Commissioner Wythe at Mexico City declares our trade with Mexico is on a normal basis, tho business there is rather inactive at present; that Ambassador Sheffield is returning to Mexico as if nothing had happened.

"W. O. Jenkins of kidnapping fame has damaged his reputation for common sense by hoisting the American flag over all his ranch properties in the state of Puebla," the paper states. "How would we like to see Mexicans in this country hoisting their flag in the same way?"

Calles Embraces Wall Street.

President Calles has an article, "Mexico Today," in the July 1 sixtieth anniversary issue of The Nation. Calles says: "At present Mexico . . . needs and welcomes the entry of foreign capital. It will fully protect all capital that is willing to obey the nation's laws. These laws are not drastic and confiscatory."

FARCICAL TRIAL OF I. L. G. W. U., LOCAL No. 2 EXECUTIVE BEGINS; CARDS ARE STACKED BY MACHINE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK CITY, June 25.—Trial of the suspended officials of Local 2, International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, opened this morning at the Hotel Cadillac.

The defense is turning it into a trial of the official Sigman-Peristein machine. The defense demanded an open trial so that all the world to which charges had been broadcasted by the official machine should also know details of the trial.

The defense also demanded their own stenographer to record proceedings and challenged the right of Feinberg to present charges as the constitution provides that general officers cannot make charges against members.

All demands were refused by the Sigman-Feinberg-Peristein machine, except the right to have a defense stenographer. The trial began at noon with the reading of the charges.

Minneapolis Painters to Send Delegate

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BIDDEFORD, Maine, June 25.—The annual convention of the American Federation of Textile Operatives passed a motion endorsing the move of the Labor Defense Council to create a general national defense organization for the defense of all class war prisoners.

The convention instructed its incoming executive committee to cooperate with the organization that will be formed at the conference for Labor Defense to be held in Chicago on June 28.

The action followed a speech by Tom Bell, representative of the Labor Defense Council, who asked the convention to co-operate with the Labor Defense Council in its effort to unite all sections of the labor movement behind a great national organization for labor defense.

The closeness of the defense conference prevented the sending of a delegate from the Textile Federation, but the organization assures its closest co-operation with whatever decision the conference takes. The wage cut drive in the textile industry and

BUILDING DISPUTE NOT TO BE SETTLED BY A. F. OF L.; WORKERS SUFFER

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Settlement of the jurisdictional war between the Operative Plasterers' International Union and the Bricklayers', Masons' and Plasterers' International Union will not be attempted by the building trades department of the American Federation of Labor.

"We shall keep hands off," said Secretary Tracy. "This trouble is one which may prove costly, but we cannot settle it. Nor can we see how it can fail eventually to involve other trades when construction work is held up. But the building trades are a militant group, and they will keep going in spite of such disagreements."

Chicago Workers and Chinese Join Hands

The crowd of Chicago workers who filled the Northwest Hall Wednesday evening, to voice their protest against the imperialist oppression of the Chinese people and to demand that American armed forces be withdrawn from Chinese territory, was one of the most enthusiastic meetings held recently.

Continued rounds of applause greeted the speakers, especially the three Chinese speakers, who told in simple and forceful language the facts of the present upheaval in their great country of the east, and expressed eloquently the desire of their 443,000,000 countrymen to be the rulers in their own country and of their own destiny.

DUBLIN, May 30.—Thirteen months of wet weather and the absence even now of any sign of improvement compel attention to the grave prospect which confronts our people, especially th farming population.

Beginning in May, 1924, and continuing steadily since, the abnormal rainfall experienced in this country has already had three serious consequences:

(1) A ruined harvest;
(2) No turf supply; and
(3) Heavy losses of cattle and sheep thru the ravages of fluke and other diseases attributable to the flooded condition of the land.

These misfortunes fell with additional severity upon a people who from various causes inherent in the unfavorable conditions of the last three or four years had tasted little of prosperity for a long period.

Rain Continued During May

May, 1925, has been as wet as any month for the last twelve, and much worse than many of them. The result is that the soil is now in a sodden condition. While this is not immediately serious so far as most of the crops are concerned, it has had

CALL 300 CAP MAKERS OUT ON STRIKE IN N. Y.

NEW YORK, June 25.—Cloth hat and cap makers working in non-union and corporation or "social" shops are called out on strike by their international union, taking advantage of the strike of manufacturers against jobbers in the industry. About 300 workers are affected.

Nearly 1,500 are out of work as a result of the strike of manufacturers who want a higher rate on their contracts with jobbers. The union is paying unemployment benefits, $10 a week minimum.

The corporation shops are usually family or partnership shops where the workers exploit themselves and employ one or two outside workers. Conditions in such shops are unregulated and interfere with the enforcement of union standards in other shops. At its recent convention the union decided to take drastic action against these "social" shops.

LABOR PROTESTS AGAINST RULE OF IMPERIALISM

Workers Demand End to Reign of Bayonet

The Workers (Communist) Party of America during anti-imperialist week, June 27 to July 4, has called upon all working class organizations to join in a united front to demand freedom of the oppressed peoples from American capitalism.

The demands of the Workers Party include: the unconditional independence for the Philippines, Hawaii and Porto Rico; withdrawal of American troops and warships from China; withdrawal of U. S. forces from Latin-America; Hands off Mexico; the abolition of the Dawes plan, Wall Street's scheme for enslaving American and European workers alike; equal rights for Negroes and whites; and the demand for a labor party.

Meetings Arranged

Special articles will be carried in the Saturday, anti-imperialist issue of the DAILY WORKER, exposing the manner in which Wall Street, and its tool, the Coolidge' government, exploits the oppressed foreign peoples.

A special anti-imperialist number of the Workers Monthly will be issued, carrying articles from the pen of world renowed working class writers against American imperialism.

Meetings and demonstrations have been arranged by the Workers Party in various sections of the country, in which trade unions, the socialist party, the I. W. W., the proletarian party, and all farmer-labor parties have been invited to take part. All members of the Chinese Kuo Min Tang party and Filippinos and Latin-Americans residing in the United States have also been asked to join the united front against American capitalism.

Bosses Force Workers To March

The bosses, who are speeding up mobilization of the American workers to act as cannon-fodder for them during the coming capitalist war, are forcing the workers to take part in the July 4, "mobilization" military demonstration or lose their jobs.

In Illinois, as in the other states, scores of the large business concerns have ordered their employes to march in a Chicago parade to be held July 4. The bosses are getting some free advertisement out of the parade by forcing their slaves to march, and at the same time are attempting to prepare them to enter a new world war to protect their property and extend their markets.

Trade Unions Protest

Gov. Len Small, who is now before the state supreme court on charges of stealing millions of dollars from the state treasury, has issued an appeal on behalf of the exploiters, calling on the workers to support Coolidge in his "national defense test."

Many trade unions have already passed resolutions condemning the militaristic move of the Coolidge government, and calling upon the workers to fight the war propaganda of the American imperialists.

Labor organizations thruout the country have ordered bundles of the DAILY WORKER for distribution during anti-imperialist week.

The workers of Pullman will protest against American exploitation of oppressed foreign workers, at a picnic to be held on July 5, at which C. E. Ruthenberg, executive secretary of the Workers (Communist) Party, will speak.

WORKERS PARTY ROUTS SOCIALISTS WHO HIDE AFTER WORCESTER DEBATE

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WORCESTER, Mass., June 25.—Before leaving Foresters Hall Friday night, the chairman, Tom Conroy, secretary of the Worcester Central Labor Union, took a vote of the large audience that filled the hall at the debate between Comrade Max Lerner, for the Workers Party, and Alfred B. Lewis for the socialist party, on the subject: "Is the policy and program of the socialist party better adopted to secure the end of capitalism than that of the Workers Party?"

When Conroy asked, "All those in favor of the S. P. raise your hands," a few socialists exclaimed in unison: "Aw, what's the use, almost everyone here is a Communist!" One would really believe this after the more than five minutes of thunderous applause that greeted the last words of Comrade Lerner's rebuttal.

All For Communists.

Only a baker's dozen raised their hands for the S. P. But when the question was put, "Those in favor of the Workers Party," a forest of hands went up; so many, that no efforts were made to count what could be interpreted as an army of proletarians raising the multitude of fists against the betrayers of the working class.

Not one statement, taken from the mouths and the press of the socialists did their spokesman attempt to refute. Volley after volley of hand clapping and cries of "Step on him, Max!", "Go to him, Max, he's a traitor!" punctuated every point that Comrade Lerner drove home with sledge hammer blows.

The few socialists went home quarreling amongst themselves, while the united wrath of the yellows was heaped upon the head of their organizer, Lewis, for accepting a debate with a Communist.

Fail to Show Up.

This debate was the result of the Communist challenge to the socialists after being vilified by the latter on the local common where both, the socialists and Communists hold regular Sunday afternoon meetings. As a result of the defeat suffered at the debate the socialist party failed to show up at the usual meeting place on the common last Sunday.

Seeing that the time alloted the Workers Party was up and no socialist speaker in sight, Comrade Bloomfield continued with his talk last Sunday, and made good use of the time usually taken by the socialists.

The many copies of the DAILY WORKER sold, the interesting question period and good collection was ample evidence that the Workers Party has won the hearts and hands of the workers of Worcester.

The Struggle in the Shoe Unions

basis for the merging of the organizations discussed.

T. U. E. L. in Struggle for Unity

The results of these conferences were referred back to the local unions of the Protective and to the joint council of the American Protective Shoe Workers' Union, Inc. All those who follow the lead of the T. U. E. L. in the organisations fought consistently to continue the negotiations and to place them upon as broad a basis as possible.

On June 13 and 14, a conference was held at the McAlpin Hotel composed of the officials and delegates of the Protective and American union. In addition the independent local of cutters was represented and a delegate from the Amalgamated Shoe Workers of Lynn, Mass., who announced that he was present as an observer on account of the fact that most of the members of his organization in Lynn had decided to joint the Boot and Shoe Workers Union.

This conference was the most important yet held, it was the largest both because it was official, and because a number of rank and file delegates were present from both principal organisations.

Few Difficulties

The discussion on Saturday took place upon a document submitted by the Protective Shoe Workers Union. Much of it had already been accepted in the previous negotiations. The points in the proposed agreement which furnished the main obstacles to merging the organizations were: the autonomy of the New York district; the question of per capita tax; the manner in which the locals should be merged; the jurisdiction over new members; and the question of a convention.

The conference opened with a friendly feeling between the delegates but a distinct aspect of restraint and little enthusiasm. At the outset of the discussion, it was plain that most of it was merely fencing. However, as time wore on the points of disagreement as enumerated were discussed and finally referred to a sub-committee which was to report back the next morning. After the "observer" delegate from the Amalgamated at Lynn, reported on the situation in Lynn, the conference adjourned to meet again on the following morning.

Too Much Artificial "Agreement" —Lack of Desire

The session opened on the next morning with a surface appearence of agreement on the points in question. The sub-committee had an agreement upon the matter of per capita tax which apportioned two-fifths from the New York district to the international—in this case the Protective Shoe Workers Union.

To an onlooker there appeared to be too much of an artificial attempt at "agreement" without any real body to it based upon a mutual desire to really amalgamate. Events are proving that this impression was well founded.

When complete and apparent agreement appeared to be arrived at the conference adjourned with the understanding that the entire matter would be referred to the local unions, especially those of the American union.

Concealed Objections—Mostly Trivial

Now it appears that many of the objections which should have been freely made in the conference were not made there but were reserved for the local unions. It is being claimed by some in the American union that the document submitted by the Protective Union was not in accord with the points agreed upon at the conference, and with this and other inconsequential arguments the actual merging of both organizations may be delayed for some time longer.

To lay the blame for the failure to immediately merge upon one or the other organization would not be correct nor could it be borne out by the facts. Real concessions must be made by both sides before complete amalgamation will take place.

For A Movement of Members

The task of the T. U. E. L. in this situation, is to make of the movement one of mass dimensions so that the preasure from the rank and file becomes so overwhelming that apparent difficulties can easily be overcome.

Wage cuts are not at present threatened in the New York district, however, the T. U. E. L. with its campaign against wage cuts in the Shoe industry of New England is linking up all phases of the left wing movement among the shoe workers generally.

The rank and file of the shoe workers are coming to recognize that the T. U. E. L. is the real leader of the movement for amalgamation and a militant struggle against the employers.

MacMillan Accepts Navy Radio; Will Proceed to North

NORTH SYDNEY, N. S., June 25.—Donald MacMillan having acceded to the demand of secretary of the navy Wilbur for installation of regulation navy radio equipment on the ships of his arctic expedition, the work of placing the navy apparatus aboard the Tender Peary was started.

The destroyer Putnam brought the equipment from Wiscasset, Me.

Secretary Wilbur's preemptory order was flashed by radio to the MacMillan expedition after the schooner Bowdoin and the Peary had left Wiscasset. It was backed with a threat to withdraw navy men and airplanes from the expedition unless standard radio equipment was installed as well as the "short wave" sets which were presented to MacMillan.

It was believed the installation would be completed tomorrow, permitting the ships to sail on schedule to Battle Harbor, Labrador, the next stop on the course into the frozen North Seas.

Commander MacMillan said he was ready to comply in every way with the wishes of the navy department.

CAL'S SPEECH GOOD BUT TOO LONG FOR BOSS

Poor Fish Floats Around and Hears Things

By THE POOR FISH

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SWAMPSCOTT, June 25.—Everybody around here is talking of the great speech delivered by the president yesterday in reply to the address of welcome presented to him by the local babbitry. Here is it: "I am happy to be back in New England. I am grateful to the welcome the people have given me."

Some say it is a better speech than what Pershing delivered in France when he said "LaFayette we are here." Only William M. Butler criticised it. He said it was too long. "Cal" he advised "dont get in the habit of making long speeches. It is a dangerous pastime. You might say something you might be sorry for. The only people who can afford to make long speeches are those who have nothing to say. If you were not president and supported by able advisers like myself you could wear out your vocal cords, for all we would care. But you might remember some of my instructions and spill the beans."

Hints on Economy

Cal felt a bit sore. "Why, I'd make a longer speech than that if I was asking for the change of a nickel to tip my caddy" he said. Sure you would, said Butler "but that would be good politics, as the principal plank in your platform is economy. And you could make a long speech to the caddy, after you gave him the penny, telling him, that it is by saving his money John D. Rockefeller and others like him got rich. It's a different proposition however when you get talking about the 'people.' Charley Dawes might get sore and raise hell with the senate when the next congress opens."

Prefers Grass To Gym

Cal nodded sagely, pulled out a stick of chewing gum, looked at it longingly, replaced it in his pocket and then plucked a blade of grass which he began to chew. "Much cheeper than gum," he said, "and keeps the jaws busy." "That's all right" said Butler, "but you must be careful that Bill Wrigley does not get wind of it. Not that he cares whether you chew his stuff or not, but it would never do if it got into the papers that the president prefers grass to gum. Bill is one of our best fellows. Remember what he did to Hiram Johnson last year."

The faintest indication of a smile glimmered on the president's face, as he inwardly gloated on the way Wrigley summed up the Johnson political works.

"When did you see J. P.?" Cal suddenly asked Butler.

Butler started with surprise and asked: "What? For christ's sake did you hear anything?" Then followed the most amazing conversation, that I have ever heard since I first began to cover presidents.

Scratch Off Veneer and You Will See Hideous Face of Rockefellerism

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Rockefeller inspired wisdom tells the world that the general practitioner of medicine must turn more and more to preventive medicine. This would mean that disease should be prevented, rather than a cure sought after it had developed. That sounds good on the surface.

But scrape aside the hypocritical veneer that smears over every Rockefeller philanthropic effort and one finds the hideous contradictions in the "hell holes" of industry wherever Standard Oil establishes itself.

• • • •

It is only necessary to mention the terrible suffering and agonizing deaths visited upon workers in the New Jersey plants of the Standard Oil Company thru tetra-ethyl lead poisoning. Great profits pour from gasoline receiving this special treatment so why should the church-going Rockefellers, father and son, worry about workers going to early graves, dead from the effects of the so-called "looney gas."

Rockefeller's oil trust isn't worried about its murder of these workers, no more than it troubles itself about the long, enervating workday, the poor health conditions, the crowded housing conditions—all breeders of disease—that exist everywhere thruout the oil fields it controls and in and about the refineries it operates.

• • • •

Instead the "Rockefeller Foundation," subsidized with profits taken out of the oil industry, goes abroad looking for the hookworm in the South, yellow fever in South America and the ailments of the peoples of the Orient. The "Rockefeller Foundation" has funds for these charity purposes, but there is no Rockefeller money to lift the wages of its oil slaves to anything resembling even the average standard of living forced upon the American wage worker.

At the same time Rockefeller gold and Rockefeller methods are great mainstays of American capitalism that oppresses the unorganized workers of the South, eager supporters of U. S. imperialist rule thruout Mexico, Central and South America, while applauding the brutal exploitation of the peoples of the Orient.

While U. S. marines, with the usual Rockefeller blessing, are pumping steel jacketed bullets into the Chinese workers at Shanghai, Canton and elsewhere, the "Rockefeller Foundation" boasts of its "college, three schools and 17 hospitals in China."

• • • •

At the head of this Rockefeller "Foundation" sits Dr. George E. Vincent, typical goose-stepper of the American educational system, schooled in the oily University of Chicago, and for a time head of the University of Minnesota, known as the "Steel Trust" University. This is the Dr. Vincent who issues the "Foundation's" statement about "the effects upon health of diet, exercise, mental attitudes, recreation and family and social life."

But perhaps Dr. Vincent had the same persons in mind that President Cal Coolidge was thinking about when he urged the reading of John Greenleaf Whitter's poem, "Snowbound," as an antidote for the heat. It was not intended as advice to the steel worker before the flaming furnaces, the workers in the open under the sun's hot rays, the stokers who feed the fires under boilers that must generate steam the year around, in fact, to any of those who really labor.

The interests of the working masses, their health and general well-being, will not be the subject of sincere attention until the profit system of the Rockefellers, the Coolidges and the Vincents has been swept away. Only the social system of the workers—Communism—will safeguard and promote the interests of the broad producing masses.

When (he says) I get advice from high places, as I did recently from the minister for posts and telegraphs —"to till the soil"—I would like to take it, if possible. Given a New Zealand, French, Canadian, Australian, or an American climate, althought I am not conceited, I believe I could hold my end up against any man, but the Irish climate is like none of these.

I wonder if people occupying handsome offices and receiving large salaries in the metropolis have any idea of the real condition of agriculture in Ireland at present? In my district the crops are mostly in a sort of way that the average man would have been ashamed of a few years ago; but it could not be helped on account of the excessive moisture.

The fields have not dried out since last July... Hardly any turf is cut so far, because the spread grounds are covered with last year's crop or flooded with water.

ence, and S. P. Wong giving in detail the account of the present uprising and its beginning in the Shanghai strike of cotton mill workers against the Japanese imperialists.

These mill workers are driven at top speed for 14 hours or more a day, for a pay of about 50 cents a day. The strike movement, so brutally attacked by the British police troops, grew out of this, and the speaker appealed to the American workers' sense of class justice that the strike movement was fully justified. The wanton murders of the student demonstrators which followed, were explained in detail and the battle at Canton given a different view than that which is given in the capitalist press of America.

Soviet Russia—A Friend.

The only foreign government which treated China as an equal and as a friend, was Soviet Russia, declared S. P. Wong, and to the American workers he wished to give the appeal of the Chinese people, not to permit American collaboration with the hated British and Japanese in the present attacks on the Chinese liberation movement and possible intervention to prevent this great movement of all the people of China to rule their own land.

William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, gave a comprehensive history of imperialist oppression of China. Britain had forced the opium trade upon China, and doped and disarmed, the Chinese nation had become the prey of foreign robbers, plundering its resources and enslaving its population.

Comrade Dunne dwelt at length upon the national liberation movement headed by the Kuo Min Tang and its recently deceased founder, Dr. Sun Yat Sen. The liberation movement is profoundly important to the proletarian movement of class liberation.

The cutting off of western imperialism from its feeding grounds by the success of a movement for national liberation, would alone rock world capitalism to its foundation.

Identity of Interest.

Asserting the identity of interest between the oppressed nationalities of the Orient and the exploited proletariat of the western nations, Comrade Dunne declared his belief that the masses of China and the far east generally, would, shoulder to shoulder with the revolutionary proletariat under the banner of the Communist International, march together toward a new society, the first outpost of which is the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics.

The third Chinese speaker, C. T. Chi, speaking for the Chinese student club of the University of Chicago, brot the greetings and appreciation of his fellows to those American workers who are striving to awaken their class to the bond which should unite them with the bitterly oppressed people of China. Only upon the workers, and upon such friendly powers as Soviet Russia, the great nation ruled by workers and peasants, could China depend in its fight for liberation, for self-determination.

Spirited Conclusion.

Brief addresses were made by Barney Mass, secretary of the Young Workers' League and Manuel Gomez, secretary of the All-America Anti-Imperialist League. The meeting closed with a spirited singing of the Internationale, after adopting a resolution by unanimous vote, demanding that the United States government withdraw all armed forces from China, abolish the hated extra-territorial laws indemnify the families of the murdered students and workers already slain by foreign troops, punishment of those guilty of their murder, abolish the robber treaties of violence and recognise the complete independence of China as a sovereign nation.

NEW HAMPSHIRE TEXTILE MILLS CLOSE DOWN; THOUSANDS JOBLESS

MANCHESTER, N. H., June 25.—The Amoskeag Manufacturing Co., running big textile mills, is closing down its gingham manufacturing department, throwing many cotton goods workers out of employment. The greater part of Amoskeag's production is ginghams so that several thousand workers are affected by the shut-down. The Amoskeag department will be closed three weeks.

The York Manufacturing Co. of Saco, Me., is closing its mills for two weeks. Since April, when most of the New England mills were operating near capacity, there has been a steady decline of work and output. Massachusetts mills ran at 67 per cent during May on a 47-hour full week basis.

ILLINOIS COAL MINERS WORK AT REDUCED WAGES

Speed Up System Does Away With Union Pay

By TONY SHRAGAL.
(Worker Correspondent.)

JOHNSTON CITY, Ill., June 25.—The Illinois coal miners are supposed to be 100 per cent organized, but if we investigate, we find that some of the big Illinois mines are running at reduced wages in spite of all the talk of Frank Farrington and John L. Lewis about "no reduction in wages" and "no backward step."

I am living out on a farm, and there is a mine within a quarter of a mile from the farm working six days per week. Two men are loading from 35 to 40 tons of coal per day for $8.04 each per day. If these miners were loading by the ton at 83½ cents per ton they would make from $28.00 to $33.00 per day.

Real Prisoners.

Any blind man can figure out that these miners are working at a 50 per cent reduction in wages. This is only one example.

There is the New Orient, at West Frankfort, where the men work for the same wages. There is another mine near Mt. Vernon and if you want to get a job at that mine you have to buy a lot. Then when you go to work the company has 40 bosses over you in that one mine.

This mine also has a tunnel from the wash house to the shaft, and when the men get down into the mine the company locks the wash house and you don't go out until quitting time. You are a real prisoner.

Three Enemies

I know well that the men are not satisfied with such conditions, but there are three enemies to face. One is starvation, the second is the coal operator and the third is the Lewis and Farrington machine, threatening to remove the charters of militant miners locals.

Lewis has many times spoken about the differences in wages in the union and non-union mines. But when a man loads 30 tons of coal for $6.64 a day, that means only 41½ cents per ton, and that is as bad as the non-union pay in Kentucky, or W. Va.

Slaves Will Wake Up.

The time will come when these slaves will wake up and drive Lewis and company out of the unions, and get down to bettering their working conditions and wages.

GRAPHIC PICTURE OF CHINA ON THE EVE OF REVOLT GIVEN BY DAILY WORKER CORRESPONDENT

The DAILY WORKER publishes below a most graphic pen picture of Chinese masses in motion seeking liberation for their oppressed country from the iron tyranny of foreign imperialist domination and its corruption of servile Chinese government officials, especially those of the Anfu clique heading the present Peking government. The letter published today was written two weeks before the massacre of students by British troops at Shanghai, and the anger of the masses it portrays intensified and widened by that event.

By SINBAD.

PEKING, China, May 15.—(By Mail.)—Not many days ago the anniversary of the presentation of the 21 demands arrived and a national humiliation day was the result. There had been planned a general protest meeting of the students of Peking but by an order of the new minister of education the meeting would apparently not take place.

In spite of this order about four hundred students from sundry schools including christian schools came out and determined to hold the protest meeting. They attempted to gather and proceed with the meeting in Central Park, but were stopped by the police. Having been forbidden the use of the park they marched off to Coal Hill.

On Hunt For Traitorous Official.

There they passed resolutions of protest and proceeded to state them in person to the Minister Chang Shih-chao. They went to his office and were told that he was at home. At his home they were told that he was at his office.

Enraged, they were proceeding to enter the house when a squad of police arrived and one of the students was killed. The police arrested eighteen of the alleged leaders and the mob of righteously indignant students was for the time dispersed.

Masses Like a Living River.

The next day, Saturday, in the afternoon all the students of the east, west and south cities joined in the forces, and as the Far Eastern Times states: "The combined forces poured like a living river alongside the canal. Making their way due north for the government university, which lies under the lee of Coal Hill, masses of police deflected them, causing them to pour north, after wrecking a motor car which got in their way.

"As far as could be estimated the columns were a mile long and numbered about 3,000 in all, groups of women students being among them. As the men marched they uttered short, sharp cries, demanding punishment for those who had ill-treated their comrades on humiliation day. The effect of this massed shouting was extremely dramatic and awe-inspiring and great crowds soon lined every yard of their advance."

According to a report made by the committees representing the students there were forty educational institutions represented.

Still More—And a Speech.

On May 9 another demonstration was held at which even more students attended than at the others. Handbills were passed out and the following is a rough translation of one of them.

"Countrymen! Do you know what kind of a government we have?

"It is one which serves and obeys the orders of the Imperialists. It is one which tries as hard as possible to oppress the people, the masses, and endeavors to deprive the citizens of every right and privilege.

"When Thuan Chi-jui was in power before, he committed many treacherous deeds, and did many things in betrayal of our country. We hope that all of you remember.

A New Treason.

"When he recently took up the chief executiveship, he flattered and tried to please the French government by presumably settling the Gold Franc case, to the cost of more than a hundred million dollars to our national treasury. He is also planning to betray his country in other ways for the sake of fattening himself.

"The 7th of May marked the day when the Japanese government forced us to sign the 21 Demands. It is an unequal treaty and signed under duress. It should be considered the greatest shame on our country to submit to that government.

"Thus it is quite reasonable for thousands and thousands of our citizens to hold a meeting at the Tein An Men to impress on our minds the great humiliation inflicted on us by Japan.

Two Traitors to China.

"Unfortunately, Tuan Chi-jui, Chang Shih-chao, Chu Shen and several other officials, for the sole purpose of pleasing the Japanese, ordered armed policemen to guard the Tien An Men where we planned to hold the meet-

"The youth, the patriotic generation of our country, seeing their smallest liberty—that of holding meetings and organizing parties—prevented by the authorities, were greatly agitated.

"Moreover, if no demonstration be held, even on the National Humiliation Day, how can we call ourselves Chinese citizens?

"If we don't overthrow this kind of government, we can expect that it will carry out still more bitter and cruel acts against us . . ." and so on, concluding with the demand for severe punishment of "the murderers, Chang Shih-chao and Chu Shen, a boycott of Japanese goods, and the overthrow of the Pro-Japanese party, the Anfu clique."

FARMERS DEMAND RELEASE OF TWO RED SOLDIERS

Western Organization Condemns Child Labor

ANACORTES, Washington, June 25.—The Western Progressive Farmers of the state of Washington closed a very interesting and important convention here. Among the resolutions the association passed was a protest against the illegal sentencing of Walter Trumbull and Paul Crouch by the military court of Schofield barracks, Honolulu. The immediate release of these Communist soldiers was demanded.

A resolution to the effect that all land should be owned by the state and held by the user was passed. An emphatic condemnation of governor Hartley's stand for child labor was carried, the resolution stating that such ideas were a menace to our civilization.

A resolution condemning the squelching of proceedings against Fall and Sinclair in the Teapot Dome Scandal was passed. Norman Tallentire, district organiser of the Workers (Communist) Party, was granted the floor for thirty minutes, and was well received.

The name of the organization was changed to Western Progressive Farmers and Producers.

Curlee Strikers Are Arrested and Passing Sympathizers Beaten

ST. LOUIS, Mo., June 25.—The Curlee clothing strikers are standing firm in spite of intense and brutal persecution from the St. Louis police.

There have been so many arrests lately that it is almost impossible to keep count of all of them. A number of sympathizers also have been beaten up and arrested for merely expressing their sympathy with the strikers while passing by the shops.

The other morning copies of the DAILY WORKER were distributed to the strikers at their strike meeting. It was enthusiastically received by all of them. Some even took extra copies to give to their friends.

The T. U. E. L. invited all the strikers to a lawn party and dance held recently. A fair number of them attended and enjoyed the program. Special attention was given to the speaking, in order that all might go away with a better knowledge of militant unionism.

WRANGEL WHITE GUARDS, CARED FOR BY LEAGUE OF NATIONS, ARE NOT WANTED BY PARAGUAY WORKERS

BUENOS AIRES, June 25.—The plan to bring the anti-Soviet Russian refugees who fought the workers and peasants govrenment in the army of "General" Wrangel, to Paraguay, has been opposed by the newspapers of Asuncion.

The league of nations has set up a special mission to care for these white guard refugees, headed by Col. James Proctor. Proctor traveled thru Paraguay for a month, and favored the plan to take the Wrangel troops there.

PROVE BRITISH DELIBERATELY MASSACRED CHINESE FOR MANY DAYS, THUS STARTING REVOLT

PEKING, China, June 25.—Facts about China! The DAILY WORKER gives herewith a declaration issued by the professors of the government University of Peking, China. In view of the growing menace of armed intervention on a scale of war upon the Chinese people by foreign imperialist powers in which the American imperialist government is assisting in the massacre and oppression for their race and country, the workers of America would do well to read this damning document of facts. It follows:

Peking Professors' Manifesto.

"The tragedy which has taken place in the international settlement of Shanghai has filled the Chinese nation with horror and indignation. However, facts have been invariably distorted by different agencies for different purposes.

"Seeing that misrepresentations would not only aggravate the injustice done to the dead and the living but may also tend to ferment other grave conflicts between the Chinese and foreigners, we feel it our duty to give the facts for the information of the world at large. Those who think with us that international harmony and justice are desirable will not fail, we trust, to pay due attention to the matter.

Facts Are Clear.

"The facts are clear enuf. Strikes of Chinese workers, demanding increase of wages, had been going on for some time in the Japanese cotton factories at Tsingtao and Shanghai, and a striker was shot and killed by the Japanese without any justifiable cause. Against this brutal act some Chinese students, who were merely young boys and girls, paraded as a manifestation of protest in the streets of Shanghai on May 30 last. They were armed with nothing more than pamphlets and handbills.

"The police of the international settlement, which are practically under the complete control of British officials and consul, not only saw fit to prohibit the demonstration but also arrested a number of the students taking part in it. Then the rest of the students went ot the police station demanding the release of their fellow students.

"Shoot to Kill" Was British Order.

"The police ordered them to disperse. As they refused to go, a British police inspector ordered, "Shoot to kill." Six of the boys were killed on the spot and over forty were seriously wounded. This did not, however prevent the defenseless students from repeating their demonstration, so the firing of rifles and machine guns continued by the British-controlled police for at least six days.

"The exact number of casualties is still unascertainable, but most reports show that at least 70 were killed and 300 wounded. They were all Chinese and not a single British or any other national apears on the casualty list.

Deliberate Murder Lasted Six Days.

"Would any right-minded people regard these boys and girls as rioters and treat them to rounds of machine-gun bullets? Could their manifestation be reasonably interpreted as "anti-foreign" or "Bolshevized," as some foreign-owned news agencies suggested? Were not the acts of the authorities deliberately committed, considering the fact that they did not cease for a period of six days? Why did not the British and Japanese ministers in Peking give instructions to stop the killing immediately if they did not approve or countenance it?

Questions Demanding Answers.

"These are the questions we want only to submit and not to answer. The people in Europe and America might think it unbelievable that officials of civilized governments could ever commit or countenance such infernal acts, but explanations can be easily found if one realizes that foreigners in China have long been privileged by stipulations of unjust treaties and thereby have lost such sense of moral and legal responsibilities as their fellow-men hold in their home lands.

"Now bitter feelings prevail among all classes of the Chinese people. Strikes in British and Japanese factories and boycotts against British and Japanese goods are spreading thruout the country. The ministers and consuls of Great Britain and Japan are still trying and may continue to try to uphold their prestige by their rifles and gunboats, but would their fellow-men at home allow them to go on with this kind of atrocities? Would not the common conscience of mankind demand to have the wrong-doers punished and the wrongs righted?

WORKERS PARTY ATTACKS BILL TO GAG WORKER

Rochester Bosses Woul End Street Meetings

By SOL HOROWITZ.

ROCHESTER, New York, June —An ordinance in essence forbiddi the Workers (Communist) Party a other radical organizations from ho ing street corner meeting was intr duced in the common council chamb here, and a public hearing was he with many liberal and labor uni representatives registering their p test against this "iniquitous" measu

The protests were many but of bourgeois character. The bill w termed unconstitutional, unjust, a so on. Even one of the proletari party representatives, Carl Schne protested only on the ground that t ordinance was "unreasonable, unco stitutional, and unjust."

The air became tense when Co rade Samuel Essman took the floo He announced to the bosses' too that he represented the Worke (Communist) Party. "We are at a times opposed to this capitalist sy tem," Comrade Essman said. "We a opposed to the system which engend ers unemployment, wars, and suffer ing to the working class.

"We are opposed to the despatchin of American troops to China, to gu guard the interests of the America imperialists. We use the street co ners and other means, to carry ou message to the working class. If yo take this means away from us, w shall carry our message to the wor ers in spite of you. You may ja some of us, but you cannot preven us from exposing this rotten system before the workers."

The commissioner of public safety in attempting to defend the bill charged that a proletarian party speak er had called Calvin Coolidge a thief.

PROFESSOR OF "U. OF C." GIVES POINTERS ON HOW TO INCREASE NUMBER OF IMMIGRANT CITIZENS

Dr. Harold F. Gosnell of the University of Chicago has made a study of non-naturalization. He has made a survey of more than a thousand foreign-born persons to learn the cause of unsuccessful attempts at naturalization.

Take Out First Papers.

He reports that most aliens make an attempt to become citizens of the United States. He proves this by a list of figures showing how many aliens have declared their intentions, but failed to complete naturalization because of ignorance of the language and of the requirements for taking out their second papers.

The report also carries recommendations. They are the recommendations that only a professor of a capitalist institution of learning can be capable of. They do not recommend the reduction of hours of labor by law so that immigrants may have more leizure to learn the language of the country they have adopted, so that they may acquaint themselves with the form of government whose laws they must obey. The professor undoubtedly believes that in ignorance of workers there is bliss for the exploiters. So he recommends that the questions be brot down to the level of the immigrants' present knowledge.

London Times Lies.

PEKING. (By Mail.)—The "Dantsig" correspondent of the notoriously anti-Soviet London Times reports in a message circulated by Reuter that an uprising has taken place in White Russia, giving the phantastic figure of an insurgent army of 60,000 men, allegedly headed by some non-existent general.

Rosta is authorized to state that the correspondent of the Times has published a piece of news which is a gross fabrication.

PERLSTEIN'S ARTICLE OF 1922 RISES TO DAMN HIM NOW is not done. The only ones who use the present unemployment are the capitalist papers, together with the capitalist owners. They naturally, have proposed one way of solving the problem of unemployment, and that is that the worker should receive smaller wages and work longer hours. The union leaders differentiate themselves from the bosses in the solution of the question of unemployment. And they have another means—and that is to eliminate the lefts of the unions. With that the whole problem is solved for them.

The Yellow Press.

"From the wide masses so far, we have not heard what they have to say on this question. But it is possible to hope that they will have a different point of view. If the authors of the articles who have undertaken to deal with the question of unemployment in the Jewish yellow press would have considered seriously the problem, then we would have nothing else to do but support them in their work. But because their main point is to eliminate the lefts from the union, it is worth while that we should talk over this matter, so that we clearly understand this affair.

"What, for instance, do the lefts want? They say that the union can only be powerful when the wide masses of the organization are drawn into the work of the union, and when they will interest themselves in the problem. In order to carry that thru they propose one union of the many split-up locals. Secondly, the shop delegate system. Third, an unemployment fund. Before we consider what these three points would mean to the working masses, let us consider the present organization form of the union, how it is now.

"For instance, the joint board of the cloakmakers consists of ten locals. Each local has its own appointees, its own bookkeeping, and carries thru its own policies. If you should ask anybody in the union what are the functions of those different locals, not one will be able to give you a clear answer to the question. Because the work of organising the shops belong to the joint board, the work of settling differences between the workers and the bosses is also the work of the joint board.

"The work of taking in new members, only God knows the truth, that the membership committees of the different locals are more occupied with keeping out members than taking them in. So you see that there is not one function which the local as such should have to carry thru. And naturally, therefore, there are no justifications for their existence.

The T. U. E. L. and Amalgamation.

"It is therefore, natural that because the locals have no important work to accomplish all that is accomplished there is the creation of a local patriotism. And also small politics. This brings to it, that every joint board meeting is continually occupied with the politics of the locals, instead of the interests of the workers in the shops. Therefore, the Educational League, which has taken for its objective the organization of the left elements in the unions, issued the slogan for the amalgamation of the different locals. It has been shown before that from such an amalgamation the union can save a quarter of a million dollars a year. This is a purely internal organizational work, and therefore reflects very strongly on the activity of the organization.

"Then comes the second point, the shop delegates system. The lefts show that in the present organizational form of the union only 10 per cent of the membership participate in the consideration of the different questions before the organization. Because in a local which consists of 15,000 members, at most a couple of hundred attend section meetings, and they even have no chance to discuss shop questions, because they have no possibility to carry thru their decisions which they make at the sections, for the reason as above explained, that shop questions can only be carried thru by the joint board as a whole.

"The membership therefore finds itself in a position that whatever they should say at the section meetings they know beforehand that it is of no use.

Shop Delegate System.

"We therefore propose that instead of this, the union should be rebuilt on other foundations, where the worker will feel that his considerations and dealings with questions in which he has a vital interest will have a chance to be carried thru, or least will be taken into consideration. We therefore, put before you that the shop delegate system should become a legal institution, which should be able to make decisions for the workers in their shops where they have a chance to be acquainted with the shop questions of their fellow workers.

"And if we should take into consideration that only the shop delegates themselves would be a bigger mass than all of the present membership of the locals who attend the meetings, you can immediately see what kind of achievement it would be for the organization. At the same time the shop delegate would be directly responsible to his fellow workers in the shop and at every shop meeting the workers could judge if he represents their interests or not. The result of that would be that the tens of thousands of union men would be directly interested in the problems of the trade as well as the problems of the shop. And it would also abolish the suspicion existing between the masses and their representatives. This would also give the shop delegate more responsibility. It would create in the union thousands of members who would be interested in the general union work.

Officials Hated.

"It is no secret for anybody that the present institution of business agents is hated by the workers. Not only do the workers hate their officials, but officials also hate the workers of the shops. This does not come from the fact that the officials are good or bad. It only comes from the fact that the workers do not understand the officials, and the officials have no possibility to understand the workers. This is because the workers in the shop are hurt by many small incidents that happen from day to day and which he considers of great importance, but the official, being out of the shop, cannot feel the conceptions of the workers on all these questions. And from that comes a division of the forces, instead of unity for the general work.

Unemployment Insurance.

"The left elements have also proposed unemployment insurance fund. That means taking into consideration that most of the needle trades, and especially the cloak trade, are seasonal industries which work only about six months per year, and the rest of the year the workers go around hungry, so the left elements propose that there should be created an unemployment insurance fund which should make possible for the worker to make a living in the industry which uses him and his work when it needs him. Lefts argue that just as the manufacturer who makes cloaks six months a year, prepares himself that he should have rent to pay the whole year, he should also have for all his other necessities, for the designer and all other emplyoes, who he employs the whole year, so the cloakmaker cannot see why there is not created a way in which he should be able to live in the industry the whole year.

Sin of Being Farsighted.

"The above mentioned questions, the lefts proposed, not when the knife was at the throat, but quite a while back. They have agitated among the membership for these propositions and all the attacks which are at present made on the lefts is only because they had the courage to take up problems of the membership, before the officials of the union thot about it. And for the sin of being foresighted and proposing certain reforms in our organization, about which the right did not interest themselves, the hatred against the lefts is now so strong. And they, the rights, are justified in being so angry, because the masses can truthfully ask what has the organization with their leadership done in order to meet the present crisis?

"But in order to confuse the minds of the mass of the workers, who do not account to themselves on many questions within the organization, the rights show them the victories of the union and want them to believe that the left elements desire to destroy these accomplishments. The truth is that many of the fundamental accomplishments of the union, such as week work and other improvements, were established in the cloak industry in spite of their leaders.

Two Birds.

"In the articles which were written lately in another Jewish paper on this question, they recount among the great accomplishments of the union a few things which the union has not accomplished, things which according to them would bring harm to the cloakmakers. That is, that the cloakmakers' union has not established any standards of production. Naturally, this question has little to do with the problems under consideration. Only since the president of the cloakmakers had to kill two birds with one stone, that is Peristein from Cleveland on the one hand and the Amalgamated officials who are for the standards of production on the other, so they therefore drew in the question of standard of production into the same discussion.

"It is not our purpose to defend the standard or any other method of production. But it is necessary, once and for all, to put the question in a proper light and eliminate the whole part therefrom, which is being demagogically used by many elements. Among them many lefts can be figured in.

Standards of Production.

"It is asserted that the standard of production would be a greater misfortune for the workers than week-work without a standard. 'Because,' says the author of the articles, 'the Cleveland cloakmaker has a standard and also has no work.' So it would be possible to turn around and say that New York has no standard and also has no work, and in such a demagogic way dispose of the question.

"But the story runs this way: That not everywhere where there is a standard is it bad, and not everywhere where there is week work is it good. Take for instance steel workers who work week work and complain very much about their hours. It is said by the way that they work seven days a week, twelve hours a day, and get very pitiful wages. Here you have one form of week work for which we cannot be very enthusiastic.

Fancy Arguments.

"Now we will take a form of standards: Jewish linotypers, for instance, have a standard. That means every man in the linotypers' union must be able to set up a certain number of lines in order to get the scale of wages. The linotypers work six hours per day and their wages are not so bad. In comparison with the workers in the other trades they cannot complain. How does a cloakmaker say: 'We can only wish the other workers were as well off as they'? And so we have a standard here which it would not harm for all workers to have.

"And so you see the question of standard or week work has nothing to do with the question. That means you can work week work and be bad off, and it is possible to have a standard and have a good union and wages should not be bad.

"They also praise themselves that in New York there is no standard. In one particular that is true. That is, they have no standard as to how much they must make, but there is a standard how little one dare not make.

Peristein "Makes It Clearer."

"Let us make it a little clearer: When a worker works by week in an industry where there is no standard established, works as easily as possible when he feels assured about his job. But when there are ten waiting for his job, when he knows that the boss can get his work cheaper, if he will not make as much as the boss thinks he should make, then it is no question how easy he should work because he is confronted with the question how hard he must work in order to satisfy the boss so that he should be kept on the job.

"But as was said, this question does not belong here to this subject, and I only touched on it superficially, in order to show how demagogic serious problems of the trade are dealt with, and how serious they are when they attack the left or opponent—from whichever side he may be.'"

STORY OF IRISH FAMINE TOLD AT BOSTON MEETING

Speakers Score British Imperialist Rule

By GEORGE KRASKA.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

BOSTON, June 25.—One thousand workers gathered around the Parkman Bandstand on Boston common last Sunday to hear the story of the situation in Ireland, at a mass meeting held under the auspices of the local section of the Irish Workers' and Peasants' Famine Relief committee. The principal speakers were John P. McCarthy, who was in Ireland recently and Tom Bell, acting district organizer of the Workers Party in New Engand.

McCarthy told of the failure of the potato crop owing to the heavy rains and in addition to this the peat bogs were flooded making it impossible to dig or dry the peat which is the main source of fuel supply on the west coast of Ireland.

Tom Bell gave a very stirring and constructive talk on the reasons for the existing conditions in Ireland in particular, and the rest of the workers in the world in general. Bell in his speech quoted Lloyd George, "that Ireland is a dagger pointed at the heart of England," he appealed to the audience of over a thousand that were present, to help put that dagger into the heart of English imperialism by helping these Irish workers and peasants in this great hour of need. The great applause from the mass of listeners in answer to Bell's appeal showed the approval of the andience, that British imperialism must be crushed.

Support the Famine Victims

Winfield Dwyer, who ran for secretary of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts in the last election on the Workers Party ticket and polled over 26,000 votes, urged American workers, whether men or women, brain or brawn workers to rally to the support of the famine stricken workers in Ireland and also to the workers of the world, for solidarity.

Dr. H. A. Gibbs, as chairman of the meeting, stated that it was the duty of the Irish workers to remain loyal to the revolutionary traditions, and unite with the rest of the workers of the world against the common enemy, the exploiters, thus helping others by helping themselves. He also announced that the permit for the Parkman Bandstand on the common was issued, with the understanding that no collection was permitted, that being the rule, he informed the andience that a committee will distribute a small pay envelope and for them to put in their contributions as they feel able to, and then pass them up to the committee on the bandstand. One of the features of this appeal was a single donation of $100 from Miss Harriet G. Flagg who was on the platform as an invited guest of the committee in Boston.

To Overthrow British Rule.

Michael Moore, financial secretary of the local Irish relief committee, also spoke and made a very urgent appeal to the Irish workers, and also all workers no matter of what nationality to help Ireland free itself from British imperialism. Citing the American revolution in 1776 as an example of the revolt against British imperialism, and urged that Ireland will also be helped by the American workers to fight and throw off the yoke of Britain and establish a workers' and peasants' government.

Literature on the Irish famine was distributed freely and the meeting adjourned very hopeful as to the help the Boston workers will be able to give the Irish workers and peasants. A permit for a flower day will be applied for at once and also house to house collections will be undertaken to raise as much funds for the famine stricken in Ireland as possible.

Dr. H. A. Gibbs of 376 Boylston St., Boston, is secretary of the local committee for Irish relief.

OUR PUBLICATIONS - On the Periodical "Les Cahiers du Bolshevisme" (Communist Party of France)

(CRITICAL BIBLIOGRAPHY)

Extract from a letter sent by the Agitprop Department of the Executive Committee of the Communist International to the Central of the Communist Party of France*)

THE publication of the "Cahiers du Bolchevisme," of which five numbers lie before us, induces us to offer you a few hints which we think may be likely to aid you in the organization of your theoretical organ.

Some preliminary remarks:

The "Cahiers du Bolchevisme" claim to be the "theoretical organ of the Communist Party of France (Section of the C. I.". This imposes certain duties upon you, no less than your acknowledgement (see No. 3, page 129) of the truth of Lenin's words: "No revolutionary movement without revolutionary theory." This means that your periodical should form the mirror, theoretical but not abstract, of every problem confronting the C. P. of France today and in the immediate future.

In the introduction in No. 1: "To the reader," we find the following passage:

> "We are no Communists unless we assimilate the teachings of that ideal thinker and incomparable leader Lenin, the sole real interpreter and successor of Marx, and unless we do this not merely literally but actually and completely. For this is the teaching whose sole aim is the attainment of one great goal: the completion of the social revolution and the establishment of the dictatorship of the proletariat, to the end that Communism may finally be realized."

THE general trend of these ideas is right, but we miss a realization on the part of the editors that in France the struggle for Marxism and Leninism should be mainly concentrated on combatting the theoretical backwardness of the French C. P., and that the Bolshevization of the Party demands above all a tho revolutionary Marxist tretament of the problems facing the French proletariat and the French working peasantry.

This same editorial introduction, when speaking of the "Bulletin Communiste," mentions no other fault of this paper beyond its having published more articles by Trotsky than by Lenin. We read further:

> "The 'Bulletin Communiste' of yesterday made an attempt at the scientific Marxist preparation of its readers. But it did this in an inadequate and fragmentary manner, almost verging on dilettantism. And above all it accorded Leninsm a very subordinate position, to all appearances the corner reserved for poor relations."

We are of the opinion that the new "Cahiers du Bolchevisme" share at the present time in the error of providing inadequately for the "scientific Marxist preparation of their readers," for they deal little or not at all with French life and the tasks of the French proletariat in theory and practice. It must be said that your periodical gives the impression of tending to neglect French tasks and French questions. In this respect the "Cahiers du Bolchevisme" are no improvement on the last number of the "Bulletin Communiste," in which we find at most theses or brief reports on French questions.

IT need not be emphasised that the struggle against opportunism is an international one, and that the theoretical organ of the French C. P. must keep the French proletariat informed with regard to its development and progress. But the success of the international fight against opportunism depends chiefly on a successful ideological combatting of opportunism within the individual section and in the camp of the working class of the individual country. Stated concretely, in the struggle against Trotskyism it does not suffice by any means if we convince the French proletariat that the French C. P. is carrying on this struggle brilliantly. The most important point is to show the working classes of France that the French C. P. is capable of carryinf the struggle further, and of forcing a decisive combat against all adversaries, above all against the social patriotic traitors in the French section of the Second International.

Altho the French party acted unanimously and determinedly in repulsing the Monatte, Rosmer Delagarde opposition, still your theoretical periodical should have made a detailed statement of the actual bases and fundamental roots of the differences between the party and Rosmer group. We must first understand the opportunism obtaining in our own country, and prove ourselves capable of forming a correct estimate of it and combatting it energetically, before we can understand for the party to reject the opportunism of the Rosmer group, however unitedly. Opportunism must not only be rejected, it must be fought. And more than this: the whole party must take part in the fight, not merely the heads of the party or even merely the political bureau alone. We must go still further: the whole of the French proletariat, not omitting the syndicalist and social democratic workers, must learn the real nature of the struggle in the French C. P., the avowed vanguard of the French working class.

BOLSHEVISM has grown and become stronger in Russia itself chiefly in the course of a continuous struggle against every description of opportunism and every nuance of un-Marxist tendency. And how have the Bolsheviks conducted this struggle? Not merely by referring to Marx and Engels, but by the simultaneous, comprehensive, thoro, and concrete Marxist analysis of every contested Russian problem both in the sphere of theory and of practice. The Bolshevism of the French C. P. will only become a true Bolshevism after it has adopted the same methods for France, and after the French bourgeoisie and their social democratic footman have accustomed themselves to recognizing in the Bolshevism of the French party a revolutionary force and danger arising out of the depths of the French proletariat.

Another necessary factor for the realization of this aim is a firmer connection between the revolutionary fighting ideas of the Communist movement in France today with the glorious revolutionary struggles of former epochs of French history. Just as the Bolsheviki are proud of being the executors of Russia's champions of liberty, the French Communist worker should be proud to look back upon the great revolutionary movements which have been enacted by the exploited classes of France, and which are enshrined in the history of France from the times of Hebert and Babeuf to the times of the heroic champions of the Commune.

AN important point on the agenda of the coming party conference of the French C. P. is "The ideological struggle against pacifist idealism (Jauresism) in the C. P." This is an extremely important point. You are right in laying special emphasis upon combatting Jauresism as one of the first necessities of the fight against opportunism, for Jauresism is a pacific idealism.

But the struggle against Jauresism should not be confined to fighting political pacifism, but must extend to the philosophical idealism of Jaures, Proudhonism and Sorelism. The French proletariat should be given a clear idea of this struggle by means of a determined fight against every description of fashionable French idealism (Bergson, Duhem, Renouvier, Poincare, etc.) The present is an eminently suitable moment for the wide dissemination of Paul Lafargue's excellent materialistic writings. You must demonstrate that Renaudel, Longuet, Frossard, and their like have no right to refer to Lafargue; you must show how they are not only political traitors, but are following theoretically in the footsteps of Eduard Bernstein, deserting to the camp of the reactionary idealistic, bourgeois French philosophy.

The fight for the dialectic materialism of Marx and Engels signifies the development in the proletariat of that revolutionary viewpoint and that revolutionary theory without which there can be no revolutionary Leninist vanguard. But again we repeat that on French soil the first necessity of the struggle is the fight against every variety of French materialism. (It need not be said that this does not exclude, but rather include, propaganda for materialist works already translated from the productions of other nations, or the undertaking of translations of materialist writings from other languages.)

WE make a brief summing up of what appear to us to be the main defects of your periodical:

1. A lack of articles characterizing the concrete tasks to be accomplished by the French C. P., economically, and ideologically.

2. Entire lack of collaboration on the part of leading French comrades. (With the exception of Comrade Treint.)

3. A complete lack of information for the readers with references to current French politics, the attitudes of the various parties, parliament, etc.

4. A lack of clear and precise delineation of the tasks involved by the Bolshevization of the French C. P., in view of French actuality and French tasks.

5. The lack of a bibliography of French literature, books and newspapers.

And now our advice:

1. The Cahiers du Bolshevisme must be made into a French theoretical fighting periodical, the contributions being predominantly French.

2. The periodical must carry on an intense and comprehensive propaganda for the Bolshevisation of the party in the sphere of theory, the actual problems of the France of today being held in view. For this purpose the editors must secure as far as possible the services of French collaborators.

3. A theoretical Communist organ must accord a maximum of attention to Marxism (Leninism) in the sphere of philosophy (dialectic materialism), to political economy, to sociology, to history, and to the latest achievements of natural science. Belles letters and art should also be represented by Marxist criticism of the works of influential writers and artists.

4. The periodical must publish efficiently reasoned articles exposing the class character and class policy of Herriot's government, unmasking the policy of the French socialists, the imperialist colonial policy of France, its role in the league of nations, etc. This should not be done in a general form, but by a constant criticism of every actual step taken by our class enemies.

5. The periodical should carry on thoro propaganda for revolutionary parliamentarism. This should be done not only by reference to examples of revolutionary parliamentary politics in other countries (Bebel and Wilhelm Liebknecht 1870, Bolshevist Duma fraction 1914, Karl Liebknecht 1914, German C. P. parliamentary fraction 1924, Repossi in Italy, November 1924, Lanzucky and Vassiltschuk in Poinad, December 1924, and so forth), but by throwing light upon all revolutionary tactical questions connected with revolutionary parliamentarism in France at the present time (methods of mass mobilization, line of conduct to be pursued by deputies outside of parliament, and so forth).

6. Bolshevism means relentless self-criticism and severest self-control.

THE periodical should therefore march at the head of every endeavor to expose the weaknesses and faults of the C. P. of France. Enthusiasm and propaganda for worthy slogans is not sufficient, the party must learn to lay its hand in every instance upon the weak spots hindering the realization of the slogans in every stage of development. Decided and candid self-criticism is the best antidote to Rosmerism.

7. Special attention must be devoted to the trade union question. Here too the specific problems of the French trade union struggle must be dealt with in concord with the general directions laid down by the C. I. and the R. I. L. U. The question of the standpoint and tactics of our trade union fractions should be dealt with in the periodical by comrades playing a leading role in the trade unions.

8. The slogan of: "Go to the masses," without which no Bolshevism gets further than paper, must be concretely elucidated from every possible aspect in the periodical. Not only must the party attitude toward the broad masses of the working class still outside of the party be discussed, but at the same time the ways and means to be adopted for gaining their allegiance to other parties. The question of agitation and propaganda among the workers, among the various classes of the peasantry, civil servants and private employes, the intelligentsia, women, and youth, must be accorded special treatment. The peasantry question in particular must be given careful discussion.

9. The periodical should devote special attention to the various varieties of French chauvinism, not omitting the fascist reaction extending its organization under the leadership of Millerand, and should expose its class character and its economic roots.

10. The struggle against Trotskyism must not be carried on solely by means of the propagation of articles and writings translated from the Russian, but should be aided by a detailed criticism of the French allies of Trotskyism. The conflict with Monatte, Rosmer, and Delagarde must be so conducted that the workers of France are thoroly enlightened as to the fundamental differences between the French C. P. and this group. The passing of resolutions does not suffice for this.

11. The Cahiers du Bolshevisme should be written in a more powerful and vivid style. Even theory should be so treated as to arouse the interest of the more advanced French workers.

12. Information given to the French proletariat on the successes and the fighting problems of the Russian C. P. and the Union of Soviet Republics attach special importance to showing how the economic situation of the proletariat has been improved.

13. Your periodical should follow the example of the old German Marxist periodical, the Neue Zeit, and publish supplementary numbers dealing with questions of the day in politics and science, if possible in literature and art as well. (Translations from the Russian might be employed here, in so far as the subjects and treatment are sure of gaining the interest of the advanced French workers.)

IT might at the same time be made possible for the periodical to issue a monthly supplement (again similar to the monthly supplement to the old Neue Zeit. This should be devoted specially to philosophy, problems in natural science of general interest (the atomic theory, evolution, Darwinism, cosmology, etc.), belles lettres and art. (The Bolsheviks, especially Lenin, have always attached the greatest importance to the application of orthodox Marxist criticism to these subjects. Lenin himself [Georg Plechanov, L. Axelrod, and others also devoted attention to this line of work] wrote three briliant articles on Leo Tolstoi, besides articles on Alexander Herzen and others, and a whole book on dialectic materialism.)

14. The Cahiers du Bolshevisme should possess correspondents in the most important sister parties, so that the periodical is in constant receipt of brief synoptic articles, comprehensible to the advanced French worker, on important questions and stages of development in the sister parties in question.

15. Your periodical must maintain close and constant contact with the agitation and propaganda section of the central of the French C. P.

16. The editors should secure the permanent collaboration of the best theoretical men in the party.

LIBERALS OF NEW YORK QUIT SOCIALIST FOLD

Pick Preacher, Society Worker and Labor Faker

By WILLIAM WEINSTONE.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK, June 25—The desertion of the socialists by the laborite progressives was revealed at the sham labor fusion conference Saturday night when the nominations of candidates were made to head the city ticket. Not a single member of the American laborite group was included among the standard bearers of the ticket. The candidates nominated: Norman, Thomas, Joseph Beardsley and Harriet Stanton Hatch are all members of the socialist party.

This action confirmed what appeared obvious at the opening of the convention when the appointment of committees on credentials and rules failed to include Jerome de Hunt who was formerly associated with the farmer-labor party which merged into the American labor party and one of the signers of the call for the fusion convention. De Hunt Lefkowitz and similar "progressives" were not at all present at the convention. The socialist machine made every effort to cover up this desertion of the progressives by refusing to read the names and organizations present at the convention.

The desertion is an echo of the break between the socialists and the progressives at Chicago in February. The separation of the progressives and their formation into an independent political group headed in New York by Colonel Fisher, a prewar patriot and Hopkins of the committee of 48 fame has had its effect upon the socialist and progressive alliance which made up the American labor party.

Just as Yellow as Ever.

The break, however, has not made the socialists any less reformistic. The nomination of the Reverend Doctor Thomas as standard bearer of a party claiming to stand upon the platform of the class struggle, of Harriet Stanton Blatch, a setlement worker for controller and Joseph Bearsley a labor bureaucrat bitterly fought by the workers of his union as a class collaborationist for the office of Boro president indicates clearly that the socialists are completely in the morass of opportunism and seek every opportunity to make their party a good, innocuous middle class organization. The desertion of the progressives completes the picture of the desperate opportunistic folly of the socialists in the last election in abandoning their organization influence and socialist candidates for the "progressive" LaFollette and war patriot, Major La Guardia. The socialist party has lost even the faintest spark of class consciousness and no longer makes any pretext of disguising its desertion of revolutionary policy.

The socialist candidates will meet with as little enthusiasm as the convention showed in making its nominations. The Workers Party candidates are to be nominated within the next few weeks and the slogan of a labor party will be revived by the workers with corresponding enthusiasm.

"HANDS OFF CHINA!" MEETING AT YOUNGSTOWN, O., HELPED CREATE SOLIDARITY AMONG THE WORKERS

The "Hands Off China" mass meeting held here, again demonstrated the growing solidarity of the workingclass. On the platform with the speaker, William F. Dunne, editor of the DAILY WORKER, and member of the Central Executive Committee of the Workers (Communist) Party, were four members of the Kuo Min Tang party, all young Chinese workers and followers of Dr. Sun Yat Sen.

William F. White of Girard, O. presided as chairman. The spokesman of the Kuo Min Tang party opened the meeting and pleaded for a square deal for the oppressed Chinese workers, peasants and students now battling the armed forces of the imperialist nations of the world. Wm. F. "Bill" Dunne greeted the Kuo Min Tang committee in behalf of the Workers (Communist) Party and pointed out the significance of the events now taking place in China. In the past such events would hardly been noticed by the capitalist press, but today they are featured on the front page. Russia under the czar was a bitter enemy of China, but today Soviet Russia occupying one-sixth of the earth's surface stands side by side with the oppressed workers and peasants of China and together they control the destiny of the entire world and if the Chinese workers and peasants throw off their imperialist yoke the downfall of the rule of imperialist nations is certain to occur.

Resolutions pledging solidarity with the oppressed Chinese workers, peasants and students were adopted by a rising vote. They were in part as follows:

Resolved, by this mass meeting of workers and citizens assembled in Youngstown, Ohio, at 525½ West Rayen Ave., on Sunday, June 21, 1925, that, we hereby unanimously protest against the use of American armed forces as strikebreakers against the Chinese workers, students and peasants, and that we demand the immediate withdrawal of all armed civilians, naval and military forces from Chinese territory thereby ending this present unwarranted interference with the legimate aspirations of the struggling masses in China, and

Resolved, that copies of this resolution be sent to Secretary of State, to the Chinese legation, to the Kuo Min Tang and to the labor press of the United States.

William T. White,
Chairman of the Meeting.

PROGRESSIVES QUARREL OVER 'BOB'S' MANTLE

G.O.P. Machine Expects to Capture Wisconsin

WASHINGTON, June 25.—What is to become of the progressive bloc in congress, now that it's leader, LaFollette, has passed away? This question is causing considerable speculation in the capitol and everywhere thruout the land.

There are some who believe that the triple blow dealt to what was known as the "LaFollette movement" in the deaths of Warren S. Stone, LaFollette and Senator Ladd of North Dakota, puts that movement definitely under the sod politically. But there are others who hold that this is a superficial view and while not minimizing the great influence of personalities, they point out that the social groups on whom LaFollette based his campaigns against the dominant wing of the republican party, must and will find leaders to represent them.

Holding on by Faith.

That the loss of LaFollette is a serious one to the third partyites is undoubted. Stone was a cautious backer and Ladd a not too loyal supporter. The outstanding figures remaining in the senate are Senators Norris and Brookhart and the latter only holds his seat precariously.

While LaFollette was sometimes able to secure the support of Senators Borah, Cousens, Johnson of California and others of that type, since the last election, even sme of "Bob's" most ardent supporters have been acting suspiciously. Senator Frazier is reported to be making overtures to the G. O. P. with a view to getting back into the fold.

Progressive Disharmony.

Rumors of serious disagreements in the ranks of the republicans are spreading. It is no secret that the G. O. P. wizards are looking on the hitherto impregnable fortress of Wisconsin with a hungry eye. Governor Blaine, like Barkis, is said to be willing to talk things over with the Coolidge machine. Blaine is a machine-man and much more conservative than LaFollette.

The first point now on the progressive agenda is to find somebody who will fill LaFollette's seat in the senate. Some suggest that Mrs. LaFollette be handed the vacancy. Others suggest "Bob's" son. It is generally agreed that Blaine holds the whip hand. The socialist organization is a complete wreck and nothing of it remains but Berger's personal following in Milwaukee.

Senator Ladd's death makes a G. O. P. gain in North Dakota possible. The leadership of the congress progressive bloc has passed for the moment to Senator Norris.

SOVIET UNION PROTESTS AGAINST STEALING OF EASTERN RAILWAY LAND BY CHINESE GENERALS

PEKING.—(By Mail.)—The following note was presented to the Chinese foreign minister by Soviet Ambassador Karakhan, with reference to the unwarrantedly arbitrary conduct of Chinese local authorities in the three eastern provinces in respect to the Chinese Eastern railway. The note states:

"The Chinese Eastern railway, built as it was with the money of the Russian people, is actually an enterprise under Soviet-Chinese management. This latter circumstance should have served for a guarantee that all measures would be taken both on the Soviet and the Chinese side to consolidate and further an enterprise in which there are involved the interests of both states.

Cause Heavy Losses.

And yet the first few months' practice has shown, unfortunately, that far from doing anything to promote its further development and prosperity, the Chinese local authorities have been systematically encroaching upon the existing property of the railway, their actions causing the latter to suffer direct heavy losses.

"Now, the question of the future disposal of the lands belonging to railroad arose in the course of the Soviet-Chinese negotiations in 1924, when the statute of the Chinese Eastern Railway was dealt with. As an outcome of the said negotiations, the following provision was embodied in Article IX of the agreement signed at Peking on May 31.

Agreement Violated.

"The governments of the two contracting parties agree to settle at the aforementioned conference the question of the Chinese Eastern Railway in conformity with the principles as hereinafter provided:

...."Landed property (with the exception of lands required by the said railway)—shall be administered by the Chinese authorities.

"Accordingly, the following things were required for putting into effect the provisions embodied in the first paragraph of Article IX of the Peking and the first paragraph of Article I of the Mukden agreements, in their parts, referring to the lands of the Chinese Eastern Railway:

"1.) An understanding between the parties as to exactly which categories of land, being required by the railway as a commercial enterprise, should be left with the railway. 2.) An understanding, too, as to various conditions and settling of accounts bound with the passing over to the Chinese government of the remaining lands. 3.) A practical delimitation of lands, this operation, as in accordance with the usual and natural practice, to be performed on the spot by mixed commissions, after the question has been settled on general lines.

"I had raised the question of calling a commission for these land affairs, but no reply was received to my proposition. Later at a sitting of the board of directors of the Chinese Eastern Railway, on January 12, with the participation of the Chinese and Soviet members of the board (Protocol No. 3,228), the following decision was adopted without a dissenting vote:

Commission Necessary.

"'1.) To ask the president and vice-president to report to the government of the Republic of China and to the ambassador of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics in China, respectively as to the necessity of instituting an official commission of representatives of China and the union, to effect the delimitation of lands which are to be alienated from the Chinese Eastern Railway and those which are to be left with the railway as required by the latter for its needs of technical and economic exploitation.'

"The above decision is thoro evidence to the fact that the calling of a special commission was recognised as the sole possible modus of settling the land question not only by the Soviet membership of the board of directors of the railway, but by the Chinese government itself, in the persons of its official representatives on the board. As I fully shared this viewpoint, I immediately appointed Mr. Grandt, consul general of the U. S. S. R., at Harbin, to represent me on the said commission.

"It might have been expected that thereafter the settling of the question would proceed in a normal way, while any arbitrary seizure of land by the Chinese authorities, who are absolutely not entitled thereto by the existing agreements, seemed to be out of the question.

Seize Lands Illegally.

"Unfortunately, however, the Chinese local authorities, ignoring my proposition and the decisions adopted by the board of the railway, chose to act in that illegal manner. The Chinese authorities under the office of the commander-in-chief of the special area of the Eastern provinces and the land department of the special area have, with the assistance of military and police institutions, been systematically undertaking raids on the lands of the Chinese Eastern Railway, threatening and forcing the leaseholders of the railway to pay rent not to the proper authorities, but to the cash officers of the land department of the special area of the Eastern provinces, destroying the experimental fields of the railway, and, in some places, seizing even station lands.

"Mr. Tsai Tuan-sheng's appointment had no effect in stopping the arbitrary conduct or the acts of violence of Chinese authorities in respect to the railway, on the contrary, even quite recently, these actions have assumed an outrageous character.

Karakhan Protests.

Tsai, feeling powerless against the military, has been declining to take any measures there against. The result is that the party of the Chinese Eastern Railway is now, as it was heretofore, subject to acts of violence and illegal conduct of the Chinese administrative powers, incidents involving the seizure of such lands or other acts disorganizing the economic and normal run of affairs on the line being events of almost daily occurrence.

"Bringing the foregoing to your notice, I must protest in the most energetic manner against the unlawful acts of violence which are committed by Chinese authorities counter to the existing agreements, and insist on all attempts at an arbitrary solution of the question being stopped, pending its settlement by decision of the commission mentioned above.

(Signed) L. Karakhan."

COMFORT CLUB INDORSES JUNE 28 CONFERENCE

Prisoners' Birthdays in July Given

MILWAUKEE, Wis. June 25.—The Workers' National Prison Comfort Club from its headquarters in Milwaukee announces thru its secretary, Cora Meyer, that it will be represented at the labor defense conference to be held in Chicago, June 28. Since it is one of the aims of the conference to devise means for thoro and systematic distribution of material comforts to all class-war prisoners, the Prison Comfort Club has enthusiastically endorsed the conference and pledged its support.

In issuing dates of July birthdays of class-war prisoners, the Prison Comfort Club feels assured of greater response in the forms of post-cards, gifts, and money to the prisoners due to the interest being aroused in them as the result of the calling of the conference. The birthdays are announced as follows:

At Represa, California, Folsom prison, July 4, Warren Billings; July 26, James Price.

At San Quentin prison, San Quentin, California, July 17, Frank Baily, No. 37647; July 26, H. R. Hanson, No. 38-114; July 30, Joe Varela, No. 38133; July 30, Wm. Minton, No. 38134.

CALL FOR MASS DEMONSTRATION ON JUNE 27-28

Canadian Communists Aid Nova Scotia

TORONTO, Ont. Canada, June 25.—The Communist Party of Canada, has issued a call to all working men and women of Canada to demonstrate throughout Canada on June 27th and 28th and demand the recall of the troops sent against the Nova Scotia miners who have been on strike against the British Empire Steel cororation. In part it is as follows:

The General Strike Against Military Coercion!

"If the miners are crushed, we are all crushed. The capitalists will do with us as they please. What are the means the workers have at their disposal to compel the evacuation of Nova Scotia? If the railroad workers had refused to transport the troops, the military would never have got as far as they have. If the Trades Congress were as much as to register its intention to call a one day general strike throughout the country, it would go a long way to forcing the government to back down.

"But Moore and Company are in office not to help the workers in a mighty crisis such as the present. They are there to sabotage all possible action. That is why Moore has announced that a general strike which in the eyes of every class conscious worker is the plainest necessity is in his eyes futile. Moore is afraid of the power of labor. Moore is president of the congress because he serves the capitalists in just such a crisis as this.

"Working men and women! Despite Moore's sabotage—demand through your union and trades council the immediate convocation of the Trades Congress to deal with this great emergency of the working class! Demand a general strike to compel the withdrawal of the government troops.

"Working men and women! Prepare for the nation-wide demonstration on Saturday and Sunday, June 27th and 28th to protest against the invasion of Nova Scotia by the military!

"Demonstrate for the withdrawal of the troops!

"Demonstrate for the right of the miners of Nova Scotia to a living wage!

"Demonstrate for the nationalization of the mines!

"Down with the capitalist government and Besco!

"Central Executive Committee, Communist Party of Canada."

In addition to the call for mass protest at the use of troops to break the strike of the coal miners of District 26, U. M. W. of A., the official organ of the Communist Party of Canada, the Worker, carries an appeal to these troops, as follows:

Explains the Issues.

"Soldiers and Comrades! You have been rushed down to Nova Scotia without perhaps understanding just why.

"The facts of the matter are quite simple. You are told that it is your duty to maintain "law and order."

"But the government and your officers don't tell you that this the "law and order" they ask you to defend is the "law and order" of the capitalist system and capitalist state—that it is the "law and order" of a profit system, the "law and order" of the British Empire Steel Corporation, the "law and order" that gives the children of our class under-nourishment and under-education.

"In Nova Scotia thousands of mine workers have been fighting against just this kind of "law and order."

"The fight of the Nova Scotia miners is a fight against a ten per cent wage cut, against lock-outs and unemployment. It is a fight for a living wage.

"You will see the misery of the Nova Scotia miners for yourselves on the spot.

Demand Withdrawal.

"Great numbers of these miners themselves were soldiers in the world war. They will never fight in a capitalist war for markets and profits again no matter what lovely lies about "saving civilization" and "fighting for democracy" are woven about its imperialist aim. The only war they will willingly take part in is the class war of the workers to destroy capitalism.

"Therefore Comrades and soldiers, demand your immediate withdrawal from the Nova Scotia strike area! See to it that the miners are given the unhampered right to picket freely in the interests of the struggle for their daily bread.

Disobey Unjust Orders.

"Refuse to carry out any orders interfering with the miners' freedom to picket. Tell your officers that the government cannot use you to break strikes!

"Fraternize with the workers, the men and women of the working class—your class!

"Up with the class union and solidarity of the workers and soldiers against capitalism and the capitalist government."

Tell other workers what happens in your shop. Write a story and send it in to the DAILY WORKER. Order a bundle to distribute there.

BUILDERS AT WORK

CAMPAIGN COMING TO A CLOSE

Only Five More Days Remain!

The second annual campaign is nearing to a close. Some thousands of new subs have been added to make the DAILY WORKER a greater weapon of the American working class.

Those Builders and those Communist locals who have made this splendid show of Communist activity will be fully spoken of and complete results tabulated for the special Anti-Imperialist number of July 4. But—

SOVIET UNION TO AID PEASANTS INCREASE CROPS, KAMENEFF SAYS

MOSCOW. (By Mail)—In his report to the Third Congress of Soviets on the condition of agriculture in the U. S. S. R. Kameneff, Vice-President of the Council of People's Commissaries and Chairman of the Moscow Soviet, stated that the government's policy in this domain was to extend economic assistance to the poorer peasants through uniting them in co-operative societies and granting long-term cheap credits—with which object in view the government had increased up to a hundred million rubles the capital of Agricultural Bank of the U. S. S. R.

Further, the government had removed and was removing obstacles to the free economic development of the farming class of population, doing it with the object of increasing the goods turnover in the country at large. It had diminished the agricultural tax by a hundred million rubles at the same time raising the communal budget by a like amount—especially for cultural agricultural needs.

Peasants Get Forests.

The government had also handed over to the peasants forests of local significance; granted facilities in the conditions of hiring agricultural laborers; lowered industrial prices, thus securing to the peasants the possibility of selling agricultural produce at such a remunerative price as to leave them supplementary means for strengthening their husbandry.

Export of Crops Increases.

The speaker declared that the exportation of agricultural produce, which in the current year, should the prospects of this year's crops remain the same as they are now—will be greatly increased, the conditions in the world market being favorable to the export of such products, is to be organized in such manner that the producers will themselves receive the larger part of the gains, which will increase their interest for developing the cultivation of agricultural produce most demanded abroad.

A member of the congress delegates who joined the discussion following Mr. Kameneff's report expressed high satisfaction with the present course of the government's policy in the domain of agriculture.

Build Soviet Stations on Pacific.

MOSCOW—The Central Hydro-Metereological Bureau of the Central Board of sea transport will be working this summer in the Azov, Black, Caspian and Baltic Seas, as well as in the Pacific, studying the littoral sea-currents and the river alluviums, as well as the littoral atmospheric currents. The problem of the observed rises and falls of the Caspian Sea level will also be studied on the spot. Four new hydro-metereological stations will be built on the Pacific coast.

SOVIET-LATVIAN PACT SIGNED ON EXPORT OF FLAX

MOSCOW, (By Mail.)—An agreement has been concluded in Moscow between the representative of the Latvian government, Mr. Heimans, and the People's Commissariat of Foreign Trade of the U. S. S. R. about joint work of Latvia and the Soviet Union for the realization of flax on the foreign markets.

The flax exporting organisations of the U. S. S. R. are intending to sell in the foreign markets during the next six months from 13,000 to 15,000 tons of flax, and the "Latvian Flax Monopoly" about 5,000 tons.

"The Latvian Flax Monopoly" intends to export flax through Riga and Reval, and the Soviet flax-exporting organizations through the Leningrad port; but these organizations wish first of all to sell the Soviet flax, which is already stored abroad.

The exported flax is sent to England, France, Czecho-Slovakia, Germany and to some other countries of Western Europe.

The foreign capital, English in particular, is financing the flax-export operations of the U. S. S. R. to the amount of 50—60 percent of the total sum of the exported flax.

Get Out of China!

An American gunboat carries British troops who are to aid in suppressing the strikes of Chinese workers beginning in Japanese textile mills in Shanghai, and which has spread to every city in China which has a foreign population living under extra-territoriality laws.

Meanwhile the capitalsit press of the United States, even those papers like the Chicago Tribune, which are lukewarm towards adventures in the Far East, in their news stories attempt to inflame the populace by distorted tales of the dangerous position of white women and children in the foreign districts of Chinese cities.

The American state department has said not one word on the Chinese situation, but by its silence it condones the part taken by American sailors and marines in the murder of Chinese workers and students.

This attitude of the American government is the more outrageous in that it has no excuse for such conduct. It has no leased territories as have Great Britain, France and Japan nor has the strike been directed against any but Britsih and Japanese interests. The activity of American imperialism in China can be explained only by what must be its intention to take advantage of the present situation to establish itself more firmly there. By its support of the aggressions of Britain and Japan it forfeits any mistaken friendship the Chinese people might have had for America and it follows necessarily that it intends to fight its way to a position of domination over the bodies of Chinese workers and students who oppose the combined forces of British, Japanese and American imperialism.

The struggle for Cuban and Philippine independence gave American imperialism an opportunity to grab these islands. The Mexican revolutions were utilized to extend its control into Latin-America. The world war was the period chosen to seize Haiti and it seems that the fight for freedom made by the Chinese masses with the resulting upheavals again gives American imperialism a chance to enter China as one of the conquering nations.

Great Britain has her hands full in China and now comes news of a revolt in Bengal along the northern frontier of India. France also has her troubles in China while the Moroccan war absorbs her energies in Europe and Africa. Japan, with the growing strength of the labor and anti-militarist movement at home, is in no position to act hastily in China.

The powerful and increasing influnece of Soviet Russia in China is shown by the declaration of the executive committee of the Kuo Min Tang party which states categorically:

> There is only one people who deal with China as an equal. This is the people of the Union of Socialist Soviet Republics. We must work together with the U. S. S. R. for the liberation of the Chinese people.

Here is a new reason for American intervention in China. This declaration by the Kuo Min Tang was undoubtedly adopted after consultation with the representative of Soviet Russia. It is a sign that the leaders of Soviet Russia, the Communists, are convinced that the time for such an open statement had arrived. Lenin advised against giving the national liberation movements a "Communist or quasi-Communist character" in their early stages and this statement, because the colonial policy of the Soviet Republics is the policy of Lenin, is proof that the Chinese liberation movement can now afford to appear as part of the movement for liberation of all the peoples of Asia which Soviet Russia leads.

Much has been said of the influence of Soviet Russia in China, but we doubt if even the imperialists realized before the tremendous power and confidence in its power that this declaration symbolizes.

The declaration of the Kuo Min Tang is a challenge to world imperialism to do its worst.

The most uncompromising enemy of Soviet Russia in the imperialist camp, the United States, can no longer afford to be a passive spectator of the world shaking events that are taking place in China.

What the secret agreements with Great Britain and other powers are we do not know, but that they exist scarcely can be doubted. We know their concrete application in the transport of British troops by an American warship.

The American working class must do two things at the same time:

They must demand the publication of the results of the machinations of Secretary of State Kellogg while he was ambassador to Britain and they must also demand and enforce the withdrawal of all American forces from Chinese waters and Chinese soil.

These demands must be made to stop the murder of Chinese workers. They must be made also because four nations, even in the face of the need for a united front against the advance of the revolution in the colonial and semi-colonial countries, cannot operate in a field so rich as China without a world war arising out of the imperialist rivalries.

The Furiers' Union Speaks

The demonstration of unity by the Furriers' Union, described in our story yesterday, was a real working class answer to the deposed bureaucrats, the bosses and the traitorous socialist party crew that have been trying to wreck the union.

Seven thousand members of the union left their jobs at the hour specified, filled three huge halls, listened to speakers outline the plans for strengthening the union, pledged support to the program with enthusiastic cheers and showed by their numbers and unanimous approval of the fighting policy put forward that the membership of the union is solidly behind the left wing leadership.

The old days of machine control, bulwarked by hired gangsters, have passed. The old bureaucracy would never have dared to call such a meeting for such a purpose.

The strength of a union is in the rank and file. To make the membership conversant with all the affairs of the union, to have them recognize it as their instrument, to close the breach between officials and membership, to create a flexible but powerful weapon of offense and defense, to instill the spirit of class consciousness into every member, to make the union an instrument of class power, is the task of the left wing leadership and it looks like a long step in this direction has been taken in the Furriers' Union.

AMERICAN PROFITEERS URGE ARMED INTERVENTION BY UNITED STATES IN CHINA

Great throngs gathered at the inclosures where memorial services were held for the Shanghai dead.

But the important item of interest is yesterday's two notes from the Chinese foreign office addressed to foreign powers.

Hit at Old Treaties.

One, regarding treaty revision, was addressed to the ministers of the imperialist powers concerned in the Washington treaty, and the other, regarding the negotiations over the Shanghai massacre, was addressed to the ministers concerned in the negotiations over the Shanghai massacre, was addressed to the ministers concerned in the negotiations.

The first note refers to the growing demand of the Chinese people for a revilson of the treaties, contending that they are ancient, based on a different situation than exists, and were, when concluded, signed only by reason of force exercised upon China by imperialist powers, and without China being permitted to discuss them fully and freely.

"While these inequalities and privileges exist," the note argues, "they will remain causes of disaffection and are apt to produce friction and distrust, which disturb cordial relations."

The note further declares that at the time China was "persuaded" to join the allies in the war against Germany, the Chinese people were told by the allies that they could expect an improvement in the status of their government in its relation with foreign powers.

Find Allied Promises Empty.

The Chinese government, similarly to the working class of the allied countries, has evidently found that the promises of the allied government of "democracy" and other fine things pledged to gain support for the imperialist war, were all empty promises, make deliberately to trick them into the struggle.

For the note of China sets out that China is "greatly disappointed because its status has not been improved as promised, while in some respects it is even inferior to that of the defeated nations."

Against Territorial Privileges.

Only by an abolition of the territorial privileges, declares the Chinese note, can better protection be provided for foreign interests upon the basis of more cordial relations.

Upon the Shanghia situation, the Chinese government asserts that justice cannot be done unless the imperialist powers at least discuss, as they refused to do at Shanghai, the thirteen provisions of the demands formulated there. The Chinese government re-iterates them as follows:

The Thirteen Points.

1. Cancellation of the state of emergency in Shanghai.
2. Release of the arrested Chinese.
3. Suspension of punishment of the offenders pending investigation.
4. Compensation to the families of the dead and wounded and also for the damage sustained by laborers, merchants and students.
5. An apology.
6. "Rendition" by the mixed court.
7. Reinstatement of strikers.
8. Improvement of labor conditions.
9. Chinese participation in the municipal administration.
10. Retrocession of the municipally-built roads outside the foreign concession.
12. Chinese liberty of speech, publication and assembly.
13. Dismissal of the secretary of the municipal council.

Situation at Canton Tense.

CANTON, China, June 25—The stuation is tense following the slaying of 30 and the wounding of 70 Chinese students and workingmen paraders by gunfire from foreign troops.

The civil governor, (Chinese) of Canton, in a note to Sir James Jamieson, British consul general, charges that British troops, followed by French marines and the French gunboat Altair, began the firing.

The note points out that all preparation for slaughter was made by the foreign troops, the Chinese remaining peaceful. Two gunboats, one English and one French had been posted at the bridges across the Pearl river separating Canton from the foreign settlement on Shameen Island. All approaches to the island were fortified with sand bags and machine guns. French sailors were placed in battle formation on the fortifications beside British troops. In addition, the British consul general had warned foreigners not to leave Shameen yesterday and go into Canton, as firing was probable.

Marchers Were Unarmed.

Firing did begin, the note points out, when the parade of Chinese students and workers, unarmed and peaceful, appeared marching along the Bund. When the paraders reached a point opposite the Victoria hotel in the British concession, British and French marines began firing. The fact that so many Chinese were killed and wounded was sufficient proof that they had been shot down without warning and wantonly by foreign troops who were not endangered nor obliged from the circumstances to take such measures. That two foreigners were later killed was merely the result of the first provocation.

The foreign troops had been especially provocative against the Chinese who stood at the gates of Shameen picketing to prevent the entrance of any Chinese servants. But the pickets had ignored the provocation and all trouble followed the firing from the British concession upon unarmed, peaceful paraders.

Sir Jamieson replied to the note accusing the Chinese of firing first.

WORKERS SEIZE POST OFFICE IN PARIS STRIKE

Telephone Operators Out in Sympathy

PARIS, June 25.—Striking postal clerks today seized the central post office in Paris, and barricading themselves within the building, refused entrance to the postal authorities. The postmaster called upon police reserves to disperse the strikers and reopen the building.

Without warning telephone service thruout Paris ceased functioning when eigtheen hundred operators stopped work out of sympathy for the mail clerks who are striking for higher pay.

It was reported they later returned to work, but the report was not confirmed.

JUDGE REFUSES BAIL TO KLAN RAPER IN IND.

NOBLESVILLE, Ind., June 25.—D. C. Stephenson, former klan leader in Indiana, Earl Klinck and Earl Gentry must remain in jail until they go on trial for the alleged murder of Miss Madge Oberholtzer.

This became certain when Judge Fred Hines in Hamilton county circuit court this afternoon refused to admit the accused men to bail.

Sikh Soldiers Taken from Shanghai

NEW YORK, June 25.—Sikh soldiers formerly stationed in Hongkong and Shanghai are not being trusted by the British authorities to shoot at the Chinese textile mill strikers and sympathizing students, accordng to information received by Sailendra N. Ghose, national director Friends of Freedom for India, who wired to the China Press and to a Sikh organization to urge Sikh troops not to shoot Chinese as the Sikhs were shot at Amritsar.

"Representatives of the nationalist movement of India in China and Japan are in touch with Sikh regiments in Hongkong and Shanghai," the message to Ghose states. "In several cases Sikh soldiers refused to obey the order to fire on the strikers, and, as a consequence, their whole regiment has been transferred to unknown destination and new regiments are replacing them."

FRANCE TRIES DESPERATELY TO ADJUST FINANCE

Inflation Is one of Caillaux' Proposals

PARIS, France, June 25.—The cabinet with Premier Painleve presiding today voted unanimously to rush thru parliament with the least possible delay financial "reform laws," requested by Minister of Finance Caillaux.

The cabinet also adopted the general "reform principles" suggested by Caillaux but postponed adoption of the texts of the proposed financial reform measures until tomorrow when another meeting will be held at which President Doumergue will preside.

Caillaux recommended among other plans, a limited and temporary inflation of the currency for the purpose of anticipating revenues to be raised from taxes this year but as yet unpaid. The inflated currency would be withdrawn as taxes are paid in.

As he left the cabinet meeting M. Caillaux refused to indicate which of the proposals had been approved by the cabinet.

After the approval of the definitive text of the proposed measures at the cabinet meeting to be held tomorrow the finance minister will lay the bills before the finance committee of the Chamber of deputies. It is expected they will be reported out to the chamber on Saturday with such recommendations as the committee may decide upon.

N. Y. JUNIORS ENLIST ADULT COMRADES' AID

NEW YORK, June 25—The pressing problems that are facing the Junior Section of the Young Workers League at the outset of the summer cannot be met and faced by our Juniors unless they have the united support of all the militant workers of the city. We are sure that all the adult workers of this city are ready and willing to lend the greatest possible support to the movement of the working class children—but for this support to be effective it must be organized. For this reason, the Young Workers League is calling a series of Section Meetings for parents and relatives of Juniors and for all adults interested in a real proletarian children's movement.

The meetings which will start at 8:00 p. m. sharp will discuss the many important problems facing the children's movement here—especially the question of a Junior Camp at Camp Nitgedayget for which we have succeeded in making arrangements.

All parents and relatives of Juniors,—all workers interested in the proletarian children's movement—should be there.

AMERICAN ARMY OFFICERS AID WAR ON MOROCCO

Red Cross Aids French

The American Red Cross has cabled a contribution of ten thousand dollars to the French red cross to be used to aid the wounded French soldiers. Thus an American semi-governmental agency is contributing toward the French invasion of the Riff country.

Major Hodges, American military attacshe, has visited the Spanish military camps of Nador, Larache, and Arzila in Morocco, accompanied by General Riquelme, Pasha Driserriffa and Pasha Arzila.

Socialists Display Bankruptcy

The bankruptcy of the French socialists was again displayed in the French chamber when Premier Painleve challenged the socialists to offer a solution whereby peace could be restored in the Riff "without the dignity of France suffering." The socialists maintained silence, and voted for Painleve's Moroccan proposals.

For six hours, from five until eleven p. m., amid great uproar, the Communist deputies held the speakers rostrum, demanding the evacuation of Morocco by the French.

CONFERENCE OF SHOE WORKERS AT BOSTON SUNDAY, JUNE 28th, TO RALLY FIGHT ON WAGE C

lower wages as a step toward "steady work."

B. and S. Allied With Bosses

The bosses have fine allies in the officialdom of the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union in this campaign. In Lawrence the local has been placed in "Local O," and the factories are shutting down. In Brockton every local of the B. and S. has been placed under "Local O" while unemployment has hundreds of workers in its grip, and the bosses use the situation to cut wages.

In Lynn the bosses brought in the Boot and Shoe as a preparatory step toward cutting wages. Altogether the Boot and Shoe officialdom is a fine weapon of the bosses against the workers.

All Out to the June 28 Conference!

In this situation the great task is to gather the militants of the rank and file together to supply leadership to the workers against the wage cutting campaign. As a preliminary step in this direction a conference of militants in the boot and shoe industry has been called by the International Amalgamation committee of the Shoe and Leather industry for Sunday, June 28, at 2 p. m. at 93 Staniford St., Boston.

At this meeting the question of a conference of representatives of the rank and file of the shoe workers of New England will be taken up and plans drawn up for the holding of such a conference.

A Biginning of Campaign

Militant show workers from Lawrence, Peabody, Brockton, Chelsea and Boston will be present at the conference. The conference will be the starting point for a drive among the shoe workers on the issues of the fight against wage cuts and amalgamation.

The conference will lay the basis for a really representative conference of all New England shoe workers which will become the center of the fight against the bosses' offensive on the standard of living of the workers.

The following letter has been sent by the International Amalgamation committee of the Shoe and Leather industry of 14 Leverett street, Boston, to all local unions, shop committees, factory representatives and militant unionists:

wanted to prove that "Bolshevik gold" was being used to create disturbances in the capitalist countries, they had to show where the Bolsheviks got the money. They got it of course by selling the crown jewels and by robbing the poor nobles! But that "loot" has been spent long ago. Where do they get the money they are spending in China, Morocco, India, as well as the millions we are told comes into the coffers of the Workers Party? Can it be possible they are getting it out of the profits of business?

WHILE the capitalist nations are quarreling among each other for markets and the capitalist groups inside each nation are fighting for supremacy, the workers and peasants of Russia are increasing their efficiency and proving by action that the producers can ruin industry without the aid of the capitalist leeches. From all accounts industry in Russia is advancing by leaps and bounds. The oil industry has passed the prewar production standard and the same is true to a more or less extent of the other industries. When a country with a low standard of industrial development like Russia can march forward in this fashion under the rule of the workers and peasants what could not be accomplished in countries like Germany, Britain, France and the United States?

• • •

BRITAIN is actually waging a war against Soviet Russia. Speaking in the house of commons, Chamberlain said he has proof that the disturbances in China were fomented by agents of another power. He was referring to Russia of course. London dispatches also tell us that the Soviet government is now running Afghanistan on the borders of India and is using that country as a headquarters for a revolutionary campaign in India. It is characteristic of a thief to fear that everybody is plotting to get the drop on him. This is the mental condition of that gang of pirates who run the British emprie.

• • •

IT was not the activities or the agitation of Communists, either Russian or Chinese that caused the present revolt in China. It was caused by the brutal and inhuman treatment of the Chinese by the imperialist powers, chief of whom is Britain.

BRITISH LABOR FA[illegible]RISIS NEARS CLASH WI[illegible]LOYERS; GOVERNMENT TUR[illegible]WN UNIONS

(Special to The D[illegible]

LONDON, June 26.—Pressed [illegible] the unemployment resulting from the Dawes Plan, and with the employers taking every advantage to attack the unions in a sweeping campaign for the "open shop," the British unions face a crisis of the gravest character.

On Tuesday the joint inquiry into industrial conditions conducted by the representatives of the Miners' Federation and the coal mine owners, broke up when the operators stated that on June 30 they would give formal notice that on July 31 they would no longer conform with the existing agreement with the coal miners' union and would insist on an increase of hours and a decrease in wages.

Want to Break Seven Hour Law.

Since the miners' seven hour day is written by the law of the land, the operators are confronted with the necessity of forcing the miners to accept a longer day than the law permits—or the alternative of geting it changed. And it is doubtful that even the tory government wants to challenge labor so flagrantly as to introduce a measure lengthening the miners' work day.

But the menace is real enuf to the

AS WE SEE IT.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE revolt of the masses in the colonies of the imperialist powers is causing deep concern among the ruling classes of the world. Every capitalist government is between two fires: that of the most class conscious of the workers at home and their revolting slaves abroad. In China the demand for a war with Great Britain is growing stronger every day. Britain is in no position to crush China. Her own working class would never stand for it.

• • •

ANOTHER revolt is threatened in India. The British foreign office is getting ready to unload the blame on Soviet Russia. There are over 300,000,000 of people in India and 400,000,000 or more in China. Quite a formidable army! With the Chinese masses moving and defying the power of the imperialists, the Hindoos should not hesitate to tackle the job of freeing themselves from the yoke of Britain. John Bull stands to be the biggest loser in the big game now being played in the Orient.

• • •

IN northern Africa the Riffians are more than holding their own. The French government was driven in desperation to arrest over one hundred Communists on charges of aiding the Moroccans. What a crime, considering the fact that Caillaux, the real leader of the present French government, was admittedly in cahoots with the German government at a critical period of the war. The Communists of France support the Riffian tribesmen in their war for liberation, even tho they are fighting against France. Communists know no country but the welfare of the workers of all lands.

• • •

IN England the class conscious workers are supporting the Chinese even tho the Chinese are demanding war against Great Britain. But the Chinese are not demanding war against the British workers. They will fight the British imperialists and their agents. This alliance between the colonial slaves and the industrial workers in the heart of the imperialist powers is a very cheering phenomenon.

• • •

ONE of the most remarkable meetings that I have ever attended was held in this city a few evenings ago, when workers of all races and almost all colors gathered together to raise their voices against world imperialism, and—as the meeting was held in the United States—particularly against American imperialism. The chairman of the meeting was a young Negro who showed by his beaming countenance that he appreciated the significance of the occasion. More than a score of young Chinese attended, and three of them took the platform and spoke, one of them speaking in his native tongue.

• • •

IT was a protest against imperialism in China, but not the usual kind of an academic contest. Representatives of the most oppressed victims of imperialism were there: Negro and Chinese workers and students. Many comrades who have attended thousands of radical meetings said that a thrill such as they only experienced rarely stirred their emotions when the voices of white, black and yellow workers were raised against the common enemy.

• • •

AS the meeting was in progress battles were raging in the Orient that will have a very important effect

FASCIST WHO SLUGGED GOWEN FORGIVEN BY CAL-THOT HIM WORKER

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26.—The state department has informed the Mussolini government that the assault upon Franklin C. Gowen, American vice-consul at Leghorn, by a fascist youth, has been forgiven, and that "this government is highly appreciative of its expressions of concern and regret."

Gowen was slugged on the head by Fausto di Suolo as he was walking along the streets of Leghorn. The fascist, who was taking part in a fascist demonstration, stated he did not know that the man he brutally slugged was a consular officer. He was laboring under the impression that Gowen was an Italian worker.

All has been forgiven, and the Coolidge officials highly praise Mussolini's "forceful rule."

German Nationalists Attacked

BERLIN, Germany, June 26.—The nationalist deputies in the German reichstag were attacked today in the lobby of the parliament building, by about 200 former supporters who had obtained admission ticket.. They charged the deputies with violating election pledges to revalorize government war loan securities. Several blows were struck before the nationalists retreated.

CALL TEXTILE WORKERS OF EAST TO CONFERENCE OF MILITANTS IN NEW YORK CITY, AUGUST 9

The textile Workers of the mills in the east, especially those of New England, have suffered defeat after defeat, owing largely to their ineffective organization. The International Committee for Amalgamation in the Textile Industry is endeavoring to rally all militant workers for resistance against the wage cuts, speed-up systems and other evils, and has addressed the following call to the textile workers:

• • • •

TO ALL TEXTILE UNIONS, AND ORGANIZED AND UNORGANIZED WORKERS IN THE TEXTILE MILLS:

The workers in the textile industry have for months been going thru one of the worst crises in their history. In this crisis it can be plainly seen that the textile bosses have learned from the militant struggles of the workers against former wage reductions. The textile industry is replete with the history of mass struggles against the employers. The names of Lawrence, Paterson, Fall River, Pawtuxet Valley, etc., are vivid in the memory of all who follow the history of American labor.

Putting It Over Smoothly

The latest wage-cutting schemes of the textile bosses are being put into effect in such a manner, so as to not arouse mass protest, but to even more effectively enslave the workers. Instead of as formerly announcing a drastic cut in wages, the bosses are now engaged in cutting wages by the latest and most scientific methods, namely, making the wage cuts small and frequent, and in certain mills at a time. Along with this goes the other counter part of the wage cutting campaign, which is the introduction of "efficiency methods."

The Multiple Loom

The efficiency expert as the agent of the textile millionaires is creating almost as great a revolution in the industry, as the introduction of the automatic loom itself. The multiple loom

FIGHT AGAINST IMPERIALISM IS IN SWING TODAY

Workers Refute Move For Capitalist War

Anti-imperialist week, when the militant workers of this country voice their protest against the exploitation imposed on them and their fellow workers in America's possessions and dominated countries, begins today.

The Coolidge government, taking orders, as always from the United States financiers, are beating the war drums. The military training camps are being filled, many workers being sent to learn the American goose step under pressure from their employers.

Overwork the Radios.

The governors and mayors have taken Wall Street's orders and have repeated Coolidge's call for a military demonstration in July 4. Radios are to be overworked. Business men are to be admitted into the schools, along with the army officers.

All this is in preparation for the coming imperialist war. The workers of America are to be made ready to go to Mexico, Hawaii or China, and slaughter other workers whose interests are the same as theirs.

Plan Many Meetings.

But then workers of America during this anti-imperialist week, are protesting against the oppression of the imperialist exploiters. Meetings are to be held, resolutions have been passed by trade unions condemning the imperialist moves of the Coolidge government, and thousands of copies of the DAILY WORKER will be distributed.

The American workers will not willingly march to their death merely to make bigger profits for the bankers who control the government.

WRITS ISSUED TO FREE CROUCH FROM PRISON

Communist Soldiers to Be Produced

HONOLULU, Hawaii, June 26.—Writs of habeas corpus against Maj. Gen. Edward M. Lewis, commanding the army's Hawaiian department, were issued, ordering him to produce Paul Crouch and Walter Trumbull in federal court at 2 p. m. today, to show cause why they should be held in Schoffield barracks guardhouse.

The writs were issued by Federal Judge John T. Debolt. Walter Trumbull and Paul Crouch were arrested last March, charged with being members of the Hawaiian Communist League. After a court martial they were sentenced to 26 and forty years in a federal penitentiary. The sentences were later reduced to one year and three years, respectively.

Crouch and Trumbull were held in a guardhouse for many weeks, without trial, in violation of army law. They were sentenced on the sole evidence of an army spy, whose testimony was contradicted by defense witnesses. The records of the trial were doctored by the army officials.

The Labor Defense Council, 19 S. Lincoln St., Chicago, is contributing to the defense of the Communist soldiers.

MANY DELEGATES TO ATTEND JUNE 28 CONFERENCE

Unions Take Part in Workers' Defense Meet

The Labor Defense Council is preparing to welcome a large delegation of representatives of workers' organizations at the National Conference for Labor Defense to be held in the Ashland Auditorium here next Sunday. Workers' defense bodies, fraternal and benefit organizations, Central Unions and many local trade unions are expected to be represented.

The last organizations that were heard from, the Detroit Federation of Labor, the Joliet Central Labor Union and a number of local unions in Illinois, all promise to have delegates present.

Out of deference to the aims of the conference there will be seated individuals who have distinguished themselves by their efforts for Labor Defense as well as ex-class war prisoners, who will take an active part in the proceedings.

For Defense of All Workers.

The conference, which will last all day Sunday, will occupy itself primarily with the business of forming a permanent national defense organization pledged to defend the interest of all workers engaged in the class struggle. Plans will also be worked out for joint national action with all the scattered defense bodies in various parts of the country by way of amnesty drives, protests against anti-labor legislation and class war prisoner and family relief.

The feature of the conference is that its purpose is to rally all sections of the workers' movement behind the task of defending workers of any political faith or industrial affiliation. It is proposed that the conference devise ways and means to extend regular and worthwhile comforts to the 128 political and industrial prisoners now confined in various prisons thruout the country and supply material aid to their families.

Timely and Necessary.

The recent decision of the United States supreme court in declaring criminal syndicalist laws constitutional, the jailing of striking miners in West Virginia and many recent persecutions of workers, has added impetus to the conference and aroused widespread interest in it thruout the whole labor movement.

While the day session will be given over to working out the plans for a great united labor defense movement, in the evening there will be a mass meeting at Plasterers' temple, at which will appear William Montgomery Brown, prominent heretic bishop and radical author, and others who will be delegates to the conference.

Many Endorsements.

The confreence has received the endorsement of scores of labor bodies as well as many prominent figures in the labor and liberal movements, such as Upton Sinclair, Robert Morss Lovett, Scott Nearing, Hulet Wells, Alex Howatt, and many others. The Labor Defense Council has signified its willingness to merge with the new defense organization to be formed at the conference.

Debs States His Views

Eugene V. Debs, writing from his home in Terre Haute, Indiana, to the Labor Defense Council concerning the National Conference for Labor Defense to be held here next Sunday said, "If the proposed national conference to be convened in Chicago on the 28th inst. proposes to consolidate or at least to combine the various labor defense bodies so as to constitute an independent, all-inclusive defense organization for the purpose of affording protection and defense to all workers arrested, persecuted prosecuted or imprisoned because of their activities in the labor movement irrespective of their affiliation or non-affiliation and with equal consideration for all, and for the purpose of combatting vicious and despotic legislation and court decisions and otherwise serving, as may be deemed necessary, those who serve the working class, then I am heartily with you and perfectly willing that my name shall be used officially, as requested, in connection with the new and larger and more effective organization."

American Imperialism in Fear of War with Japan Hesitates with Chines

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, June 26.—Despite the growing gravity of the Chinese situation, the U States is not yet ready to adopt an independent attitude toward the Peking government, i declared officially here today. Disregarding the official reasons, fear of war with Japan is behind the hesitancy of the United States.

Hoping from day to day that order will be restored in China without further interventi the foreign imperialist powers, Secretary of State Kellogg says that America plans to co in the meantime to co-operate with the other governments represented at Peking and to leave the Chinese problem to be handled largely by the diplomats in the Far East.

"For the Time Being"

This policy is being adhered to for the time being chiefly because, according to officials here, it is the only policy that the United States can have in the circumstances. Secretary Kellogg is now awaiting the arrival of the new American minister, John V. A. MacMurray, at Peking, and does not want to take any new step until he has given MacMurray an opportunity to survey the situation and report upon the new political conditions growing out of civil war and anti-imperialist movements in coastal cities.

Pressure is being brought to bear upon the government, however, to take a more aggressive attitude toward China, such as the serving of formal notice on the Peking foreign office, direct from Washington, that the United States expects its interests in the orient to be fully protected at all times. An appeal to this effect has reached here from the American association of China, the petitioners charging that China is failing to live up to her treaty obligations and that it is up to the United States to make her do it by force of arms if necessary.

He Wants To—But Dare Not

There is no doubt that Secretary Kellogg would be pleased to take any action that would accomplish such a purpose but in view of present conditions in China he does not feel that much would be accomplished by directing a sharp note to the Peking government. The difficulty is, according to official statement, that the Peking government has little or no authority outside of the city of Peking and that separate demands from Washington might only stir up more trouble for the diplomats in the Chinese capital to deal with. The real reason, however, is the fear that Jap-

NEW YORK CITY, June 26.—The DAILY WORKER gives herewith the text of the resolution carried by the Shop Chairmen of the International Ladies' Garment Workers Union from over a thousand shops in the city of New York at the meeting held Tuesday night.

From the way the hall was packed with shop chairmen and enthusiastic active members participating in the fight to prevent the I. L. G. Gas Workers Show No Opposition to Renew Last Year's Contract

The Gas Workers' Union, whose contract expires on September 1, met Thursday night, Vice President John O'Donnell occupying the chair, and cast a unanimous vote to renew the old contract without changes. It calls for 60 cents an hour for laborers, and from 69 to 84 cents for gas fitters. The agreement runs for one year.

KRIM LAUNCHES ATTACK ON THE FRENCH LINES

Riffians Take Towns in Extended Attack

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, June 26.—Abd-el-Krim and his Riffians today launched an attack against the whole French Moroccan front. The fight raged from the Atlantic Ocean south of Tangiers to the small posts on the Moulouya river thirty miles inland from Melilla on the Mediterranean. The French sustained heavy losses and were driven back, reports said.

Krim's objective was believed to be the great Fez Taza highway. In previous attacks the French have been able to defend this road and thus safeguard Fez, capital of Morocco.

Many villages were reported burned including at Elbali and Ain-Mauteuf, south of Fez.

THEATER BLAST TAKES 50 LIVES IN KANSAS CITY

Walls Topple, Fire Traps Audience

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 26.—At least thirty-five to fifty persons were believed to be entombed in the smoking ruins of the Gillis burlesque theater here.

Until the ruins cooled, search for bodies was impossible.

The death included John Hogan, fireman, killed when a firetruck crashed into a post while enroute to the theater.

A score were known to be injured, most of them caught by the blast in the Sanderson's lunch room, located in the four-story theater building.

Between 100 and 150 persons were in the theater at the time. A motion picture—"Flaming Passion" was being shown at the conclusion of one of the acts of the burlesque bill.

Without warning the explosion shook the building, tearing off the roof, blowing out the north wall and reducing stage and auditorium to a tangled mass of wreckage. Bricks were hurled half a block by the blast. Patrons in the body of the house had little chance to escape, as a swift rush of flames followed the blast.

One wall and the roof had gone in the explosion and the wreckage crashed into the body of the house.

Within a half hour, the south wall, also toppled and the west wall followed a short time later.

F. H. Tuey, administrator of the Gillis estate, told international news service this morning that there were 20 men in the basement of the Sanderson restaurant under the theater and 10 more in the basement of the Newark shoe store next door when the explosion came and that he was sure none got out alive.

an may take advantage of American aggression, and by forming a bloc with China, lead America into far deeper water than intervention in China.

Officials pointed out that the inability of the Peking government to protect american lives and property was plainly inferred by the United States in landing sailors and marines at the outset of the Shanghai riots. Until the situation calms down these military forces will continue to guard American interests.

Chinese Minister Wants U. S. To Speak Up

Secretary Kellogg is giving daily attention to the Chinese situation, conferring with a number of diplomats, including Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese minister. Sze is understood to want the United States to take some action which will help the Peking government out of some of the trouble that it is now in with the other powers. It was reported in diplomatic circles that Sze had drafted a plan contemplating the leadership of the United States in solving the international problem in China, and had laid it before the state department.

Workers Talk to Merchants

SHANGHAI, China, June 26.—Evidently aimed at forcing the merchant element to reconsider their decision to open the shops and banks, mass attacks on tram cars and busses were renewed as the 25-day strike, costing, it was estimated, $60,000,000, was attempted to be broken by the shop keepers and bankers.

The great crowds were charged with heavy clubs by police, white guard volunteers and sailors of foreign boats, who clubbed the demonstrators brutally and finally dispersed them, although sporadic fights broke out in many places.

The strike of seamen and workers is continuing in full force, and a Hong Konk dispatch says that the "Empress of Asia" is unable to leave that port, not being able to get a scab crew.

War Looms at Canton.

HONG KONG, China, June 26.—According to reports from Canton, many Chinese troops are gathering in position in the Chinese city opposite Shameen, the foreign settlement where the British and French marines opened fire on Chinese paraders last Tuesday. There has been no firing yet, but the situation is tense.

Strict orders have been given by the senior naval officer in command of the defense forces to concentrate the firing on buildings occupied by the Chinese troops should the latter, who have quick-firing guns, attack.

Japs Prepare for War.

BOMBAY, June 26.—The Japanese are buying cotton heavily on the Bombay markets. It is believed the government is behind the buyers and the action is a precautionary measure in the event of war with China.

WASHINGTON, June 26—The state department today announced the receipt of the circular Chinese note asking the United States and other powers to take steps to revise their treaty relations with China.

The note was handed to Secretary of State Kellogg by Dr. Alfred Sze, the Chinese minister, Kellogg conferred at length with Dr. Sze on the situation in China, especially with regard to the recent anti-imperialist agitation, and will see him again on Monday.

Hong Kong Strike Grows.

HONG KONG, China, June 26.—After paying out about $5,000,000, the Chinese banks, including the nine managed in western style suspended. Meanwhile a proclamation of the British governor Stubbs, restricts withdrawals to 10 per cent of the deposits.

Twenty-four trade guilds have ordered a suspension of all business. The strike slowly extends and intensifies. The great liner, the "Empress of Asia" may not sail on time, except if it can get a Filipino crew.

Refugees are still arriving from Canton.

Foreign girls are scabbing on Chinese elevator boys at the Hong Kong hotel. British and Portuguese boys scab on Chinese waiters. The Stock Brokers' Association decided to close indefinitely.

Strike Knocks Credit.

The stock exchange reconsidered its earlier decision to carry on the regular quarterly settlement for a two-day period until Wednesday, and upon the recommendation of leading British bankers announced postponement of the settlement until further notice. This action was taken because of heavy withdrawals of funds from native banks by Chinese who are leaving for Canton. This is resulting in the wholesale withdrawal of the credits necessary to negotiate the quarterly settlements.

Reports today said that Chinese banks in Macao, the Portuguese dependency, thirty-five miles west of here were experiencing runs and that their silver reserves were growing short.

Three Killed, 43 Hurt in Crash of One-Man Car During N. Y. Storm

NEW YORK, June 26.—Check-ups from various points near New York City today show that five people were killed, forty-three injured and great property damage done in the sudden and terrific electrical storm that struck this region last evening.

Three were killed and forty-three injured when a crowded one-man car became uncontrollable on a stepe incline on Hoboken avenue, Jersey City, and crashed into a derailed car filled with passengers at the foot of the hill.

SCOPES DROPPED FROM TEACHERS' ROLL BY BOARD

Application Held Up Pending Monkey Trial

DAYTON, Tenn., June 26.—John T. Scopes, who will be tried here on July 10 for violating the Tennessee anti-evolution law by teaching evolution to the public schools, was dropped from the roll of Rhea county teachers. The board elected more than 70 teachers, but Scopes' name was not among them.

It was announced his application for re-election was "held up pending the outcome of his trial." Scopes taught biology in the Rhea county high school.

Dudley Field Malone, one of the defense lawyers, in an interview declared that William J. Bryan, leader of the prosecution, is making money out of his christian beliefs.

"The law was passed thru the hypnotic influence that Bryan is always able to exercise over men who think for themselves," Malone said. "He has appointed himself director of all truth and righteousness, and has assumed the role of the infallible. One trouble with Bryan is that when he begins to think of god he associates himself with god, and decides that he is the representative of god."

INTERNATIONAL PLUTE CONGRESS ENDS SESSIONS

British Banker Was Elected President

BRUSSELS, June 26—Installation of Walter Leaf, chairman of the Westminster Bank, London, as president and adoption of an economic resolution offered by Fred L. Kent, vice president of the Bankers' Trust Company, New York, featured the closing session of the international chamber of commerce here today.

The resolution stressed the importance of enlarging all the agencies for the transfer of German reparation assets to the allies. It recommended expansion in the foreign delivery of German goods as well as expansion of deliveries in kind, expansion of German industries abroad and expansion of foreign exchange balances thru the foreign purchase of German securities.

Jugoslavia Acts Against Bulgarian Reign of Terror

Anthracite Convention Has Many Problems

backed up Capellini in all his actions against the interests of the rank and file.

The operators have violated their contracts with the miners in several sections of the anthracite region, but instead of fighting back, the district officials took the side of the operators against the miners. This was particularly true in the case of Capellini.

The Progressive Program.

The militants in the union led by the progressive miners' committee have issued a program containing the following demands:

That all coal mined shall be on a tonnage basis with a $10 a day guarantee for each miner for a six-hour day. A flat increase of $2.00 per day for all inside and outside day labor. Boys to receive the same pay as men for the same kind of work and overtime when allowed to be paid for at the rate of one time and a half and double time for Sundays and holidays.

A minimum wage of $10.00 per day is demanded for men working at the face and $7.50 for day labor.

The six-hour day and the five-day week is demanded. The industry must furnish a living wage to all coal miners.

For Grievance Committees.

The program of the progressive miners favors the retention of the general grievance committees and the abolition of the conciliation boards which have always vavored the operators. Yearly agreements terminating simultaneously in both the bituminous and anthracite fields are favored against long time agreements. Unemployment benefits to unemployed miners, same to be paid from the profits of the industry by the employers, and disbursed by the union, are demanded and the checkoff is supported as a temporary expedient for building up the union.

The progressive miners also demand the reinstatement of all members expelled from the union because of their political views, the reinstatement of the 1,700 members of Local 699 and their leader Edmunds, the one hundred per cent organization of the coal fields, against dual unionism, for the direct election of organizers.

Condemned John L. Lewis.

The program condemns John L. Lewis, international president, for his failure to comply with the terms of the constitution and publish the tabulated vote of each local in the last election. It demands an alliance with the transport workers and calls for the support of the United Mine Workers of America for the amalgamation of all craft unions into industrial unions.

International trade union unity is urged and the movement for class collaboration condemned. The progressive miners go definitely on record against the postponing of the international convention until 1927.

Besides the industrial demands the program of the progressives also carries the following political demands: for a labor party; nationalization of the mines; recognition of Soviet Russia; for the defense of class war prisoners; for the child labor amendment; against the criminal syndicalism laws; against imperialism and the Dawes plan; and against the Citizens' Military Training Camps.

Owing to the unsettled condition of the union in the anthracite fields the Lewis machine is expected to put forth all its strength to prevent the militants from getting representation at the convention.

Petroleum Refining Increase

WASHINGTON, June 26.—The capacity of the petroleum refining plants of the United States has reached a total of 2,864,842 barrels daily, the department of the interior said today.

The figures represent an increase in daily refining capacity of 1,678,697 barrels, or more than 141 per cent, for the seven-year period, 1918-1925.

Capitalist Dictatorship in Chile Blessed By Wall Street with $20,000,000

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, the first Anti-Imperialist Week, that will become an annual event, is inaugurated as the Wall Street bankers, Kuhn, Loeb & Co., float a new bond issue to fasten its financial chains upon South America,—$20,000,000 to the Mortgage Bank of Chile.

The Chilean bank is a government affair, organized to exploit the natural resources of the country. Its board of directors is selected by both the nation's legislative chambers, and the chairman of the board and four officers are appointed by the president of the republic. Wall Street's international bankers, therefore, in disposing of $20,000,000 worth of bonds for the Mortgage Bank express great faith in the stability of capitalist rule in Chile.

• • • •

With the blood of hundreds of workers in its nitrate fields upon its hands, the Chilean ruling class stands acceptable to the American financial interests. The massacre of the nitrate workers in the province of Tarapaca, on June 6-7, this month, by machine gunners sent ashore from a Chilean warship, much after the fashion of the murderous attacks on Chinese workers at Shanghai and Canton, not only with the consent but with the encouragement of the American profit-taking interests, should furnish much excellent food for thought for all American workers and poor farmers during this week's attack against U. S. imperialism. The $20,000,000 bond issue floated by Kuhn, Loeb & Co. is the best stamp of approval that Wall Street could put on the Chilean government's slaughter of its own people. The official "O. K." of American capitalism is put on Chilean capitalism.

• • • •

The rulers of Chile even boast of their infamy. In the advertisements now appearing in all the great kept dailies, urging subscriptions for the $20,000,000 bond issue, the boast is made that, "the nitrate deposits are the only large natural deposits so far discovered in the world," and again, "the government owns large and valuable tracts of nitrate lands." Thus the government confesses itself the direct oppressors of the workers, without the intermediary of the private capitalist, altho the American Powder Trust, the Du Pont Powder Company, of Delaware, is heavily interested in the exploitation of the Chilean nitrate fields.

The Chilean capitalist dictatorship basks in the sunshine of Wall Street's favor for its murder of workers, and increases that favor as it pledges itself to continue the exploitation of the living in order to meet the high rates of interest demanded and pay back the loan by June 30, 1957.

• • • •

"The copper industry has been extensively developed, largely by American capital," is another proud boast of the Chilean ruling class. Investigation discloses that the American copper capital that is "developing" Chile is furnished by the "open shop" Guggenheim interests, notorious for their oppression of American workers in the copper fields of the west.

Thus Anti-Imperialist Week, 1925, finds this strong bond of fraternity developing between the workers of the United States and Chile, both the victims of American great finance and big industry.

These connecting threads, linking the workers of all countries, steadily grow in strength as labor everywhere becomes more conscious of its world-wide identity of interests.

This year's Anti-Imperialist Week will help broaden the vision of the whole American working class. It will help wipe out some of its provincialism. It will develop its internationalism. Future Anti-Imperialist Weeks will see the American working class go into action, definite action in common with workers of other nations, not only against American capitalism, but against the whole capitalist system, in every nation where it still exists. Thus the revolution grows.

PENNSY MAKES DEAL WITH ITS TELEGRAPHERS

Heads I Win, Tails You Lose System

According to the announcement of Vice-President T. B. Hamilton of the scabby Pennsylvania railroad, the company officials have concluded an agreement as to wages with the system's telegraphers "under the employe representation plan"—which is polite language for the company union.

Mr. Hamilton was too modest to say how well the company succeeded in cutting the wages of the telegraphers, but his general announcement that "wage revisions were largely the result of efforts of the joint fact finding committee" leaves no room for doubt about which way the "revisions" affected the wages.

Mr. Hamilton says it was "left to the majority vote" of each division as to whether the telegraphers should work six or seven days in the week. What penalty is to be meted out to those who want the six day week is unknown.

Mobilize for Defense

The Labor Defense conference meets in Chicago Sunday, June 28, to enlarge the scope of its activities and take the first steps in building a mass organisation in the United States for the relief of class war prisoners and their families.

The constitutional guarantees of free speech, free press and free assemblage have been wiped out by the decision of the supreme court in the Gitlow case. Criminal syndicalism laws of the most vicious nature are on the statue books of most of the states and even during the comparatively quiescent period in the American class struggle, indictments, prosecutions and convictions of militant workers under these laws have continued.

There is also the growing use of the injunction by the capitalists and its extension to prohibit practically every form of mass protest whether it be of a clearly political nature or merely an attempt by the workers to remedy bad working conditions.

The class struggle has reached an acute stage. In Europe capitalism clings to its privileges only by the open and broadest use of its police powers. In Germany, Finland, Esthonia, Poland, Bulgaria, Rumania, Italy and Spain, the jails are filled with the best fighters from the ranks of the working class. Thousands have been killed in open struggles with the mercenaries of the ruling class or murdered secretly and in cold blood.

In France the Painleve government is warring on the revolutionary workers. In England the restriction of the liberties of the masses is shown by police raids on Communists, the granting of exceptional powers to the secret service and the encouragement of fascist activities by the authorities.

In India British imperialism fills its dungeons with partisans of the independence movement. In China all imperialist nations are warring on the Chinese workers, peasants and students.

In the Philippines we read of the slaughter of native workers by the soldiers of American imperialism. In Hawaii, Crouch and Trumbull, private soldiers, have been jailed for having political opinions contrary to those of the officer caste.

In Cuba and Haiti American imperialism rules by bribes and bayonets. In Mexico, Wall Street smashes unions, shoots and jails workers with the aid of its puppet government. In Chile and Bolivia the working class is forced to enter an armed struggle for its very existence against the tyranny of governments in the pay of American imperialism.

Surely as day follows night the workers in America will find themselves faced with a sharpening of the class struggle. The American ruling class will outdo all toher exploiting groups in brutality when it begins to assault the working class systematically. Sparodic and isolated cases with which we are all familiar have shown that the American government has nothing to learn from, but can teach the rest of the rulers effective methods of suppressing the masses.

The defense of the workers who are jailed, the support of their families and the families of those who are killed by the murder bands of American capitalism is a sacred duty the working class owes itself.

To centralize such work, to build an organization broad enough, active enough and disciplined enough to see to it that no working class fighter or his dependents, no matter to what section of the working class he belongs, suffers needlessly because of lack of funds for defense and food, is the task of the Labor Defense Council conference.

Bring Battleships and Businessmen Home

The association of American citizens in China has sent a cable to the state department urging energetic action in conjunction with the other powers against the liberation movement.

The full text of the cable is published elsewhere in this issue but far more interesting than the cable itself would be the names of the Americans, and the financial and industrial concerns they represent, dominating this organization.

It would probably be the choicest collection of servants of big capital compiled recently and its publication would give the American workers a good idea as to who it is clamoring for a policy of blood and iron in China.

Incidentally it may be remarked that the news of today shows that the imperialist powers are conducting their activities in China in the accepted American style—by circulation of the wildest rumors of plots, bombs and coming massacres. In this noble work the marines have been enlisted. The Chinese celebratoin of Dragon Day was selected by the agents of imperialism to scare the foreign residents to death and one enthusiastic correspondent compares the marines to Paul Revere because they rushed from house to house in the foreign quarter distributing mimeographed copies of a call to arms.

But the festival passed without any casualties except the daily quota of Chinese workers and students shot by foreign troops.

Meanwhile, millions of dollars are being raised for support of the strike thruout China and the Chinese government is sticking by its thirteen demands which we published yesterday in full.

The modest character of these demands is in itself proof that the imperialist powers have stripped the Chinese liberties which in this country are called "natural rights."

Of little comfort to the imperialists is the short dispatch telling of the refusal of Sikh troops under British officers to fire on the Chinese. The Sikhs are Mohammedans, the picked soldiers of British imperialism, and when they are affected by the rise of the Chinese liberation movement it symbolizes the spread of revolt against imperialism thruout Asia.

The request from American businessmen in China for military action against the Chinese masses is therefore equivalent to a demand for war on the Asiatic peoples.

The workers of America need to exercise the utmost vigilance to scrutinize the moves of the state department as never before.

The only way to stop war is to stop it before it begins.

Demand the immediate and unconditional withdrawal of all American forces from China.

We have said this before and we repeat it now:

If the businessmen who have been robbing the Chinese workers and aiding in the murder of the Chinese strikers and studens, do not want to come home on the battleships let them shift for themselves in China or swim home.

PLEDGE FIGHT ON MACHINE OF INTERNATIONAL

the support of the membership on the job. The resolution was adopted unanimously. It reads as follows:

Shop Chairmen's Resolution.

"We, the chairmen of the cloak and dress shops of New York, gathered Tuesday evening, June 23, at Manhattan Lyceum, at the call of the Joint Committee of Locals 2, 9 and 22, adopt the following resolution:

"Considering that the struggle which the three locals are carrying on against the machine of the Joint Board of the International is a struggle for the interests of the workers and for a union led by workers; and

"Whereas, the machine leaders are using all base means to maintain their power and thus to deceive public opinion into believing that the membership are with them; and

"Whereas, they are using terrorism in order to get from the members statements or resolutions to show that the membership are with them; and

"Whereas, they are using provocative means to try to convince the public that this is a struggle against Communists in the union; and

"Whereas, the machine is beginning to persecute the workers in the shops who refuse to carry out its orders because they do not represent anyone; and

"Whereas, they have not even the courage to call the membership to union meetings, but carry on their work by secret means, as tonight's secret meeting shows, which they called by special letters in Beethoven hall, to chosen members, not to the entire membership;

"Be it resolved, that the shop chairmen of the cloak and dress shops adpot the following resolution:

Condemns Machine; Pledges Struggle.

"We severely condemn the provocative behavior of the machine clique; we declare that if they had the least belief that they represent the membership and that we have faith in them, they would not be afraid to call us to meetings; we declare also publicly that the only ones in whom we have confidence are the leaders of the three suspended locals.

"We further state that this struggle is not a struggle of Communists, as they say, but this is a struggle of the members against a group of parasites who assume the right to raise dues, to levy assessments, to call strikes themselves and settle them on their own terms, and in other ways to do whatever they wish—and from whom we have long struggled to rid ourselves.

"We declare further, as the chairmen of the shops, that their terrorizing against certain workers in the shops will not help them. We will attack them every time they will attempt to take away the workers' bread.

"We declare further that not only do we agree with the three locals who are carrying on the struggle against the machine, but that this struggle belongs to all of us, and we will carry it on until the end.

"We pledge ourselves to help with all our strength and also financially the three locals to carry on the struggle in whatever way the Joint Action Committee of the three locals will decide upon.

"Down with the corrupt leadership. Long live the cloak and dress makers' union led by the workers."

AS WE SEE IT

on the course of world history. And when one of the Chinese students declared that "not from the imperialists but from the workers of the world will come peace, prosperity and freedom" the applause was spontaneous and hearty. The revolutionary movement is indeed world wide and all the power of capitalism cannot prevent it from being successful.

• • •

THE workers of the United States must not allow their ruling class to crush the Chinese, Mexican and other people under their iron heel without a struggle. In this connection the campaign of the All-American Anti-Imperialist League should be supported by all workers. This campaign will be speeded up during "Anti-Imperialist Week," which ends on July 4, the anniversary of the American declaration of independence, which yet remains to be written for the working class. This league has a very important function to perform, and as American imperialism marches on, trampling on the rights of the workers at home and the people of weaker nations, the need for an alliance between the exploited American workers and the victims of American imperialism will become clearer. Today we are called on to protest against the use of American military and naval forces in China. Tomorrow it may be in Mexico.

British Labor Facing Crisis; Nears Clash with the Employers

miners, and the federation executive, headed by A. J. Cook, the left wing secretary, has called a national delegate conference for July 3rd, at which the union will debate the situation and adopt a plan of action. There has been an increase in the number of unemployed miners of 67,100 since November.

Railway Workers Also Attacked.

Not only the miners, but also the railway workers are being attacked by the employers, who want to increase hours and decrease wages 14 per cent. A conference between the companies and the miners is now going on, being convened yesterday. So far nothing has come out for publication.

In view of the seriousness of the unemployment situation, threatening as it does to aid the employers in an attempt to destroy the British unions, the Trade Union Congress has been called into special session for July 24th to discuss unemployment.

The labor party has decided to move a vote of censure against the Baldwin government for failing to remedy unemployment. The motion will probably be debated next Monday.

Dawes Plan Ruins British Mines.

The coal industry is reported in great depression, and certain fields in South Wales and Newcastle, which depended mainly on export, were hit by the Dawes plan and the Ruhr invasion.

France is receiving reparations coal from Germany and can send it on to Italy and still undersell Great Britain. The Lens mines have been reopened, and this increased competition, combined with the increased use of oil, lignite and other fuels, have hit the British mining industry a terrific broadside, especially the Dawes plan.

Union Delegation Visits Baldwin.

A delegation from the British Trades Union Congress, including A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, called upon Premier Baldwin Tuesday at 10 Downing street. The deputation discussed the unemployment situation with Baldwin for two hours, and demanded that, as a partial remedy, Great Britain promote instead of obstruct trade with Soviet Russia. The miners' delegates demanded nationalization of the mines.

An official statement issued following the conference, stated on behalf of Premier Baldwin, that the government would not consider nationalization of the mines—using the excuse that the government thought it would increase the cost of production. As for Russia, Baldwin said that Russia had never taken more than a small percentage of British trade, but that the government would "welcome the return of Russia to the community of nations and Russia's entry into the league of nations."

"Last Resort" Says Premier.

Pressed in the house of commons as to the attitude of the government in the clash between the employers and the workers in the mining and railway industries, Premier Baldwin said:

"It is essential, in my opinion, that every opportunity be given to those engaged in an industry to settle these matters for themselves if they can, and the government should only intervene in the last resort. This point, I am glad to say, has not yet been reached; it may not be reached and it would be premature for me to make a statement on the subject."

Our Readers' Views

Why Call Them Masters?

To the DAILY WORKER:—I have for the last 45 years been protesting in my mind the appropriateness of using the term "master class" in our discussinos and literature. By doing so we leave the uninitiated open to the thought that we recognize the exploiters as our masters. Aside from the above implication this continuous dangling of a master before us is so repulsive.

There are other terms we can use for the same purpose: the rich, the idle, the bourgeoisie, the employer, the moneyed class. I don't know whether Marx used the term or not. Let me hear from other comrades on this question. I would consider "moneyed class" the most appropriate usage.—J. M. George.

MILITARY IS IN CONTROL OF THE GREEK STATE

General Pangalos to Be Premier or War Head

LONDON, June 26. — The Greek revolution was not peaceful and the resignation of the Michaelakopolous government was forced only after the fleet had opened fire on the palace, according to a Central News dispatch quoting the Belgrade newspaper Pravda. M. Papanastassious, former premier, is striving to form a cabinet, the Belgrade paper adds, despite reports to the contrary.

That the revolution was not entirely bloodless was indicated in dispatches to the Evening News, whose Athens correspondent reported that two were killed and twenty wounded.

M. Papanstassious' decision was announced after a meeting of the presidency.

There was a strong possibility, it was said, that General Pangalos, who led the military movement that overthrew the government, will accept the premiership. Pangalos was formerly generalissimo of the Greek army and at one time held the office of minister of war.

But whatever government finally emerges it is believed certain that Gen. Pangalos will be minister for war with Admiral Hadjikiriakos at the head of the navy department.

100 TEACHERS TO BE GRILLED BY SUPT. McANDREW

The latest move in Superintendent McAndrew's petty war on Chicago school teachers to intimidate the militant fighters is his picking on 100 teachers who have been marked inefficient by his principals. Their inefficiency can better be understood by the statement of one of the principals who, when pressed to explain the low rating he gave to a teacher, was forced to admit that he never had visited her class nor observed her work.

This method of calling teachers who have been discriminated against by principals before the superintendent and his assistants for a grilling is the first in the history of the school system of Chicago and the teachers are eagerly waiting to hear just what kind of an inquisition will be conducted.

Liberal Control of Nova Scotia Whipped Badly in Election

HALIFAX, N. S. June 26.—A conservative government with an overwhelming majority in the provincial legislature today prepared to take over the position of power in Nova Scotia after forty-three years of liberalism.

Returns from the election yesterday showed forty conservatives were elected out of the total of forty-three seats in the house.

Provincial Premier E. H. Armstrong and all his ministers went down in defeat.

Call the Textile Workers of East to Conference, Aug. 9 system in the cotton, wool and silk divisions of the industry is displacing labor at such a rate that not alone is the army of unemployed being tremendously increase, but the wages of the weaver—in spite of the golden promises that the more looms he operates, the more money he makes—are on the average decreasing. Today the weaver to tend all his looms needs roller skates.

By all this method of relatively small and frequent wage cuts combined with the tremendous increase in production per man—will aggregate a total cut in wages in many cases as high as fifty per cent.

Too Many Unions—To Little Unionism

Notwithstanding the many unions in the textile industry, only a comparatively small number of textile workers are organized, and they are divided largely upon the basis of their particular craft, or the section of the industry in which they are engaged. This situation must not be tolerated. The textile workers must be rallied against their oppressors—the textile bosses. The existing unions must be amalgamated into a powerful Textile Industrial Union. Pending this amalgamation, all textile workers and their organizations must be brought together in a great and all embracing united front.

Wage cutting, unemployment, misery and suffering of the textile workers caused by this latest campaign of the organized bosses must be resisted. To lay the basis for effective resistance to this organized campaign of the employers, and to rally the militant spirit of the textile workers, a mass conference has been called to meet in New York City on Sunday, August 9, at 108 E. 14th Street, at 11 a. m.

Every Militant Welcome

All militant textile workers from unions, shop committees and mills thruout Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and New England are invited to be present at this conference. Make it truly representative of the masses of textile workers, both organized and unorganized. All cotton mill, woolen mill, silk mill, tapestry, hosiery and knit goods workers are welcome.

Textile workers elect your delegates and send them to the textile workers conference at New York City, August 9th, 1925.

BRUSSELS, June 26. — If President Coolidge thinks he is the only spokesman for American capitalism, it is because he did not hear John O. Leary, president of the American chamber of commerce laying down the law to the European representatives at today's session of the International chamber of commerce. O'Leary speaking for American business made it quite plain that the United States would not tolerate for a moment the attempts which have been persistent since the congress opened, to bring about not only cancellation of the interallied debts but repudiation of the Dawes plan as well, as a means to that end.

In addition to O'Leary, Parker Gilbert, Dawes plan agent spoke. O'Leary told the congress that the debts must be paid and that the Dawes plan must be maintained. He said that the American business men don't like the idea of being represented in Europe as mercenary people seeking only to make profit out of Europe's misfortunes.

O'Leary's speech was in reply to that delivered the day before yesterday by Sir Joseph Stamp, ex-British member of the Dawes committee. Sir Joseph made the Dawes plan look like ten cents by the time he got thru. It was a case of "tales I win; heads you lose." If Germany is expected to pay reparations under the Dawes plan, she must be allowed to flood the markets of other countries with her goods. This means the curtailment of production in creditor countries. Which means stepping into the fire from the frying pan.

In A Dilemma

Germany cannot provide the surplus required by the Dawes plan unless a much enlarged demand for German goods is created abroad. He said that German exports must be expanded to the greatest possible extent; payments in kind must be extensively used; Germany's creditors could receive bonds of neutrals for whom Germany would execute public works not possible to finance otherwise and German railway, industrial and other bonds could be sold in the international market. In this way only can the allies collect from Germany, declared the Briton.

The capitalists are sitting between the two horns of a dilemma. Without the Dawes plan or something like it, they cannot collect any reparations and with it, they can collect them only at the expense of their own industries.

BUILDERS AT WORK

RUSH IN YOUR CAMPAIGN SUBS!

Only Four More Days Remain!

Today, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, June 30.—and the Second Annual Sub Campaign is closed. The second united attempt to build the standard bearer of Communism in this country will have finished.

Send in your subs—RUSH—and in the Special Anti-Imperialist Issue of July 4 we can answer American capitalism's mobiliztaion day with a show of what Communist Builders have done, as a promise of taking all power in the future.

Build—rush your subs in to fill out your local quota and order a bundle every day next week—and especially the issue of July 4, which will include the total accomplishments of

Two Philadelphia Builders in Battle

A real fight is on in Philadelphia—a fight to prove themselves better Builders. Comrade Samuel Weinberg and Comrade Minkoff are staging a campaign of their own. City Agent Comrade Lena Rosenberg, who wishes that she had more such comrades to assist her, writes:

> "Comrade Weinberg turned in five subs and Comrade Minkoff three new ones. Last night they met at the office together—Comrade Weinberg with four more new subs which he secured at a union meeting, and Comrade Minkoff also with four new subs and a renewal.
> "The longer this battle between them lasts the more they will do for "Our Daily" and our party, so I hope it lasts a long time."

This instance of Communist building is one of the reasons why Local Philadelphia has been near the top of the campaign list during the whole three months—and one reason why Philadelphia is sure to finish near the top."

For the Unity of the Trade Union Movement

Report of Comrade Tomsky on the Anglo-Russian Trade Union Conference at the Plenary Session of the All-Russian Council of Trade Unions.

The Antecedents of the Conference.

THE campaign for unity was begun by the Red International of Labor Unions. After long correspondence with the Amsterdam International, the latter declared that it was prepared to enter into negotiations with the All-Russian Central Trade Union Council on condition that the R. I. L. U. should be excluded from these negotiations. This ended the first stage of the negotiations.

We saw that the offensive of capital continued and that the post-war achievements of the working class were in danger of destruction. Everywhere political reaction is following close on the heels of economic reaction. And we believed that we had no right to seclude ourselves within our comparatively favorable position. We have never regarded our revolution as, in the narrowest sense, a national revolution. When, in Oct., 1917 we carried out our insurrection, we knew that our revolution was doomed to defeat unless we had the support of the workers of Western Europe. And we were right. The English intervention in Archangel failed because the English soldiers, amongst whom were English workers, refused to fight against us any longer. The French intervention in Odessa was a failure, because on the French iron-clads, the workers, stuck into naval uniforms, mutinied, and also because the English workers declared with sufficient emphasis: "Hands off Soviet Russia!" Since the West European proletariat has given us such support, we cannot remain passive with regard to them.

WHEN the black flood of reaction will have inundated the whole of Western Europe, and we find ourselves in a fascist environment, that will not be a matter of indifference for the fate of the Soviet Republic. It is this circumstance which compels us to pursue, not a national but an international labor policy, under the banner under which our revolution gained the victory. On the other hand, we take into consideration and grasp the fact that the interests of the West European working class demand the utmost concentration of forces.

After the well-known resolution of the Vienna Congress, our relations to the Amsterdam International entered on a new phase. I have said repeatedly that the correspondence which took place in this period resembles a petty bourgeois penny-dreadful, the peculiarity of this story being that it does not in the usual way end with marriage and happiness; our romance could not end with such a marriage, as no Amsterdam bride consented to meet the Moscow bridegroom.

The condition laid down was that we recognize the resolutions of the Vienna Congress. We on our part replied that we wished to discuss in common the questions relating to the restoration of international trade union union unity, but without any preliminary conditions. We cannot in advance bind ourselves to any resolutions, in the passing of which we in no way participated.

The tactics of the Amsterdam International prove, that, at a time when the imperialist blockade already belongs to the realm of history, the trade union blockade is obviously continued by the leading circles of the Amsterdam International.

The Approach Between the English Trade Unions and Our Own.

OUR trade unions and the English ones have proved to be the most consistent adherents of unity. Our greatest and most lasting achievement in the treaty made with the MacDonald government in London—and this is all that is left of that treaty—was our connection with the English trade unions. The conference at Hull and the visit of the English delegation to us have further strengthened this tie.

At the meeting of the general council of the Amsterdam International, the English upheld our point of view; the diplomatic resolution proposed by Stenhuis was, however, passed.

This resolution states that a conference will be called when in their opinion, it seems possible, and after the Russian trade unions have, without reservation, declared themselves prepared to join the Amsterdam International.

AMERICA represents an independent International. In Europe there are two internationals, and there is still a whole number of countries and organizations which as yet belong to no international. In the meanwhile capital is operating and maneuvering on a scale which is neither European nor semi-European. In such circumstances the question of unity could naturally not be exhausted by our trade unions joining the Amsterdam International.

We know, however, that every careless word dropped by us, will be interpreted by the leaders of the Amsterdam International as meaning that we did not desire unity.

We could not make up our minds to gotiations without an authoritative resolution of our plenum. If we regard negotiations as entirely broken off, what is then to be done? Are we then to enter on a new attack, a new cannonade with all guns against Amsterdam, and engage in a last fight until we destroy one another? Would that correspond to the idea of unity? Is that Amsterdam's intention?

We could make up our minds to such a step after the approchment which has taken place between ourselves and the English trade unions. We submitted the question to the English trade unions as to what they would advise us to do in these circumstances.

As a result, our London Conference was called on the basis of a mutual agreement.

THE bourgeois press understands the interests of its employers thoroly, and of course received us in such a way that if we had troubled about it at all or excited ourselves about its articles, we should have died of consumption within three days. Fortunately Comrade Jarotzky, did not read these papers to us until after dinner, and apart from a hearty laugh which contributed to good digestion, the articles had no effect on us. It said, for instance, that "the red robber chieftain Tomsky, with his band of agitators had now arrived," and that it was incomprehensible why they had been allowed to enter the country.

Naturally, neither the English conservative government nor the German government which was friendly disposed to us, wanted to admit us, tho the latter was prepared to allow us a meeting with the representatives of the English trade unions, not in Berlin, but very kindly in Frankfurt, not however in the well-known Frankfurt on Main but in Frankfurt on the Oder. Nevertheless the English trade unions were able to bring pressure to bear on the conservative government so that we did not have to avail ourselves of the German hospitality. We were even worthy of two interpellations in parliament; it was asked why we had come to London and whether we had not some deep designs. The bourgeois press interpreted the matter by saying that malignant agitators had now entered the country, who wished to corrupt the gentle and modest trade unionists. Each of these "innocent youths" whom we were to "corrupt" was at least half as old again as the oldest of us, and had furthermore twice as long a past in the labor movement as we.

The Course of the Conference.

IN spite of the custom at similar conferences of choosing a chairman from each of the parties, on our proposal a single chairman was chosen: Comrade Swales, the chairman of the General Council of Trade Unions.

It was proposed to us that we should read a report, in accordance with which, on the basis of our statements, the agenda should be settled.

Our time for speaking was not limited, and therefore we had the opportunity of expounding our views as to the unity of the international labor movement.

At the conclusion of our report, the British representatives wished first of all to discuss the resulting conclusions amongst themselves.

At the second meeting of the conference, we heard the reply of the British delegation to Comrade Tomsky's statement. Our delegation thot it necessary to have a thoro discussion about this declaration of the English delegation. After a few corrections had been accepted, both declarations—ours as well as the English—were passed by the conference.

The conference then unanimously resolved to issue a common declaration in the name of the whole conference. For the drafting of this declaration, a committee was elected composed as follows: Chariman Swales; members: of the English delegation Bramley and Purcell; of the Russian: Tomsky and Melnitsshansky. Next day the commission passed the text of the declaration unanimously. The last day of the conference was devoted to the discussion of this declaraiton. The declaration was also unanimously passed by the plenum of the conference.

The Significance of the Declaration.

THE fact alone that the representatives of eleven million organized workers, belonging to different internationals and living under different conditions, found a common language and a common view as to the task of the international labor movement, is an eminently important factor in the history of the labor movement.

The bourgeois press understands very well the danger which arises from eleven million workers having found a common aim, the aim of a struggle for the unity of the international labor movement. The unification of all the proletarian forces in a world-wide measure must oppose the class of wage earners in one battle-

RUSSIANS URGE INTERNATIONAL UNITY CONFERENCE WITHOUT PRE-CONDITIONS

Moscow, May 19, 1925.

THE foreign commission of the general council of the trades unions of the Soviet Union have addressed the following letter to the general council of the Amsterdam International:

Dear Comrades,

The session of the plenum of the general council, for various reasons and in consequence of the London conference between the English trade unions and the trade unions of the Soviet Union, could not take place until the period from the 30th of April till the 3rd of May. The conference of the trade unions of England and of the Soviet Union have discussed in the fullest manner the question of unity, as well as the relation of the general council of the trade unions of the Soviet Union to the Amstredam International. The plenum of the general council of the trade unions of the Soviet Union approved of the work and the decisions of the London conference and instructed the foreign commission to reply.

On the basis of these decisions we consider it to be our duty to inform you, that the decision of the general council of the Amsterdam International of the 7th of February has made a very profound impression upon our trade unions. We have thought that the result of our exchange of letters would have been a greater mutual understanding and a meeting of our representatives with the representatives of the Amsterdam International in order to examine together the question of the unity of the trade union movement, as a first attempt to approach this question in a concrete manner. In our opinion, this question is the most important and essential for the workers of the whole world. We only wished to achieve a joint conference between the representatives of the trade unions of the Soviet Union and of the Amsterdam International without pre-conditions.

YOUR resolution rejects our proposal and stipulates that the meeting can only take place after a previous declaration on our side that we are prepared to affiliate to the Amsterdam International. This means affiliation to the Amsterdam International as it is, that is, upon the basis of its principles and statutes. Enormous importance is to be attached to the declaration of Oudegeest and Jouhaux, in which this standpoint is confirmed. We state with the deepest regret that these interpretations and declarations will do even more than the Amsterdam resolution to sharpen the differences, but they will in no way render more easy the question of unity.

We declare once again, that we are for the united international. Our aim, and the aim of the majority of the class conscious workers of the world, is the creation of a united international of the trade union organized workers of all countries who stand upon the basis of the class struggle for the final emancipation of the working class from the capitalist yoke. In comparison with this great aim, the question of the statutes is of subordinate importance. The trade unions of the Soviet Union are prepared to affiliate to a trade union international whose statutes would not differ very widely in the main from the statutes of the Amsterdam International. The enumeration of the aims of this united international could contain all the aims set forth in the statutes of the Amsterdam International. The trade unions of the Soviet Union, however, have had no possibility of participating in the drawing up of the statutes of the Amsterdam International.

WE are of the conviction that a united trade union international should embrace, not only the trade unions of the Soviet Union, but all those who are at present not affiliated to the Amsterdam International. In order to achieve this, full regard must be had to the differences and traditions of the historical developments and political peculiarities of all countries.

How is this to be realized? How is the existing mistrust between the various sections of the divided trade union movement to be overcome without personal contact and all-around concrete examination of these important questions?

The mutual acquaintance of the representatives of the trade union movements of England and of the Soviet Union, the mutual desire for common methods, for common language for the realization of the mutually sincere efforts for trade union unity, will doubtless bring about very good results. The recent London conference undoubtedly promoted the strengthening of proletarian solidarity between the workers of England and of the Union of Soviet Republics. In the same way, a meeting of the representatives of the trade unions of the Soviet Union, and of the Amsterdam International, provided there existed mutual good will, could serve as the commencement for the realization of the unity of the whole trade union movement.

We therefore consider it desirable if the general council would revise the decision of the executive of 5th to 7th of February, and would convene together with the general council of the trade unions of the Soviet Union, a conference without pre-conditions, to discuss the question of the unity of the trade unions.

Signed: President Tomsky, Secretary Dogadov.

The Discarded Soldier - -

By Liam O'Flaherty

THE Discarded Soldier had crawled to his garret to die. He lay on his ragged bed. He had lit the candle beside him to light him into eternity. His head peering from the bedclothes was a portrait of death. The face was pale and wan and haggard, like the face of a drowning man, sinking into a dark river in the moonlight. The light of his candle was his moon burning fitfully.

The Discarded Soldier hugged himself close trying to find warmth. His lean hands wandered over the clothes, drawing them closer around his body trying to shield himself from the cold draughts. The veins on the hands stood out like blue snakes, crawling outside the flesh. Death was in his eyes. They were pale blue spots, with red facings, stuck in deep hollows. They were half closed with weariness.

THE hands dropped wearily on the clothes.

POOR Discarded Soldier. Poor useless cannon fodder. Poor scrapped tool of capitalism. But a few years back, he was a strong youth with bright eyes and smooth sleek body perfect in every limb and then. . . . The recruiting sergeants came and looked at his body and they wanted him to fight the war for capitalism. They brought him from the freedom of his lonely home by the sea. They herded him into a battalion with others. He was sent among the monstrous guns, that spat out death. He was marched thru fields sodden with blood to the trenches, where men lay huddled in holes, watching thru the night for death.

He was cheered and petted by fair ladies. They called him a hero. They sang to him. They feasted him. Fat men pinned medals on his breast—for valor they said.

Then again he was hurled against unknown enemies, pushed from behind, cursed, urged on, beaten, imprisoned when he complained, sent on again to kill, amid the roar of guns, and the mud of the trenches.

THEN at last he was caught by a bursting shell and hurled into the air, amid red-hot bolts of steel and showers of earth and smoke. He was crushed into a jabbering mass of pulped flesh. He was no longer a hero. He was a wreck. Capitalism did not want him. The ladies no longer cheered him. They brought him flowers in the hospital for a few months and then forgot. The ribbons faded on his breast. He was cast into the great city, homeless, unwanted, penniless.

Capitalism no longer needed him. Capitalism forgot him. Capitalism imprisoned him when he demanded food. The servants of capitalism beat him with clubs, when he cried for bread. They called him a Bolshevik, a public meance, a scourge of society. They threatened to throw him into a lunatic asylum.

So he crawled into the garret to die, dreaming of his home by the sea—dreaming of the freedom of his youth and the warm sun.

THERE was not even romance in his ghastly death. He was not thinking of romance. He was thinkof his home and the sunlight. The hunger gnawing at his bowels made him weaker. It brought a mist before his eyes and transformed the noises that echoed in his ears. He was carried away from his garret to his home by the sea.

The distant noises of the city traffic seemed to him the noise of the breakers at night rolling toward a rocky shore. The recollection brought a smile to his lips. He became delirious. He could see the dawn breaking now in his home. He could see the waves—gentle now and cheerful—surging calmly over the sandy beaches in an awed whisper.

Then the sun rising in the east, over the hills, glistening on the dew-covered crags. The sun. The beautiful warm sun. The dying man tossed away the clothes. He wanted to lay on his back in the sun. He wanted to bare his bosom to the sun. He stretched out his limbs with a sigh of gratitude. He wanted to bare every muscle to the regenerating warmth.

THEN he listened. Ha. There it was. The song of the lark as the bird soared into the fleecy clouds, singing its morning song of joy. He smelled the wild flowers, that grew by the sea. He saw the glistening sea weed on the rocks, bared by the receding tide. He smelled the salt sea breeze that swept in over the ocean.

Ha! He would soon get well, since he was back again in his home. He would soon be able to run and jump and shout as of old. No more hunger. No more tramping dirty ugly streets. No more fetid smells in slums. No more war, no more roaring guns, no more killing. Joy. To be back again in the sun—the great glorious sun that warmed him.

BUT, ah! The sun was too warm. The dying man licked his parched lips with his tongue. The drought of death was in his throat. His tongue was thick with it. His veins were on fire now. The fever of death was upon him—eating him and he thought that it was the sun. His brain grew dizzy. Then he smiled again. His head turned sideways on the pillow.

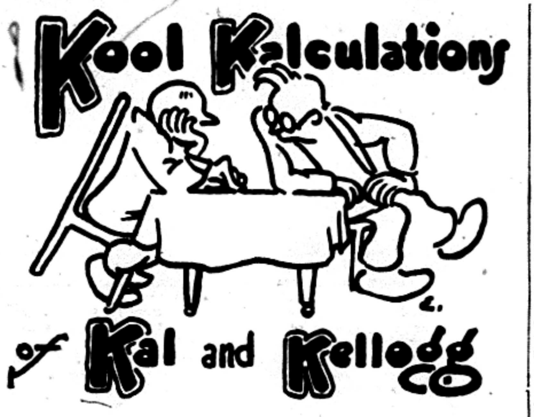
His lips set in a smile.

He saw himself approaching a mountain spring, beneath a towering cliff that sheltered him from the overpowering heat of the sun. He wanted coolness now and water. There it was in front of him—the water rippling out from the base of the cliff, gurgling like wine from a bottle. He knelt on the grassy knoll beside the spring. He stooped until his head was among the water-cress. The stream was at his lips smothering him.

THEN as the water lapped his lips, he stretched his limbs taut to enjoy the exquisite draught and . . . His spirit faded into eternal night. The Discarded Soldier was dead.

Kool Kalculations of Kal and Kell

By OUR WHITE HOUSE REPORTER



Kool Kalculations
of Kal and Kellogg Co

"I THINK I'll go to Swampscott, Mass., and spend the summer dog-days among the cool breezes of the New England hills," said Kalvin to Kellogg, as the two principal servants of Wall Street met for their weekly chat in the White House.

"You think," replied Kellogg with a sly wink. "When did you begin indulging in that vice so rare among politicians?"

Kal—The two of us have got an awful reputation as a pair of boneheads, but we aren't any thicker than the rest of them—are we, Kell?

Kell—If we were we wouldn't be here. As far as I am concerned our critics can take a jump into the river with their wise cracks. They call me "Nervous Nell," but I should worry; I am getting mine.

Kal—You're getting yours all right, but I am afraid you're getting it in the neck. Did you read what the Monday Evening Plute had to say about your note to Mexico?

Kell—No; what did it say?

Kal—It said you might be excused for writing it if you were half shot, but that if you were sober, shooting was too good for you. And you know the edilitor of the Plute is pretty close to the Big Fellow.

Kell—I know that very well. Say, Kal, I have an idea somebody has been double-crossing me. I wonder would it be Borah.

Kal—What makes you think that?

Kell—Borah agreed to the publication of the statement while we were in conference, after he heard the Big Fellow's message from Butler. But later on when he saw how it was taken by the public, he pretended that we pulled something on him. You better watch out for him, Kal; he's playing for the presidency. He's a more dangerous man than Charley Dawes.

Kal—I'm not afraid of either one of them. What I fear is a bad crop and high prices—or a bumper crop and low prices. I fear a slump in business more than anything my enemies can do. As long as things run smoothly I am the man for the job. I know how to keep my mouth shut and look wise.

Kell—I wish you had to do the dirty work I am doing. I get panned for pulling the Mexican boner when you are as much to blame as I am. You know well that it was all fixed up between Sheffield and J. P. that we throw a hot dog at Calles and that he would come back like a belly-full of pulque. Nobody would be hurt, but the confounded Mexican peons that man Calles is more afraid of than we are.

Kal—I must keep quiet, Kell, or the whole show would go up. I got out of the Teapot Dome scrape by keeping my head closed and throwing a couple of bums to the wolves when they threatened to bite me. Nothing will happen to you unless you lose your nerve. I dropped Hughes because he is too dignified and would not play second fiddle. But, Kell, that's what I am doing—playing second fiddle.

Kell—We're all taking our orders from the Big Fellow, but at the same time we have a certain dignity to maintain. If the people begin to laugh at us we are thru. That was the trouble with Warren. The people got the idea he knew less than his dog, and his goose was cooked. But to get back to Mexico. This fellow Calles means all right, but he is a politician like ourselves and he must keep up appearances. Now, since his election he has been getting fat on the Wall Street bottle, but the peasants and the workers got wise and threatened to raise hell.

Kal—If I were there, I'd pull a stunt like I pulled in Boston.

Kell—Shucks! You had an easy job there. Breaking a police strike is velvet compared to subduing a nation of armed peasants. Hold your hobby-horse, Kal, and don't get a swelled head. Calles was up against it. He was using the troops to break strikes and drive the peasants off the lands they took from the big landlords, just as we told him to. Something was going to break. Then it was agreed that I should make a threatening statement and Calles would come back like a broncho and the workers and peasants would think Calles was raising the dickens with the "imperialists of Wall Street," as those damn Communists call us.

Kal—And——

Kell—Everything went according to plan, but we forgot that the newspapers didn't know what it was all about and proceeded to lay it on to us. You escaped, as usual, but the progressives have never forgiven me for once being a progressive. They charged me with inviting war with Mexico. And what do you think that • • • Hearst did?

Kal—Ah, yes, I am anxious to know how he took it. You know I had his man Brisbane with me on the Mayflower while Pershing and LeJeune were discussing the question of a future invasion of Mexico.

Kell—Yes; Hearst came out with a signed statement posing as the friend of Mexico, and we cannot open our mouths or tell the deal Brisbane made with us. Brisbane praises you in his column while Hearst slams me in the rest of the paper.

Kal—Don't worry about what Hearst does. He does not want to antagonize the Mexicans, and he did not get you the job anyhow. As the bible said: "The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

Kell—I sometimes envy Al Fall. He got the dough and got away with it and is now living the life of Reilly. By the way, did you hear what the Big Fellow wants us to do about China?

Kal—His messenger boy, Bill Butler, has not arrived yet. As for me, I don't think about these matters. I think I'll take a walk on the lawn. So long!

Kell—See you later.

MASTERS AND SLAVES (A St

(Synopsis of Preceding Chapters)

Nickles and Joe Vavas, migratory workers, meet under a freight train while beating their way west. They get off at Colorado Springs. Joe Vavas is a barber by trade, and Nickles manages to get work as a footman at Broadmoor, the mansion of the Broidins. His work is constant drudgery. Vavas is class conscious, and Nickles is not, but they are staunch friends nevertheless. An attachment springs up between Nickles and Marguerite, the maid at the Broadmoor mansion. One day Joe Vavas tells Nickles and Marguerite that a barbers' union has been formed to fight against the intolerable conditions. Joe Vavas has formed the union with the help of William who is an American by birth and not an immigrant like Joe. The younger elements in the union, led by Joe and William force a strike against the bosses. The strike is won by the barbers, but the union delegate from Denver sells out at the last moment, and the strikers are deprived of most of the fruits of their victory. The ku klux klan of Colorado Springs holds an initiation ceremony as a result of the fight of the workers. They swear to exterminate the reds. Mr. Broidin takes part in the ceremony. He desires Marguerite the young servant and makes love to her. Gradually Nickles is becoming more and more receptive to the ideas of Joe Vavas who is a Communist. The Broidins are more and more tyrannical. A Christian Science service is held at the Broadmoor mansion. At the ceremony the poet who officiates delivers an oration full of the claptrap of the master class. All this spiritual bunk does not prevent the guests from devouring a great quantity of food after the services are over. This means more work for the servants who are overworked as it is. The Broidins give a bathing party for their friends, which means extra hard work for the servants. Mr. Broidin purposely leaves his camera at the lake in order to send Marguerite to find it at night when everybody is gone. He follows her to the place, and there attacks her. In Colorado Springs there is a general strike wave following the strike of the barbers. The ku klux klan is preparing for a counter-offensive against the workers. The Broidins give a big ball at which the wealthy guests rage against the workers while they themselves indulge in all sorts of pleasures. Broidin makes love to a young woman who responds to his advances. The servants are worn out from their work at the ball. Joe Vavas and William form a local branch of the Workers Party. The members accept the Communist program as outlined by William. But one of those present objects, saying that they should come out for bomb throwing. He leaves the meeting when his proposition is rejected. William is elected organizer and Joe secretary. Joe meets Nickles and asks him to receive the mail for the local Workers Party branch instead of William because William is being watched. Nickles consents because by this time he has become practically converted to Joe's views. His own hard lot has caused this conversion. Marguerite reveals to her lover Nickles about the wrong that Broidin had done her. Nickles is not angry at her, but at Broidin. They decide that in two months they would leave. A leaflet is issued by the local branch of the Workers Party which rallies the workers of Colorado Springs. The reaction gathers its forces. The ku klux klan is getting on the job with the purpose of exterminating the reds and establishing "law and order." William and Joe are arrested, and their homes searched for names. Then they are liberated. There is great excitement and expectation of something terrible about to happen. Now go on with the story.

CHAPTER XX.

"WHEN are we going out for ten minutes?"—Marguerite asked Nickles.

"In four weeks."

The idea of this made the work lighter.

The Broidin family also made preparations to move to New York.

It was a dry winter day.

Joe's experience with the police filled Nickles with indignation.

"But just tell me why?"

He couldn't get it into his head.

It showed him our society from a new angle. He discovered that acts of violence are committed by those who want to remain in power.

• • • •

Nickles got through with the table servcie. In this work he had a good deal of practice.

The knives and forks were nice and bright.

Broidin went through the room.

Nickles was sharpening the knife. His gaze crossed that of Broidin. What expression could there have been in that gaze as he held the big kitchen knife with the steel blade in his hand?

Broidin shrank back. He hurried into the dining room. He had to be among people. But Nickle's gaze followed him there too. And it followed him even when he went to visit the young society woman in the afternoon.

• • • •

Telephone-call.

Marguerite hurries to the receiver.

Mr. Broidin is wanted.

"He isn't home."

"When is he coming home?"

"I don't know . . . Who is that talking?"

"He knows. Just give him the message that he is to be at the clean-up today."

"I don't understand."

"Mr. Broidin is to come to the clean-up today."

"To the clean-up?"

"Yes, to the clean-up, that's right . . ."

She was cut off.

Marguerite laughed.

And she laughed when she delivered the message.

• • • •

It is evening.

A dark evening.

In winter it gets dark early.

"I am going out for ten minutes. Joe is waiting for me."

"For ten minutes? Will it be no longer than that?"

They laughed.

"I mean European ten minutes."

Dolly leaped about him.

"Why certainly, you're coming along."

• • • •

Stillness.

The ten minutes last long.

An auto rattles somewhere.

Stillness.

Marguerite looks at the clock.

"He is certainly wasting time."

She waits.

The time drags on with leaden steps.

An hour has already gone.

It is cold outside.

She becomes uneasy.

Maybe he'll catch a cold.

She broods. She thinks of going out. But she does not. He might think it obtrusive and might get angry.

She lies down on the bed. Perhaps he had to go downtown. That has happened once before. But he always told her if that was the case. Maybe it happened all of a sudden, and he didn't have the time to go back to tell her.

She calms herself.

She is tired.

Sleep overcomes her.

Dolly yelps.

An auto tears by.

A blow. Blow of a fist. Powerful hands. Cold, cutting wind.

Someone laughs.

He is stunned.

What's that? What's that?

He opens his eyes.

The auto tears thru the white night.

He wants to cry. Cannot. They have stuffed something into his mouth. Earth. He wants to spit it out. He can't. His mouth is gagged. He wants to tear off the gag. Impossible. His hands are tied.

A living corpse.

The auto tears through the night.

Whither?

The road winds on.

Pikes Peak is dumb.

Autos are coming from all sides.

White hoods glimmer.

What do they want of him?

The raid winds on.

Do they want to torture him?

His glance meets a pair of eyes. Only for a second. Somebody looks away towards the window.

The auto dashes on.

Perhaps this pair of eyes will save him . .

What do they want with him?

Maybe it's only a joke. A joke of the rich poor man. He hadn't done anything wrong. W wrong has he done?

It is an evil, ugly joke.

It wasn't right.

The automobiles dash on.

Always higher up.

Suddnely the car stops.

"Yes! And now you come with your lies here, because you didn't get any money! I'm going to have you locked up!"

Marguerite trembled with anger from head to foot. She couldn't utter a word.

"Up to now I haven't taken down the testimony. If you wish you can dictate your false facts now and then I'll have you locked up."

Not a word passed her lips.

"Now then, if you wish you can begin your confession"—and he stressed sneeringly the word "confession."

The room spun with Marguerite.

She remained silent.

Her lips moved. She stared about her, to see if they were going to arrest her. Then she ran out of the room. At the home of William's widow she collapsed and couldn't utter a word for a long time.

• • • •

The "Springs Paper" tried to make it clear to the workers that only their continued agitation forced the citizens to resort to self-defense.

• • • •

The guilty ones could not be found.

Only one worker was found who could not give a good alibi for the day in question.

The case came before a jury.

Marguerite prepared herself for the trial. She secured a revolver and concealed it in her pocket.

"If there'll be no judge I'm going to get justice myself!"

Mr. Broidin was invited as witness. He knew Nickles. In the hall-way he was talking loudly about the rabble that was using this opportunity too for making trouble.

Marguerite stood behind his back. "Now I can kill him"—she thought. "But no. Not yet. Let the workers see what the justice of the masters looks like."

She went on.

She looked for a place from which she would surely hit him.

She walked to and fro.

Maybe her look was wild. Perhaps in this surroundings she looked out of place. A detective spoke to her:

"What are you looking for here?"

"I want to be present at the trial."

"Have you got a card?"

"No."

"Then you can't stay here."

"Are there any cards left?"

"No."

She had to leave the building. Mr. Broidin went before her into the court-room, but she didn't have the force to shoot him.

She looked for the exit.

She was very much annoyed not to find it. She opened the door of a check room. There was no one here. The coats hung on the clothes racks. If someone found her here he might think that she wanted to steal coats. Her heart beat violently. If they should search her they would find the revolver—what should she say in that case?

She turned pale.

At last she found the exit.

And now she had to wait three hours until the trial was over. She looked around at the automobiles. She knew the Broidin car well.

She locked the safety-bolt. Three hours is a long time—the revolver could not go off in her pocket.

She sat down in the park on a bench.

How slowly the time passes!

She had gone pretty far.

She must be careful. There are few people in the street. The doors are being guarded and watched. She was not noticed. At last. People are coming.

She gathered all her force together.

Still no Broidin.

One auto after another rides off.

Now: Mr. and Mrs. Broidin appear in the door.

Now!

Her heart contracts.

Her hand trembles.

It requires tremendous will-power to stretch out the hand. To force the hand to murder. Deliberately to extinguish the life of another. One must be so transported as to see more than an individual, to see all of society.

Marguerite stretches out her hand. Mr. Broidin helps his wife into the car. He does not see that the muzzle of a revolver is staring at him.

The last moment.

The right moment.

Marguerite presses the trigger.

Once.

Twice.

But the revolver misses fire.

A powerful blow comes down on her hand.

She is dragged forward by detectives.

— — — — — — — — — —

It was only in the police station that she realized that she hadn't unlocked the hammer.

They took down her testimony.

The cause of the act: Broidin is one of the murdereds.

— — — — — — — — — —

Mild excitement.

— — — — — — — — — —

But Marguerite was sent away the same day to the insane asylum.

In the "Springs Paper" the following notice appeared:

"At the end of the trial there was a painful incident which came by a hair near costing the life of Mr. Broidin the worthy citizen of our city. A crazy woman wanted to shoot him but the woman forgot to cock the revolver. The madwoman has been put away in the institution. The case will not even come before the jury."

• • • •

Mr. and Mrs. Broidin left the same day for New York.

The friends of Joe and William and William's widow smuggled pamphlets and leaflets into the insane asylum.

Marguerite learns and works a great deal. She is altogether calm now and doesn't speak any more about Mr. Broidin having been one of the klan-murderers. Her lawyer makes every effort to free her from the insane asylum.

In Colorado Springs they did not succeed in killing the labor movement even with the murder of Joe, William and Nickles.

The life and death of these martyrs is only a shining example for the millions of workers, giving them zeal to continue with iron will and inexorably the struggle for freedom.

The slaves fight against the masters!

Oppression? Torture? Death?

Reign of terror of the master?

The wheels of time cannot be stayed, cannot be stopped.

The millions of slaves gather under new battle flags . . .

In the distance shines the red star . . .

In spite of everything!

The End.

Why Are the French Fighting in Morocco?

By JAY LOVESTONE.

WHY are the French militarists investing so much energy so much gold and so much proletarian and colonial blood in their campaign of subduing the Riffs?

What interest does the French militarist clique, which has taken the place of the Prussian militarist group as the leading military power of capitalist Europe, in waging such strenuous warfare in Africa at this time?

A Powder Magazine.

When the writer was present at the sessions of the last Enlarged Executive of the Communist International, he had occasion to discuss at length the whole Moroccan question with Comrade Doriot, whose arrest by the French government has just been reported. Comrade Doriot told me that Morocco is a virtual powder magazine for the French imperialists. Comrade Doriot said that the smallest spark might serve to influence and mobilize Morocco against French imperialist control.

The victory of the Riffs over Spanish imperialist forces has evidently been more than a small spark in arousing and inflaming the national aspirations of the Riffs against subjugation by French imperialism.

THE French imperialists look upon the contest in Morocco as much more than a local contest. With their hands full in European difficulties and entanglements the French ruling class might conceivably be more anxious to make temporary secondary concessions to Abd-el-Krim in order to secure peace in Morocco. But the French imperialists know that a defeat or a disgrace for them in Morocco means a smashing blow at their entire imperialist colonial policy. Such a disaster for imperialist France in its campaign against the Riffs would shake the foundations of all French colonies and spheres of influence thruout Asia and Africa.

In discussing this question with Comrade Doriot I said that Morocco is to French imperialism what the Philippines are to American imperialism. A free Morocco is a mortal blow struck against French imperialism. Free Philippines are a mortal blow against Yankee imperialism. Morocco and the Philippines are the Achilles' heels of French and American imperialism.

An examination of recent developments in Moroccan trade and a perusal of the role of France in Moroccan development shows that not only politically but also economically Morocco is virtually a key to French imperialist colonial prowess, just as the Philippines are potentially the key to American imperialist colonial prowess in the Far East.

In fact, Morocco serves to ullustrate very well the why and wherefore of the tremendous importance attached by European capitalist powers of their control and domination of the development of their colonies and protectorates.

In recent years France has been particularly aggressive in its colonial policy. Imperialist France has more and more become dependent on its colonial possessions for the sources of raw materials for its developing industries. In 1924 France had for the first time in 19 years a favorable trade balance. The French imports from its colonies in 1924 were most insturmental in making it possible for France to show this favorable trade balance.

Agricultural development has been making rapid strides in Morocco. In the last few years the exploitation of Morocco's rich mineral resources have drawn world wide attention.

The Political Divisions of Morocco.

IN order to have their regime function efficiently from an administrative and political point of view, the international imperialists have subdivided Morocco into three zones.

The first and most important section of Morocco is the French protectorate. Here are found nearly 85 per cent of the area and inhabitants of all Morocco. Fez is the capital and Casablanca is the leading commercial center and port of this area.

Secondly, we have the dwindling, and now limited practically to the coast line only, Spanish protectorate. This is a narrow strip of land, covering an area of about three hundred miles, from the Atlantic ocean along the Mediterranean. The towns of Teuton, Ceuta and Melilla are the chief centers in this section.

Thirdly, we have the so-called international Tangier seciton. This covers an area of about 150 square miles. Tangiers is governed according to terms of a treaty signed in Paris on December 18, 1923, by France, Great Britain and Spain. Since the signing of this treaty American financial interests have protested against its terms and have in the last few months succeeded thru the pressure of the state department to secure certain modifications of the Paris convention provisions.

Agriculture Leading Industry.

PRIMARILY Morocco is an agricultural country. Timely rainfalls are essential to enable the Moroccans to exploit fully the advantages and the possibilities of their soil. Practically speaking there is a dearth of irrigation facilities. The exploitation of the good natural agricultural resources is further hindered by the use of backward, crude implements. The last year was an especially favorable one for Moroccan crops because there was plenty of rain. Inclusive of cattle the first nine months of 1924 show a total value of 356,000,000 francs for the agricultural exports from Morocco. This sum was more than twice the size for the corresponding period for the preceding year.

Barley, wheat, beans and certain seeds are the most important aricultural products of Morocco in the year named. Sheep, cattle and hops lead in the live stock industry of the country.

Great Timber Areas.

THERE are more than three million acres of the total area of Morocco covered by forests. But poor transportation and lack of irrigation, as well as increasing dissatisfaction on the part of the natives with the treatment by their foreign oppressors, are responsible for the present condition whereby only one-sixth of this vast forest area is utilized.

Tremendous Mineral Resources.

MOROCCO teems with rich mineral deposits. Yet, for the reasons mentioned in explaining the stunted development of the lumber industry, the utilization of the vast mineral deposits of Morocco is likewise retarded. There are no coal deposits to be found in Morocco, but the phosphate mines in the neighborhood of Casablanca are continually increasing their output. In 1923 the phosphate output totaled about 191,000 metric tons. These mines are exploited by the government and their products are the subject of government monopoly.

In the so-called Spanish zone, largely retaken by the Riffs, there are found rich iron mines. The development of these mines has only begun.

Growing Moroccan Trade.

BY far the greatest proportion of the Moroccan trade is carried on with France, Great Britain and Spain. There are no accurate official statistics ascertaining the volume of the entire Moroccan trade for the last year. But one can, with sufficient accuracy, say that this total trade was nearly $100,000,000 in 1924. The exports for this period reached a record mark of nearly $35,000,000. The French Moroccan sone imported nearly one billion francs, or about $50,000,000, in 1924. This was more than 80 per cent of the imports into Morocco as a whole.

French Morocco.

IN view of the fact that the commerce of the French sone is obviously the most important and that the struggle of the Moroccan people now centers primarily against French imperialism, it will be appropriate to consider somewhat more at length the French protectorate.

The great dependence of France on its colonial possessions for raw materials is shown by the fact that last year there was a balance of four million francs in favor of the protectorate in its trade with France. The French imperialists shipped two hundred million francs' worth of commodities into Morocco and took into France from Morocco two hundred and four million francs' worth of commodities. Recently there has been noticeable a heavy expenditure in Morocco for great quantities of equipment and supplies for railways, ports and such other works. Local taxation and revenue of the colonial government monopolies, such as of the phosphate mines, supply the bulk of the source for this expenditure.

Coal, cotton goods, sugar, wine, tea and kerosene are among the leading imports into Morocco. The United States supplies nearly 80 per cent of Moroccan imports of minerals, oils and kerosene. France supplies nearly 70 per cent of the cement and other construction supplies. All in all, the French imperialists supply about 65 per cent of the total Moroccan imports.

The live stock, cork and phosphate constitute the principal agricultural exports from Morocco. France and Spain take more than 50 per cent of the phosphate exports. France and England consume the bulk of Moroccan barley. Ninety per cent of Moroccan wheat and the greatest proportion of Moroccan beans, wool, sheepskins, cattle hides, gums and seeds go to France. In 1924 Morocco sent nearly 200,000 head of sheep, hogs and cattle to France.

Moroccan Industrial Development.

THE last decade has seen four years of rapid progress in the development of the transportation system of the country. This is especially true in the construction of highways now radiating in many parts of the country. The passenger and freight traffic have thus been tremendously facilitated.

At the same time railroad construction has been increasing steadily. These are only some of the signs of industrial developments of Morocco which are proving of great help to the French imperialists in decreasing their dependence upon foreign supplies for the raw materials which their industrial machine demands.

Lessons from the Moroccan Conflict.

WE can safely assume, unless presently unforeseen circumstances intervene, that the French imperilaists will go to the limit in their efforts to subdue the Abd-el-Krim forces and to smash the aspirations of the Riffs for a completely national independent Morocco. This contest is turning into a tug-of-war between the economic and military resources of the French imperialists on the one hand and the nationalist enthusiasm and energy, the fighting spirit and military skill of the Riffs led by Abd-el-Krim on the other hand.

The Riffs are flushed with their victory over Spanish imperialism. The Riffs are bent on restoring Morocco to the Moroccans. The French imperialists are still flushed with pride because of their victory over German imperialism. The French imperialists dare not voluntarily yield an inch of ground to the conquering Riffs, lest a sharp entering wedge be driven into their imperialist structure.

In this struggle between the imperialist forces on the one hand and the colonial masses on the other hand we find a classic illustration of the respective roles played by the socialists and the Communists in the international struggle against imperialism, of which the colonial struggles are only a part.

The socialist party of France, after hesitating, wavering, floundering and compromising, has definitely gone over boot and baggage to the imperialist camp of Painleve. The interests of the aristocracy, the uppermost strata, of labor are endangered, according to the views of the leaders of the socialist party of France, by the menace fo a French military disaster in Morocco.

The Communists, on the other hand, led by such valiant fighters against militarism and imperialism as Doriot are openly resisting French imperialist aggression in Morocco. The Communist Party of France, like the Communist parties of the other countries, are solidly lined up with the colonial people of Morocco, oppressed by their respective national imperialist cliques.

LIKEWISE we may look forward to the British imperialists coming to the rescue of the French and Spanish imperialists, who have already united in their efforts to defeat the conquering Riffs. We may without doubt look to the union of all imperialist forces in this anti-imperialist struggle as well as in all other anti-imperialist struggles. As this Moroccan struggle broadens and becomes more intense we may expect that the participation of the Communist parties of the world under the leadership fo the Communist International will simultaneously increase.

Morocco is a great prize for French imperialism. But Morocco may yet turn out to be a veritable graveyard for the hopes of the arrogant French imperialists.

"The question of the State is acquiring at the present a particular importance both theoretical and practical"

Says Lenin, the great Communist teacher and leader in the preface to his famous book

THE STATE AND REVOLUTION

By V. I. Ulianov (Lenin).

Today this question is of even greater importance—a sufficient reason why every worker (and every Communist surely!) should have a thorough knowledge of it.

For the Unity of the Trade Union Movement

front to the capitalist class. And when the class stands up against class, it means not only an economic but also a political struggle.

The conference recognised the significance of this struggle. It did not remain within the narrow bounds of the economic struggle, but declared war against the danger of new wars as one of the preliminary conditions of unity, new wars however belong to the very nature of capitalist conditions.

These eleven million workers however not only found a common language, but they also gave certain organizatory foundations to co-operation in the interest of the realization of the aims they had set themselves. When the organised masses of workers of the two strongest trade union organizations of the world join in trying to reach an aim which at first sight appears a very modest one—the unity of the international labor movement—this represents a force which must be taken seriously. The Anglo-Russian advisory committee is not yet organized, but it is already, among many milions of workers, the most popular organization in the world. We shall see how those people who can see no further than the end of their nose into the depths of the international movement, will be able to resist this alliance, those who dare to assert that the Russian trade unions can have no significance in the west European labor movement. Our firmly united trade union movement can give the international labor movement not only 6½ million organized, closely allied workers, but another trifle—these 6½ million workers are in the possession of power, they have the power literally in their hands.

In the scales of the struggle between labor and capital, every thousand workers is of importance. And wherever there are three workers, we must go and organise them so that none remain unorganized. This is how we must regard the tasks of the international labor movement and our duties in the struggle against capital.

The Immediate Prospect.

WE ask for approval of our work which we have carried out under extremely difficult and complicated circumstances. We steered a straight course for unity, we showed that for us it is no matter for jest, but that we are ready to work with earnestness and perseverance in the interest of this aim. We have already achieved something in this direction, and it is not for nothing that the bourgeois press has raised such a hue and cry against us. The Times declares that the declaration is written "in the language of belligerent class-war" and contains dangerously ambiguous phrases. "And," says the Times, "class-war means, in the language of the Communists, seizing and actually fighting."

Mr. MacDonald, in his Easter message to the workers, issues a new slogan: the necessity of a bloc between the English and German trade unions. There is no need to be a British ex-prime minister in order to understand that such a bloc has existed already for ages and is confirmed by the fact that the trade unions of both countries belong to the same international.

Cramp, the well known leader of the British railwaymen proposes founding a continental international. If he were consistent he would arrive at the conclusion that every country ought to have its own international. Cramp proposed leaving Russia and the east to the Red International of Labor Unions, America to the American Federation of Labor, while the whole of Europe, with the exception of Russia, should belong to the Amsterdam International.

WE know that MacDonald, round whom the right leaders of the general council are gathered, is preparing for a great attack on our comrades on the eve of the approaching congress of the trade unions. The bourgeois press on the other hand is trying to compromise the leaders of the trade union movement, and clamors: "They have capitulated to Tomsky without resistance and unconditionally." The bourgeois newspapers further write that "the plan accepted by the conference is reminiscent of a military aliance between two states."

All these attacks of the bourgeois press are merely witness to the fact that the proletariat is on the right path. The British comrades and we ourselves are faced with a difficult task, and we must find the best means for mutual suport in all the difficulties we shall meet by the way.

We do not in the least understand why the Amsterdam International will not even meet us. Are Oudgeest and Sassenbach afraid of us? Is it possible that they are afraid we shall corrupt them if they sit at the same table with us? We have nothing to fear, we have nothing to conceal from the workers, and we say: "Let us discuss our proposals together."

We are convinced that in spite of all difficulties, in spite of all the intrigues of the bourgeois press, we shall achieve our objects and overcome all obstacles. No one will be able to arrest the many millions of workers in their elementary efforts for the unity of the international labor movement.

The Problems of the Czech Communists

By ALOIS NEURATH (Prague).

I.

The Economic Situation.

AFTER the second party session of the Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia, the Czech bourgeoisie began to engage in their new campaign against the proletariat. It was not the first time since 1920 that they endeavored to provoke the workers of Ostrow and particularly to defeat this most important section of the Czecho-Slovakian proletariat, in order in this way to prepare for the certain defeat of the workers in all other branches of industry. In the autumn of 1924, the Red Trade Union organizations in common with the leaders of the Communist Party of Czecho-Slovakia succeeded in frustrating this maneuver of the bourgeoisie. Strongly backed by the social democrats of all nations in this state, but especially by the Czech government socialists, the exploiters continued indefatigably their efforts in this direction.

As a matter of fact, the conditions of living of the Czecho-Slovakian workers have changed very much for the worse during the past two years. The rise in price of all foodstuffs, the pressure of taxes, the cutting down of the staff of officials and the underhand manner in which the unemployed were treated—all these measures of government and bourgeoisie, which were against the interests of the whole working population, were enuf to drive the proletariat to despair. When the slaves of the mines in the Ostrow district made their demands it transpired that more than 90 per cent of the Ostrow miners were prepared to take up the fight against the mine magnates. All efforts at conciliation on the part of the social democrats and the reformist trade union leaders, proved ineffectual. Social democrats, Communists, Christian socialists, independents, in short the whole of the Ostrow slaves of the mines proved determined to oppose in open fight the insolent presumption of the exploiters. Exploiters and social democrats concentrated their efforts on the one object: the isolation of the Ostrow struggle. As a matter of fact the Ostrow miners were left alone, and after a few days of heroic fighting the strike had to be called off. It should be said at once, that the will to fight of the Ostrow proletariat is unbroken, that its connection with the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia is firmer than ever, and that even the success of the mine owners has nothing like the significance that it had in previous similar struggles.

AS in previous years, the capitalists of other branches of industry, especially the employers in the metal and textile branches, are now anxious to follow the example of their fellow-capitalists in Ostrow and to put their wage-slaves on short commons.

From Bodenbach to Komotau, the workers in a number of large and medium-sized works of the metal industry are locked out on account of the demands of a comparatively small group of metal workers. As for the employers in the textile industry, it is up to the present only evident that they are making certain preparations for severer blows against the workers. At the present moment, the coalition parties are at daggers drawn about the customs on corn. There is however, no doubt that the family quarrel in the coalition will sooner or later come to an end thru a formula for agreement being found, and the necessary concession being made to the agrarians. After the agrarians it will be the turn of the cotton-lords and it may be taken for granted that this coalition government will to the best of its ability serve one master after the other. Apart from many other examples, the way in which the coalition government is now proceeding against the paper workers who are on strike in Bohmisch-Krumau, shows clearly what it is prepared to do for the knights of industry in the struggle against the wage slaves. The workers in one of the largest paper factories in Czecho-Slovakia (about 1,500) are on strike. The Czecho-Slovakian authorities immediately turned the small town of Krumau into a military camp. The struggle of the Krumau workers has been going on for weeks; their ranks are unshaken. The employers are now hoping that it will be possible to force the rebellious wage-slaves on to their knees by means of the brutal procedure of the gendarmerie, police and other armed guardians of democratic peace and order.

II.

Bubnik's Partisians in Alliance With the Bourgeoisie.

FOR months past, the Czecho-Slovakian bourgeoisie has been casting sheep's eyes at the extereme right wing of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia. It has done all that is possible on its part, to make the task of disintegrating the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia as easy as possible to people of the type of Bubnik, Warmbrunn, Roucek, etc. It is well known that the right wing of the party carried on the fight against the resolutions of the C. I. and against the C. C. of the party respectively in the name of party morals. By welcoming this "moral struggle" of our right, the bourgeoisie showed that it was also interested in —the purity and integrity within the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia, as indeed it stood up for the maintenance and security of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia with admirable fervor.

When the Pol-Bureau caught Bubnik at his criminal work and turned him out of the party, the bouregois press howeld at the injustice which had been done to a man whose only care had been the purity of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia. The rage of the bourgeoisie and of social democracy over the quick and energetic action of the Pol-Bureau is much more comprehensive now that we have a clearer survey of the events than was the case in February of this year. The bourgeois parties dread the next election especially because of the influence of the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia. They could therefore hardly contain themselves for joy when they saw Bubnik, Warmbrunn and their companions "at work" in the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia.

III.

The Block Fights the Dangers of the Rirght.

THE block formed in Moscow between the left wing and the center is justifying its existence. The hopes of the bouregoisie and of the right elements in the party that this block could again be shaken, have proved to be deceptive. It is now quite amusing to watch the somersaults turned by the social democrat and bourgeois editors. At the conclusion of the discussions of the E. C. C. I. they hoped that the Prague district organization would rebel against the Pol-Bureau, then they expected the Kladno group to prove particlarly uncompromising and, above all, they were perfectly certain that Brunn would take up an attitude of opposition to the C. C. and the C. I. And now we are at the end of the decisive events within the party. Those who had the audacity to make propaganda for a split in the party, who were bold enough to organise within the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia a fight against the Communist International have been laid low. That which Zinoviev and Stalin prophesied in the Czecho-Slovakian Commission, has come true more rapidly than could have been anticipated: those who openly oppose the Comintern are immediately made generals without troops.

The workers of Brunn and Kladno as well as the workers in the whole state not only have nothing to do with the Bubnik group, they show them decided opposition and treat them with the contempt they deserve. Until a few hours ago, Roucek was able to play the part of an influential and loved leader, i.e., just as long as he succeeded in deceiving the workers as to his real political conviction and as to the fact that at the bottom of his heart he had never for a moment been anything but a genuine and true social democrat. When Roucek had resigned from the party, a conference of Brunn representatives unanimously accepted this resolution. The party loses a dozen or at the most two dozen of those leaders who, consciously or unconsciously looked after the affairs of the bourgeoisie within the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia. Not a single worker has gone with the renegades, and these gentlemen, having lost their game in the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia, will now have played their last card as camp-followers of the bouregois and social democrat parties.

THE outrageous game of the right clique leaders in the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia is at an end. The struggle of these elements against the party leadership and against the C. I. has seriously injured the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia, that cannot be denied. Having rid itself of these noxious and hampering inimical elements, the party must, without delay, turn its attention to healing the wounds it has received in the fight against opportunism. And this work will be accomplished in no time. The party as it is now constituted will be a reliable and determined guide to the working masses of Czecho-Slovakia. The block created in Moscow has, during the last few days, stood the test and will continue to stand it. There may be all sorts of difficulties here and there within the party, but one thing is clear: the block will stand fast against the dangers of the right, and from this we may logically conclude that even in the solution of all the other tasks with which the C. P. of Czecho-Slovakia is faced, it cannot be shaken.

Events in Bulgaria and Bulgarian Social-Democracy

IN a letter to the press, Malone, one of the members of the English delegation, whose visit to Sofia coincided with the explosion in the cathedral, in describing the bestialities of the Sofia executioners, says:

"The most deplorable thing is the malignant attitude of the social democrats towards the Communists. Pastuchow, the chief editor of the social democrat newspaper "Epocha" and Sakassov, the former social democrat minister in Zankow's cabinet, have published declarations stating that they wholeheartedly support the Zankow regime. The social democrats inveigh against Russia and suspect "Moscow" of being responsible for everything."

As a matter of fact, it is difficult to imagine anything meaner and more revolting than the part played by the Bulgarian social democracy, especially during the recent sanguinary events in Bulgaria.

THE Bulgarian social democrats have already divested themselves of the last rag of a socialist sense of shame and have even surpassed persons like Noske and Horthy's social decomcratic lackeys. The social democratic party in Bulgaria long ago entered the camp of the bourgeoisie. As early as after the split of the old social democratic party into the "narrow-minded and the "broad-minded" socialists in 1903, the latter took their stand on the opposite side of the barricade in the fight between the proletariat and the bourgeoisie, although they were still eagerly coqueting with socialism. In this whole time, and especially during the war, they actively supported the bourgeois parties in their struggle against the masses of workers and twice participated directly in bourgeois governments.

In 1919, when the position of the Bulgarian bourgeoisie was terribly shaken, and the wave of revolution threatened to put an end to its rule, the social democrats were given three places in the government, and their leader Pastuchow was even "entrusted" with the ministry of police, so that he could settle accounts with the rapidly increasing Communist Party, and suppress the discontent of the masses of workers and peasants which was spreading throughout the country. And the first responsible person to illtreat the workers and peasants was none other than the social democrat minister Pastuchow.

FROM this time onwards, the Bulgarian mensheviki openly threw in their lot with the lot of the bourgeoisie. Their embitterment against the Communist Party which had long ago shattered them ideologically and which uninterruptedly unmasked the treacherous part played by social democracy, reached its extreme limits and even infected the masses of workers and peasants who marched under the banner of the Communist Party, as well as the peasants who were organized in the ranks of the Peasants' League.

The leaders of the social-democratic party took part in the military and bourgeois conspiracy against Stambuliski's peasant government. They supplied a minister for the Zankov cabinet which came into being as the result of the overthrow of the government on June 9, 1923. At the time when their minister Sakassov was a member of Zankov's cabinet, the well-known provocation of September 1923 against the Communists and the working masses of the country was undertaken. With their participation and their active support, the slaughter of the arrested Communists and partisans of the Peasants' League was organized in September 1923, when more than 5000 of the workers, peasants, teachers, lawyers and other members of the active intelligentsia, who had been arrested by the government, were basely murdered. The social democrats not only consented to this, but in the maddest way egged on the government to outalw the Communist Party, the Red trade unions and the workers' co-operative association "Oswoboshdenije." They were the first to demand the dissolution of the legal labor party which was then organized.

WHEN however, under pressure from the Second International, which was alarmed by the exaggerated zeal of Pastuchow, the social democratic party withdrew its minister from the Zankov cabinet, it did not discontinue its active support of the terrorist regime. The most provocatory, dastardly and fantastic insinuations, the most insolent calumnies against the Communists and against the Soviet Union were found above all in the press of the social democratic party.

Shortly before the explosion in the Sofia cathedral, the social democratic parliamentary fraction organized, in connection with the discussion on the budget of the ministry for foreign affairs, a wild demonstration against the Soviet Union. Kalfow, the minister for foreign affairs provided a credit for the Bulgarian mission in Moscow and justified it on the grounds that Bulgaria, too, might at any moment be faced by the necessity of recognizing the Soviet Union. The social democratic party which had never raised a single word of protest against the terror raging in their own country and against the annihilation of the best part of the working masses in Bulgaria, was roused to indignation by this paragraph in the budget strongly protested against the Zankov government which was preparing for Bulgaria to enter into diplomatic relations with the "Moscow malefactors." The social democratic parliamentary fraction proposed a formal motion for the removal of the said paragraph from the budget, but this motion was rejected by a majority of the government itself.

AFTER the crime in the Sofia cathedral, the military budget was discussed in parliament of April 23rd. The social democratic party was of course as usual "at its post.". In its name, the social democrat deputy Tchernookov, declared:

"At the moment when the Bulgarian army is making superhuman efforts to maintain order (?!) within the country, the unpleasant task has fallen to my lot of explaining the vote of our parliamentary fraction on the military budget... The civil war which is being waged at present is no merely internal affair. The united front of the illegal conspirators appears to be a tool of foreign powers. In its striving after conquest, Moscow imperialism has found a good co-operator in the supporters of a united front (i. e. the Communists and the members of the Peasants' League.—Ed.) and therefore the Bulgarian army is carrying on a war which is to all intents and purposes patriotic, against the external enemies and their internal agents who are working in harmony towards a common end."... "Our place can be nowhere but in the ranks of the defenders of the nation." (!?) (From the central organ of the social democratic party of Bulgaria "Narod" of April 24, 1925.)

At the same time the social democratic leader Pastuchow wrote in the newspaper "Epocha" of April 28th:

"With the cold-bloodedness of the most blood thirsty executioner, Moscow is using the inflammatory in Bulgaria to set the Balkans and the whole world in flames, knowing beforehand that the first victim of this conflagration will be Bulgaria itself. Now this plan of Moscow is unmasked before the whole world and its intrigues in Bulgaria will become the subject of international policy."

THE editor of the "Epocha" on his part, hastened to say in the same number:

"Recent events here have created in Europe great indignation against Bolshevism, and mitigated the old feelings of hatred against Bulgaria. This new course is a real blessing to our country... It is our duty to give objective (!!) reports on everything that happens. The Bulgarian government will do its duty; and the individual parties must do the same. The central committee of the social democratic party decided to send communication regarding the recent events in Bulgaria to the bureau of the Second Internationa, and to ask for help in the fight against the Bolshevist peril in the Balkans. The communications will be sent to all the prominent socialists of the world."

At the same time social democrats are appointed in all Bulgarian foreign missions to give information to the foreign press, to defend the sanguinary Zankov regime and to "refute" news about the horrible bestialities practiced on Bulgarian workers and peasants, which may penetrate into foreign countries. One of these social democratic agents of the executioners at Sofia is the Dr. Tschitschowsky who is carrying on a "controversy" with Malone in the English press. The real, treacherous nature of the Second International, this agency of bourgeois reaction in Europe, is now reflected in the sanguinary deeds of its Bulgarian section. The treachery and ignominy of the social democratic party of Bulgaria crown the counter-revolutionary policy of the Second International.

B[illegible]h Fears Plunder of C[illegible]ese Rushing U.S. to War in the Far East

(Special to The Daily Worker)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.—The United States is drifting toward war in the Orient. This danger found a voice in the national capital here when U. S. Senator Borah, head of the senate foreign relations' committee, declared that plunder of the Chinese nation by American imperialism was inevitably leading toward open hostilities. The situation in China is becoming very ominous, Borah declares. Borah made the statement in reply to an attack on him by the American chamber of commerce of China at Hankow, which scored him for saying: "Personally, I would favor the withdrawal of extra-territorial rights in China as speedily as practicable and a policy adopted by all which would respect the territorial integrity and national rights of a great people."

The American chamber of commerce of China "is part of the imperialist combine which would oppress and exploit the Chinese," Borah said.

"The position of a foreigner in China is more favorable than that of a native Chinese."

War with Britain Looms.

SHANGHAI, June 28—War between China and Great Britain is imminent according to reports in circulation here. The Chinese are more bitter against the British than even against the Japanese.

Large numbers of Chinese still have faith in the United States. Until the advent of Soviet Russia into Chinese affairs, the United Statse was looked upon as China's only friend, but that position is today occupied by the Soviet government, which has followed a policy of disinterested friendliness towards the Chinese people, repudiating all laws with which it had any connection, that were detriminal to the interests of the Chinese masses. This practical token of friendship won the hearts of the Chinese people.

The Chinese commission investigating the Shanghai trouble returned to the Japanese mill owners the $10,000 indemnity tendered for the murder of the Chinese strikers. All negotiations looking towards a settlement of the strike failed. The Japanese mill barons denied all demands for wage increases and also the demand for the right of organization into unions.

Strike Is Spreading.

The strike is extending, hitting the British severely. The striking workers are now organized and the union is paying strike benefits. The workers and peasants of Soviet Russia are subscribing generously to the strike funds and it was learned today that the International Transport Workers' Federation, of which Edo Fimmen is secretary, has agreed not to allow the transportation of arms if possible for war on the Chinese people, but will help to transport arms for the use of the Chinese in making war on the imperialist powers for their national liberation.

Have Shooting Habit.

OFFICIALS OF UNITED GARMENT WORKERS PLAYING ROLE OF SCABS IN LOCAL AMALGAMATED STRIKE

The officials of the United Garment Workers of America have openly appeared in the role of strikebreakers, in the strike of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, representing their members employed by the International Tailoring company and the J. L. Tailors.

The two firms refused to sign an agreement with the Amalgamated, but demanded concessions. When this was refused, a strike resulted. Immediately the scabby U. G. W., which is affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, appeared on the scene and published an advertisement in the Chicago Tribune of June 28, which runs as follows:

COAT SHOP HELP.
UNION SHOP CONDITIONS.
Pocket Makers.
Basters.
Finishers.
Off Pressers.
Etc.
Also all kinds of help for Vest and Pants Shops—Cutters and Bushelman.
Come early and secure permanent positions.
UNITED GARMENT WORKERS OF AMERICA,
International Tailoring Co.,
847 W. Jackson Blvd.,
Chicago, Ill.

It is reported that President Rickett of the United Garment Workers is in conference with the officials of the International Tailoring Co. There is a rumor floating around that the clothing firm promised to entered into a contract with Rickert provided he succeeded in breaking the strike. Ricket's scabby organization is akin to the Boot and Shoe Workers' Union and is in no degree different from a company union.

Effort to Smash Union.

About 800 members of the Amalgamated are involved in the strike. The clothing bosses consider the struggle on the International Tailoring company of great importance and if victorious intend to make it the entering wedge in an effort to establish the open shop in the men's clothing trades in this city, or sign up with the Rickert outfit, which means practically the same thing.

The members of the Amalgamated are just as determined to smash the open shop drive of the clothing bosses and to run scabby Rickert outfit out of town. The picket lines will be manned today by members of the Amalgamated. The clothing bosses will know that they have a fight on their hands before they are thru. They will also learn that the strikebreaking faker Rickert will be of no use to them.

AS WE SEE IT.

By T. J. O'FLAHERTY

THE jurisdictional squabble between the plasterers and bricklayers which has resulted in one union calling out its members on jobs where members of the other union are employed, furnishes eloquent proof of the futility of craft unionism and the great need for the amalgamation of all craft unions into industrial unions. When it is not the bricklayers fighting the plasterers or vice versa, it is the sheet metal workers and the carpenters or the teamsters and the street railwaymen.

• • •

[illegible] resemblance to the [illegible] in the American labor movement caused by craft divisions is the situation in China with rival tuchuns quarreling over the spoils to be gained by holding possession of chunks of that country, regardless of the interests of the country as a whole. But the Chinese masses are now determined to put an end to the tuchuns and intend to "amalgamate" China so that their country can present a united front to foreign imperialism. This is what the rank and file of the American Federation of Labor must do.

• • •

THERE is no more reason why the bricklayers and plasterers should be in two rival unions, than the steamfitters and plumbers should be so divided. Or any of the other crafts in the building trades. There are two big jobs held up in Chicago because of the jurisdictional quarrel between

BOOT AND SHOE OFFICIAL TELLS OF HIS SCABBERY

Boasts At Catholic Meet That He Breaks Strikes

The Boot and Shoe Workers Union agrees not to strike and it promises to supply strikebreakers if any of its members strike in spite of the union, Secretary Charles L. Baine of that organization informed the Catholic Conference on Industrial Problems in a paper read for him at the Chicago meeting. His union does not try to meddle with running the shoe industry but acts as a policeman to keep the peace among the workers and spends union money to maintain discipline under the agrement. To obtain these results in any factory Baine insisted on 100 per cent membership in the union. Where this prevails strikes are almost nonexistent. It is a closed shop, he said—closed against workers that might disturb the peace between the union and the employers.

PRESSED STEEL CAR COMPANY USES SHUTDOWN THREAT TO SPEED-UP, CUT PIECE RATES

By IRWIN, Worker Correspondent

McKEES ROCKS, Ja., June 28.—The Pressed Steel Car company of McKees Rocks is now working only about 20 per cent of normal capacity, all but approximately 1500 men being laid off and foremen are regularly spreading the news of a complete shutdown by July 1 with men being required to turn in their brass employment checks to eliminate all seniority claims whenever the company gets ready to again open up.

The threat of this company shutdown is being cleverly utilized to intimidate the workers to accept further wage cuts. Workers who functioned on the strike committee, during the last strike about a month ago, from the passenger car department have been called before the bosses and told that in case they are willing to accept a wage cut work will still go on otherwise the company shutdown will become necessary. However, the company has yet more effective methods in actually applying wage cuts.

New Machines.

New machines invented not only eliminate workers, but reduce prices on piece work. In such instances men never know what the price on piece work will be until the amount of production has been tried out. They are told to go ahead and work and they will find out on pay day what the prices will be. Actual "adjustment" of prices downward continually take place.

Competition Between Departments.

Workers in the Pressed Steel Car company claim that the foundry and shearing departments compete with one another in slave driving yet the bosses of other departments take good care that they are not being outdone. In the foundry department a new machine making cores which were formerly made by hand has recently been installed. Operation of this machine requires only four laborers who thus replace 60 men formerly occupied in this work. In the shearing department men are being put to work cutting off both ends of 18 inches long one-quarter of an inch angle iron bars receiving 15 cents per

MEETINGS HELD AGAINST PROFIT SYSTEM JULY 4

Anti-Imperialist Week Sees Workers' Protest

Meetings have been held in various cities thruout the country, at the beginning of anti-imperialist week, June 27 to July 4, when a solid week of protest and propaganda against the exploitation of American capitalism is to be conducted.

Anti-imperialism week will culminate on July 4 with speeches in New York, Chicago, Milwaukee, Pittsburgh, Springfield, Mass., Kansas City and many other cities will be made, exposing the oppression imposed by the imperialists on the colonial and home working classes.

Meetings in Latin-America.

In Latin-American countries meetings are also being held, literature distributed, and demonstrations being held against Wall Street's domination.

In America the results of the profit system are shown in the widespread unemployment, wage cutting, open shop drives, longer working hours, and preparation for another war. In the colonial and subject countries this widespread misery is seen to a much more marked degree.

Hands Off Foreign Lands!

The Workers (Communist) Party and many labor organizations on anti-imperialism week are demanding the abolition of this yoke imposed upon the workers by the American bankers and demanding the withdrawal of United States troops from foreign soil.

RIFFIANS DRIVE FRENCH TROOPS BACK NEAR FEZ

Moroccans Dig In 27 Miles From Capital

PARIS, France, June 28.—The drive of the offensive of the Riffian troops, aimed to drive the Europeans out of Morocco, continues unabated east of Ouezzan. Th Moroccans' drive has pushed the French back to within 27 miles of Fez. The Riffians threaten the Fez-Taza railroad.

The Riffians have taken the territory surrounding the strong French posts at Ain Matouf, reaching nearly to El Arba de Tissa, the French communique admits. Altho severe fighting continues, the French government has continued to suppress news of the casualties.

The Spanish in Morocco have also been pushed back along the Ceuta-Tetuan front.

Three thousand Riffian troops are digging themselves in to the south of the Fez-Taza road.

French Losses Heavy.

The French troops are shooting away half a million francs worth of shells every day. The French losses have been extremely heavy in men and materials since the start of the invasion.

The Riffians have captured at least ten French outposts. In some actions of relieving French outposts the French troops have suffered 40 per cent of casualties, one-third of which were killed.

In one battalion of the foreign legion, after six weeks of fighting, only 230 men are left out of 850.

Fight Locusts With Fireworks.

VERA CRUZ, June 28.—Mexico employed fireworks in defense against a scourge of locusts from which about one-third of Mexico is suffering. As a cloud of locusts flew over the city in several directinos the fireworks were shot off to disperse them.

More Scopes Twaddle.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 28—Clarence Darrow is a menace to society, was the claim of the Standard Oil company preacher, S. Parkes Cadman in an address here, because Darrow tries to keep people out of jail.

3 STARVING MEN DIE ON STREETS OF NEW YORK CITY IN ONE DAY

NEW YORK, June 28—Three men died of starvation on the streets of lower downtown, New York City, within twnety-four years.

Workers Organize Forces For Defense Against the Capitalist Class Attack

"I have a great conviction that the workers gathered here as going to lay the foundation for a great movement to stand as an organization of protection and defense against the persecutions of the capitalist class," declared James P. Cannon, of the International Workers' Aid, in opening the Labor Defense Conference here yesterday. "If the workers are not prepared, if they are not ready to fight back, they will find that their best heads, their staunchest spirits will be taken captives.

"We are going to carry the banner of Labor Defense into every local workers' union. We are going to sound a warning bell thruout the workers' movement."

Splendid Enthusiasm Shown.

The delegates showed a splendid enthusiasm for the work before them. The hundred and more delegates set to work with a will electing committees mapping out programs and resolutions, discussing various phases of the problem of workers' defense.

Resolutions on amnesty, prisoner relief, campaigns against anti-labor legislation, the white terror in Europe and legal aid for persecuted workers were taken up.

The constitution committee reported a definite plan of organisation providing for the immediate formation of what will be known as "International Labor Defense." The constitution that was adopted makes provision for an individual membership organization with collective affiliations from all workers organizations willing to participate.

Cannon was elected permanent chairman; McNamara of Pittsburgh, vice-chairman.

William Mollenhaur of Detroit Federation of Labor elected secretary.

The following were elected as the national committee of the International Labor Defense:

National Committee.

Debs, Nearing, Robert W. Dunne, Robert Whitaker, Bishop Wm. M. Brown, David Rhys Williams, E. C. Wentworth, Alex Howat, Alice Stone Blackwell, Ellen Hayes, McNamara, Meitzen, Chaplin, Mann, Jacob Dolla, Foster, Cannon, Karsner, Maurer, Ruthenberg, Dunne, Gitlow, Cora Meyer, Dan W. Stevens, Wm. Mollenhauer, Fred Merrick, Robert Minor, Rose Barron, Harrison George, Fred Biedenkapp, J. O. Bentall.

Urge Support of McNamara, Schmidt.

Anton Johannsen, delegate of the Carpenters' Union, spoke on behalf of the labor prisoners, J. B. McNamara and Mat Schmidt, victims of the "open shop" war on the Pacific coast led by the Los Angeles Times under the editorship of the notorious General Otis. McNamara and Schmidt have been in prison since 1915. Johannsen reviewed the history of the case and urged support of these prisoners.

Maurer Opens Conference.

The conference was formally opened by George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council. Maurer reviewed briefly the problem of workers' defense in America and gave a short account of the founding and growth of the Labor Defense Council and the ultimate conclusion of the council to initiate a great national movement for the defense of all class-war prisoners.

This was demanded by elements in all sections of the labor movement as well as the exigencies and even dangers of the growing necessity for labor defense.

Cannon Chosen Chairman.

James P. Cannon, representing the International Workers' Aid relief organization, successor to the Friends of Soviet Russia, was elected temporary chairman. Cannon took over the chair with a short speech of welcome to the delegates.

Receive Many Greetings.

After the election of a credentials committee telegrams of greetings to the conference from all parts of the United States and the world were read. Class-war prisoners' aid organizations in England, Norway, Belgium, Czecho-Slovakia, and Germany sent fraternal greetings. Wishes of success to the work of the conference for labor defense in America were cabled by the Executive Committee of the Interhnational Red Aid from Moscow.

Greetings from labor organizations and many individuals such as Eugene V. Debs, Upton Sinclair and Alice Stone Blackwell were extended to the conference.

Letters from class-war prisoners hoping for the success of the conference were read from Crouch and Trumbull, Charles Cline, Abraham Cisneros, etc.

The credentials committee reported over 100 delegates present. They came from all sections of the country representing all sections of the labor movement. New York, Detroit, Cleveland, Minneapolis, Pittsburgh and Chicago were well represented by delegates from local unions, central labor bodies and workers' fraternal organizations, in addition to local workers' defense bodies

Appeal of the Communist International, the Red International of Labor Unions and the Young Communist International

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., (By Mail.)—The Communist International, the Red International of Labor Unions, and the Young Communist International have addressed the following joint appeal to all workers and peasants:

WORLD imperialism which is oppressing and exploiting the Chinese workers and peasants and is becoming more and more insolent, has, with a barbarous cynicism worthy of that of overthrown Russian czarism, fired upon the peaceable crowd of striking textile workers in Tsindao, whose only crime consists in the fact that they have ventured to raise their voice demanding an amelioration of their bitter lot, which is filled with heavy toil, inhuman suffering, and ill-treatment and scorn on the part of the foreign capitalists and their hirelings.

For a long time Chinese working classes have endured with compressed lips this intolerable burden of international capitalist oppression, but now their patience and long suffering has finally come to an end.

In March last, the Chinese workers employed in the Japanese cotton factories of Shanghai, decided to put an end to their unendurable sufferings, to demand an improvement of their economic conditions, and declared a strike.

In April, this strike was supprted by the Chinese workers in the Japanese factories of Tsindao, in the province of Shantung. United and organised, as becomes proletarian brothers, the workers of Tsindao, inspired by the best feelings of class solidarity, raised their voices in protest against the unheard of exploitation on the part of Japanese capital. The Japanese industrialists were compelled to give way to the pressure of the working masses. The result of this steadfast struggle was that the strike was concluded on the 9th of May with the victory of the workers.

IN the meantime, however, an order arrived from Japan to [illegible]

BISHOP BROWN TELLS LABOR DEFENSE CONFERENCE IT IS NATURAL FOR MAN TO BE REVOLUTIONARY AND PROGRESS

Bishop Willian Montgomery Brown, of Galion, Ohio, author of "Communism and Christianism," which has been translated into a large number of languages, and recently denounced and tried as heretic by the Episcopal church, addressed the Labor Defense conference as follows:

EVERYBODY believes in human rights. At least, everybody thinks he does. The only time we have any quarrel about them is when we set out to define the term.

Everybody, for instance, believes in "A Faird Day's Pay for a Fair Day's Work." All the political parties will subscribe to that. The manufacturers' associations are all committed to the idea. Mr. Gary would not think of opposing it. J. P. Morgan and Company favor it unanimously. In a national movement for a "fair day's pay," there would not be the slightest friction, until someone ventured an opinion as to just what a fair day's pay might be. As soon as that hap-

UNIONS OF OHIO CITY FOR LABOR PARTY TICKET

Central Labor Body Indorses United Front

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LIMA, Ohio, June 28.—The Central Labor Union here has adopted a motion to place a labor party ticket in the field in the municipal elections in that city and created a committee to carry out this program.

Lima has the commission form of government and there are three commissioners opposing the majority of the commission to be elected in November. Nominations are made in the primaries to be held August 5th at which 6 candidates are elected for submission to the voters at the November election.

The action of the Central Labor Union is particularly significant in view of the fact that it had passed a motion after its experience in the presidential elections to keep out of all kinds of political campaigns.

Credit for the stand taken by the Central Labor Union in favor of independent political action by labor is due to the active campaign waged by Scott Wilkins, the former Red Mayor of St. Mary's Ohio, a member of the Workers Party, thru visiting the various local unions of Lima to secure their support for the proposed labor ticket.

MACHINISTS' UNION MILITANTS PROTEST 'B. & O.' JOHNSTON'S ELECTION STEAL, PLAN BATTLE

Together with a large number of militants from local unions of the International Association of Machinists, the International Committee for Amalgamation in the metal industry held a meeting in Chicago on June 22, to protest against the election steal perpetrated by the Johnston-Davison adminstration.

The moves by the Johnston forces to control the election were among the most unscrupulous in the many shady maneuvers made in I. A. of M. elections. Aided by a lawyer, Johnston decided that the section of the constitution voted upon favorably by a large majority in the recent referendum of the machinists' union, which created machinery for tabulating the ballots cast for the different candidates, should not supersede the old section which provides that the General Secretary-Treasurer (himself a candidate for re-election) shall count, tally and supervise the elections.

Counted Himself Into Office.

In spite of the plain facts to the contrary, Johnston decided that the new section did not do away with the old one. Thus he nullified the decisions of the last convention, which were supported by a majority vote of the membership in the recent referendum, and arbitrarily seized upon the right to count himself into office, together with the rest of his clique, which he did.

The International Amalgamation Committee protests vehemently against this illegal and undemocratic action. It condemns the methods used in the last referendum for the election of the grand lodge officers and protests most emphatically against the interpretation of Sections 14 and 15 of the constitution in reference to the counting of the election ballots.

Plain Violation of Constitution.

The decision of the convention plainly means that the supervising, tallying and counting of the ballots was to be taken out of the hands of the general secretary-treasurer. It was therefore, absolutely unconstitutional for the secretary-treasurer to supervise the election and to count the ballots. In the name of thousands of militants in the I. A. of M., the International Amalgamation Committee repudiates such unconstitutional action and proposes the following:

For a Protest.

1. We call upon all local lodges to protest against such violations of the constitution, and especially against Johnston's ruling which nullifies the decision of the convention and of the majority vote in the recent referendum.

For a Convention in 1926.

2. We appeal to all local lodges to immediately demand the calling of a convention in 1926 (and every two years thereafter) so that this question can be passed upon by the membership. The grand lodge officers are elected every two years and it is of the utmost importance that a convention be held every two years preceding the election of officers, so that the rank and file may have an opportunity to decide on necessary changes in our laws and also to demand an accounting from our leadership for their policies.

For a National Conference.

3. We propose that a national conference of all militants and progressive elements in the I. A. of M. be held to consider the question of how to save our organization from becoming a mere skeleton and an auxiliary to the Bankers' Association. To this end meetings of militant and progressive members of the I A. of M. should be held in the various industrial centers, to consider ways and means of insuring honest elections in our union and to organize the protest against the steal just perpetrated against us by the Johnston-Davison administration.

Against Class Collaboration.

4. We call for a national struggle against the class collaboration programm (B. & O. plan, etc.) of Johnston & Co., for an extensive drive to bring about amalgamation of all the metal trades, for a national labor party based on the trade unions and other working class organization, for international trade union unity, and for the right of minority expression in the union.

For Class Struggle Leadership.

5. We demand a leadership for our union that is capable of coping with present conditions in industry. If the I. A. of M. is again to become a factor in the metal industry in this country and to be able to protect the interests of its membership, it must be led by men who understand the principles of the class struggle and who follow a militant fighting policy.

6. We are unalterably opposed to the proposed plan of contesting the election in the capitalist courts. The courts are instruments of the capitalist class and their interference in our affairs can only result to the detriment of the union. An aroused membership which understands its rights and is willing to fight for them is the only cure for such election steals as that just perpetrated by the Johnston-Davison machine, and it is the sole safeguard against reactionary trade union bureaucracies in general. The progressive elements in the I. A. of M. must act together nationally to free the union from the present leadership and to put at its head men who will carry out a real fighting policy.

International Committee for Amalgamation in the Metal Industry.

NEW YORK COMMUNIST CHILDREN WILL ENJOY CAMP LIFE THIS YEAR

NEW YORK, June 28—The Young Workers League has succeeded in its negotiations with the authorities of Camp Nitgedayget for the establishment of a Junior camp at Camp Nitgedayget—a camp for the hundreds of workingclass children organized in the Junior Section of the Y. W. L. This Junior camp is to be under the full direction of the Young Workers League of N. Y. which will provide comrades to supervise the camp and which has drawn up a comprehensive plan for its functioning. The great value of this camp both for the proletarian children who will be there and for the Junior organization is easily seen and every comrade, every worker interested in the welfare of the children's movement must support this project.

Registration for the Junior camp will begin in a short while thru the Junior Groups and thru the city office of the Junior Section directly. All inquiries, etc. should be addressed: Junior Camp Committee, Young Workers League, 108 East 14th St., New York City.

DEPORTEE'S WIFE AND 5 CHILDREN GET $9 WEEKLY

Sent to Poland in 1924 Frame-up

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, June 28—Mrs. Nicolai Mansevich, wife of the Russian worker deported after a notorious federal frameup 13 months ago, is entering her second year of existence on a stipend $9 a week given by the Detroit department of public welfare. The department is also continuing payments on the Mansevich home. But the $9 a week must support not only this woman practically widowed by the government but the four little Mansevich girls, all born in Detroit. Letters from Poland, where he was sent, say Mansevich has been sick there since winter.

Altho he had worked nearly 10 years at the Ford Motor Co. he was convicted of being a dangerous radical because anarchist literature was delivered to his home one day. Testimony at the hearings indicated the delivery was a "plant".

Many Industries in California Flout Eight Hour Laws

WASHINGTON, June 28—An increase of 31.8 percent in the number of complaints filed with the California Bureau of Labor Statistics against violations of the women's eight-hour law is reported for the past two fiscal years as compared with the total for the years 1921 and 1922. The total rose from 870 to 1147, according to data furnished the women's bureau of the U. S. department of labor.

Most frequent violations were complained of in these industries, in order: restaurants, hotels, apartment houses and boarding houses, retail stores, hospitals and sanitariums, factories and shops, candy and confectionery establishments.

CAL'S CLUB OF MILLIONAIRES IS PROFIT BULWARK

Power Has Been Taken from the Senate

By LAWRENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON,—(FP)—Six out of ten of Calvin Coolidge's cabinet are millionaires, and an admirer of the administration has pointed out that the days when the senate was the Millionaires' Club have passed; that title now is held by the group that meets in the White House twice a week.

Even with the anticipated resignation of Secretary of War Weeks, who got his million many years ago as a bond broker and banker, the wealth of this handful of rulers is so colossal as to leave no doubt of the instinct of the cabinet as a whole to guard sharply the privileges of private capital as against labor.

Mellon Leads the Procession

Secretary of the Treasury Mellon, whose fortune is estimated at anywhere from $300,000,000 to $600,000,000, has dominated the Harding and Coolidge administrations in their economic policy. Probably the only men in the United States richer than he are the Rockefellers and Henry Ford.

The du Pont fortune is greater than the Mellon fortune, but it is divided amoung many heirs who quarrel bitterly and hence is merely a corporation. Mellon, dominant and scheming by nature, could have become a senator, but he saw that the drift of federal government power is all into the hands of the president. Since he wanted to run the country, he became boss of the cabinet.

Hoover Scorns Little Business

Herbert Hoover, secretary of commerce, is thought to have gathered between $8,000,000 and $10,000,000 in gold mining and other ventures in Australia, South Africa, Russia, China and various other parts of the world—generally as a director and engineer and small partner in big British enterprises.

His contempt of little business' resistance to the growth of big business was well illustrated by his defense of the Big Five Chicago meat packers against the federal trade commission's inquiry during the war.

Kellogg Rich Lawyer

Secretary Kellogg is the richest man who has ever headed the state department, just as he was the richest lawyer—except possibly Knox—to sit in the senate. He has accumulated $5,000,000, his friends say, while acting as counsel for railroad, steel, insurance, banking and other corporations.

He was unexpectedly brought into the cabinet, but has found the place so influential that he intends to stay. His legal advice in the "scrapping" of such branches of the government as the tariff commission and the federal trade commission, and in crippling the legislative power of the rebellious senate, is very valuable to Coolidge.

Davis is Mellon Tool

James J. Davis, head of the Moose order, is reputed to have made more than a million out of that scheme, and to have added possibly another million by means of his bank in Pittsburg. He is one of the Mellon satellites.

Inasmuch as Mellon is anti-union and is a super-employer, Davis at the head of the labor department of the government can contribute a great deal to the inactivity of the government in handling the wrongs inflicted upon unorganized as well as organized labor. Appropriations for the work of Davis' department have been steadily cut down, in places where the work disturbed Mellon's interests.

Finally there is Hubert Work, who was first employed to undo the pro-union record made by Will Hays as postmaster general, and who later was made head of the interior department. His millions were made as a doctor, investor, proprietor of an asylum or sanitarium, and general attache of the mining and smelting interests in Colorado. He, too, might have gone to the senate, but realized that power rests with the White House, where the acts of Congress may be nullified by hostile interpretation.

Wilbur, New, Jardine and Sargent are said to be still below the million-dollar mark. However, their loyalty is beyond question.

Polish-German Treaty Unlikely.

If the Polish import prohibition laws go into effect on July 4 as scheduled, a breach in the negotiations for a commercial treaty will be unavoidable.

Eight Die in Philippine Typhoon.

Mahoney Says There Is No Place in Minnesota For the Socialist Party

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL.

TODAY, Minnesota labor is passing judgment on the efforts of Eugene V. Debs to revive the "socialist" party organization in that state. The masses of workers, in the city and on the land, gave their verdict when they failed completely to attend, not only the mass membership conference so-called, but also the picnic gathering addressed by the "socialist" leader who was accustomed to appear before large multitudes in the Twin Cities of Minneapolis and St. Paul.

• • • •

William Mahoney, editor of the Minnesota Union Advocate, official organ of the Minnesota Federation of Labor and the St. Paul Trades and Labor Assembly, speaking for the officialdom of labor, declares that:

> "Outside the ambition and the delusion of a few of the leaders, we can see no place in Minnesota for the socialist party, even as an educational factor."

Mahoney ought to know. He has been a "socialist" himself. But those days are long gone by. He has slipped all the way back into the old parties, altho he still tries to retain one foot in the Farmer-Labor Party, no doubt to betray it again at the next opportunity.

• • • •

Mahoney quotes Abe Cahan, editor of the Jewish Daily Forward, in support of his argument, crediting to the anti-Communist head of this "socialist" organ the statement that the socialists had been cherishing a delusion and that there was no place now for a party like the one they had been nurturing. In effect, Cahan is said to have admitted, that either the Communist group or a farmer-labor progressive group met the situation.

Mahoney does not seem to be aware of the fact that it is his friend and fellow anti-Communist editor, Cahan, who is reputed to have turned over $15,000 to Debs and his "socialist" party for its present "re-organization" campaign. Not that Cahan has any illusions about rebuilding the "socialist" party. Only Debs harbors these. But Cahan uses the "socialist" party as a weapon, now more blunted than ever, in his losing war against the militants in the needle trades unions, the Amalgamated Clothing Workers, the International Ladies' Garment Workers, the Furriers and the Capmakers. None of these unions have any great membership in Minnesota, so the workers of that state do not see the real face of the actual head of the "socialist" party. This is permitted the workers only in the large clothing centers, like New York City and Chicago, while it becomes visible to the nation only in such Cahan-inspired propaganda tours as that carried on by the counter-revolutionary, Abramovitch, specially imported for the occasion. Therefore, the "socialist" party has a mission, as a weapon in the hands of the most reactionary labor bureaucracy to be used against militant labor.

Debs has willingly lent himself to that campaign. If his trip to Minnesota had any effect it was to strengthen elements that are trying to drive the Communists out of the trade unions. But even this result was so small as not to be noticeable.

Mahoney also lends himself to the same reactionary crowd, that would rather destroy the organized labor movement than see it develop a really class conscious character.

• • • •

But labor in Minnesota, as elsewhere, moves forward in spite of the desperate efforts of Debs and Mahoney, with others like them, to put the brakes on the wheels of progress. The Workers (Communist) Party is stronger than ever in Minnesota today, in spite of the attacks of Debs, Mahoney and the subversive campaigns financed by Cahan.

• • • •

The class struggle develops, the class conscious spirit of labor grows and strengthens, relegating Debs' nondescript aggregation of "socialists" to the scrap heap, but also exposing such renegades as Mahoney, and unmasking them as agents of the plutocracy inside labor's ramparts.

While the Minnesota "socialists" openly flaunt their alliances with the republicans and the democrats, Mahoney still flirts energetically with the farmer-labor party. But the movement for independent political action by the workers in Minnesota will in time, dump Mahoney into fitting surroundings. Mahoney may claim truly that there is no "place in Minnesota for the socialist party," but with equal truth, it may be said that there is no place inside the trenches on labor's side of the class struggle for Editor Mahoney. He is trying to keep his feet in the camps of both the workers and the bosses. But enlightened labor will see that he fails in this; that he is pushed into the ranks of labor's enemy, where he really belongs.

KLUXER MOB WRECKS NEGRO'S DETROIT HOME WHILE POLICE FAIL TO GIVE HIM PROTECTION

DETROIT, June 28—A Negro physician's home has been stoned here in a ku klux klan demonstration in which hundreds of men and boys several hours on two nights filled Spokane avenue, a residential street in the Northwest section. Forty patrolmen, 15 mounted men and 10 motorcycle men failed to prevent disorder.

Furniture was smashed by stones and bricks hurled thru windows. The physician's head was cut by a brick thrown into his limousine as he was being escorted to his office in another part of the city. A police officer also was struck. One young man taken to a police station after being found with a stone in his hand was immediately released.

A. $40,000 House.

The physician is Dr. Alex L. Turner, graduate of the University of Michigan and Howard University and captain of his class basket ball team at the former school. He paid about $40,000 for the house and moved in the day prior to the first demonstration, refusing to heed a threatening placard.

Detroit Negroes have kept their heads in the crisis, which is being given considerable publicity, and only two other Negroes, both physicians, were in the house with Dr. Turner the second night.

Prominent Physician.

He has been a practicing physician in Detroit 15 years. Many of his patients are white, he said. He has never had trouble before tho often in the past, he said, he has been the only Negro in a class or an entire town.

Late the second night he was prevailed upon by a committee of two to sell the house but the following day changed his mind on the advice of his attorney. It is believed, however, he has given up the idea of living there.

CHINESE PROTEST MEET INSPIRES SAN FRANCISCO

Chinese and Japanese in Class Unity

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., June 28.—For the first time in the history of this city, Chinese, Japanese and American speakers voiced a common demand from the same platform for working class solidarity towards a revolutionary object. The success of the meeting is doubly significant in that San Francisco has been for years the hotbed of anti-Oriental propaganda. Labor skates of the caliber of Paul Scharrenberg, President of the State Federation of Labor and John O'Connell, secretary of the local labor council, have made this their stock in trade for the past decade, in conjunction with some of the most notorious politicians of California.

Chinese Students and Workers.

The Unionist Guild, the only Chinese labor organization in this country, co-operated in advertising the meeting and supplying speakers. Miss [illegible] Way Gum, president of the guild, Cham Sut Yeu, its secretary and the editor of the Chinese labor paper Kung Sing, and Marshall Jeng, vice president and an officer of the Chinese Students' Association of America, were the speakers in Chinese. Wm. M. Moke, of the guild, translated the speeches. The sincerity and developing class consciousness of the speakers favorably impressed the audience which was one of the largest recorded at the party hall.

James H. Dolsen, as the main speaker of the evening, showed how the struggle in China was the result of the development of the imperialist phase of capitalism and explained why it was that the Communists supported the Kuo Min Tang war for independence.

Japanese Pledges Class Solidarity.

Shiu Matsui, in an address in Japanese to his countrymen who attended the meeting, denounced the Japanese government for its interference in Chinese affairs and aroused great enthusiasm when he closed his speech with a plea for the workers of every nation to rally behind the Communist International.

In response to an appeal from the district organizer of the Workers Party, Tom Lewis, over $80 was raised to be forwarded to the Chinese strikers at Shanghai, thus giving a tangible evidence of the support of the American workers for their Chinese comrades and fellow workers.

The following resolution was passed unanimously by standing vote of the audience:

RESOLUTION ON THE SHOOTING DOWN OF STRIKERS IN CHINA BY THE ARMED FORCES OF THE FOREIGN POWERS, INCLUDING THE UNITED STATES.

Whereas, the workers of China are carrying on a struggle for better working conditions and higher wages, including the abolishment of the right of the bosses in the factories to beat up the workers and the restriction of the labor of children under the age of twelve; and

Whereas, the police of the foreign concessions in that country have been used to break down these strikes by the most brutal methods, including the shooting down in cold blood of Chinese strikers, the arrests and tortures of their leaders and in some cases to their conviction by court martial for long terms; and

Whereas, the American government has landed troops and sent warships to "protect" these infamous exploiters of the Chinese workers under the pretext of "protecting" American interests, and American soldiers and sailors are doing police duty in China now to break strikes called by the oppressed Chinese workers against Japanese owned mills; and

Whereas, the British trade unions have protested to their government against its interference in Chinese affairs in behalf of the British exploiters of the Chinese working class;

Therefore, be it resolved, that we American workers, recognizing that the workers of every country should support the struggles of their brothers and sisters against the employing class, wherever that struggle is carried on, do hereby most strongly protest against intervention by the American government in the affairs of China and call upon all labor organizations in America to take similar action at once. We demand that all American soldiers and sailors be withdrawn from China at once. Be it resolved that copies of these resolutions be sent to the President of the United States, to the senators and congressmen from this district and to the local press.

O'Connell Buries Resolution.

The guild is mailing out to all the unions in the state a copy of a similar resolution, calling on organized labor to demand the withdrawal of all American armed forces from China, together with an appeal, reciting the circumstances under which the strike movement arose. A resolution for such a purpose has already been introduced into the local Labor Council.

On the objection of the ultra-reactionary secretary, John O'Connell, it was referred for burial to the law and legislative committee, as John wasn't sure but that the capitalist press might have made a mistake in reporting that American marines were shooting down Chinese strikers and doing police duty in Shanghai for Japanese mill owners.

The local Chinese are holding open air meetings in their section of the city every night. Dolsen spoke at one of these meetings by request a few nights ago, receiving a splendid response.

No Religion on School Time

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., June 28—Fifth and sixth grade children cannot take 45 minutes a week from school time for religious instruction, supreme court justice Albert Seeger rules in granting an injunction against the Mount Vernon school board. The injunction results from action taken by the Freethinkers Society, which is opposing the attempts to introduce religious teaching on school time in New York City schools. The freethinkers charge that allowing children time off from school for religious teaching links church and state again contrary to the United States constitution.

HAITI SECRETLY TIED TO U. S. IMPERIALIST RULE FOR TEN YEARS MORE BY GOVERNMENT

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Discovery, thru the imprudent chatter of Brig. Gen. Fuller, commander of the 1st marine brigade in Haiti, that Hawai is tied to American financial and military control for ten more years, and that this "treaty" was slipped thru the senate late in March, 1917, has just been made by official Washington.

The records and the text prove that the then Secretary Lansing, in quiet collusion with the then Chairman Hitchcock and Senator Lodge, had slipped these imperialist manacles on the Haitian people without attracting attention.

Passed "Secret Treaty."

Note the moment chosen for the trick: it was just on the eve of the American declaration of war against Germany. Passions were inflamed, fears and hatreds were loose, and any such thing as calm discussion was out of question. Just as the western railroad promoters seized the occasion of the battle of Gettysburg to slip thru congress the gift of a billion dollars' worth of western public lands to the railroads, so the National City Bank and its friends in the administration saw and seized the moment to acquire Haiti.

A treaty driven thru at the point of machine guns somewhat earlier had given the American government the right to occupy the country temporarily, and to keep a financial "adviser" and collector there until 1925. The "financial stabilization and pacification" of Haiti by American bankers and marines was thus legalized for ten years.

But under cover of the approaching declaration of war against the Germans, Lansing and his friends Hitchcock and Lodge declared in a further "treaty" that another ten years should be added, due to the existence of a Wall Street loan which would extend more than the original ten-year period. They got it.

Standard Oil Man in Charge

It seems that all the officers of the American military and banking government in Haiti know about this ten-year extension, which ends in 1935. But Gen. Fuller, when he reached Washington the other day and mentioned it, was called upon to keep his mouth shut; the state department had never talked about the existence of this hold on Haiti, and had pretended that it was considering withdrawal of the marines as soon as "lawlessness" down there should cease. Hughes had been quite functious on that point, pleading that we were forced to take care of the poor Haitians, though we would like to get out at once.

Of course any administration at Washington that wanted to deal justly with Haiti would call upon Haiti to agree to cancel this trick, and would withdraw the marines. It would also recal the American officers in the constabulary force, which is really an army of occupation as long as these Americans have control of the weapons in the island.

Secretary Kellogg will not discuss the situation. The present financial "adviser" forced upon the Haitians by the state department at a salary of $20,000 a year is one W. W. Cumberland, who once taught economics at the University of Minnesota, and who went to Mexico with the Doheny endowment expedition sent there by Stanford University to study the needs of the Mexicans.

COMMUNIST·CHILDREN'S·COLUMN

We will publish a few letetrs in our column which have come to us thru the committee for International Workers Aid. These letters are from children in Russia. They are orphans, who have no relatives and live in homes which at first were provided for by workers in other countries and now are being taken care of by Russia itself.

Here is one from a little girl to a foster aunt who lives in the United States.

Dear Aunt: I am writing you a letter and wishing you all kinds of luck. I am sending you greetings and remembrances of your birthday on May 9th. Auntie, we are celebrating the First of May. At 8:00 o'clock in the morning we went to the main square, which is called "Freedom" and made a little speech there, then we went to another square. Twelve o'clock we went home and had dinner and then went to Trotsky Woods. There we had our demonstration. This demonstration or play was very interesting. We had to take away banners, make offensives and to tear off insignias.

Dear Auntie, I'd like to know if you have pioneers. I heard that you have pioneers and that only it is very hard for them to work, because they are always persecuted by the police. They are very much oppressed. But we have nothing of the kind. We are very free from all this. The pioneers organize all the unorganized kids. We haven't only the pioneers, we also have different generations. The party, Komsomols, pioneers and Octobrists. Pioneers are those who go into the struggle and are not afraid of anything.

Dear Auntie, please pay closer attention to the youthful pioneers and you will see who the pioneers are if you will hold closer to them. Pioneers are children of workers and peasants. My papa was a worker and we lived very poorly. You cannot imagine, dear Auntie, how wonderful it is here in Russia.

Dear Auntie, greetings to you and congratulations on your birthday. I also congratulate your niece.

Dear Auntie, we will soon be thru with our studies and we will be told that we have passed into the third grade.

I will write you a letter every month. For the time being, good-bye.

From your loving,

(Signed) NURA.

Chicago School Teachers Will Have To Wait

By CARL HAESSLER,
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent.)

Negotiations and some settlements characterized the past week in the Chicago industrial field. The elevated railroad employes are to take another referendum on the company offer to renew for one year the contract that expired June 1. A light vote at the first referendum defeated the proposal of members sticking to the union demand for a 5-cent hourly increase. The maximum rate is now 77 cents. Negotiations resulted in the decision for another vote early next week.

Chicago teachers will get no pay increases before fall, by decision of the new school board. The Teachers Federation is not weeping, since it maintained right along that the raises proposed by William McAndrew, the big-business superintendent, could not be met by present school revenue except at the expense of the children. The union opposed increases gained from sacrificing the children's interests and demanded that the tax laws be enforced to give the school system its just revenue from the tax-dodging corporations and estates. This the authorities declined to do.

Press feeders and assistants organized in Franklin Union No. 4 have gained an increase for day men of $1.75 a week and for night men of $3. They had asked for $2 and $3. The old scale was $41.50 for day men and $43 for night men. The new scale expires May 31, 1927.

The Gas House Workers Union No. 17,010 renewed its agreement for one year expiring Sept. 1, 1926. Laborers get 60 cents an hour and gasfitters 69 to 84 cents.

The grievance committee of the Chicago Federation of Labor is negotiating with the Advance Aluminum Foundry Co. to reinstate four men recently discharged for their membership in the Metal Polishers Union. The concern makes Super Maid Kitchen Utensils.

Prison Officials Bribed.

ATLANTA, Ga., June 28—Mrs. George Remus, wife of the millionaire bootlegger of Cincinnati testified in federal court here that she gave "Father" Hayden, former chaplain of the Atlanta federal prison, a $500 bribe to give her husband special privileges. Hayden and L. J. Fletcher, former deputy warden, are on trial charged with corruption.

Form Bootleg Corporation

LONDON, England, June 28. — A corporation, "The Bahamas International Trading corporation," is attempting to raise funds to establish a rum running business from England to America via the Bahamas. It is claimed that the Bahamas legislature is interested in the company.

TRINITY CHURCH ASSETS LISTED $13,972,551.15

Reaps Huge Profits as Landlord in New York

By ESTHER LOWELL
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

NEW YORK,—(FP)—Trinity lists its assets at $13,972,551.15 for 1924. Of total assets, $13,181,550 is listed as productive real estate; $257,825.71 cash in banks; $448,085.17 is called productive and unproductive bonds and Mortgages; $33,838.35 rents receivable; and the rest is prepaid insurance, interest and a "suspense account" of $15,035. Yet in prefacing Trinity's annual report, rector Caleb Stetson says:

Trinity Parish is not a rich church in the sense that it either ministers to rich people or that its membership numbers many who are wealthy." Trinity is land poor, the rector would say, and quite lives up to its income—after a generous sum is set aside for all expected expenses. Stetson congratulates Trinity on "the sound business policy" of its replacement fund, which provides for restoration, replacement and repair of Trinity's many tenements and other buildings classed under productive real estate, as well as for keeping the churches of the parish in proper condition.

Trinity church has profited by the "unearned increment" on its real estate holdings during its 228 years' existence on Manhattan. In making his report the rector does not consider the proportion of money spent in neighborhood social work to the immense sums taken in rent during the many years. Trinity as a tenement landlord has often been shown to be the same as most landlords, attending to tenants' needs only enough to maintain a steady rental. The rector takes occasion to warn possible heirs of Anneke Jans that Trinity's title to its real estate is well established by grant of Queen Anne of England in 1705 and that further lawsuits are futile.

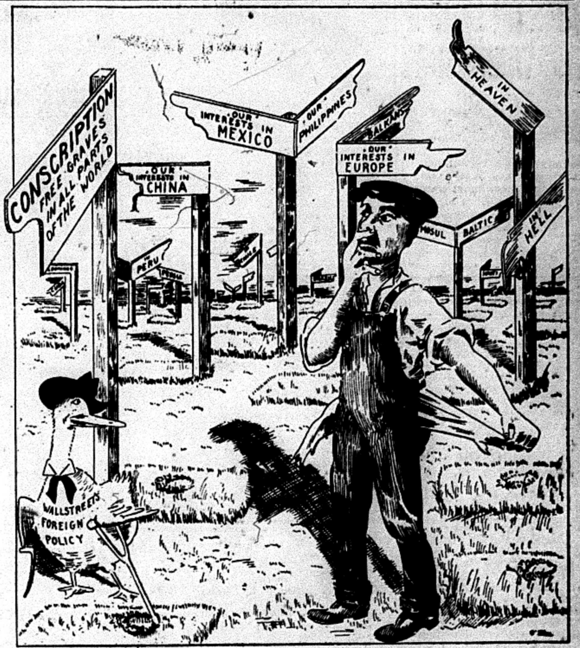
The rector remarks that the religious work of Trinity is progressing with its daily service to downtown workers, most of them drawn to noontide services from surrounding offices. Earlier in his preface he states that "it is becoming increasingly difficult for any church to continue on Manhattan Island without the help of some endowment."

Trinity's net income for 1924 was $516,756.32, most of which was spent in maintenance of eight churches and chapels and for work among the children of the tenements skirting New York's financial district. The parents of these children are mostly foreign-born and hard to reach, the rector states, and work on the docks or doing janitorial work in the skyscrapers. $1,146,384.87 represents Trinity's income from rents of real estate; $45,528.13 from rents of steam and electricity and water. Besides taxes, upkeep of the Trinity corporation, etc. $130,953.07 is added to the building and renewal account. This replacement fund, the rector points out, "is the one safe and sound means of insuring our income for the future."

Jewish Business Dickers With Grabski

WARSAW, Poland, June 28—After three weeks of negotiations, Premier Grabski and Foreign Minister Skyrzynski have reached an agreement with represenatives of Jewish bourgeois groups to support the government.

THE THINKER



BOSSES PRESS THINKS HIGHLY OF "LABOR" HEAD

Looks Like Banker Is Picture Of Prenter

(Special to The Daily Worker)

CLEVELAD, Ohio, June 28.—That the capitalist press thinks very highly of William B. Prenter, new head of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers co-operative national bank, is shown by a writeup of the "labor leader" in the Cleveland Plain Dealer of Wednesday, June 24.

"William B, Prenter looks the banker thru and thru," says that anti-labor sheet. "Deliberate, white haired, shorter than average, Prenter would never be taken for a labor leader. Nearly thirty years an international officer of the brotherhood, his work has been almost entirely in the management of its great financial resources."

Leave for Imprisoned Peasants.

MOSCOW.—In acordance with a decision of the Soviet government, peasants condemned to imprisonment for misdemeanor are to be given leave for the season of field work, in the event of their offense not being very serious and their village-neighbors not raising any objection to their return.

After the expiration of leave the penalties imposed are to be once more investigated, taking into consideration the behavior of the men oh leave during the period of their leave.

SOVIET UNION GLASS INDUSTRY INCREASES OUTPUT 75 PER CENT IN YEAR; U. S. CONTRACT SIGNED

NEW YORK, June 28.—The exclusive rights for the whole territory of the Soviet Union to the "Owen's flow machines" used in the manufacture of bottles have been acquired by the All-Russian Syndicate of Silicate Industries, known as the "Prodasilicat" which is controlling the glass and allied industries in the Soviet Union.

The contract between the Prodasilicat and the Owen's Bottle Company of Toledo, Ohio, has been negotiated and concluded by the Amtorg Trading corporation, of New York, acting as the sole agents for the Prodasilicat. The transaction involves the expenditure of about $1,000,000, by the Russian interests in the purchase of the patents and a number of the machines of the latest types which have not yet been introduced in Europe, as well as of all future improvements and inventions which may be introduced by the Owen's Bottle company.

The Owen's Bottle company has also undertaken to co-operate with the Prodasilicat in installing the machines in the Soviet factories and in the instruction of specialists for the operation of the machines.

The signing of the present contract is a decisive step in the development of the Soviet glass industry which is keeping pace with the general industrial revival of the Soviet Union. During the first 6 months of the fiscal year 1924-1925, beginning October, 1924, the production of the silicate industries showed an increase of 75 per cent over the production during the same period in the preceding year.

Soviet Union Sets Basic Industries To Work In Urals

MOSCOW.—In the Urals the Karabash copper works have been set going. This enterprise belonged before the war to the well-known British capitalist Urqhart. Prior to the war the Karabash works supplied a quarter of October, 1925, 75,000 poods of copper the entire copper mined in Russia. In will be produced in the Karabash works. In the following year production will be brought up to 50 per cent of the prewar production.

A short time ago the Novo-Saldinsk works in the Urals were also set going. Before the war about 5,000,000 poods of raw iron and as much steel were produced and made on the spot into bar-iron, etc. The works have one of the larges and most up-to-date blasting furnaces of the Urals.

Famine Yarns New Form of Anti-Soviet Propaganda - -

By William F. Kruse

SOVIET RUSSIA, in its fight for de jure recognition by all the nations of the world, has had to overcome many obstacles. After armed intervention and blockade by the united imperialist armies and navies failed to break the workers' and peasants' power, recourse was taken to the more subtle poisoning process of the international capitalist propaganda machine.

Many and varied were the stories circulated against the Bolshevik regime. One of the first, the "nationalization" of women and children, stirred up much prejudice before it was finally discredited. Then came stories of fictitious peasant uprisings — revolts on the part of the very elements whose ownership of land rested solely upon the power of the government against which they were supposed to be in rebellion. Next came the rumors of civil war and internecine strife in which Lenin imprisoned Trotsky one day, and Trotsky executed Zinoviev the next.

But all these phantasies of the capitalist hacks were shown up one by one, and government after government, in response to economic pressure and popular demand, established relations with the Soviet government. Finally the United States stood out practically alone, and even here many influential elements were wavering. The resignation of Hughes as secretary of the state was expected to presage a change in our attitude toward Russia.

Wall Street Desperate.

THAT portion of Wall Street most interested in czarist debts and concessions was desperate. At this point there was launched an avalanche of publicity and "exposures" of the terrible treatment accorded to the poor Russian "political prisoners." Staid journals that had never used a drop of ink on behalf of hundreds of political convicts in the United States, suddenly mixed blood and tears with their printers' ink to give the proper effect. So loud was this chorus that some active liberals were themselves influenced by it to begin agitation for the political enemies of the Soviet government, and thus unwittingly helped the arch reactionaries in this country who were making a last ditch stand against recognition.

But this campaign also failed in its purposes. Uncontrovertible evidence was presented by liberal journalists that the stories of political persecution were fables. Then came such a tremendous upsurge in the wave of white terror all over the world that tales about Soviet persecution were dwarfed by admitted actualities in Bulgaria, Poland, Italy and other capitalist lands. The same development in this country is evidenced in the recent U. S. supreme court decision against Gitlow, in the way of deportation cases (one of them against a woman twenty years in America), the Pennsylvania and Michigan sedition cases. This cut the ground out from underneath the anti-Soviet propaganda and forced the scribes to find a new basis for their attack.

They found it speedily enough in the partial crop failure reported officially by the Russian department of agriculture. This was immediately stretched into a full-sized famine by the Riga and Berlin date line experts. And again sincere friends of Russia unwittingly fell in with this anti-recognition publicity by starting children's famine relief campaigns, quoting New York Times, stories from Berlin correspondents as proof of the existence of a famine.

A Fake News Story.

A FOLDER was put out containing pictures of children taken during the 1921 famine, and quoting a Times article of March 20, whose headline read: "Soviet papers admit 750,000 children are starving in Southern Russia alone." This article contained the following:

"Berlin, March 19.—Russian Communist papers now openly admit that the number of starving children in Southern Russia alone numbers more than 750,000. Further admissions show that the government is unable to cope with the situation. The province of Kharkov, which formerly was one of Russia's most fertile grain countries, reports 400,000 starving children with no hope of relief in sight, since the Moscow government states the financial condition of the Soviet government prevents aiding the starving.

"Odessa, from which port the Soviets exported great quantities of grain during the early winter, reports more than 200,000 children dying of hunger and the reserve granaries empty."

Such a condition of affairs, if true, would constitute a damning indictment. "Children dying of hunger while brutal government exports grain to raise money for recognition propaganda"—this is the import of these stories.

What are the facts of the situation?

The British Trade Union mission went thru the supposed famine district. They crossed the Ukraine twice, they were in Kharkov and in Odessa, the sites of the Berlin correspondent's "children dying of hunger." And their report states:

"The failure of the 1924 harvest is only locally serious. The whole is 15 per cent less than 1923, which was our average." (Page 70.)

Figures cited by the commission indicate that in about one-eighth of the cultivated area the harvest was bad, but that in almost one-half it was better than normal. Under such conditions, unlike under capitalism, it is well-known that in a workers' and peasants' country no section can starve.

Stripped off Machinery.

CONDITIONS in this district are, of course, far from ideal. This is the same section that was stripped of stock, machinery, and crops during five years of bandit intervention, and that in 1921-2 was swept by the famine. Anyone who has been thru this one-time granary of Europe knows that the serious shortage of stock and machinery greatly curtails production, and that the antiquated methods of agriculture also demand a much higher expenditure of labor power per acre than would be needed under more modern methods.

The Soviet department of agriculture has already worked miracles under these conditions and the improvement is steady and systematic. Furthermore, the government's work is on a solid foundation that means permanent improvement and not mere temporary relief. Thus the British report, (p. 64), observes that while there is still much do be done in the devastated area, "so much has already been done that the outlay for agricultural restoration is now annually changing its character from that of relief and re-equipment to that of reconstruction by general electrification and technical education."

In the course of the war, with its heavy drain on the manpower of (czarist) Russia, the area of land under cultivation fell from 97.5 dessiatins in 1913 to 90.7 dessiatins in 1916. But the ravages of counter-revolution and famine reduced the total to 63.5 dessiatins in 1922. From that time on the increase has been so rapid. (70.0 in 1923 and 75.5 in 1924), that within five years it is expected to beat the pre-war figures. (British report p. 65).

Travelers who have just returned from Russia within the last few weeks give assurances that the 1925 crop will be adequate for all needs. I. J. Hoorgin, chairman of the board of directors of the Amtorg Trading Co., said: "The prospects for the next crop are very favorable and it is expected that the Soviet Union will have a large surplus for export purposes."

Alfred Knudsen, an American farmer, reports that the 1925 crop will be 600,000,000 bushels larger than any ever raised in the United States. The harvest is expected to yield 3,200,000,000 poods as against 2,800,000,000 in 1923, which was above average and which permitted the export of 300,000,000 poods.

An official report of the commissariat of agriculture states that in 1925 the seeded area has been increased by three and one-half million dessiatins, the increase in wheat acreage being 18 per cent, and the rye acreage 3½ per cent.

The shortage in stock is also being remedied, according to observers, and this is borne out in the figures cited by the British report. In some sections the stock had been reduced by one-half in the course of the famine . . . the comparative percentage of stock in the famine area as between the second famine year (1922) and the present (1924) is as follows: Horses 133, cows 185, sheep 233, pigs 662.

Excellent Showing.

THIS is an excellent showing, but there is still a long way to go, compared with pre-war standards, the comparison is: Horses 50 per cent, cows 83, sheep 116, and pigs 70.

The British mission drew the general conclusion that "Russian agriculture is recovering slowly, but steadily. And the governmental help that is being given seems energetic and efficient."

This steady improvement in agriculture is duplicated in industry and the "scissors" of diverging prices of agricultural and industrial products is practically closed, thus enabling both groups of producers to balance their real and nominal returns on their labor.

The strength of Soviet Russia is based upon this industrial and agricultural productivity. This strength is unimpaired, it is increasing daily, despite the scare stories spread for propaganda purposes by its capitalist enemies.

The best help that any worker can give his fellow workers in Soviet Russia is to build up the labor and Communist movement in his own land, and thus keep his native capitalists so busy at home that they will have neither means nor appetite for anti-Soviet adventures abroad.

'L' EMPLOYES TO VOTE ON STRIKE THIS WEDNESDAY

Guards And Motormen Demand 5 Cent Raise

Employes of the Chicago elevated lines will take a vote this week on whether to accept the refusal of the "L" officials to accept their demands for a five cents an hour increase in wages, or whether to strike for the raise.

The surface car employes have voted to accept the present contract with the company for another year, but at a meeting in the Ashland auditorium the elevated motormen and guards voted for the five cent increase.

The voting will probably take place Wednesday. Voting will be in the following booths:

For Oak Park "L" employes, 3842 West Lake street; Metropolitan, the Ashland Auditorium; South Side, 313 East 61st street; Northwestern, 913 Belmont avenue; loop, 80 West Washington street.

QUAKE TOPPLES BUILDINGS, AND BLOCKS TRAINS

Montana Slide Fills Jefferson River

LIVINGSTON, Mont., June 28—Two Milwaukee passenger trains are hemmed in by a rock slide, the Northern Pacific reports. A special train has left for the scene. A mountain of rock fell into the Jefferson river. Train 219 of the Northern Pacific has not been heard from. The slide resulted from an earthquake.

Buildings at Three Forks, Mont., have collapsed.

Railroad tunnels have caved in and buildings and pavements here were cracked.

WORKERS ANSWER LABOR DEFENSE CALL FOR FUNDS

Coupons For Merrick's Defense Come In

The first returns on the defense coupons sent to all Workers Party and Young Workers' League branches and local labor defence councils for the purpose of raising funds to meet the heavy expenses involved in fighting the deportation cases and the Pittsburgh sedition trials of Fred Merrick and nine other Communists are beginning to come in.

Aside from the business of fighting these cases, the Labor Defense Council held a great national conference on June 28, in Chicago for the purpose of uniting all possible forces for the work of Labor Defense.

The expenses caused by this conference, while they are immediate and quite large, will be returned ten times over by the accomplishment of the aim of the conference. Nevertheless, funds are needed immediately.

Honor Roll.

All party units and individuals who have received the defense coupons will be doing the cause of labor defense a great service by remitting for them as soon as possible. The honor roll of those who have been prompt in sending in returns to date follows:

June 5, Scandinavian Br., W. P. Boston, Mass. $2.00
P. Boran, Russian, Br., W. P., Kenosha, Wis. 4.00
Morris Holtman, New York City 4.00
F. Klaston, Great Neck, N. Y.... 2.44
O. A. Krampetz, W. P., Yonkers, New York 8.00
M. Airoff, L. D. C., Los Angeles, California 4.00

Remittances should be made and checks and drafts made payable to the Labor Defense Council, 19 South Lincoln St., Chicago, Ill.

OAKLAND WORKERS PARTY PASSES RESOLUTION PRAISING WORK OF MOTHER BLOOR IN CALIFORNIA

OAKLAND, Cal., June 28.—The Oakland English branch of the Workers (Communist) Party has passed the following resolution expressing appreciation of the work of "Mother" Ella Reeve Bloor for the movement in California.

The English branch of the Workers Party of Oakland wishes to acknowledge its high esteem of the work done by Mother Bloor in and around this vicinity, District 13, and to thank the national office for lending us her services. Mother Bloor has shown her unselfish attitude by donating some $300 to this district which should have been paid her as wages in return for her excellent work in organizing branches and Young Workers' Leagues.

Her enthusiasm and willingness to sacrifice personal comforts has been a fine example for us, and we take this means of expressing our gratitude and respect for her.

Trusting that we may be fortunate enough to merit her services again in the near future, we remain,

Yours in Communist faith,
Clarence Tobey,
Sec'y. Eng. Workers Branch,
Oakland, Calif.

STEEL WORKERS AND COAL MINERS OBSERVE ANTI-IMPERIALIST DAY

PITTSBURGH, Pa., June 28.—Despite the fact that Pittsburgh steel mills are below 70 per cent of capacity, most of them working only part time the double and three shifts system is still being maintained. Steel workers particularly object to the double shift system beginning on Sunday night. However, it will not deter any of them taking a full holiday on Saturday, July 4.

Steel workers and coal miners are expecting to attend in full force the July 4 picnic arranged by the Workers Party to be participated in by workers from all over Western Pennsylvania. A contest is on amongst the militant steel workers and coal miners as to who can bring most of their friends to the picinc grove on George Zaar's farm, 10 Mile House, Middle Road.

Speeches Exposing the Exploitation of American Imperialism Will be Made.

The clothing workers not to be outdone, are to get in the contest. They claim the fact that they have been able to elect two militants as business agents of the Journeymen Tailors' Union and Amalgamated Clothing Workers in Pittsburgh speaks well for them winning the contest even tho they entered late.

On the grove other contests will be prepared for instance, a tug of war between steel workers and coal miners, sack races, three-legged races, pie eating, etc. The great surprise is being prepared but will not be disclosed until the day of the picnic.

SOVIET WATCHMEN DISCOVER JEWELS VALUED AT MILLIONS

MOSCOW, June 28.—A discovery rivalling in splendor the magnificance of Arabian nights tales was made here today when watchmen employed in the ancient palace of former Prince Yousoupoff encountered a secret vault containing the ancestral jewels valued at $2,500,000, of the Yousoupoff family.

The collection is said to be second in value only to that of the dispersed treasure of the Romanoffs.

Former Prince Yousoupoff is now in the United States pressing a law suit growing out of the sale of one of his paintings by Rembrandt.

SHUTDOWN USED AS THREAT

100 bars for two men. Sometimes they are kept at this work four or five days at a stretch and one worker of that department told me that the highest point he and his buddy could reach was 2,000 bars a day by working real hard making $3.00 a day for both of them or $1.50 a day a piece.

Riveters' Starvation Wages.

Riveters are not a bit better off. Some time ago an order placed by the Pennsylvania Railroad company netted each man of the riveters' gang 40 cents per car, 37 cents for fitters, and 34 cents for heaters. With the next order from the Norfolk & Western Railroad company the price was reduced to 38 cents per man riveters, 35 cents for fitters and 33 cents for heaters. With a third order by the Louisville & Nashville road the prices had become further reduced 36 cents per man, riveters, 33 cents for fitters and 30 cents for heaters.

State Police Enforce Open Shop.

A ruthless open shop policy has always been pursued by the McKees Rocks Pressed Steel Car company. Its own police force is ever ready to battle with discontented workers and the state police ready to help whenever necessary. That was amply proven during the strike of 1909 when a number of workers were killed. At the end of the last strike about a month ago the company was compelled to again reinstate men who had been discharged and participated in the strike. It succeeded however in victimized one of the most active militants of the strikers who was elected chairman of the strike committee and when reporting back to work was told that he would never be given work at that plant. Now the shutdown will be the best means of the company to put into effect its desire for vengeance upon the workers who expressed discontent in the past.

GREEK CABINET WENT DOWN LIKE BOWL OF SOUP

Next Order Of Business Is Another Revolt

(Special to The Daily Worker)

LONDON, June 28.—Greece may go down in history as having established a new style in revolutions unless the ousted statesmen change their minds and try a little blood emission, so that their successors will not run away with the idea that violnece as an inevitable accompaniment of revolution is a thing of the past.

The change in rulers came about as peacefully as an election of officers in a Rotary club. A brand new cabinet was sworn in and everything is all set for the next revolution.

While the bourgeois bandits are scrapping among themselves and doing the bidding of rival imperialist powers both groups are persecuting the workers, who are roganizing for a real revolution which will put an end to the bloody antics of the capitalist desperadoes.

ELLA BLOOR TO SPEAK AT JULY FOURTH PICNIC

Arrives At Kansas City On Schedule

KANSAS CITY, Mo., June 28.—Traveling 350 miles in one day, to keep up the schedule arranged, Mother Bloor arrived in Kansas City on Saturday, completing 2,000 miles on the coast-to-coast trip for the DAILY WORKER.

She addressed an enthusiastic membership meeting here of the Workers (Communist) Party on Saturday evening and on Sunday spoke at a well-attended picnic together with C. E. Ruthenberg, party national secretary.

Proceeding from Kansas City, Mother Bloor goes to St. Louis where a meeting is planned by the local Communist unit on Wednesday, July 1.

Still hitch-hiking, paying no railroad fare, but keeping on schedule despite the disadvantage, Mother Bloor will arrive in Chicago about July 3, and on July 4, a grand welcome will be accorded the veteran fighter at the Communist picnic to be held at Beyer's Grove, at which she will speak together with James P. Cannon, member of the Central Executive Committee.

Shepherd Case Dropped.

Following the acquittal of William D. Shepherd of the murder of his millionaire ward, William N. McClintock, it was announced that Shepherd will not be further prosecuted. Charles C. Faiman, who runs a quack medical school, is still held.

Getting a DAILY WORKER sub or two will make a better Communist of you.

NINE ORGANIZATIONS UNITE AT JULY 4 PICNIC FOR THE BENEFIT OF SACCO-VANZETTI DEFENSE FUND

(Special to The Daily Worker)

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., June 28.—A benefit picnic for the Sacco-Vanzetti defense fund will be held by nine organizations of Springfield and vicinity on July 4, at Gosselin Grove.

The grove can be reached by taking the Feeding Hill cars. Italian and English speakers from New York will address the meeting.

A very attractive program of games and dances has been arranged by the committee. Admission will be 35 cents.

TENNESSEE BAR OPPOSES ATTACK ON SCOPES LAW

Speech For Science Is Cut from Records

MEMPHIS, Tenn., June 28. — The Tennessee Bar Association, by a vote of 81 to 56 voted to expunge from the record an address by Robert S. Keebler of Memphis, attacking the state's anti-evolution law Keebler said: "The law is a deliberate violation by the legislature of its fundamental duty to cherish science."

"If our constitution means anything," Keebler said, "it means that science must be free to pursue painstaking researches; that the legisltaure, instead of retarding and making a mockery of science, must sustain and nourish it." He declared the law unconstitutiontional.

The speech was wiped from the record after it had been characterized as "an attack on the legislature," by other members.

FRANCE VOTES TO PRINT SIX BILLION FRANCS

Caillaux Puts Bill Thru By Threats

(Special to The Daily Worker)

PARIS, June 28—With only the Communists voting in the opposition, Finance Minister Caillaux put his fiscal program thru the chamber of deputies by a vote of 330 to 34. The main body of the socialists decided to abstain from voting.

Caillaux's program was supported by the national bloc, his most bitter enemies politically, and in fact physically, for it was the leaders of this same bloc that tried to send him before a Vincennes firing squad for pursuing the same diplomatic policy during the war, that he is now on the road to realizing.

Scared the Opposition.

The bill authorizes an increase of 6,000,000,000 francs in currency. The government frightened the opposition into voting for the financial program without a murmur by the threat of closing the Bank of France on Monday unless the Caillaux plan went thru.

A financial disaster in France in the present state of affairs would mean chaos in Europe and the explosion of the Dawes plan. It is reported that in view of this possibility the American government used its influence with the national bloc to let the Caillaux plan pass without opposition.

London Is Uneasy.

LONDON, June 28. — Financial circles here were of the opinion that the inflation of the currency by six billion paper francs will not add to the stability of French finances, tho it was admitted the Caillaux move would prevent a more serious crisis.

British politicians are not at all pleased with the developments which have returned Caillaux to power and they fear that his success in putting thru his financial program will give him a prestige in France which bodes ill for British diplomacy on the continent.

It is no secret among foreign office circles that Caillaux's conception of a Franco-German alliance as a solution of the Euorpean problem is entirely distasteful to British diplomacy, which holds to the check and balance system, with England in charge of the checking.

The Lira Takes a Dip.

ROME, June 28.—The lira again hit the tobaggon yesterday, the dollar being quoted at 30. The drop is attributed to the failure of Mussolini to convince the public of the stability of the fascist regime and to the conviction that a civil war is a possibility in the near future.

WORKERS STRIKE WHEN EMPLOYERS FIRE ORGANIZERS

TRENTON, N. J., June 28.—There is a strike on here in the largest clothing factory in the city, located at 116 Factory street. The trouble started when eight employes were discharged for their activity in organizing a union.

When this news reached the shop, 25 other workers walked out and called on all the others to strike in protest against the victimization of the union militants. At the present time about half the employes of the factory are out and the entire working force is expected to be out in a few days.

The strikers are demanding besides the right to organize, better working conditions and higher wages.

Tell other workers what happens in your shop. Write a story and send it in to the DAILY WORKER. Order a bundle to distribute there.

unions. The members of both organizations are losing wages because their leaders cannot agree. As usual the rank and file suffer. The officials of course draw their fat salaries.

THESE are not strikes against the employers. If they were it is quite likely that the leaders would be breaking their necks sending the men back to work. As it is when they made a bluff at seeking a settlement, who do you think they picked out for an arbitrator? None other than Secretary of Labor James J. Davis, one of the scabbiest lickspittles of capitalism in the country. The Plasterers' Union has 30,000 members while the Bricklayers have 70,000. Both are affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

AT the convention of the Bricklayers Union, held last year, a resolution was passed branding the Plasterers' Union as a dual organization and urging the amalgamation of both. The idea is good, but the way to go about amalgamation is not by making war on the plasterers. The proper thing for both organizations to do is to get together in a joint conference without recriminations and make an honest attempt to bring about unity thru amalgamation. There is plenty of room in one organization of the two trades for the necessary officers of both.

* * *

IT is no exaggeration to say that craft unionism and dual unionism are among the two greatest evils that curse the trade union movement of this country. And the reactionaries are not the only ones responsible. There are some radicals or alleged radicals who have the virus of dual unionism so deeply ingrained in their systems that they cannot tolerate the necessarily slow process of educating the rank and file of the craft unions to the necessity for greater solidarity thru amalgamation.

* * *

THEY call the members of the unions "dumbells" and the leaders worse than that. It is true that most of the leaders are fakers, but they are leaders and must be reckoned with. Their policy—or lack of it—cannot be exposed in its true light to the rank and file by leaving the unions and howling like hungry timber wolves on the outside, or by leading a few pure radicals into some sanctified corral that is dignified by the title of union. We have seen enuf of this kind of strategy and it has been a dismal failure.

* * *

THIS is not the only country where dual unionism and craft unionism have brot disaster to the workers. Tho England is making strdies towards amalgamation, even with the active and sincere support of the leaders of the official labor movement, the progress is slow and jurisdictional strikes occur. In Ireland the same malady is prevalent, tho the Irish Transport and General Workers Unions takes in all kinds of workers, skilled and unskilled, and is the most powerful labor organization in the country.

* * *

BUT last year, a section of the organization in Dublin seceded and formed a rival union. Since then several jurisdicitonal strikes have taken place, with both branding the other side as scabs. According to a story of a recent strike there, when the members of the Transport Union went out, the boss filled their places with scabs. An organizer for the rival union came along and gave the scabs membership cars in his organization. Then the boss threw out his chest and said his strikebreakers were union men and the members of the Transport Union could do as they pleased.

SUCH incidents are by no means rare in the United States, tho it is seldom that radicals are guilty of like conduct. Even the most inveterate dualist in this country would hesitate a long time before committing such a crime against working class solidarity. Reactionary labor leaders have no regard for the welfare of the rank and file. Their actions are determined by their own interests. Hence it is futile to expect them to take the initiative in bringing about amalgamation. This is the task of the rank and file led by the progressives. Not only must the progressives supply the rank and file with a program but thoy must also supply them with leadership.

SUN YAT SEN'S FORMER SECRETARY TO SPEAK AT WORKERS PARTY PICNIC

One of the features at the July Fourth picnic and Anti-Imperialist demonstration of the Workers Party in Chicago, will be the presence of a former secretary of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, the great Chinese liberator. This Chinese brother is the editor of a Chinese paper. He has accepted the invitation to speak at the picnic.

The affair will be held in Beyer's Grove, at the end of the California avenue car line. The picnic and demonstration will mark the end of Anti-Imperialist Week, conducted by the Workers Party thruout the United States. Among other speakers will be James P. Cannon, member of the Central Executive Committee and one of the party's delegates to the recent session of the enlarged executive of the Communist International.

Decline U. S. Request.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 28.—Spain and Belgium have declined the request of the state department to give diplomatic status to American treasury officials sent abroad to investigate costs of production for tariff making purposes.

WORKERS TO HOLD ANTI-CAPITALIST PICNIC IN WISC.

Milwaukee Communists Protest July 4th

(Special to The Daily Worker)

MILWAUKEE, Wis., June 28.—On July 4th the Milwaukee Branches of the Workers Party and the Young Workers League will hold a picnic at Tippecanoe Park. This will be a demonstration against the attempt of the imperialist powers to entangle the workers in new wars, and as a counter to the patriotic rallies that are held in the city on July 4th.

Comrade Max Shachtman, editor of the Young Worker, who has recently returned from Russia where he attended the executive sessions of the Young Communist International, will be the principal speaker. Andrew Overgaard, sub-district organizer of the Workers Party, will also speak.

Workers of Milwaukee are invited to participate in this affair to demonstrate against Morgan's new preparations for war, against the attempt of the imperialist powers to enslave the Chinese workers and for international solidarity of the working class.

In addition to the speaking and demonstration there will be all the usual amusements, dancing, games, and sports. Admission is 35c. Take Vliet street car marked Tippecanoe to the park.

CHINA'S FIGHT ON IMPERIALISM GAINS STRENGTH

Czarist Refugees Used As Strikebreakers

(Special to The Daily Worker.)

PEKING, June 28.—The agitation against domination in China is on the increase, according to reports reaching here from all parts of the country. The national struggle is under the guidance of the Kuo Min Tang, which has not lost its grip on the masses thru the death of Sun Yat Sen, as the imperialists fondly expected.

Tho the American government has hesitated to interfere to any great extent in the present crisis, American business men in China, at the solicitation of British agents are making frantic efforts to induce the Washington government to adopt drastic measures. The American chamber of commerce in Hankow, adopted a resolution condemning the statement made by Senator Borah, which urged the dropping of extra-territoriality laws and favored the treatment of the Chinese on an equal basis with other nations.

Imperialist Diplomacy Clashes.

While it is believed Borah would not make such a statement without the sanction of the state department, the British believe their influence at Washington is strong enough to induce the Coolidge government to adopt an attitude towards China similar to what Kellogg adopted towards Mexico.

Neither the American nor the Japanese government have so far showed any intention of pulling the British chestnuts out of the fire. Japan is deeply involved in China, but her diplomacy has left England the task of doing most of the dirty work while the Mikado's government has confined itself to making protestations of friendship for the Chinese people. What the big powers may do later on is a matter for history to record and not for prophecy.

Shot by Foreigners.

France is demanding an indemnity of $500,000 for the life of a French citizen who was killed during the recent hostilities in Canton. As it was proven that the initiative in the shooting came from the French and the English, the Chinese government will be able to present a counter claim that will more than balance that of France.

Another development which is causing considerbale comment here, is the right-about-face of the Christian missionaries who at first blamed the shooting in the Shameen settlement in Canton on the foreigners. Under pressure from the British they now changed their testimony and now blame the Chinese.

White Guards to Scab.

SHANGHAI, June 28.—Attempting to break the shipping tie-up which has prevented sailing of many British ships, the Canadian Pacific line today sent 100 Russian white guards to Hong Kong to serve as a black leg crew on the Empress of Asia. The Express of Canada sailed for Hong Kong from this port as British had loaded her cargo.

The general strike situation remained unchanged here, shops remaining open but business virtually at a standstill owing to the panicky feeling that exists.

HORRIBLE FATE OF PRISONERS IN SAN QUENTIN

Guards Murder Inmate; Vice Flourishes

The inhuman conditions prevailing in San Quentin prison is revealed in the following letter published in The Nation of June 17, 1925:

To the Editor of The Nation:—I am sending you a short article setting forth a few facts about this prison. If you are interested in such things, and care to publish it, you may rest assured that it is the plain truth, not exaggerated. It might be made tough for me here if it was discovered that I had written this, so I ask that my name be withheld.

This will be sent "underground", and I hope it is not damaged in the process.

• • •

San Quentin is California's leading penitentiary. It has fairly sanitary accommodations for 800 prisoners, but contains 2,100 at present. Since the first of January it has had a new warden, a Mr. Smith, who spreads himself in the newspapers as being a student of "anthropological samotology," also as an efficiency expert who is going to put the prison on a paying basis. Although I am a convict in San Quentin I have no personal quarrel with Smith. I believe that the warden is just an average politician.

Guard Murdered Prisoner.

On February 18 a riot occurred in which an inmate, Tony Hernandez, was killed. At once the warden caused about forty men to be locked in the dungeon. They have been there now thirty days on bread and water. There is no evidence against them. On March 3 some of [illegible] men so confined were taken to bath. One of them, Wendell Dollar, stooped over to pick up a cigarette butt and a guard shot him through the back, killing him. The officer excused himself by saying that he thought Dollar was trying to pick up a club or rock, and the coroners jury exonerated him. There was nothing within reach of the prisoner that he could possibly have used a weapon, and the guard must have observed this, as he was only about thirty foot distant. Men undergoing punishment are not allowed tobacco, and in reaching for a cigarette stub Dollar was breaking a prison rule. Murder, however, was not justified even under California prison rule. The guard still occupies his post, so Mr. Smith evidently did not disapprove very strongly.

The new warden revived the prison bulletin, a convict publication, and promised that it should be a shining example of free press. Prisoners are not allowed certain radical papers, which are granted second-class mailing privileges by the United States post office department, so apparently there are varieties of free press in this prison.

To make a good citizen out of a bad one you must feed him good, wholesome food and and teach him a useful trade, says the warden. The food in San Quentin was poor under the former administration, but is is worse now. The diet is mostly stargh and lacking in vitamines and other ingredients necessary to good health. The prison has a much-advertised vegetable garden, and it keeps chickens, hogs, and milk cows. The vegetable garden covers about five acres and is highly cultivated and carefully tended. For months at a time no fresh vegetable appears upon the convict's table, and when one does appear it is always single, an onion or a stalk of celery, unwashed and tough.

The "Crazy Alley."

The only trade it is possible to learn is the manufacture of gunny sacks, and anyone who is forced to follow this occupation for a year or two will have had enough of it for one lifetime. There is a jute mill in Oakland, California, but it will not employ ex-convicts.

Perhaps the saddest thing of all is San Quentin's "crazy alley" where those mentally deranged, or that the doctor does not like, are kept. It is what the name implies, an alley, located between two three-story cellhouses and has a high picket fence at each end. The place is damp and dark, alive with stink and slime. There is no warmth in it, no kindness; no sunlight ever penetrates its gloom. If you peer through the pickets you can see the, "The Miserable Ones," walking up and down in the shadows. Some old and gray and broken, only a little way from death and freedom. Some young and robust; how long will they be so? Nothing to do but go mad. One is an old Chinaman tottering on a broomhandle cane. He has been there sixteen years. Tomorrow or the next day or a month from now they will bury him on the wind-blown hill above San Quentin and Justice will have been satisfied.

University of Vice.

Sodomy flourishes almost unheeded; men with syphilis are not even segregated and young boys mingle indiscriminately with the most "hard-boiled" of men. Those who have money are able to procure all sorts of "extras" through undeground sources, and it is even said by the convicts that he who has the price can buy his freedom.

It is probable that all these things are known by the people of the United States and California. Maybe they do not care; they are not interested; or perhaps they think it serves us right to have to live under such conditions. Whatever is the case, why not be honest about it? San Quentin is not a place where men are reformed and made over into useful citizens. It is a place of cruel and stupid punishment where the ruling class "gets even" with those who have offended. It is a school that teaches depravity to the young and hate to all.

COOLIDGE AIDS SUGAR BEET TRUST GRIND MILLIONS IN PROFITS FROM THE TOIL OF CHILDREN AND WOMEN

By LELAND OLDS

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Exorbitant profits of the American sugar trust at the expense of women and children exploited in the sugarbeet fields reveal the hypocrisy of President Coolidge in his apology for refusing to cut the sugar tariff as recommended by the majority of the tariff commission. Coolidge based his defiance by pleading for the producers of sugar beets.

Profits totaling $12,420,753 were taken by the Great Western Sugar Co. in the year ended Feb. 28, 1925. Great Western with plants in Colorado, Nebraska, Wyoming and Montana is the dominant corporation in the country's beet sugar industry. Its profit amounts to $14.40 on each $25 share of common stock, or about 58 per cent. Cash dividends are being paid at the rate of 32 per cent a year.

Profits From Colonial Slaves.

Sugar companies operating in Porto Rico, the Philippines and Hawaii will also be beneficiaries of Coolidge's little favor. As these territories are reckoned as parts of the United States, their sugar comes in duty free.

The Central Aguirre Sugar Co. with plants in Porto Rico affords a glimpse of the profits which these companies are making out of the high sugar tariff. Its 1924 profit of $1,200,369 meant a return of 40 per cent on its common stock. It paid its stockholders cash dividends totaling 30 per cent bringing the total cash distributed in the last 8 years up to 318½ per cent or more than 3 times the entire capital stock.

But Coolidge said nothing about protecting these millionaire profits. His ostensible appeal was for the farmer. He said: "The farmer is entitled to share along with manufacturers by direct benefits under our national policy of protecting domestic industry." He referred to the sugar tariff of 1.764c a pound as protecting the American farmer "from the competitive impact of cheap Cuban labor."

Labor of Mothers.

The conditions under which the farm work is done in this so-called protected industry have been revealed by he childrens' bureau of the U. S. department of labor. The bureau found that under the contract system prevailing the labor of mothers with little children and of boys and girls as young as 6 years was the regular thing in the sugar-beet fields. In both Colorado and Michigan one-fourth of the child workers were under 10 years, one-half under 12 years and only one-fifth to one-sixth were over 14 years. Coolidge's twice rejected nominee for attorney general, Charles B. Warren, is the principal child slaver in the Michigan beet fields.

The bureau found these little children working long hours at wora which was frequently dangerous. Working hours ran as high as 15 a day. Families were found living huddled together in shanties which were not even waterproof and with practically no decent provision for sanitation.

Such revelations show that the high sugar tariff means no proteution to the standards of workers who produce the sugar-beets. It simply enables the sugar trust which operates branches in Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii and the Philippines, as well as in the states, to add nearly 2c a pound to profits made by exploiting American labor to the limit.

TWO SOCIALIST BROTHERS TRIM THE BOXMAKERS

Wreck Union by Graft and Thuggery

By JOSEPH MANLY.

(Special to The Daily Worker)

NEW YORK. (By Mail).—This is the story of how a couple of socialist adventurers are engaged in bleeding the workers of the Paper Box Makers' Union, so that the material, welfare and comforts of these said careerists shall be enhanced even tho' it be at the expense of the workers in the shops. Louis Waldman, the lawyer, in the furtherance of his career is ambitious to move up on Riverside Drive even tho' he has to call upon his brother Morris and his gangsters to assist him in getting into this restricted capitalistic section.

The Paper Box Makers' Union has been torn with dissensio nfor months. This dissension is caused by the personal ambitions of Morris Waldman and his legal adviser brother Louis. Several years ago the Paper Box Maker's Union became affiliated with the International Union of Paper and Sulphite Workers. Several organizers were appointed by the International Union, amongst them Morris Waldman and Joseph D. Cannon, both of them socialists and leaders of the socialist party. The Union increased in membership and prospered for a while. All went well until Waldman and Cannon began to quarrel. Each seeking the advantage over the other and neither of them caring for the welfare of the workers in the shops. While these would-be leaders fight and maneuver against each other, the union has been neglected, the workers suffer, Waldman and his kind eat regularly and the bosses reap the advantage.

Brothers Help Each Other.

In the 1923 general strike the workers carried the burden of the struggle. What did Morris Waldman do to help the workers in their struggle against the bosses? Morris saw to it that his brother Louis was hired as the attorney for the union at a retaining fee of $1,500 paid out of the pockets of the workers. What did this idealistic socialist lawyer Louis Waldman do for his high retaining fee? He helped to write an agreement that his brother Morris later denounced when he found the workers bitterly opposed to it.

Assessment Levied.

In August 1924, a two day assessment which must have run up to a total of $20,000 was levied against the opposition of the rank and file by the bull dozing methods of Morris Waldman. No accounting, no audit, no financial statement covering this sum of money has ever been rendered. When the opposition on the Executive Board demanded an accounting for this money, Morris Waldman declared "Martial Law" and "suspended" the Executive Board. In all the annals of high-handed action on the part of bureaucrats in the American labor unions, this is the most unparalleled czar-like action ever heard of

The same can be said of the driving from office of organizer Roberts, who was forced to leave his office because of the threats of two gangsters accompanied by organizer Weiner, President Smith and Treasurer Kanper. Roberts was given no trial, no charges were preferred against him. He was simply driven out by the gangsters and henchmen of Waldman. If Morris Waldman is allowed to continue in office, and practice such methods in the conduct of the organization, the Paper Box Makers Union will have no support from the rank and file and will become a mere tool of the organized bosses. Perhaps this is the real goal to which Morris Waldman is aiming to drive the organization.

Not Fitted To Lead.

When the International Union withdrew from the organization controlled by Morris Waldman another local of paper box makers was chartered. This local union has at its head Joseph D. Cannon. He too is not fitted to lead the rank and file of the workers. He cannot inspire their confidence, nor is he aggressive enough against the employers. Tho' he quarrels with Morris Waldman, he and Waldman are at the same time prominent members of the New York socialist machine. This may be the explanation as to why the socialist press does not print a line about this deplorable situation. This entire crowd of socialist bureaucrats will not unite, but will destroy the paper box makers organization. They hold in higher regard their own personal fortunes than the welfare of the workers whom they are supposed to represent.

Power Is Crumbling.

The once boasted power of Morris Waldman, thru which he dominated the organization is fast crumbling. In a frantic effort to save it, he is making use of gangsters against members of the union, who dare to question his dictatorial methods. Of late he has gone to the extent of preventing some workers from making their livelihood. By threats or promises to the bosses with whom he is making an alliance he is stopping workers in the shops, simply because they belong to the local affiliated with the International Union. While it is true that the Paper Box Makers must have unity in their ranks, it cannot and will not be brought about in this manner. Unity must come from below. The "Unity" forced at the top by gangsters and the henchmen of Morris Waldman is no real unity—it is the terror of a failing bureaucrat, a czar who feels his throne slipping from under him.

Unity must be brought about between the two Paper Box Makers Unions of New York City. To bring about this unity, a number of militant ranks and file members of both organizations formed a "Unity Committee."

Terror Must Cease.

This reign of terror cannot and will not be tolerated. As a basis for the creation of a united organization, and an aggressive fight against the employers for better wages, hours and working conditions, the Box Makers Unity Committee proposes the following:

1. That the stopping of workers on their jobs by Morris Waldman or his henchmen shall cease immediately.
2. That a full accounting for the expenditure of all funds be rendered by Morris Waldman and his Executive Committee.
3. The use of gangsters to beat up members of the union must cease.
4. An aggressive campaign must be started to organise the unorganized shops.
5. Neither Morris Waldman nor Joseph D. Cannon have the confidence of the rank and file of either of the organizations. They must both resign their respective offices.
6. Abolish the "Martial Law," hold elections and establish order within the union.
7. Economy must be established in the expenditures of the union finances. The present extravagance must be abolished.
8. Work for one United Paper Box Workers Union affiliated with the general body of the labor movement.

BUILDERS AT WORK

Campaign Ends Tomorrow

Three months of intensive Communist activity by a squad of live Builders of the Revolutionary movement will end tomorrow.

The activity will end ONLY as far as day to day tabulation is concerned. Communist Builders will be on the job EVERYDAY, in and out of season, getting subs for the DAILY WORKER and the Workers Monthly—selling and distributing Communist books and pamphlets—propagandizing—building the revolutionary movement by means of these measures.

The results of the Second Annual DAILY WORKER Sub Campaign will be counted on July first and results tabulated and explained in the special Anti-imperialist issue of July fourth.

We will be able to see just what Communists particularly and what locals and what methods served the Communist movement in this country. It will be our answer to Mobilization Day of American Capitalism—a building job for eventual working class power.

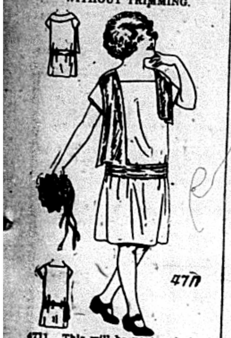
OUR DAILY PATTERNS

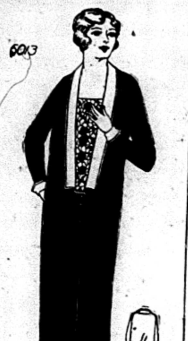
A PRETTY DRESS WITH OR WITHOUT TRIMMING.



4711. This will be neat and simple as a school or day dress, without the "trimming" and very attractive and dressy, with the trimming, which forms a smart reverse collar and soft girdle. Crepe de chine in the new peach, moss green, or flesh shade could be used, with the trimming of a contrasting material or color. In white organdy or voile or in two toned taffeta, this style will be very pleasing.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 6, 8, 10 and 12 years. A 10-year size requires 2¼ yards of 40-inch material. If made as illustrated it will require 3⅝ yards of 32-inch materila for the dress and ⅝ yard for the trimming.

A STYLISH FROCK FOR THE WOMEN OF MATURE FIGURE



5013. Taffeta or faille would be very attractive for this design. As here portrayed facings of white satin are shown, with lace over chiffon for the vest.

The pattern is cut in 8 sizes: Bust measure 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52 and 54 inches and corresponding waist measure, 33, 35, 37, 39, 41, 43, 45 and 47 inches. The width at the foot is 1⅝ yard. To make the dress as illustrated for a 44-inch bust will require 4⅝ yards of one material 40 inches wide, with ½ yard of contrasting material for the collar and cuffs, and ¼ yard of chantilly or other lace all-over 20 inches wide.

FASHION BOOK NOTICE!

Send 12c in silver or stamps for our up-to-date Spring and Summer 1925 Book of Fashions, showing color plates and containing 500 designs of ladies', misses', and children's patterns, a concise and comprehensive article on dressmaking, also some points for the needle (illustrating 30 of the various simple stitches), all valuable hints to the home dressmaker.

Portugal's Cabinet Falls Over Dispute On Finance Program

LISBON, June 28.—Portugal was without a cabinet today, following the resignation of the ministry headed by Victorino Guimaraes. The resignation was provoked by parliament's refusal to approve the government's financial measures.

Negro Farmers Oppressed.

WASHINGTON, June 28.—Negro farm families studied by the department of agriculture in comparison with white farm families in selected regions in Texas, Tennessee and Kentucky, in 1920, had less than half as much to spend as did the whites. Negro family budgets averaged $611, and white family budgets $1,436. Only 4.6 per cent of the Negro budgets could be spared for education.

Organization in the Steel Industry

The Central Labor Union of Gary, Indiana, announces its intention to renew a drive for organization among the 65,000 steel workers there as its part in the general organization campaign slated to start in September by the American Federation of Labor.

We do not question the sincerity of the Gary Central Labor Union. It probably has a real desire to organize the slaves of the steel trust but such announcements have become a commonplace since William Z. Foster organized the steel workers in 1919 and the movement collapsed due to the ignorance, cowardice and treachery of the officials of the international unions composing the American Federation of Labor.

$60,000 was left in the treasury of the committee for organizing the steel workers after the strike was over. This was handed over to a re-organized committee (Foster had become too "radical" for the fakers) headed by William Hannon of the International Association of Machinists, and a new campaign announced.

Meetings in Gary and other steel towns have been held by this committee from time to time but the general impression, voiced in these columns once before, is that a maximum of one steel worker brought into the union for every $1,000 expended is a liberal estimate of the result of the labors of its "laborers." But if the committee in charge of the new drive is really after results this time, and if the Gary Central Labor Union is determined to give life to the work of organization there is at least one thing they should NOT do:

Begin their campaign by a denunciation of the "reds."

The steel workers, largely Negroes and foreign-born workers, are already suspicious of the union officialdom; the foreign-born workers for the most part have some acquaintance with the aims of the so-called radical elements and approve of them. To begin the organization work as Hannon did, by declaring that the radicals were to have nothing to do with it, is to convince the most militant and therefore most necessary elements among the steel workers, that the new campaign is just another attempt to organize something to sell out when the bosses offer the highest price.

In Gary there is already a small group of militant steel workers belonging to the union. They joined the union in order to help built it, there is no doubt of their sincerity and the Gary Central Labor Union could do no better than to entrust them with the organization campaign in this district.

This would be the very best way of dispelling the general suspicion among the steel workers. It would also give a rank and file character to the organization committee that it sadly lacks.

Brave Businessmen in China

Seventy Chinese workers and students have been killed and more than 300 wounded by the troops of Great Britain, France, Italy, Japan and the United States in order to break the strike of the textile workers in the Shanghai mills—owned by Japanese capitalists—and to crush the movement for national independence.

The Chinese government has protested against these outrages and made certain demands. The "American" attitude in China is interesting. We publish the following so that our readers can tell without trouble just how much interest American workers and farmers have in supporting our imperialists in China in their war on the Chinese masses:

SHANGHAI, June 25—The American association, composed of American citizens in all fields of work in China, today passed a resolution which it cabled to the state department at Washington, as follows:

"We urge the American government to co-operate energetically with the other powers and adopt the strongest attitude and representation to the Chinese government to suppress the lawlessness directed against foreigners, which, in our opinion, is due primarily to the long existing unsettled political conditions and aggravated by Soviet propaganda.

"We ask that China he held strictly responsible for all loss of life, property, and business incident to the present situation.

"Absolute observance of the existing treaties is essential until modified thru orderly processes provided by the Washington conference."

Chinese Strikers' Demands.

1. Cancellation of the state of emergency in Shanghai.
2. Release of the arrested Chinese.
3. Suspension of punishment of the offenders pending investigation.
4. Compensation to the families of the dead and wounded and also for the damage sustained by laborers, merchants and students.
5. An apology.
6. "Rendition" by the mixed court.
7. Reinstatement of strikers.
8. Improvement of labor conditions.
9. Chinese participation in the municipal administration.
10. Retrocession of the municipally-built roads outside the foreign concession.
12. Chinese liberty of speech, publication and assembly.
13. Dismissal of the secretary of the municipal council.

Wouldn't it be a fine thing if we workers went to war for a pirate crew that demands battleships as an answer to the demands of the Chinese people as set forth above, for the punishment of murders and the privilege of running their own affairs?

We publish the following Chicago news item with the belief that it furnishes its own comment:

> The council finance committee last night voted to recommend that the salary of Corporation Counsel Francis X. Busch be raised from $10,000 to $15,000 a year.
> The committee voted down requests for small increases in salaries of minor employes of the city.

The reactionary leaders of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union will soon need the entire New York police force to save themselves from the membership. It is an old saying that those "whom the gods wish to destroy they first make mad."

The Western Progressive Farmers' convention has adopted a resolution demanding the release of Chouch and Trumbull. Who said the farmers were interested only in the weather and the price of wheat?

The Struggle in Shanghai and Its Significance

By Tang Sh

THE formation of the anti-bolshevik front on the part of the imperialists for the purpose of annihilating the Soviet Union and colonizing China completely, and further, the brutal dictatorship of Tuan She Sui and Tsang Eso Lin in Peking, render it necessary to convert the idea of national revolution into deeds. The front of the national revolution is directed against the foreign imperialists and against their Chinese lackeys; the military rulers and the compradores (agents of foreign firms and banks).

The revolution in the year 1850, under the leadership of Hung Shu Tzuen expressed the indignation of the South Chinese peasants who were completely suppressed by British and French imperialism. The Boxer rising in the year 1900 was the expression of the indignation of the Northern Chinese people who were heavily oppressed by German, Japanese and Russian imperialism. Today the whole of the Chinese people is crushed and enslaved by international imperialism.

THE revolution which broke out in 1850 lasted altogether for 15 years. That it failed is only due to the fact that on the one hand, the manchu government at that time co-operated with the English against the revolutionaries and on the other hand, because the leader, Hung Shu Tzuen, wished to introduce christianity into China and had himself nominated as emperor in Nanking, and that a great portion of the people were not in agreement with him. The reason for the defeat of the Boxer rising is to be attributed in part to the leaders of the movement (the emperor's widow and the Manchu princes), who were reactionary and acted in a stupid and frivolous manner, and in part to the fact that it was a purely anti-foreign movement, which not only opposed the suppression by the foreigners, but was against all intercourse with foreigners whatever. Owing to its weakness the Manchu government was overthrown in 1911.

The present movement is not simply an anti-foreign movement, but is directed against the imperialists, against the exploiters and oppressors of the Chinese people, no matter whether they be foreigners or Chinese; in fact the Chinese will co-operate with such peoples who treat China as an equal, such as Soviet Russia, and also with the suppressed peoples of all countries.

AT the beginning of May, on the 1st, 4th and 7th, there were serious encounters between the Chinese people and the Tuan She Sui and Tsang Tso Lin cliques. The imperialist lackey Tuan She Sui had restricted and partly forbidden the labor celebration of the 1st of May, the observation of the day of freedom, 4th of May (on this day in the year 1919, the Peking students revolted against the government of Tuan She Sui as a result, new ideas regarding freedom penetrated into the minds of the people inmeshed in the teachings of Confucius) and the anti-Japanese day, 7th of May (this is directed against the 21 demands submitted by Japan in 1915). As a result, on the 7th of May indignation broke out against the government. In the collision with the police two students were killed, many wounded and many arrests were made. This partly led to the struggle in Shanghai.

The bourgeois papers in Germany characterize it as an anti-foreign movement and state that the lives of foreigners are endangered. The organ of the foreign minister, Stresemann, Die Zeit had an article under the title: "China's Hostility to Europe." Certain circles even speak of a Boxer rising. The nationalists will probably make use of the occasion in order to take active part in the anti-bolshevist front, with the aim of thereby, perhaps, being able to satisfy their great longing for colonies.

WHAT lies behind this fight against imperialism? The Chinese wish to abolish all unjust treaties. The occupation troops and warships must immediately leave China. All areas in the possession of foreign powers shall be given back unconditionally to China. In short: The Chinese people wish to shake off the yoke of slavery; they wish to live as brothers with equal rights along side other peoples. The imperialists are already concentrating their warships and troops in China. They do not wish to be deprived of their spoils, on the contrary, they wish to enslave the Chinese people completely.

The weapons of the imperialists in China, apart from the one-sided treaties, are: Christianity and opium. By means of the unjust treaties they suppress the Chinese people economically and politically; with christianity they stupify the minds of the Chinese; with opium they poison their bodies. In spite of the fact that revolts against the imperialists have often been crushed, the people are not intimidated. In every province, in every district, anti-imperialist and anti-christian societies have been founded. It is no longer necessary to furnish reasons to the Chinese people why they should fight against imperialism. But they must be shown the ways and means with which it must be fought. This task has been undertaken by the party of Sun Yat Sen, the Kuo Min Tang, and the Communist Party of China. The fight in Shanghai is the signal for the commencement of the national revolution in China.

THE London Times published a leading article in which the shootings in Shanghai are described as a great mistake. It urges that the decisions of the Washington conference regarding China shall be carried thru as speedily as possible, in order to pacify the population. On the one hand, the imperialists, in order "to protect their fellow countrymen," dispatch numerous warships to China and strengthen their forces there, and on the other hand they seek to weaken the movement of the Chinese people by pacifying them with honeyed words. The lackeys of the imperialists, Tuan She and Tsang Tso Lin, have several times sent protests to their masters on account of the shootings in Shanghai. In the whole of China, however, sympathetic strikes have already broken out for the fighters in Shanghai. It is no longer a question of a struggle in Shanghai, but of a struggle thruout the whole of China.

Mussolini is endeavoring to extend his robber policy in China. At the beginning of this year he sent a thousand troops to guard the Tientsin-Peking line. In addition, he demanded that a piece of territory be granted for the establishment of an aeroplane station on the coast in the neighborhood of Tientsin. If this last should be granted to him, it would have the same consequence as resulted when Germany leased Kiautchou as a naval base. For the other imperialists would come and likewise demand aeroplane stations. In the struggle in Shanghai th

all concessions that had been granted. Encouraged by this support, the Japanese exploiters, taking advantage of the weakness of the Chinese government and acting just as they pleased, flooded the factories involved in the strike with their police forces and and spies. The Chinese workers have done everything in order to preserve the peaceful character of their movement.

They have given the Japanese military clique no occasion for them to resort to the use of weapons. Nevertheless, the bellicose clique of Japanese militarists, on the 29th of May, carried out a blood bath among the workers of Tsindao, which in its cruelty can only be compared with the action of the czar when he caused the Petrograd workers to be shot down on the 9th of January, 1905. Just as this bloody Sunday in Petrograd provided a political object lesson to the working class and brought the prletariat of Russia finally on the road of revolution, so the blood bath carried out on the 29th of May in Tsindao is rousing the million masses of the Chinese workers and awakening to action the powerful revolutionary forces of this people which have hitherto slumbered.

A HUGE wave of indignation has swept over the whole of China on account of the shameless firing up on the peaceable crowd of workers. Already on the next day, the 30th of May, a huge crowd of people, numbering many thousands, among them being the revolutionary students from 23 colleges, marched thru the streets under the leadership of the Communist Party along with the Kuo Min Tang Party, to give expression to their burning indignation and to protest against the provocative insolence of the imperialists.

The Chinese democracy and intelligentzia, hand in hand with the working and peasant masses, in the same way as the leading intellectuals of the rest of the countries of the East, have for long been conducting a self-sacrificing struggle against international imperialist oppression. It is a matter of course, that the volleys fired in Tsindao have aroused the intellectuals of China and, in the first place, the student youth.

As if by mutual agreement, the English and American police in Shanghai at the same time as the Japanese gendarmes fired on the unarmed workers in Tsindao, undertook the task of firing upon demonstrators who expressed their sympathy with the workers of Tsindao and protested against Japanese militarism, which in "independent China" causes the workers to be fired upon with an unheard of insolence such as it would never have ventured to do in Japan itself. It was not for nothing that the revolutionary trade unions of Japan energetically protested against the new unexampled acts of violence in China on the part of their government.

BY this cruel and brutal act the foreign capitalists are seeking to take full vengeance for their defeats; they are seeking to compensate themselves with the blood of the workers and students for the unsuccessful attempt to crush the resistence of the trade unions and destroy the trade union movement.

The international imperialists are making use of the Chinese generals in order to conduct among themselves the armed fight for the carving up of China, the throttling of the Chinese workers and peasants and the appropriation of the richest portions of China. Yet when the working masses rise up to fight for their rights, a touching unanimity makes itself apparent in the ranks of the world bandits. At a time when the working class of all countries, without exception, has issued the slogan: "Hands off China!" the robbers of the international stock exchange, in defiance of this demand of the world proletariat draw the sling around the neck of the Chinese people still tighter.

A detachment of 2,000 English, American and Italian soldiers have already been landed in the harbor of Shanghai. Not content with this shameless violation of the independence of the Chinese republic, the international imperialists are concentrating warships in the Chinese harbors and are preparing to land fresh troops.

THIS means the commencement of acts of war and the beginning of a new bloody war of open armed intervention. Whilst French imperialism is conducting a war in Morocco, the English, American and Italian imperialists are making war on China.

The excesses of English, American and Japanese imperialism in China and the war being conducted by French imperialism in Morrocco, is a signal to the working class of the whole world, that a new danger is approaching; the indisputable growth of aggressiveness on the part of world imperialism in the colonial and semi-colonial countries.

This united front of aggressive imperialism must be opposed by the iron, invincible front of the European and American workers and peasants and the suppressed peoples of the East.

THE recent events in China bear eloquent witness as to the uninterrupted growth of the national liberation movement and of the prominent role of the working class in this movement, of the new and unexampled driving force which the development of the revolution in the countries of the East has attained. The stronger the pressure which world capital exerts upon the workers of the West, the more favorable are the prospects which open up for this movement of the suppressed million masses of the East, who from the other end are undermining the rule of capitalism, which is suppressing with equal ruthlessness the working masses of the West and of the East.

Bishop Brown Addresses Defense Confere

pened, war would commence. It is wonderful, however, how far we can agree on words—so long as the words do not mean anything.

Not Freedom for Others.

It is the same with the right of free speech. Everybody believes in it but nobody has ever seen it. Everybody wants to say what he wants to say; so everybody believes in free speech for himself. But not for the other fellow.

The constitution, to be sure, is supposed to guarantee this right to all; but when a man has served a few years in prison for exercising the right, it is small comfort to him to reflect that they did not jail him constitutionally.

That is why it is necessary to have such a conference as this. You workers have to defend yourselves. The constitution, lovely as its sentiments are, was not made for you. You are workers. You are American labor; and, in spite of all the pretty words on our statute books concerning the right of everybody to the free expression of his opinion, anyone who honestly esponses the cause of labor in America is quite likely to land in jail.

Like to Talk About Liberty.

This is not anything against the constitution. It is not anything against anybody. It is simply a statement of fact about life in America; and if we intend to go on living in America, it is up to us to look these facts in the face.

In a few days now, the Fourth of July orators will be turned loose upon us. All of them will extol liberty; and ninety-nine out of a hundred will hasten to add that by liberty they do not mean license.

That used to give me a good deal of trouble, in the days when I was an orthodox preacher and still believed devoutly in words. It does not trouble me so much these days; for I have learned that it is not the word but the meaning behind the word which counts. I know now that the word, liberty, refers to the thing that I want to do, and license to the thing that the other fellow wants to do. And in capitalist America, we should have intelligence enuf to see labor is most emphatically the other fellow.

The vexatious difficulty which calls for such a conference as this is explained by the fact that the world is divided into classes—the master class and the slave class. While this is the case, the masters will have all there is of freedom and the slaves tyranny only.

When the workers once become conscious of their position and power, labor will no longer be denied freedom. That, to me, is the significance of this conference. It is a sign that American labor is waking up; that it is no longer content to be counted out, and that the recognized right of Americans to express thoir opinions must include the right to express opinions about the labor problem.

Making Thinking a Crime.

But we have not reached that point yet. We have laws in many of our states today which make the presentation of certain theories a crime. This is tantamount to making thinking a crime: for unless one's mind is open to examine all theories upon any question, nothing which can properly be called thinking can occur.

These laws are not all directed against labor. In the Episcopalian church and in the state of Tennessee they are trying to abolish the human brain entirely and put the first chapter of Genesis in its place. I do not think they can do it

So far, at least, no one has actually been put in jail for presenting the theory of evolution in geology and biology. It is only when you present the theory of evolution in sociology that there is much danger of a prison term.

Theories about god are still fairly safe, but theories about human labor are extremely hazardous. Lot of people think that I would not have been tried for my theological theories, but for the economic ones.

Must Honor P.'l Liberty.

That is just one phase of the situation which calls for this conference, and the inauguration of a national movement for labor defense. I do not need to tell you that my heart is with you. I do not know, in all America, of any holier work than this. For labor is human life; and unless we have full liberty to face the problems of human life, no politics, no religion, no prayers and no god in the skies can possibly be of any use to us.

I shall not presume to advise you as to what this conference should do. It is my hope only that you face the facts: for when man once discovers the facts of his existence, he can not help acting intelligently.

You may believe in human rights: but that will be of small help to you unless you discover what human rights are. There is utter confusion upon this question today. Preachers will tell you that you have no right to do wrong: which means, if it has any meaning at all, that you have no right to do anything which they think is wrong.

Lawyers will tell you that you have no right to disobey the law. That does not mean much, either, for lawyers seem to be the last people on earth to understand what law is. They think that legislature makes laws, but every scientist knows better than that. Men can not make laws. All that men can do is to find out what the laws which actually govern human life are: and if the statutes they devise are in accordance with these real laws, then it will do very well to call them laws. But if they are out of harmony with natural law, it must presently be discovered that they are not laws at all.

Water expands when heated. That is a doing of nature, a natural law: and if the United States congress should enact to the contrary, nature would not be seriously embarrassed. Neither would you engineers and firemen. After one or two experiments, at least, you would quit trying to run your engines on ice instead of coal.

Can't Balk Natural Laws.

Water has a right to expand when it is heated, and no legislature can take that right away. It has a right to run down hill. It has a right to be wet. It has no right to stretch its legs because it has no legs. That is not a right which it can exercise: and the only rights which anything has are the rights which it can exercise—the rights which nature gives it as the result of the evolutionary processes to which it owes its being.

That is about all I wanted to say. In order to find out what our rights are, we must consult the doings of nature which are the laws that actually govern us. But those laws, we must remember, may or may not be on the statute books. I am a law abiding citizen. I stand, as every man of science and scientific philosopher must, for utter obedienec to law: but I am not fool enuf, when I want to know what the laws are, to examine the proceedings of some fool legislature. I observe human nature instead: for I know that the human being has only one set of rights. I s

LABOR DEFENSE CONFERENCE MAKES HISTORY IN STRUGGLE OF AMERICAN WORKING CLASS

The National Conference for Labor Defense held Sunday in Ashland Auditorium, that gave birth to the first great non-partisan labor defense organization in the history of American labor, is an achievement that marks an epoch-making step forward for the working class.

Such was the opinion of the delegates to the conference returning home to complete the establishment of the International Labor Defense they began on Sunday.

The constitution providing for the founding of the "International Labor Defense" as an organization composed of individual memberships and labor collective organizations was passed unanimously by the more than one hundred delegates present.

No Discrimination in Defense

The delegates represented trade union bodies, workers' fraternal and benefit societies and defense organizations from all parts of the country.

They declared in their constitution that the International Labor Defense will "serve as a non-partisan defense body for the protection of all workers persecuted by organized capital for expression of opinion or for their activities in the labor movement, regardless of political or industrial affiliation, race color or nationality."

Ex-Class War Prisoners Attend

A feature of the conference was the attendance of many ex-class war prisoners who were seated unanimously by the delegates. Among these were Fred Mann, Harrison George, George Speed, Alfred Wagenknecht, John Edenstrom and Ralph Chaplin.

Labor Defense Council Dissolves

George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council presented a resolution from the executive committee of the council offering its equipment, organizational machinery and funds to the "International Labor Defense" founded by the conference.

Chairman James P. Cannon, accepted for the conference and expressed the gratitude of the delegates, saying "This provides an immediate, material basis and gives us a beginning we are thankful for."

"Dangerous" Red Lamp

Eight resolutions submitted by the resolutions committee were drafted as instructions for work to the International Labor Defense. Andrew T. McNamara of Pittsburgh, reporting a resolution for campaigns against anti-labor legislation and injunctions said, "If you are in the labor movement in Pennsylvania you never know what minute you are going to be put in jail.

"We have laws and injunctions down there that will put a worker behind bars any time the authorities who represent the iron and coal magnates feel like it. One worker was sent to jail in my [illegible] for having a red lamp in his parlor."

Amnesty Campaigns

Rose Barron of New York submitted a resolution instructing the International Labor Defense to make special provision for adequate relief for the families and dependants of class war prisoners. Harrison George, an ex-class war prisoner who spent five years in Leavenworth penitentiary, reported on a resolution for campaigns demanding the release of all political and industrial prisoners.

He reviewed the history of the wholesale jailing of workers since the beginning of the war and warned the delegates that if the workers did not now begin the job of widespread protest it was giving the labor baiters encouragement for more and greater excesses in their persecution of the more alert and conscious section of the labor movement.

"The railroading to prison of I. W. W.'s and Communists is only a rehearsal for the time when the whole labor movement will be attacked in an attempt to annihilate it." he said.

Unity in Defense

The chairman of the conference, James P. Cannon, presented a resolution calling for the co-operation of all sections of the labor movement in the work of labor defense and instructing the new defense organization to secure united action with all existing defense bodies.

"The job of defending ourselves against the attacks of the exploiters of labor is a basis for a common platform upon which workers of all beliefs and affiliations can unite. I am convinced that this conference has made this materially possible and there is no doubt in my mind that the International Defense will rally all organizations of workers for the fight against the persecutors of labor and find means to effect fraternal co-operation with all existing defense organizations that are engaged in the common cause of labor defense."

Know of 128 Prisoners

Cora Meyer of the National Prison Comfort Club reported the resolution on relief for class-war prisoners.

She reviewed the work done in this field by her organisation which will amalgamate with International Labor Defense and expressed confidence that the latter organisation will provide for the 128 class war prisoners in the jails of this country.

Gitlow Scores White Terror

"The international character of capitalism makes the class struggle an international one" said Benjamin Gitlow, reporting a resolution on support to workers persecuted in other lands, "and it devolves as both a duty and necessity on the workers in this country to defend their brothers in other countries who suffer oppression and persecution by the iron heel of imperialism."

Gitlow came to the conference very uncertain whether he would have to leave for Sing Sing before it was over. He was recently remanded to prison by a decision of the U. S. supreme court.

Manifesto For Unity

The manifesto of the conference, passed unanimously, ends with the slogans, "Release all class war prisoners," "Repeal all criminal syndicalism laws," and "Unite for Labor Defense."

The manifesto calls upon the labor movement and those sympathetic to the workers' cause to rally behind the International Labor Defense.

Large National Committee

Thirty-seven nominations were made for the national committee and by unanimous vote of the body all were made members of the committee.

On the committee, among others are, Eugene V. Debs, Upton Sinclair, Scott Nearing, Alice Stone Blackwell, Alex Howat, William Z. Foster, Bishop William Montgomery Brown, Robt. W. Dunn, Andrew T. McNamara, Ralph Chaplin, C. E. Ruthenberg, Ellen Hayes, Benjamin Gitlow and James P. Cannon.

High-Time Says Maurer

George Maurer, secretary of the Labor Defense Council, said after the conference, "At last the labor movement has made a substantial beginning on a job that should have been done years ago, the uniting of all sections of the working class in a sincere non-factional national movement in behalf of all class-war prisoners and for the protection of all workers against persecution."

Workers Will Support I. L. D.

Members of the national committee expressed the opinion that the International Labor Defense will be immediately acclaimed and supported in the labor centers of the country. The work of setting up the local units of the new organization will begin directly after the meeting of the national committee.

WESTERN PROGRESSIVE FARMERS ENDORSE THE DEFENSE CONFERENCE

A telegram of greetings to the delegates assembled in the Conference for Labor Defense held Sunday in Ashland Auditorium and pledging support to the organization founded for uniting all sections of the workers' and farmers' movements for labor defense was received from William Bouck of Sedro Wooley, Washington secretary of the Western Progressive Farmers' Union of the Northwest.

RIFFIANS DRIVE FRENCH BACK IN DOUBLE VICTORY

European Imperialism on Run in Morocco

PARIS, France, June 29.—The attack of the Riffians has driven the invading French troops back at two important places. Even the official French communique from Fez admits that the Riffians have made headway in their attempt to drive the European imperialists from Morocco.

"In the region between Cheyab and Bou Haroun, dissident tribesmen succeeded in pushing back for several kilometers our native covering troops," saps the French dispatch.

The Riffian thrust stretches along the entire eastern front, and have driven the French back toward Chirfat, the French admit.

In the Spanish zone, the Jabala and Riffians are concentrating for a heavy attack.

The Riffians aim to sever the Fez-Taza road and in the Spanish zone to capture the Tetuan-Rio Martin road. The European invaders have been forced back on both fronts, despite the resistance of French artillery and airplanes, helping the French infantry.

DUNNE TO SPEAK AT ST. LOUIS LABOR LYCEUM ON JULY 5

ST. LOUIS, June 29.—William F. Dunne will speak in St. Louis on Sunday, July 5th at a big meeting in the Labor Lyceum, 2714 North Garrison Ave. A big crowd is expected not only from St. Louis comrades but from nearby towns.

Debs speaks at the funeral picnic of socialist party on July 4th and the Dunne meeting will serve as a real contrast in enthusiasm, understanding, revolutionary zeal and activity.

Comrade Dunne is well known in St. Louis and in the mining community about St. Louis and no doubt St. Louis will experience a successful and eventful day.

THRONG GREETS INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE

Ex-Prisoners Given Big Ovation by Workers

the audience.

Bishop Brown donated $100 which brought the total collection up to $492.00

Workers in Pa. for Defense

Andrew T. McNamara told the audience how labor is persecuted by the steel barons of Western Pennsylvania. "It isn't safe to be in the labor movement in Pennsylvania. Any man at all who is active in the workers' movement there can be put in jail 'legally' under our infamous, socalled 'sedition' act. Dozens already have been. We workers in Western Pennsylvania look upon what the conference did here today as a great boon. Persecutions of workers in Pennsylvania alone are sufficient justification for the founding of the International Labor Defense."

Ovation for Bishop Brown

Bishop William Montgomery Brown was given an ovation and his speech partly humorous and yet expressing the bishop's sincere convictions concerning the struggle of the workers against the domination of capital left the workers and delegates present with a sense of marked appreciation for the bravery and spirit of the courageous old man who was recently expelled by his church because of his attachment to the workers' cause.

Chaplin Speaks for Prisoners

Ralph Chaplin spoke in behalf of the 128 class war prisoners in the jails of the country. "If the workers on the outside realised what it means to those behind the bars to know that meetings like this are being held for them they would hold them every night in the week.

"Those of us who have been locked up can tell you that you are doing a great service for our imprisoned brothers in uniting the forces of the workers' movement to let them know that you haven't forgotten them. And we can appreciate too, the simple, but to those in prison, highly necessary, extension of a few ordinary comforts such as tobacco and books."

Crowd Cheers Gitlow

When Chairman Dunne introduced Gitlow, whose conviction has been sustained by the supreme court of the United States, the audience rose and yelled for two minutes. "When that robed committee representing Wall Street, the supreme court, handed down its decision in my case saying that workers could be sent to jail for being class-conscious and for having opinions, it issued both a warning and a challenge to the workers of this country that they can expect no quarter in the class war between them and their exploiters," Gitlow began. "The conference that was held today and the work that it accomplished in uniting the bonds of solidarity between all the various parts of the labor movement for workers' defense, is timely indeed and throws that challenge back into the teeth of the master class of this country.

"We are showing them here today that we are prepared to meet their vicious and poisonous propaganda, their jailings and lynchings of workers, their laws and their injunctions with a united front of class conscious workers prepared to fight them to a finish."

Meeting Is Great Success

The success of the meeting was attested to by the fact that although there were two thousand people jammed into the hall and the meeting lasted almost three hours scarcely a person left until the finish when the audience filed out with cheers and applause for the speakers on the platform and for the International Labor Defense.

The Truth About China Reaches United States By Way of U. S. S. R.

By J. LOUIS ENGDAHL

TODAY, the first revealing light on real conditions in the Chinese drive for national liberation comes by way of Moscow. It is said that the truth travels slower than lies, but the truth has arrived, showing the encouraging facts with regard to the struggle of rising China against her imperialist oppressors.

• • • •

Already on June 7th, when the American kept press was relating how the strike wave in China was receding, the total number of workers involved in Shanghai had reached 4[illegible]000.

Two days later, on June 9th, the 150,000,000 workers and peasants of the Union of Soviet Republics were getting the truth, that the number of workers on strike in China had reached 1,000,000, while in Shanghai alone the total was up to 260,000. These facts are now being spread by the DAILY WORKER for the first time in capitalist America.

When the figures had reached 125,000 and were rapidly climbing, the International Press Correspondence, that serves the world Communist press, states that even this number "was unparalleled in the history of the Chinese labor movement."

Thus the Communist press held to the workers side of the struggle, while all the press agencies of the bandit imperialists were wildly screaming about the "lives of foreigners" they claimed were threatened in the various Chinese cities, at the same time seeking by every possible means to minimize the heroic struggles of Chinese labor.

• • • •

That the "lives of foreigners" were amply protected, while Chinese workers and students were being murdered by the score, and wounded by the hundreds, can be judged from the fact that on June 11th, there were 23 men warships in the harbor of Shanghai, with the American killers outnumbering all the rest. The figures were: American warships, 10; Japanese, 5; British, 4; French, 3; and Italian, 1. These brought 4,000 marines to the port, of whom 3,000 were put on land.

• • • •

Against such an array of imperialist murder machines the Chinese workers did not weaken. They stood their ground. But they paid the price. Up to June 7[illegible], 42 workers had been murdered and 85 wounded, in what the foreign soldiery looked upon as a "sporting game."

The teaching staff of the Peking National University reported on June 11th, that the total number of killed was 70, while the total of wounded had reached 30[illegible] not one of these being a "foreigner." None of these figures appeared in the American kept press. Instead these yellow sheets were howling about an American wounded by a stray bullet while out soldiering.

• • • •

Then on June 12th came the mighty mass protest gatherings in the city of Moscow itself, the capital city of the Soviet Republics, attended by 450,000 people, close to half a million. It found its valiant echo in another great demonstration, that held at Peking, China, June 11[illegible] attended by 100,000 people in Tien An Mena Square. Thus the movement grows in harmony with the world struggle of the downtrodden, which Gregory Zinoviev, president of the Communist International, sums up with these words:

"The Moroccan War, the Shanghai happenings, the growing unemployment in Great Britain, the election of Hindenburg, the Bulgarian events, the symptoms of a financial crisis in France, all go to show that capitalism is doomed to death and that the international proletariat, under the leadership of the Communist International will be its grave digger."

• • • •

These world events will only find their working class interpretation, with the facts as to daily developments in the Communist press. This must be clear to all workers. If not, it will be made clearer to them with each new day's development.

• • • •

In China the 6,000,000 proletarians assume the leadership of the struggle of the whole population of more than 400,000,000. It is a struggle with which every worker in the United States must become acquainted, with which he must identify his own struggle. He can only begin to do this by reading the Communist press and studying its literature, issued in the United States by the Workers (Communist) Party. Chinese developments again draw clearly the lines between the class press, the Communist press of the working class against the capitalist press of the exploiting class.

Buy Up Railroad.

GARY, Ind., June 29.—The Chicago, South Shore and South Bend railroad today completed the purchase of the Chicago, Lake Shore & South Bend railroad for a purchase price said to have been $6,000,000 flat.

Auto Kill 6 In One Day

Reckless driving of automobiles in Cook county killed six in one day, among them a boy 9 years old who was struck while crossing a street. This brings the total deaths by automobiles in Cook county since Jan. 1 of this year to 350.

FIRE AND FLOOD ADD TO CALIF. QUAKE HAVOC

Santa Barbara Ruined, with Many Dead

SAN FRANCISCO, June 29.—Twenty-seven persons were killed in a violent earthquake that partly destroyed Santa Barbara. The principal buildings on State street, the main business therofare, were reported demolished. The Arlington Hotel is in ruins, as the California Hotel. The historic Santa Barbara mission is a pile of debri. The Cabrillo hotel was torn in two.

Relief trains, with nurses, medical aid and food supplies, have been rushed to the stricken city.

• • •

City Reported Flooded.

SAN LUIS OBISPO, Cal., June 29.—The water reservoir is out of commission at Santa Barbara as a result of the earthquake which devastated the city. Five tremors were registered. The Southern Pacific roundhouse caved in.

The Gibraltar dam, above Santa Barbara, has broken, and the water from the reservoir is reported to be flooding the city.

The Southern Pacific railroad station at Golita, eight miles north of Santa Barbara, was reported wrecked.

Telephone Lines Down.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., June 29.—All telephone lines into Santa Barbara are down. The board of supervisors of Los Angeles county has offered Santa Barbara county any aid needed. The railroad tracks at Naples were badly twisted. Oil tanks at Summerland were wrecked, flooding the district with oil. Roads are blocked by landslides.

Fire Breaks Out.

VENTURA, Cal., June 29—Fire has broken out in the stricken city of Santa Barbara. Those who fled from the city reported here that several houses were in flames. All water mains are broken. The small town of Goleta, near Santa Barbara, was completely destroyed by the quake which was followed there by fire.

Santa Barbara is a city of [illegible] population. It is located at the [illegible] of the Pacific ocean, 90 miles [illegible] of Los Angeles, and 367 miles [illegible] of San Fancisco.

The shocks were felt as far [illegible] as San Luis Obispo and to the [illegible] of Los Angeles.

Some reports placed the number of dead at above the 27 reported to the railroad. Hospitals were demolished and several hospital patients were reported killed.

Germany to Drop Carpet Tax

TEHERAN, June 29.—A protest including threats of a reprisal tax against German luxuries imported into Persia if the German tax on Persian carpets is retained has forced the German minister here to officially announce that Berlin will give Persia more favorable treatment.

betterment. They are class war prisoners.

The last ten years have witnessed more persecution and jailing of workers engaged in the fight against economic and political enslavement than any previous epoch in the history of the land. There are no indications that this offensive against the more alert and conscious section of the labor movement is going to cease. On the contrary, there are many signs that point unquestionably to its continuation with ever more vigor.

THE recent decision of the United States supreme court in the Gitlow case upholding the conviction of Benjamin Gitlow means that the highest legal tribunal has placed its final sanction upon the so-called criminal syndicalist laws on the statute books of thirty-five states. This decision is comparable with the Dred Scott decision by which the supreme court at that time placed its "final sanction" upon chattel slavery. The decision sends Gitlow back to Sing Sing, confronts William Z. Foster, C. E. Ruthenberg, Robert Minor, and thirty other Communist workers, with the danger of long prison sentences for "assembling." One hundred and twenty-seven union miners have been tried recently in West Virginia under an injunction against picketing. Injunctions are obtained from the courts now in every labor dispute, big or little, by the class enemies of the workers. Prosecution of workers in California merely for being members of the I. W. W. continues. An international officer of the American Federation of Labor and the international vice-president of the Street Carmen's Union have been indicted on framed-up charges by a Buffalo grand jury for strike activity three years ago. Ten workers face trial under Pennsylvania's infamous sedition act for distributing literature explaining the struggles of the workers. Special legislation against the foreign-born places every active alien union and radical worker in danger of deportation.

The growing movement for organization of Negro workers and farmers has increased the special persecutions from which they have always suffered. Many Negro workers, farmers and soldiers are in prisons for no other reason than that they have either tried to organize themselves in labor and farmer unions of otherwise sought protection against exploitation and the torture and murder of members of their race.

MOONEY and Billings, Sacco and Vanzetti, Matt Schmitt and J. B. McNamara, Ford and Suhr, Rangel and Cline, and many others soldiers of the working class, wear away their lives in prison and all efforts to secure their release so far has failed.

The military court-martial in Hawaii has sentenced two American soldiers, Crouch and Trumbull, to military prison for expressing political opinions. These facts and many more that could be cited are proof that the offensive against the labor movement has been broadened in the last ten years to include all sections of the working class.

ABROAD, since the war, the workers and peasants of Europe have had to suffer constant and bloody oppression at the hands of capitalist reaction. In Italy, Germany, Hungary and especially in the Balkan and Baltic states, in India, China and Africa, in Haiti, Mexico, Central and South America the workers and farmers are terrorised by the open reign of violence instituted against them by the capitalist governments.

WORKERS' organizations are declared illegal, thousands of workers and peasants fill the jails, and in many countries the spokesmen and leaders of the workers are murdered without trial. These bloody excesses against the working class abroad demand not only emphatic protest but active support of the workers' defense in these countries by the American working class.

The continued persecution of the workers in this country and the unmistakable signs of its intensification call for the organization of all the forces at the disposal of the workers for the struggle against this terror and its sponsors. This condition, if allowed to continue, will mean the destruction, or at best, the serious weakening of the labor movement. The need of this period is for every conscious worker to pledge his support to a concerted movement whose purpose is to concentrate the resistance of the whole working class and all those sympathetic to the cause of the workers, in defense of the militants who are singled out or grouped together for a target of attack by organized capitalism.

UNTIL now, workers' defense has been spontaneous and sporadic. Defense committees have been created hastily as causes arise and frequently had to depend on workers without adequate connections and experience to properly handle them. Widespread publicity often is not secured and the power of the labor movement at large is not mastered for the defense. As a consequence, many obscure workers have been railroaded to prison without the knowledge of the labor movement—"Unknown Soldiers" of the class-war. All possible forces must be rallied for the defense of every worker attacked thru the courts or otherwise by the agents of capitalism.

This conference, consisting of delegates from all sections of the labor movement and from existing labor defense bodies, sets up the INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE for the purpose of fulfilling this mission. The INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE is a non-partisan organization. Its object is to unite all forces for labor defense. It constitutes itself as an ever-ready and ever-willing champion for the defense of all workers attacked for their activity in the labor movement or for expression of political opinion or industrial affiliation.

THE INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE will seek to collect material and give publicity to all cases of working-class persecution, to expose brutal treatment of class-war prisoners and to bare secret anti-labor activities such as labor spy systems, etc. This conference proclaims that the INTERNATIONAL LABOR DEFENSE stands ready to provide legal, moral and material aid to all workers persecuted for their activities in the labor movement or for expression of opinion. The conference considers it a first duty of the working class to look after the comfort and well-being of the hostages to capitalism and to supply material comforts and the means of existence to their families.

The International Labor Defen

MINERS' WIVES MUST LABOR IN THE INDUSTRIES

Many Take in Wash, Others Enter Shops

By LAURENCE TODD
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON, June 29. — Coal mines in the United States are generally located at a distance from factories. Wives and daughters of the miners cannot keep the homes going for the men who dig the coal, and at the same time have a wide variety of employment offered them near at hand, with which to increase the family income. The only jobs they can get are heavy and illpaid. Coal miners' women folk are not getting a fair chance in life.

That is the substance of a report which the women's bureau of the U. S. department of labor has prepared, based on data collected by the U. S. coal commission of two years ago.

Take In Washing

It is a depressing story of how the burden of life in coal mining camps is thrown upon the shoulders of wives and daughters.

Of the 500,000 women involved in this study, some 100,000 have been forced by economic conditions to become wage earners. Three-fourths of the bituminous miners' women live in such remote places that they can earn money only by doing washing or cleaning, taking lodgers or boarders, or doing some similar work in the mining community. Anthracite mines are so located that one-third of the women are restricted to this sort of jobs. Large numbers of the daughters of anthracite miners are employed in factory occupations in towns near their homes.

No Conveniences.

Instead of making such necessaries as light and water readily available in the miners' houses, the report finds that along with their remoteness and desolate surroundings the miners' homes are singularly devoid of these things. Running water was found in only about one-fifth of the 80,000 houses studied, in 811 communities. Only 3 per cent had a bathtub or shower, and only 4 in 1,000 had inside flush toilets.

Running water in the house, it is explained, means, usually, one faucet in the kitchen. Rates for the use of additional faucets, or for attaching a hose from this faucet to carry water to another part of the house, were prohibitive. The miner's wife must carry water in a pail from this one faucet to the stove, bathtub or elsewhere. Of the bituminous camps, only 4 per cent had complete sewer systems.

Such things as parks, reading rooms, libraries, rest rooms and girls' clubs were almost wholly lacking in the mining communities.

Negro Labor Body Calls Pittsburgh Conference in Aug.

PITTSBURGH, June 29.—The Pittsburgh committee of the American Negro Labor Congress announces its intention of calling a local conference about the middle of August, inviting to it all organizations having Negro members. And between now and the date of the conference will visit all meetings possible in an endeavor to get delegates to the Pittsburgh conference. The conference will then select delegates to the American Negro Labor Congress to be held in Chicago beginning October 25.

BIRMINGHAM WORKERS ELECT DELEGATE TO NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 29.—The Mechanics', Workingmen's and Women's Industrial Organization of Birmingham has elected a delegate to the American Negro Labor Congress. It is quite fitting that southern organizations which feel the pressure the hardest should look to the coming congress as a new era in the life of the American Negro.

On Strike for Four Years.

The southern organizer of the American Negro Labor congress reports that the Amalgamted Tin and Steel Union Local No. 17 has been on strike four years. They keep themselves cheered by saying the first hundred years are the hardest. Some representative of this body will possibly be at the A. N. L. C. in October. It is this determination that makes for strong healthy movements. We understand there are Negroes in this local.

KNIT GOODS WORKERS IN SHARP FIGHT

Show Spunk in Trying to Organize Philly

By LENA ROSENBERG.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 29—After the Federated Textile Workers Union decided to admit the Knit Goods Workers' Union into their ranks the members of the Knit Goods Workers are now more determined than ever to carry on their organization campaign to organize all the workers in their industry.

A leaflet was printed and distributed calling a mass meeting of all knit goods workers for Thursday night. When the bosses noticed the leaflet they ordered their workers to work overtime on that night and since the workers are not organized they were afraid to stop early; but they did come after nine; and those who were not members yet, joined, and showed that they are determined to have a union in Philadelphia.

The executive committee had a meeting and decided not only to call mass meetinngs but also shop meetings and thus hasten the building of the union.

With the enthusiasm and determination that the workers showed there is no reason why the Knit Goods Workers' Union should not become one of the strongest unions in Philadelphia, especially when the Federated Textile Workers have pledged to help them both financially and otherwise.

The Young Workers' League of Philadepiphia has taken a hand in the upbuilding of this union by distributing leaflets announcing the various meetings that were held and those encouraging the other workers of the industry.

1924, A YEAR OF LOWER WAGES AND FEWER JOBS, SHOWS FEWER STRIKES WITH FEWER STRIKERS

By LELAND OLDS
(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

A decrease of 18 per cent in the number of strikes and lockouts in 1924 as compared with 1923 and of 12 per cent in the number of workers involved in such disputes reflects the uncertainty as to the future course of business which prevades both sides of the industrial struggle. Faced with a world situation indicating the progressive inability of capital to give old-time prosperity with full employment both employers and unions appear willing to maintain some sort of industrial truce.

The 1,227 strikes reported to the U. S. department of labor in 1924 is the smallest number in any year on record except 1922. Measured by the number of workers involved in disputes strike activity in 1924 was below that in any previous year.

1919 the Big Strike Year.

The department's record shows 1919 as the year of greatest strike activity, with 4,160,348 workers involved. In 1924 the number was 654,453 which compares with 744,948 in 1923, 1,608,321 in 1922 and 1,099,247 in 1921.

The following figures for 1919, 1923 and 1924 show how the strikes and lockouts were distributed among the industries:

No. strikes in	1919	1923	1924
Building trades	473	206	267
Clothing	322	357	223
Furniture	35	12	34
Iron and steel	76	10	7
Leather	27	17	5
Lumber	46	19	6
Metal trades	581	111	57
Mining	176	159	177
Paper manufacture	47	16	6
Ptg. & publishing	71	19	12
Shipbuilding	109	6	1
Meat packing	74	11	14
Stone	13	15	15
Textile	273	134	79
Tobacco	58	16	12
Transportation	191	30	18

Coal miners led the number of workers involved in strikes and lockouts in 1924 with a total of 280,585. Clothing workers followed with 166,651.

Needle Trades in Vanguard.

Two of the largest strikes were in the clothing industry. There was a successful strike of 50,000 called by the International Ladies' Garment Workers in New York City for an increase in wages, a 40-hour week, unemployment insurance, etc., and a successful strike of 40,000 men's clothing workers in the same city against a wage reduction and the sending of work to non-union shops.

There was a strike of 40,000 bituminous coal miners in Missouri, Kansas, Arkansas, and Oklahoma, which resulted in an agreement on the basis of the Jacksonville pact. Other important coal strikes involved 15,000 miners in the Kanawha district of West Virginia and 15,000 employes of the Glen Alden Coal Co. in Pennsylvania.

More strikes in 1924 ended favorably to the workers than to employers. The department's tabulation shows 280 in favor of the bosses, 334 in favor of the employes, 135 compromised, 45 referred to arbitration and the remainder were not reported.

AUSTRALASIAN LABOR BOYCOTTS MORGAN'S FLEET

Protest Imprisonment Of U. S. Unionists

By W. FRANCIS AHERN.
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

MELBOURNE, Australia. (By Mail.)—Speaking on behalf of a million organized workers in Australia, the Melbourne Trades Hall Council has issued a manifesto calling upon the Australian workers to refrain from any social function in connectiton with the visit of the American fleet as a protest against the action of the United States government in holding radicals in jails.

The manifesto points out that "a large number of the members of the American working class are still lying in the United States jails serving long and brutal terms of imprisonment for alleged offenses under the American espionage act and criminal syndicalist laws. Their only crime is that they dared to oppose war and conscription and dared to advocate industrial unionism and socialism.

After pointing out that protests have already been made to the American consul and the Australian parliament for presentation to President Coolidge, the manifesto says:

Attack on All Workers.

"The Australian labor movement considers the action of the American authorities in attacking members of the American working class organizations to be an attack upon the cardinal principles of the labor movement, namely: Freedom of speech, freedom of the press, and the right of combination, all of which are embodied in the American constituttion. We, therefore, join with the workers of all lands in calling upon the people of America to demand from their government the release of all such prisoners.

"In making this appeal to the workers of Australia, we cordially invite the co-operation of the working class members of the American fleet. Our fight against oppression affects the welfare of the rank and file of the army and navy, either at home or abroad, just as the rest of the members of the community. We join with them in urging the American people, if they believe in the rights and liberties of the American constitution, to open the jails and set our comrades free."

PLASTERERS "REPLY TO" UNION BRICKLAYERS—AND VICE VERSA; BUT BOTH DODGE AMALGAMATION

By CARL HAESSLER
(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

The jurisdictional struggle between the Plasterer and the Bricklayer international unions which is interfering with building operations all over the counrty has setttled into a long range fight for publicity since the negotiations in Washington broke down.

Accuse Each Other.

Vice-President Cronin of the Operative Plasterers' and Cement Finishers' International Association requests The Federated Press to distribute to the labor papers of the country an answer to the statement made by the bricklayers.

The Bricklayers, Masons & Plasterers Intl. Union from its Washington headquarters gave The Federated Press a statement of its side of the case which was sent out by the F. P. to its member papers last week. In it the bricklayers stated that they were trying to protect their existing locals of plasterers against the invasion of the Plasterers International, particularly in Florida and that they had no intention whatever of absorbing the Plasterers into the Bricklayers' International.

What's This About Amalgamation?

Cronin, who is handling the Chicago end of the Plasterers' case cites documentary evidence that the Bricklayers are determined to gobble up his organization.

The 1924 convention of the Bricklayers held at Saratoga Springs, N. Y., unanimously adopted a resolution stigmatizing the Plasterers as a dual organization and urging the amalgamation of the Plasterers and Bricklayers.

The Plasterers in 1924 had 30,000 members showing an increase every year since 1918 when they had 19,000. The Bricklayers have remained stationary at 70,000 in that period. The Plasterers were organized in 1862 and entered the American Federation of Labor in 1908. The Bricklayers International was formed in 1865 and entered the A. F. of L. in 1916.

Nasty Charges.

The Plasterers further charge that the Bricklayers have been and are now trying to recruit plaster strikebreakers for Philadelphia where the Plasterers are on strike against a $2 cut in wages from the $14 a day rate They have correspondence of the Bricklayers making arrangements for the enlistment of scabs, Cronin says.

Both sides charge violation of agreements in the jurisdictional row.

TEXTILE UNION IS STRONG FOR AMALGAMATION

No Officials Are On Permanent Payroll

By TOM BELL.
(Special to The Daily Worker)

BIDDEFORD, Me.—(By Mail.)—The tenth annual convention of the American Federation of Textile Operatives opened here in Loom Fixers Hall with 55 delegates representing 22 locals attending. The membership of the union, which is not affiliated with the A. F. of L., is about 10,000.

President James Tansey of Fall River, Mass., read his report of the past year. This report outlines the lobbying activities carried on at the various New England state legislatures principally on the 48-hour bill. The depression which struck the textile industry about two years ago has greatly affected the union thru decreased membership. At the highest peak just after the war the membership was about 17,000, and today reaches barely 10,000.

Unemployment in New England districts covered by A. F. T. O. locals amounts to from 25 to 40 per cent. Wages have been cut from 10 to 12½ per cent. The report draws attention to the fact that over-production is the cause of the unemployment among textile workers, and urges that the practice of the bosses in running the mills 24 hours a day be stopped.

No Centralization.

The report of the treasurer shows that $14,000 was spent in strike benefits during the past year. The amount spent on national officers' salaries is $600 a year, wages being paid them only for actual time lost attending to union business. National officers, such as president, secretary and treasurer, are usually paid officials of local unions. There is no attempt at centralization of power and finances in the hands of the national officials. On the contrary there is a decided sentiment against any centralization and for giving locals and local councils autonomy.

The most important question to come before the convention is the relation of the union to the Federated Textile Unions of America. This organization is a federation of the independent textile unions organized in 1921. The unions of lace operatives, Brussel weavers, full-fashioned hosiery workers, silk workers, carpet workers, the International Spinners Union, Amalgamated Textile Workers and the A. F. T. O. participated in the organization.

This federation of independent unions grew out of the need for unity of action against the bosses, but only got as far as a loose federation which collected money to help various strikes. At the present time the A. F. T. O. is practically the only body of any importance in the federation. Propositions will be made to the convention to secure the affiliation of the small unions in the federation to the A. F. T. O.

Strong for Amalgamation.

There is no question of the strong sentiment in this organization for amalgamation of all textile unions. In the past negotiations were carried on with the United Textile Workers Union (A. F. of L.) for the purpose of uniting their forces. These negotiations came to an end because the U. T. W. officialdom showed that they wanted to swallow the A. F. T. O. instead of having a real amalgamation based on the wishes of the rank and file.

The officialdom of the U. T. W., especially McMahon, has no standing among the A. F. T. O. membership because of his continual betrayal of the textile workers. The sentiment of the membership regarding amalgamation was clearly expressed by W. L. G. Batty, business agent of the Loom Fixers local in New Bedford, when he stated: "We believe in the unity of all workers as a matter of principle."

Today the ceremonial opening of the convention was gotten over with and for the next two days the convention will plunge into real business.

Automobile Production.

The department of commerce announces May production of motor vehicles as 382,714 passenger cars and 43,303 trucks, of which 364,363 passenger cars and 41,415 trucks were made in the United States, and 18,351 passenger cars and 1,888 trucks were produced in Canada.

RELEGATE FOSSIL LAMPTON TO THE MUSEUM IN LOS

"Acquaintance" With Bosses Not Popular

LOS AUGELES, Cal., June 29.—At the recent election of secretary-treasurer for the Los Angeles county district council of carpenters, the incumbent, Lampton, has apparently been defeated, as he is 91 votes behind the strongest of four candidates, Blair from San Pedro. As the 19 out of 29 affiliated unions, who have reported that Blair is elected.

Lampton, the typical class collaborator, pleaded for re-election on the ground that he had gained knowledge, experience and made acquaintances among the bosses which would be of great value to the carpenters provided he was continued in office. Just how it all would have much value to anybody but himself, he very conveniently forgot to explain.

However, the membership has, in its collective wisdom, decided that Lampton was too much of a politician and too busy with outside loves to deserve support for another term and that divorce was the proper thing under the circumstances.

There were other lovers anxious to head the family, but Blair has been chosen as the most desirable. They say he has proved himself a good provider in San Pedro, and it is earnestly hoped that some of his proverbial ability proves itself real and leaves a lasting impression upon Los Angeles, the world famous foe of organized labor.

Says Negro Has No Hope of Rise in Business World

The Negro Champion, official organ of the American Negro Labor Congress, is in receipt of a letter from a Mr. Ransom, he states in part: "The American Negro came upon the scene about 75 years too late to become a factor in the business world." He states further that, "The gold rush in '49 marked the last chance to get in on the ground floor of our basic industries." That may be so, but the American Negro Labor Congress hopes to work out some solution by getting together the best thought of all organizations interested in Negro life.

Mr. Ransom states further that, "The foundation of the great fortunes made in the mills, mines, railroads and factories had been laid before the Negro was liberated from chattel slavery. All other industries are but outshoots of fortunes accumulated from these basic industries."

CHICAGO NEGROES WILL MEET TO PLAN LABOR CONGRESS

The local committee of action for Chicago of the American Negro Labor Congress is arranging for a large Negro labor conference to be held the latter part of August.

The conference will be made up of delegates from the many local Negro labor unions and will employ its organizational strength in promoting the American Negro Labor Congress which is to convene beginning Oct. 25.

WHAT IT MEANS TO HAVE T. U. E. L. LEADERSHIP

A Little Battle Saves Old Worker His Job

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., June 29.—The importance and the effectiveness of shop committees under the leadership of T. U. E. L. militants was well demonstrated in the Royal Upholstering shop when the boss, Mr. I. West, requested the chairman of the shop, Dave Milgrom, to refuse to give work to an elderly worker, J. Park, on account of his age. West insisted that Park was 60 years old and should be sent to an Old Age Home.

Milgrom, who is the chairman of the shop as well as the chairman of the T. U. E. L. in the Upholsterers local Union, immediately called a meeting of the workers in the shop, of whom there are about 25, and explained the case to them, together with a recommendation that the boss be instructed to start no discrimination against any workers and especially against fellow worker Park, who has given the best of his life and energy enriching the Royal and other upholstering companies.

This recommendation was unanimously adopted and Mr. West notified accordingly.

Next day Mr. West approached Milgrom in an altogether different and pacific spirit to discuss the question of Park, and agreed that Park should remain in the shop but that certain work requiring exceptional skill and speed be not given to Park provided he has other work to do.

Although the Royal is a union shop, the workers there realize that a militant shop committee is essential in making the boss live up to the Union agreement.

Crafts Back Hodcarriers.

BOSTON—That there may yet be difficulties in settling the Boston building trades strike of various crafts is indicated by the International Hod Carriers, Building and Common Laborers' Union which is asking an increase from 65 and 70 cents per hour to 77½ and 80 cents per hour.

The adjustment board of the United Building Trades Council and the carpenters and bricklayers have agreed to support the hod carriers in their demands for arbitration to go into effect at once instead of accepting the proposal of the master builders that the matter be deferred until April 1, 1926.

Food Prices Rise.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 29.—The retail food index issued by the U. S. department of labor thru the bureau of labor and statistics shows that there was an increase of about one-half of one per cent in the retail cost of food in May, 1925, as compared with April, 1925. The index number (1913 equals 100) was 150.8 in April, and 151.6 in May.

HAS FAMILY LIKING FOR YELLOW DOG

Farrington "Sees No Harm" in Blacklist!

By GILBERT ROGER,
(Worker Correspondent)

DOWELL, Ill., June 29—Farrington sees no harm in the mine operators' blacklist (application card) scheme, known here as the "Yellow Dog."

The president of Local 3705 U. M. W. of A. sent in one of the application blanks to President Frank Farrington and asked him what he thot of it.

Farrington's reply was that he did not see any harm that could be done by signing the application.

Yet anyone (besides Farrington) who studies the application can see that its purpose is to use discrimination against some of our brothers of the U. M. W. A.

If you happen to be one that has a strong back, weak brain and not too old, also not too many children if married, then you have a chance of receiving employment. It should be understood that if you have many children, you would be entitled to more compensation if you were injured while in employment.

If you cannot qualify on the above, then you have little chance. Yet Farrington says: "I do not seen any harm," etc.

Here are some of the questions the "Yellow Dog" asks: "How old? Are you married? How many children under 16 years? Citizen? Where did you work last? What were you doing? Why did you quit? Where will you reside if you receive employment? Name and address?"

Then, after you fill them out, the boss says, "We'll let you know when to come back."

GERMANY HARD ON WORKERS WHO DEMAND RIGHTS

Amnesty to Class Prisoners Refused

BERLIN.—In the first months of the year 1925, in the "freest republic of the world," 273 trials against 1,465 workers took place. Of these 1,110 workers were sentenced to 966 years and nine months of prison and three to death.

These sentences were divided as follows: To death, three persons; hard labor, 231 years and one month; jail, 507 years and six months; fortress, 228 years and two months; fines, 71,171 gold marks.

Release the political prisoners! Provide Red aid!

Two Workmen Badly Hurt.

Nick Cannassu, 1333 Cleveland Ave., and W. Ganty, 1030 N. Avers Ave., were seriously injured when a brick wall of a building on which they were working at 1016 E. 43rd St., collapsed. The men were buried by the bricks. They are in the Chicago hospital.

UNWILLING JUDGE DISMISSES CASE AGAINST "REDS"

Didn't Break Law But Made Him Very Sore

(Special to The Daily Worker)

DETROIT, Mich., June 29.—The case against Alfred Goets and John Edwards, who had been addressing a meeting under the auspices of the Young Workers League on the streets of Hamtramck Wednesday, June 17th, was dismissed with great reluctance by Police Judge Majewski.

The warrant read "for obstructing traffic," but it was quite evident from the remarks of the court that this was merely a technical objection. "You can't get away with any red stuff here," remarked his honor.

Had Communist Literature.

When arrested Goetz and Edwards had some Workers' Party literature with them. DAILY WORKERS were very much in evidence. They were held in the Hamtramck jail over night and granted a continuance and released under $100 cash bail.

The ordinance under which the warrant was drawn prohibits crowds from congregating on street corners or sidewalks. But the testimony of the officer who made the arrest showed that the speakers were some thirty feet from the corner. They were neither on the sidewalk nor the street, but had the box located on a strip between the sidewalk and the curb. The ordinance is explicit and the charge of blocking traffic on the street corner or sidewalks did not fit.

His Honor Was Peeved.

Maurice Sugar, defense attorney, moved to dismiss the case. It was then that the court let down the floodgates of his wrath. "I've got to dismiss this case," he said, "but we won't stand for any red stuff around here. If we can't stop it under this ordinance we will find other ways and means."

His honor did not define these other ways and means, but anyone familiar with the manner in which police power, legal and extra legal, is wielded in Hamtramck may surmise what was meant. Needless to say the meetings will continue.

AMERICAN NEGRO LABOR CONGRESS CALLS FOR FUND

The American Negro Labor Congress is conducting a $10,000 fund drive. The national committee has begun its organisational work in the southern states having sent out expert organisers penetrating every corner of the Negro southern population. The national committee feels assured that $10,000 will be able to put over its program.

The provisional committee for calling the American Negro Labor Congress realizing that the Negro has nothing to sell but his labor power is carrying on a two-fold fight, first to show the Negro workers the advantages of joining and second, to force the unions to admit Negro applicants.

SOVIET UNION PAYS RED ARMY COMMANDERS LESS, SOLDIERS MORE, THAN IN CAPITALIST COUNTRIES

MOSCOW—(By Mail)—Peoples Commisary Frunse, head of the Red Army of the Soviet Union, has issued the following statistics:

The Red Army is 529,000 strong. The pay of a Red soldier is one rouble and 20 kopeks a month, under the czars it was 50 kopeks and in France it is 60 kopeks. Thus the pay is fairy high in the Soviet Union, excepting of course the pay of mercenaries.

Pay of Commanders Lower.

But the opposite is the case with the pay of commanders. The commander of a squad receives in the Soviet Union 42 rubles a month, in France 57 rubles, in Germany 62 rubles, in Poland 76 rubles and in Great Britain 212 rubles.

The commander of a company receives in the Soviet Union 53 rubles, in Germany 84 rubles, in France 110 rubles, in Poland 116 rubles and in Great Britain 342 rubles.

The commander of a battalion reseives in the Soviet Union 61 rubles, in Germany 114 rubles, in Poland 150 rubles, in France 152 rubles, and in Great Britain 488 rubles.

The commander of a regiment in the Soviet Union 85 rubles, in Germany 163 rubles, in Poland 204 rubles, in France 211 rubles, and in Great Britain 614 rubles.

The commander of a division receives in the Soviet Union 110 rubles, in Germany 289 rubles, in France 321 rubles, in Poland 323 rubles, and in Great Britain, 1,020 rubles. The salary of the commander of the Red Army are about 30 per cent of the salary of the officers of the former czarist army.

The following example shows the condition of the catering for the army. The daily food of the Red Army soldiers contains 3,012 calories, in the Roumanian army 2,714 and in the Polish army 2,797 calories.

84.7 per cent of the Red Army are peasants, 11 per cent workers, and 5.3 per cent various categories.

Among the commanders 56 per cent are peasants, 12.3 per cent workers, 23.7 per cent various.

Among the new commanders who graduated from the military school last year 33 per cent were workers, 52 per cent peasants, and 15 per cent various. Of those recently admitted to the military schools 44 per cent were workers, 49 per cent peasants, and 7 per cent various.

In 1922 only 56.6 per cent of all commanders had received a special military education. This year the persentage is 90.5 per cent.

15 Fishermen Die When Ocean Liner Cuts Boat in Two

GLOUCESTER, Mass., June 29.—Nine survivors of the fishing schooner Rex, which carried fifteen persons to death when literally sliced in two by the big cunard liner Tuscania., were aboard the liner today enroute to New York.

The dead, all of Gloucester, were:

Captain Thomas Downey, Austin Firth's ten year old son, Charles; George Johnson, Joseph Dalton, Angus McDonald, Angus Smith, Clyde Larkin, Samuel Tibbets, Charles Goodick, William Turner, William Reach, Archie Hill and two unidentified men.

A heavy fog lay over the Banquerau, or Quero Banks, when the big liner struck the fishing vessel.

Several of the crew were killed instantly, including Captain Downey, whose body was picked up by the Tuscania. He was one of Gloucester's best known fishing captains.

Tagilsk Miners Sign Agreement with U. S. Asbestos Company

MOSCOW.—The district committee of the Miners' Union in Tagilsk has signed a new tariff agreement with an American company which has a concession for the local asbestos deposits. The tariff agreement provides for increased wages, and the concessionnaires undertake to pay for three places in health resorts for the workers, to organise a children's home and to contribute one per cent of the total amount of wages for the educational purposes of the workers.

SMALL MOVIE MAN TO GO IS EDICT OF MOVIE TRUST

There is no secret about the intentions of the movie trust. In newspapers as well as trade journals its publicity experts are telling the little fellow just what is coming to him, that he is due to be squeesed out and that all his yawping will not help him. In a current issue of Commerce and Finance, Glendon Allvine, of the Famous Players publicity department, loosens up on the following:

"Just now the principal units in the picture business seem to be engaged in a struggle for theatres. . . There are indications that the independent theater owner is going the way of the individual grocer. . . he seems to be losing out in the economic struggle, and chains of theaters to retail amusement are developing just as chain stores already become firmly stablished in the retailing of groceries."

He then admits quite candidly that altho only a small proportion of the outstanding pictures or most popular stars may be actually connected with "Paramount," so heavily had the trust advertising made inroads upon the mass mind that of those canvassed in a town selected at random said they liked "Paramount pictures" best, yet 90 per cent of them could not mention a single Paramount picture by name.

The organisation of buying chains is the theater owners answer to the trust inroads on the retail field, he states, citing the Balaban and Katz control of 125 theaters, the Jensen and Von Herberg chain in the northwest, and the Stanley control of Philadelphia.

"More and more groups of pictures are bought for groups of theaters and the earlier custom of buying for one theater is almost extinct. And as the mass buying movement of combining exhibitors gains impetus there is a counterbalancing strengthening of the theater holdings of producers concerned about keeping prices up sufficiently to protect their investments in production."

As in other industries competition gives way before combination, then a sharp brief struggle between combinations of producers on the one hand and retailers on the other, with the probable result of an all-inclusive trust ruling this branch of big business as completely as the steel or oil trust rules its division. The better the movies are organized the more useful they are for the capitalists, now the easier they will be for an American Soviet government to harness and turn against the foes of the workers.

Claim Ivan Moskvin Will Act for Stinnes Films

It is claimed that Ivan Moskvin, star of the Moscow Art Theater, whose work in the film "Polikushka" is well known in their country, has been signed on a long-term contract by the Westi Film Co., owned by Stinnes interests. He first picture is to be made in France, under the title, "The Czar's Courier," based upon a Jules Verne novel.

The Stinnes Co. threatens to do for European film production what the Famous is doing in America, to build up an all powerful production and distribution trust. Already production companies are functioning in the four principal continental produceng countries, Germany, Sweden, France and Italy.

Mexican Movie Propaganda

The Mexican government has appropriated a large sum for the purchase, in the United States, of a complete studio outfit. It is planned to make pictures which tell about the Mexican people, their life and customs, and thus counteract the false ideas created by American and European producers. The work will be in charge of an American expert who is said to know all about the tecnique and organization of the film business in the United States, and who has, in addition, a complete knowledge of Mexican conditions. Some of the films will be sold and others given away free.

CALVIN COOLIDGE IS NOT AT ALL LIKE ROBIN HOOD

Tightfisted Towards The Poor—Generous To Rich

By LELAND OLDS.

(Federated Press Industrial Editor)

Tight-fisted toward the poor but exceedingly generous toward the rich is the policy of President Coolidge, as shown in two statements issued a week apart bearing on the financial policy of the government.

When advised by the tariff commission to lighten the cost of living for every household in the land by cutting the sugar tariff one-half cent a pound Coolidge answered that the government could not spare the $40,000,000 revenue. He said:

"Money must be found to meet the appropriations by the representatives of the people. It is estimated that the sugar import duty yielded the national treasury last year $135,099,106 out of a total revenue from all imports of merchandise of $541,231,859. To make the proposed reduction would cost the treasury about $40,000,000 a year."

But when asked by his multimillionaire secretary of the treasury to lighten the rich man's tax burden by reducing the surtax (extra tax) on unearned incomes Coolidge suddenly discovered a treasury surplus of over $200,000,000 ready to hand. Before leaving Washington for the summer he expressed his determination to use this surplus to reduce income taxes in accordance with the demands of business.

This $200,000,000 treasury surplus exceeds the entire revenue derived from sugar by $65,000,000. It amounts to five times the proposed reduction in the sugar duties.

The $135,000,000 collected by the government from its duty on sugar means at least $216,000,000 taken from consumers. The additional $80,000,000 goes to the sugar interests as extra profits thru the arbitrary prices the tariff enables them to charge for sugar produced in the United States and its possessions.

This fact makes the sugar duty an extremely antisocial source of government revenue. For it burdens the people out of all proportion to the return the government gets.

The joy with which the sugar interests hailed the president's favoritism brings new evidence of the profits which the dominant beet sugar concern expects as a result of continued government protection. According to the Wall Street Journal the stock of the Great Western Sugar Co. is being bought on the belief that the directors will either increase the present 32 per cent dividend rate or declar a 25 per cent stock dividend.

In twenty years the company has paid $19,273,000 cash dividends on its $15,000,000 preferred stock and $52,939,000 on common stock which represents no real investment at all. Shares of common were given away as a bonus to the purchasers of preferred. In other words, this company which Coolidge is so anxiously protecting has paid cash dividends totaling $72,212,800 on an investment of $15,000,000, or about 480 per cent. In addition it has accumulated $38,000,000 undivided profits which amount to more than two and one-half times the original investment.

Taken as a whole, Coolidge's series of reasons why he didn't carry out the recommendation of the tariff commission look very much like the hurried fishing for excuses characteristic of a boy caught in the act of swiping cookies for his gang.

Oil Production at Baku Booms Under Soviet Government

MOSCOW.—Five years have already elapsed since the oil wells of Baku were nationalized after the victory of the proletarian dictatorship in Azerbaidjan. During these five years the process of oil getting has very much developed. The technical equipment has been partly renewed by American machines, and electric power has been introduced.

The development of the production itself is shown by the following figures: In 1920-21 the yield of oil was 152.2 million poods, in 1921-22, 168 million poods, in 1922-23 200 million poods, in 1923-24, 238.2 million poods, in 1924-25, 266.3 million poods. In April, 1925, the yield was 24 million poods, and in May already over 25 million poods. The percentage increase of oil production, if we take 100 for the year 1920-21, is as follows:

1920-21	1921-22	1922-23	1923-24	1924-25
100	110	132	156	175

Look Out for the Milwaukee Steamroller!

A. Overgaard, sub-district organizer for Milwaukee, reports Red Week results aplenty. Read this letter of warning to the Milwaukee Leader:

"Look out for the Milwaukee steam roller. We are out to fill our quota before July 1. We expect to send our subs from now on in bunches. All branches are active this week visiting workers, whom the party has distributed copies to during Red Week. We expect even bigger results later and the Milwaukee "Misleader" is going to get a good race.

"The workers of Milwaukee need a real working class daily and we are going to give it to them."

Our Readers' Views

What it Means to be a Miner.

To the DAILY WORKER: The workers in the mining industry in which a great number are engaged can only look on at scientific progress made daily. All these improvements are exploited by the bosses to bring more profits for them. But none is used to make the mines more safe. Consequently one catastrophe after another occurs in the coal mines.

Life Always in Danger.

Years ago there was the Cherry mine disaster. Today we still witness victims of the neglect of the operators in Kentucky, North Carolina, Illinois, Indiana and in all coal producing localities. Such disasters are inevitable under capitalist rule. They happened yesterday, they happen today and they can be depended upon to happen any day in the future as long as the system of exploitation of workers continues.

Here in our locality, not to mention the cut in wages that we face daily, the so-called mechanical loader has thrown off approximately 250 men—two men have replaced them. Then the "yellow dog" that the operators have introduced is another means to further strangle the miner.

No Protection from Operators' Greed.

Today when a miner applies for a job at the mines he must first fill out a blank which contains a long list of question to give the company a clue to his former activities. After the bosses pry into his past thru their investigation bureau, and they satisfy themselves that he is not enlightened enough to be class-conscious he is given a chance to slave for a miserable wage and live in fear of being layed off.

But the miner does not only suffer from industrial dangers and economic pressure, he also suffers from the teachings of false leaders.

The great organization of the miners is decaying rapidly from discontent among the members who see nothing done by their officials to gain better working conditions for them. Our only solution is to be found in the progressive committee conducted by the Young Workers League and the workers Party of America.

I remain yours in the struggle,

Germinal Allard.

NEW ZEALAND WORKERS HOLD UNITY MEETING

Conference Unanimous For One National Body

—By W. FRANCIS AHERN.

(Federated Press Staff Correspondent)

WELLINGTON, New Zealand, (By Mail)—The open conference convened by the New Zealand Alliance of Labor to bring about unity and amalgamation among the several working class groups in New Zealand took place at Wellington on April 11, and was attended by delegates representing all unions and federations thruout the country. The conference was unanimous in the opinion that the industrial workers of New Zealand should establish one national industrial organization which would determine the policy of the organised wage-workers of New Zealand. It was pointed out that the men on the job were demanding unity and were determined that it should be established.

After a lengthy discussion, the conference arrived at the following decisions: (1) That a group of miscellaneous departments shall be embodied in the constitution of the Alliance of Labor, such group to embrace the Trades and Labor councils of New Zealand.

(2) That the group department of the Trades and Labor councils be allowed representation locally on the industrial district councils and nationally on the national industrial council of the N. Z. Alliance of Labor according to its affiliated membership.

(3) The Trades and Labor councils shall be responsible for all affiliation fees to the Alliance of Labor, similar to other departments.

(4) The Trades and Labor councils to render the N. Z. Alliance of Labor every assistance to organize the unions and associations affiliated to these councils on the lines of class and industry in order that such workers may be grouped into their respective industrial departments as laid down in the method of organization of the N. Z. Alliance of Labor.

(5) The Alliance of Labor to accept in affiliation national federations of unions as units of industrial departments.
